ANTI-BALL DEMOCRATS ELIMINATE ON APRIL 4

Governor Colquitt is Called on to Convene Legislature in Special Session to Amend Election Law.

Dallas, Texas, March 7.—With the Orpheum Theatre packed and jammed delegates to the convention called by prominent anti-prohibition democrats continued their deliberations until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

A resolution to hold precinct mass meetings Saturday, April 4, at which delegates to county conventions shall be elected, to hold county conventions April 6, at which delegates to a state convention shall be elected and to hold a state convention at Fort Worth Tuesday, April 14, at which a democratic candidate for governor shall be named, was the most significant result of the gathering.

Governor Colquitt addressed the meeting and declared he is willing to call a special session of the legislature within ten days in order to allow the legislative body to amend the Terrell election law so that a majority nomination for governor shall be necessary.

The convention carried a motion that Governor Colquitt be requested to call the legislature together for this purpose. A committee consisting of one man from each senatorial district was chosen to call on the democrats of Texas to hold the meetings culminating in Fort Worth convention, as suggested.

A special committee was chosen to send out an address to the democrats of Texas. The address was formulated. It attacks the convention of prohibition democrats recently held at Fort Worth, as undemocratic; reviews the past history of democracy in Texas, and discusses issues other than that of prohibition which should be dealt with. Among these are a homestead policy, a marketing system, education.

All was not harmony in the committee meeting where the resolution calling for the precinct, county and state meetings was proposed and carried. For a while it looked as if North Texas was to be arrayed against South Texas, some attacking the resolution as undemocratic and similar to the methods pursued by the prohibition democrats.

Go to Church Sunday.

The pastors of the several churches of Crockett have named Sunday, March 22nd, as a "Go to Church" day, and cordially invite all the people, whether church members or not, to attend on that day. Services of some churches as this one is desired to be have been observed in many places and with happy results. We call upon all citizens of our town, young and old, those who are regular and the irregular; together with those who for any reason have not attended church for years, to make special effort to come out to the church of your choice on that day.

D. H. Hotchkiss,
Sec. Pastors' Association.

A teachers' examination will be held at Crockett on the first Friday and Saturday in April. All persons who intend to take such examination will please govern themselves accordingly.

HOUSTON COUNTY REMAINS DRY.

Over Eight Hundred Majority for County Prohibition—Majority in Crockett Precinct is 254.

In Tuesday's local option election Houston county went dry by over 800 votes. The majority alone for prohibition in the Crockett precinct was 254. All voting boxes have been heard from with the exception of Volga and Dodson, and the report is that Volga went wet by two votes. Following is the vote of each box as gathered by the Courier. This count is unofficial and may be slightly changed by an official canvass, but the figures are approximately correct:

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is it not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by all dealers. Adv.

"FAST FALLS THE EVENTIDE."

The D. A. Nunn Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, Adopt Resolutions on the Death of a Member.

Our chapter is again reminded that "In the midst of life, we are in death."

"Earth to earth, dust to dust, the spirit to the God who gave it." We pause in our busy round of life to garland with immortelles what is left of our dear friends and associates who have passed from death to life and have put on immortality. Our beloved member, Mrs. J. E. Downes, known and loved by you all, member of our chapter from its incipency, has been called to "Cross the Bar," to answer the "Last Roll Call."

The devotion of this hour is not to sorrow that she has gone "home" to wear the white robes of peace and crown of rejoicing, but to give thought of what she was to her family, friends and all who came under her influence. To them, to us, she will be a living presence, remembered forever; to them she will live forever and her influence on them will be felt forever.

Life to her was not all joy, for she had known much sorrow; but she bravely bore it to comfort those who shared her sorrow, and put out her hands to those in need.

Mrs. Downes was truly a daughter of the Confederacy. Her childhood and the greater part of her life were spent in Crockett, where "to know her was to love her," as was evidenced by the great number of friends who came with heart-throbs for a last look on the face they had known and loved so well. Many of them spoke of her benevolence, her kindness, her many acts of charity, while she lived in Crockett, that the world knew not of.

She was unostentatious, reticent as to any charity or good deeds done by her. A truly good woman, "nobly planned," a devoted wife, mother, daughter and friend. True to her church, her people, her God. What more could be said?

To her sorrowing husband, children and friends we attest our heartfelt sympathy and love. She has but gone before, and for them,

"There should be no sting to death,
For the grave has lost its victory;
It is but crossing, with bated breath,
And white set face,—a little strip of sea.

To find the loved one waiting on the shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.

"If we, while on earth, could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within, and all God's working see,

And could interpret all, and for each mystery find a key;
If we could but clearly know and understand,

I think we would say God knows best."

Therefore, be it resolved: That our chapter in meeting assembled convey to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, and send to Mr. James E. Downes a copy of this paper, expressive of our appreciation of their beloved one who has passed from us.

Further, be it resolved: That the city papers be furnished copies and asked to publish same in next issue of their papers. Respectfully submitted.

Increase for Mexican Pensioners.

Crockett Courier.—Heretofore the committee on pensions granted no increase to widows of Mexican war veterans, but this has recently been changed and now where such widow is old, feeble and without means the committee will grant an increase to twenty dollars per month. The Mexican war veterans who served as much as sixty days in the war with Mexico are entitled to thirty dollars per month.

Please publish this in your paper so that any widows who are not receiving twenty dollars per month and the soldiers themselves who are not receiving thirty dollars per month may know what they are entitled to under the law. If they will write me I will help them in getting the increase. Yours very truly,

A. W. Gregg.

Ladies' Aid Society Report.

The ladies of the Crockett Baptist church take this opportunity for thanking the many friends who have so kindly and generously aided them in raising their pledged amount of one thousand dollars on the church building debt for the year ending March 3rd.

At the regular social meeting of the Dorcas Aid Society of the Crockett Baptist church on Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Hail (which meeting had been looked forward to with interest and some anxiety as the time for the final in-gathering of the pledges) when the treasurer reported the sum of $1100 in the treasury there was general rejoicing. At the request of the president all joined in singing "Praise God From Whom all Blessings Flow," then followed the reading of Psalms 113 and 117 and prayer. All felt rewarded for their efforts during the past twelve months and encouraged to go forward in lifting the debt on the church. The society has paid $3700 on the building fund so far.

Mexican War In Mutual Movies

GEN. PANCHO VILLA

PRISONERS GOING TO BE SHOT

VICTORIOUS REBEL CAVALRY LEAVING OJINAGA

IN view of the fact that the driving out of Mexico of Huerta by the Constitutionalists is the natural solution of the Mexican problem, the progress of the pictures showing the daily progress of Villa's army are proving to be of unusual interest from a diplomatic as well as a theatrical standpoint.

The private exhibition room of the Mutual Film Corporation in the Masonic building, New York city, is the scene of frequent mysterious gatherings—where the new films arriving from the firing line are viewed behind locked doors.

The pictures are rapidly being prepared for public exhibition in Mutual theaters throughout the country, and for the first time since the world began it will soon be possible to read the history of a great struggle, seriously affecting the destinies of a nation, seated comfortably in the orchestra of a theater and seeing the actual scenes of battle flashed upon the screen.

Mutual camera men at the front are under the personal direction of General Villa, who is in perfect sympathy with their desire to register every important move for the benefit of the theater-going public. The general's desire to aid the motion picture contingent instead of interfering with its work is said to be responsible for the exceptionally interesting film that is being received at the Mutual's New York office.

Petition for Discharge.

United States of America, Eastern District of Texas, ss. Tyler Division. In the United States District Court in and for said district.

In the matter of Brown Bros., bankrupt. No. 1748 in bankruptcy. Petition for discharge.

To the Honorable Gordon Russell, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Texas: W. W. Brown, J. S. Brown, Jr., and F. L. Brown, of the firm of Brown Bros., of Kennard, in the county of Houston and state of Texas, in said district, respectfully represent that on the 28th day of January, last past, they were duly adjudged bankrupts under the Act of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that they have duly surrendered all their property, and rights of property, and have fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the court touching their discharge.

Wherefore they pray that they may be, individually and as a firm, decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against their estates under said bankrupt acts, except such debts as are excepted by our law from such discharge.

Dated this 2nd day of March, A. D. 1914.

Plaintiff further alleges that he and those under whom he claims title to said land have had and held peaceable, continuous and adverse possession of said land, cultivating, using and enjoying the same, paying all taxes due thereon, under deed duly recorded for periods of three, five and ten years, immediately preceding the filing of this suit, and plaintiff specially pleads the 3, 5 and 10 years statute of limitation in bar of any claim asserted by the defendants, in and to said land, or any part thereof. Plaintiff alleges that the defendants herein are asserting some claim to said land which is unknown, and that the deeds out of Jacob Masters Sr. and the other defendants herein, on account of the records of Houston county and the Court House of said county being twice destroyed by fire are irregular, and that some of the releases of the vendor's lien held on said land have also been destroyed by the fire, but that the said notes have all been paid, and satisfied, all of which casts a cloud on plaintiff's title, and which cloud plaintiff sues to remove from said title. Plaintiff is claiming title to said land by and through the following instruments and muniments of title: Patent from the State of Texas to Jacob Masters Sr., deed from Eliza Cothorn to Elizabeth Head, deed from Eliza Cothorn to Cynthia Ann Grounds, deed from Cynthia Ann Grounds and J. COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst.

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.

Mistaken Identity

By ADDIE F. MITCHELL.

Mrs. Vaughn put down the letter she had been reading, with a troubled little sigh. Her daughter Madge looked up from the step.

"What's the matter, mother? You look as if you had been reading your death warrant."

"I have—the death warrant of our peace. Aunt Mary North writes to ask if we won't keep her Tom while she and Mr. North go abroad."

"Who's her Tom?" asked Madge succinctly.

"Her stepson. I've not seen Aunt Mary since she married Mr. North, and I know next to nothing of the North family. But Mrs. Wilson knew Mr. North when they were living in Chicago (that was in the time of the first Mrs. North), and she said there were two girls and a boy. The boy was in kilts then, and that was five years ago, so he must be about eight or nine years old. Aunt Mary says he has been ill with typhoid and that she remembers with hope for his health that the air at Pineroft is healing."

"But we can't have him, mother. Think of having an eight-year-old boy on our hands the whole summer! We can never get enough cooked for him to eat, and he'll be drowned regularly once a week and break all his arms and legs on the other days. And I wanted a quiet, heavenly rest this summer before I have to go back to that awful office."

"But, Madge, I can't refuse Aunt Mary. She was your father's favorite aunt and always so good to him. No, Tommy will have to come, whether we want him or not."

"Well, then, when?"

"The letter says next Tuesday unless they hear from us that it is not convenient."

"Tell Aunt Mary I have the smallpox or that I died suddenly at the news—anything. Please, mother!"

"I was wondering," said her mother, "whether an eight-year-old boy would be afraid to sleep in a room by himself. Shall we put a bed in the alcove off my room or fix up the south chamber?"

Still grumbling, Madge helped her mother get ready the south chamber. As she worked she grew interested and even took from the walls of her own room some interesting prints which she thought would be suitable for a boy's room.

"I can't see, though, why Aunt Mary didn't take the little wretch abroad with her—the sea air would do him good. Take out all the fancy things, mother, as you value them."

"If you only understood big boys as well as you seem to understand the small ones you would not be twenty-four and still single," teased her mother.

"I do, mother," said Madge vehemently. "I understand them altogether too well, and that's the very reason I am still single."

There was no immediate reply to this, and Mrs. Vaughn turned her attention to the room.

"Get all your old picture books and put them on that shelf, Madge, and I think I'll bring Jim's old hobbyhorse down from the attic. He may despise it, but you never can tell."

Arrangements were finally completed, and Madge rather looked forward to the coming of the little boy, so that when Tuesday came she willingly drove to the station for him, though she protested that St. Lawrence and his gridiron were as nothing to the torment she was undergoing. She took along a bag of cookies, "just to stop up his mouth so he can't ask questions," she explained.

The train was late, and Madge got a little cross as she waited in the open trap with the hot sun beating down upon her. The pony was restless, and she dared not leave him to go inside of the station. When the train finally steamed in, however, she gave the reins to a porter and went to find her young charge. She watched the few who came out of the coaches nervously, with one eye on the dancing pony, but as far as she could see no small boy was on the train.

"Well," she thought, "I suppose I should be glad of it," and was going back to the trap, when it occurred to her that he might some way have got past her into the station and might be waiting for her there. She looked in. No one was there but a very tall young man, who was leaning back rather limply against the seat, pale as from a recent illness. Madge gave him more than a passing glance because she wondered who he might be. Young men at Pineroft at this season were a rarity.

"Looks sick," she muttered, "for a little daffy." She was getting into the car when a quiet "I beg your pardon" caused her to wheel around. The strange young man, hat in hand, was certainly speaking to her. She merely looked her surprise.

"Are you not Miss Vaughn, and weren't you expecting me?" Her blue eyes widened into a positive stare of amazement.

"I—I am Madge Vaughn, but you—you must be mistaken," she said.

"I am Dr. North—Tom North, my mother wrote." He was blushing a little at the queerness of her reception.

"You—you are little Tommy? Why?" She began to laugh merrily, and the young man laughed, too, a bit stiffly, for he did not understand the joke. "You have the advantage of me," he said.

Madge sobered at his tone and realized that she was not displaying any marked hospitality. She held out a repentant hand, which the young man took eagerly. "We're sort of cousins, I guess," she said. "Anyway, if you are Tommy North we've been looking for you, so get in, and we'll start."

"I can go away if it is not convenient," protested the man.

"Convenient! After I've worked for three days getting picture books and kites and little blue overalls ready for you! No, sir; you will have to use all those things."

"You see," she explained as she drove along, "we got the impression from some one that you were about eight years old. Your mother never mentioned your age or height, and so we got ready for a small boy, and—here are some cookies I brought along so that you would not ask questions on the way home." She thrust a paper bag into his hands.

They were both laughing like children as they drove in at the gate, and by the time explanations were made to Mrs. Vaughn the young man was thankful that the surprise had happened. He felt that it had been a good thing to take Madge by surprise, for when two people have laughed together they have rapidly progressed in their acquaintance.

On the very first day Mrs. Vaughn had looked at the two with comprehension in her eyes, and as the weeks grew into months she felt reasonably sure that Madge would never go back to the office.

The day before he was scheduled to go back to the city, a new man by reason of Pineroft air and agreeable companionship, they took the big red and blue kite to the top of a nearby hill to fly it. It soared clear above the trees as the man slowly unwound the long yellow string. The girl watched it rather sadly, for as yet there had been no word of love between them, and she realized that she had grown to care so much that it was hard not to let him see it. The tears had come into her eyes, and now they splashed over. The young man looked up just in time to catch sight of them, and, letting the string go, he turned and caught her in his arms.

"Dear," he whispered, "what is it?" She did not speak, but she did not try to get away either, and after a moment he said:

"Is it because I am going away—is it, Madge?" She shook her head.

"Why, then," he urged, "tell me." Suddenly she began to laugh—a soft little laugh that made the man hold her closer.

"I was only wondering," she said, "whether or not there was a girl?" "You bet there is," he interrupted, "and I've got her right where I want her." Which sentence, slangy as it was, seemed to be wholly satisfactory to Madge.

A Good and Safe Rule.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

SPANKED THE RUFFIAN.

Remington Did the Job Well and the Disturber Subdued.

The late Frederic Remington had a personality as original and vivacious as his artistic style. His friends have scores of amusing anecdotes to tell of him. It was E. W. Kemble who introduced me to Frederic Remington in 1890, writes Mr. Augustus Thomas in the Century Magazine. The two illustrators were close friends, and they understood one another perfectly.

They sat together one night on a late train out of New York, Remington by the car window and Kemble next to the aisle. An obstreperous commutator who had been drinking was disturbing the passengers with his noise. Neither conductor nor brakeman could make him behave himself. The men passengers seemed afraid of him. The rowdy grew intolerable.

As he passed Kemble's side on his third blatant parade through the car Remington reached out into the aisle and, with a mighty grip, lifted him from his feet like a naughty boy and laid him face downward over Kemble's lap. Then, as Remington held the ruffian fast, Kemble spanked him, while the man's legs wriggled frantically for a foothold. The correction, prolonged and vigorous, was acclaimed by roars of laughter from the other passengers. When it was over Remington stood the offender on his feet. The man began a profane tirade. Before he had got half a dozen words out Remington had him face down again and Kemble was at work as before. That was enough, and when they let the fellow go he rapidly disappeared into another car.

Coronets.

The coronet of a duke consists of alternate crosses and leaves, the leaves being a representation of the leaves of the parsley plant. The princes of the blood royal also wear a similar crown. The state headgear of a marquis consists of a diadem surrounded by flowers and pearls placed alternately. An earl, however, has neither flowers nor leaves surmounting his circlet, but only points rising, each with a pearl on the top. A viscount has neither flowers nor points, but only the plain circlet adorned with pearls, which, regardless of number, are placed on the crown itself. A baron has only six pearls on the golden border, not raised, to distinguish him from an earl, and the number of pearls render his diadem distinct from that of a viscount.

Seeing Ourselves.

"The man who can pick out the best picture of himself is a rare bird," said a photographer. "Even an author, who is reputedly a poor judge of his own work, exercises vast wisdom in selecting his best book compared with the person who tries to choose his best photograph. Every famous man or woman who has been photographed repeatedly has his favorite picture. Usually it is the worst in the collection. It shows him with an unnatural expression sitting or standing in an unnatural attitude."

"The inability to judge of his best picture must be due to the average man's ignorance as to how he really looks, or perhaps it can be partly attributed to a desire to look other than he does."

Frame Houses.

The life of a frame house depends in a measure upon the quality of the material used in its construction. Some houses built twenty years ago are better investments today than many dwellings put up recently. Tests have shown that some old woods are stronger than new. With age, wood undergoes a hardening process. There is one sure way to determine whether the structure of a frame house is really deteriorating. Look at one of the beams supporting the walls on the foundation. You may have to knock away a bit of plaster to expose the beam. But, as likely as not, you will find it exposed in some place in the cellar, and that will tell the tale.—Good House-keeping.

Unfortunate Cander.

"Once a friend of mine and I agreed that it would be helpful for each of us to tell the other his faults."

"How did it work?" "We haven't spoken for nine years."—Chicago Record.

TREASURE IN A TRASH BOX.

A Treasury Department Puzzle That Remains Unsolved.

Sophia Holmes was a free colored woman, the wife of a slave owned by Colonel Seaton, who lived in Washington at the beginning of the war between the states. The husband was with the army and lost his life at the battle of Manassas, so his widow, who had ten children to care for, applied to General Spinner, then treasurer of the United States, for work. She was given the task of sweeping, dusting and emptying wastebaskets at a salary of $15 a month.

One day, after the clerks had all left the rooms, she discovered that one of the boxes in which waste paper was thrown was almost full of big bundles of crisp, new money! Some of the bills were as high in denomination as $1,000. They were all neatly packed, and enough litter to hide them was spread over them.

Sophia hastily covered up the treasure and continued her work as if nothing had happened. The watchman, making his last rounds, asked her why she lingered so late. She pretended to be busy, and the man kept on and left her undisturbed. Sophia feared to tell the watchman what she had found. "He might er tuck the money himself, and then laid it on me," she afterward said.

Now Sophia knew that it was the habit of General Spinner to spend the night in his office. So great was his anxiety at this time that he slept in a little room that adjoined his main office. In a jacket and slippers he would rest most of the night, although he would get up frequently to make a tour of the building and satisfy himself that everything was in perfect order.

So Sophia waited. She sat on the box of money and nodded. The hours slipped by and still she failed to hear the tap, tap! of the old slippers coming down the stone halls. But at last she heard the familiar footsteps approach her door. As General Spinner was about to pass, she stepped forward.

"Jest step in here and see what I done find!" exclaimed Sophia in a mysterious voice. Then she took the litter from the top of a big box and showed to the startled man the bundles of new money within.

General Spinner sent at once for some of the treasury officials; the money was counted and found to amount to over $200,000. Meanwhile he sent Sophia home in a carriage to her waiting little ones.

No one ever found out who put almost a quarter of a million dollars of newly printed money into a trash box. The mystery remains unsolved to this day. As a reward for her honesty, Sophia Holmes was appointed to a position that paid her more than $50 a month. She died several years ago at the ripe age of seventy-nine years.—Youth's Companion.

Gave Good Reasons.

General Nelson A. Miles during active service one day received a telegram from a subordinate who was on a furlough, but was expected back that day. The dispatch read:

"Sorry, but cannot report today as expected owing to unavoidable circumstances."

The tone of the message did not please the general, and he wired back, "Report at once or give reasons."

The Greatest General.

All things duly considered, the greatest general of whom we have any knowledge was in all probability the Carthaginian, Hannibal. All the information we have of Hannibal comes from his enemies, and yet what achievements they were forced to credit him with! The second Punic war—the most brilliant in history—was practically one man against a whole nation, and that the strongest then known. With the army that he had molded out of raw and barbarous levies Hannibal had to fight a nation of the stoutest and best trained warriors of ancient times, and he had to do this without any assistance from home. It has been well said that there is nowhere else so good an example of what a single man of genius may achieve against the most tremendous odds.—New York American.

The Wonderful Dancer.

From the Houston Chronicle.

Anna Pavlova, the Russian who is teaching the world to dance, appeared at the City Auditorium last night before an audience of 4000 persons. Assisting her were a number of dancers gathered from the principal ballets of the world. An orchestra conducted by Theodore Stier made it possible for the dancing to be what it was. No orchestra has appeared in Houston that more completely fulfilled its mission.

The program for the evening was divided into three parts. The first was a collection of minor dances, some of them dances of the people. The second was called an "Oriental Fantasy." It was a magic Arabian story told in motion and color and music. The last section was probably the favorite of the audience. It included seven dances known on the program as "divertissements."

When robbed of its title the last section was nothing more or less than a selection of seven short dances, each of which told a pleasing little story, communicating the feeling of the dancer to the audience and presenting a pleasant picture. The seven dances proved that dancing is as surely a means of expression as speaking or writing.

The central spectacle of the performance was the Oriental story. It was a complete drama told in dancing. The coming of the hero, his temptation, and the triumph of love in keeping him from yielding were depicted. The dance of the serpents, the dance of the warriors and the finale were full of life and meaning, the scenery for this part of the performance being rich in color and striking in design. The costumes carried out the illusion by their fitness.

There was not a dance in the performance last night that was less good than the others. In looking over the program afterwards scarcely a number fails to actively stir the memory. Still, from the attitude of the audience, it was made plain that the simpler dances have the strongest effect.

The gavotte danced by Pavlova and Berge was to music that every person in the house knew and enjoyed and it was one of the simple dances of the people. Consequently it brought a storm of applause. The dance was enjoyed because it could be appreciated.

Plain Truth That's Worth Money.

Using Foley's Honey and Tar for a cough or cold may save you both sickness and money. F. F. I recommend it gladly. Refuse substitutes.—W. A. King, successor to I. W. Sweet. Adv.

From Differing Viewpoints.

One of the chief topics over tea cups the past week was Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," which held the boards and drew large houses for three nights with two matinee performances. It became at last a real study of characters just to hear what different persons had to say about the great writer's philosophical work which has been staged so effectively. "I thought it right cute," said a matron. Her companion replied: "I think it should be advertised as a child's play, for my children were delighted with it." A man remarked: "It was pretty, but silly." Another replied in response to the usual question, "How did you like the 'Blue Bird'?" "It was well staged, but there is nothing to the play," while one very blase soul remarked: "The scenery was pretty, but I got so tired of it." But the students of the great modern philosopher, looking behind the fairy play of children, personified animals and inanimate things, found hidden truths unperceived by some and exclaimed with unmistakable fervor: "It was wonderful, the way in which almost intangible truths were revealed on the stage." Perhaps the latter class really are seeking the "Blue Bird" and perchance may find it, as did the boy of the play, in their very homes.—Polly Fry in San Antonio Express.

Sanitarium for Crockett.

W. H. Kuhlman, owner of Kuhlman's mineral well, is promoting a sanitarium and hotel for Crockett. Mr. Kuhlman was seen by the Courier editor this week and asked the question: "Is Crockett to have a sanitarium and health resort?" His reply was: "That question will be answered by the Crockett and Houston county people soon. The proposed Kuhlman sanitarium and health resort company will have a representative here in a few days to take up the matter with the Crockett people and to ascertain how much stock will be subscribed locally. The result and the resulting benefits will depend largely on the friendliness of Crockett people toward the project. It is to be hoped, in the interest of the town, that our people will take a favorable view of the proposition. A sanitarium of this kind is greatly needed here and would have a large territory to draw from. Physicians tell us that the water from the Kuhlman well is superior to any mineral water in the state. Crockett is now as large a town as Mineral Wells and would double its population with the development of this property, which development would be the best advertisement the town could have. It is proposed to build a 40-room hotel with bath houses in connection. Beautiful lawns with walks and drives would add the finishing touches. This opportunity may never present itself again and it is to be hoped that it will not be lost. It is the opportunity for laying the foundation on which to build a great city from which all will realize alike the benefits of increased property values."

Sheriff's Sale.

The State of Texas, County of Houston.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain execution issued out of the Honorable Justice Court of Precinct No. 8, of Houston County, on the 10th day of February, 1914, by J. T. Roberts, Justice of the Peace of said Court, for the sum of One Hundred Forty Eight and 40-100 ($148.40) Dollars and costs of suit, under a judgment, in favor of B. E. Goodrum in a certain cause in said court, No. 36 and styled B. E. Goodrum vs. John M. Stubblefield, placed in my hands for service, I, A. W. Phillips, as sheriff of Houston County, Texas, did, on the 14th day of February, 1914, levy on certain real estate, situated in Houston County, Texas, described as follows, to-wit: Lot Number Twenty (20) in Block Number Sixty One (61) in the town of Weldon, and Lot Number Ten (10) in Block Number Sixty Nine (69) in the town of Weldon, according to the Map or Plat of said town, recorded in Volume Number 60, page 153 of the Deed Records of said Houston County, and to which record reference is made for full description of said two lots, and levied upon as the property of the said defendant, John M. Stubblefield, and that on the first Tuesday in April, 1914, the same being the 7th day of said month, at the Court House door of Houston County, in the city of Crockett, Houston County, Texas, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., by virtue of said levy and said execution I will sell said above described real estate at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, as the property of said John M. Stubblefield.

And in compliance with law, I give this notice by publication, in the English language, once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding said day of sale, in the Crockett Courier, a newspaper published in said Houston County.

Witness my hand, this 28th day of February, 1914.

Willacy Withdraws from Race.

John G. Willacy has come to the conclusion which he states in his announcement "To the democratic voters of Texas," as follows:

"When the original announcement was made, offering myself as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, it was my hope and desire to go before the public with certain vital public issues other than the one of prohibition. However, it is at this time apparent to all thinking minds that the next governor of this great state, with its wonderful possibilities, will be chosen largely upon the rule of whether or not the candidate favors statewide prohibition, regardless of other considerations of public need. The issue has been precipitated and must be met.

"Inasmuch as my ambition does not soar into the domain of one-issue government, the limitation of such a contest does not appeal to my views of broad public policy such as would insure to all the people the largest measure of prosperity and happiness.

"With these considerations before me I have concluded to withdraw. Not without some regret it is true, for an honest desire to accomplish good in the state to which a generous destiny has led one's footsteps, is an honorable ambition. Neither is it without reward, for the short period of my candidacy has brought many assurances of con-

Points Toward Special Call.

San Antonio, Texas, March 11.—Eighty-two members of the house and twenty senators are in favor of amending the Terrell election law so as to require a majority vote to nominate for state offices, according to a poll taken by A. M. Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy will call upon Governor Colquitt at Austin tomorrow and lay these facts before him with a request that a special session of the legislature be called.

One member of the house and one of the senate declared against the amendment. Five house members were noncommittal.

Mebane's Triumph Cotton Seed.

Have a car of genuine Mebane Triumph cotton seed, grown and selected in Caldwell county for us in August and September. Price $1.50 per bushel—in neat 3-bushel bags. We also have Mebane Triumph seed from our Blue Lake farm on Trinity River, carefully selected, and ginned in August and September, at $1.00 per bushel. Notwithstanding the unfavorable crop conditions the past year, without fertilizer, we were picking a bale per acre before the heavy rains set in. Last season 1300 pounds of seed-cotton turned out a 500 lb bale of lint cotton. It is a big boll, storm proof, and easy to pick. H. J. Arledge. tf.

In view of the fact that many farmers are finding their cotton seed to be unfit for planting, others who have seed for planting should test them to see if they will sprout properly. It will be better to find out now than to wait until the seed are planted and fail to come up. The unusually wet fall is responsible for the bad seed.

J. H. Jones announces as a candidate for the office of county commissioner in precinct No. 3. Mr. Jones lives at Lovelady and is a farmer. The Unseen Worth of Queen Quality Shoes

One sees at a glance the style and beauty of Queen Quality shoes, but the more important details one does not see. For example, one doesn't see the care that is used to select only the finest leather and other materials; one does not see the special process that results in the wonderful flexibility of the sole which makes "breaking in" unknown to Queen Quality wearers; one does not realize the amount of thought necessary in designing new and exclusive models. It is things you don't see that account for the wonderful popularity of Queen Quality shoes.

COMPANY "A" 2ND TEXAS CAVALRY.

Some Reminiscences of Crockett and Some of the Boys of Hardaman's Company.

What a flood of half-forgotten memories rushes to my mind at the mention of the name of this historic old town, some of which I will pencil down, as they may add something for him who may in the future compile her history. At the close of a beautiful day in April, 1861,—the 25th of the month—when the last rays of the setting sun glided with beauty and glory the old town and its surroundings, seventy-five splendid fellows, most of whom were under twenty years of age, drew rein on the plaza and alighted from their horses. They were soon surrounded by a hospitable and generous people and each was provided with a home for the night and were generously entertained.

It was my good fortune to be taken in charge by Jim King, who took me to his father's home. It was under his roof and with his family I spent my first night after leaving my home for the army. J. C. J. King (Jim as he was known to his associates) proved to be one of God's noblemen. After the war he studied medicine and for a number of years he practiced his profession in Waco, where, by his upright walk and godly conversation and his professional ministrations, he became the center of a very large circle of friends, who were bound to him by ties of friendship and love, more enduring than monuments of brass or granite. Some eight or ten years ago he answered the "last roll call" and passed over the river and is now resting under the "shade of the trees" in the beautiful land to which his footsteps tended during his earthly career. When the summons came, he folded the drapery of his couch about him and laid down to "pleasant dreams." It is to be hoped that I am not making any invidious distinction in writing more at length about Jim than the other Crockett boys whose names will be mentioned herein, as he was the only one of them I ever met after the war.

Referring to what happened during our stay in Crockett will say that the next morning, April 26, twenty-five young men from Houston county joined our ranks and completed the make-up of our company, which afterward was known as "Company A 2d Texas Cavalry." I wish I could recall the names of all the Crockett boys, but the lapse of more than half a century, with the mind in the meantime filled with the struggles and cares of a busy life, make it impossible to do so. But I do recall the following names of the boys that joined us there: John E. Bowers, Argyle Beason, Sam Collins, Richard Johnson, S. Wesley Box, Wm. L. Welch, W. H. McHenry and his older brother Tom, and Cartwright Logan and John S. Logan, Jno. I. Burton, Wm. Moore, Dick Johnson, Zeb Gossett, Buck Stacy, F. G. Edmiston, Marion Payne, B. F. Frymier, Wm. Bradley and Geo. W. Numsen. These are all I can recall and so far as I have been able to learn, the most of them, if not all, have answered the final summons.

On this day, April 26, 1861, our company of one hundred boys (and boys they were, as but comparatively few were over twenty-one) formed and marched to an appointed place on the public square, near the middle of one of the sides thereof, and was presented with a beautiful silken banner from the patriotic ladies of the patriotic town. The presentation was made by Miss Jane Vaughn in beautiful, thrilling words, well delivered, which fired our hearts with renewed courage and lofty patriotism.

In closing will say that this company was enlisted by Capt. W. P. Hardeman—twenty-five men from Nacogdoches county, twenty-five from Cherokee county, twenty-five from Anderson county and twenty-five from Houston county—and were among the first, if not the very first, to leave this section of the state to join the armies of the Southern Confederacy.

After the presentation ceremonies were through we wended our way westward, passing out of the town and across a little brook. The street we traveled seems to lead by or near the place where the I. & G. N. station is now located. Some of those boys, to my certain knowledge, never again returned to home and friends, but are sleeping in graves near where the turbid, yellow waters of the Rio Grande flow, in graves whose sod has never been moistened by the tears of those who loved them so well.

I learn that Miss Vaughn married Geo. W. Numsen, one of the volunteers of the company, and is the mother of Mrs. Dan McLean and Mrs. T. D. Craddock, who now live in Crockett. Mr. Numsen is dead long since, and his wife, the accomplished and charming Miss Vaughn, resides in Palestine, Texas. The responsive address was delivered by Marion Payne, a brilliant young lawyer and a Virginian, who came to Crockett about a year before that and was one of the members of the company. His address was eloquent, beautiful and soul stirring. He was later transferred to the Virginia army and was killed at the battle of Sharpsburg. His body was never recovered.

The company that was enlisted in April, 1861, by Peter Hardeman, when finally organized, was composed of 106 men, and the total number that joined the company from the beginning to the close of the war was 164. A more detailed history of this company, showing its career throughout the war, has been furnished by me to the U. D. C. of Crockett chapter at their request. It is too long to be given here. It is necessarily imperfect, but is perhaps as full and correct as can now be obtained. The men who made its history have nearly all passed off the stage of action, and what they knew and did is now forever a sealed book to their posterity. "Peace to their ashes," for a nobler and braver body of men never shouldered a musket in defense of their country.

"On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

When I think of all those gone before,
And how once we were together,
A sadness o'er my spirit comes, and chills
Like winds in wintry weather.

"I feel like one who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted,
Whose lights have fled, whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed."
Tyler, Texas. John H. Bonner.

Gov. Colquitt Criticized.

Weldon, Texas, March 16.—Citizens of Weldon met March 14 and passed the following resolution: Resolved, That we, a representative body of Democratic voters of Weldon and vicinity, in Houston county—though bowed in deep grief at having to perform such an unpleasant function—feel it our sacred duty to set our seal of disapproval upon the action of his excellency, Governor O. B. Colquitt, wherein his honor severely criticised and condemned the Mexican policy of our Nation through his recent expressions in public and by letter to our Secretary of State at Washington.

That in presenting this instrument we are not unmindful, however, of the undeniable fact that we should honor our Governor with a keen interest upon every reasonable opportunity, yet, our countrymen, should he not likewise bear in mind that he is but the mouth-piece, so to speak, of the common populace, and have not we the right, and is not it really our duty to give expression in condemnation of a Governor's errors?

And resolved further, That we heartily and unequivocally indorse our present National policy towards Mexico, and we believe it the only course tenable by a Christian Nation and, if backed up by our God-fearing populace, we will march on down the countless ages the leaders of all human affairs of all the world.
