Vice President of Coffee Company Told o How Women Lured Him to New York Where Bogus Officers

Arrested Him.

Chicago, September 26.—An nouncing that he had concluded to 'accept personal humiliation" to save other men and women from being drawn into the blackmailers' trap, Edward R. West, vice president of the C. D. Gregg Tea and Coffee company of New York and Chicago, admitted Tuesday that be is the "A. R. Wesley" who was surprised in a New York hotel with "Alice Williams" by representatives of the band of "Mann act" blackmailers recently exposed by federal officials. The blackmailers, after bringing West and the woman to Chicago, talked the man out of $15,000 in return for a promise to keep quiet.

"The woman with me was not Alice Williams, but Buda Godman, a member of the gang," West said.

This woman is now under surveillance in a Chicago hotel pending the outcome of the preliminary hearing of John T. French, George Irwin and "Doc" Brady on charges of blackmailing West. French, who has used "Jack" and "Homer" as aliases, is said to be the son of a wealthy St. Louis widow who believed him to be engaged in the haberdashery business.

"The language and manner of this band would deceive any one," West The woman proposed the trip to me. On May 9 we reached New York and went to the Ansonia hotel. At an uncanny hour three men armed with federal warrants and badges forced their way into my room. Buda Godman became hysterical. She said she was a convent-bred girl and that her parents would commit suicide over the disgrace. She asked them what she could do to save herself from disgrace and then the question of money was adroitly broached.

"Before I knew it we were in two state rooms racing back to Chicago. We were kept prisoner three or four days and then, because the woman had been crying all the time and appealed to my chivalry to save her, I paid them $12,500 cash. Several days after, Irwin, who represented himself as United States Commissioner Foote, released us; they obtained $2500 more from

EXPLAINS REMARK ON COTTON.

Director of Extension of the A. and M. College Tells Why Cotton Should Bring 18c.

College Station, Tex., Sept. 23.— Clarence Ousley, director of the extension department of the A. & M. College, has issued the following Montana the first important sales

Waco conference of bankers and farmers at Waco last Wednesday concerning the price of cotton seems to have caused considerabe comment, and I think it worth while for me to make a brief statement on the subject. I was urging then, ceived from the government policy as I have urged for many years, the of using the grazing lands on the gradual marketing of cotton. made the point that according to Indians. my best information, which I think is reliable, many spinners have contracted their spring output of dry PEANUT THRESHING IS goods on the basis of 18c cotton. If that is true, then undoubtedly they will pay 18c for cotton if we will compel them to do so by gradual marketing. They will not pay 18c as long as they can buy the product at 15c. If we fling all the cotton at them between now and the 1st of January we will decrease the price. If we sell our cotton gradually we will produce the same effect that we produced in gradual marketing in 1914 and 1915 and the price will certainly advance. There is no more American cotton than is needed by the mills which use our cotton in preference to other cotton. In fact, there is scarcely enough of this year's supply to equal the demand of last year and we have no reason to doubt that the world's consumption of American cotton during the next twelve months will be less than it was during the last twelve months.

"Gradual marketing in 1914-15, with a crop more than 16,000,000 bales, raised the price from 6c in the early fall to 9c in the spring. Gradual marketing in 1915-16, with a crop of some 12,000,000 bales, maintained a price around and above 12c, notwithstanding the surplus of nearly 5,000,000 bales with which we entered that season. With the assurance that the crop of 1916-17 is but little more than the crop of 1915-16 and with a stock of only approximately 2,000,000 bales brought over from the last season, it is perfectly plain that if the present supply is wisely handled it will bring all that spinners can afford to pay for it without raising the price of dry goods to a point which will decrease the consumption. As I have already said, that price appears to be 18c. Hence, it is a matter wholly in the hands of the farmers whether they will sell their crop at 15c or 16c.

"As to the future trend of prices beyond this season L shall have something more to say later. For the present I insist that it is duty and self-interest of every business man in the South to see to that our prime product brings all that it is worth. The difference between 15c cotton and 10c cotton is $25 per bale. That much profit made by a few speculators will not benefit the country, but if made by the farmers will benefit every man in the South."

of Commercial Club Report-Prosperous Year for Farmers.

Owing to the serious and continued illness of Mr. Gause Patton, who purchased a peanut threshing outfit and intended to thresh for many on the farmers in this vicinity, he is unable to attend to the business and has made an arrangement with Mr. J. D. Carmichael, superintendent of the Dr. Griffith farms, to handle it for him. Mr. Carmichael lives on what was the C. A. Clinton farm, two miles south of Crockett, on the Huntsville road. The threshing outfit is now located there and taking care of all the farmers living within convenient hauling distance, and when these are accommodated it is proposed to visit other localities where there is business enough to warrant. It is the advice of those who are closely in touch with the situation that it will be best for the farmers who have a surplus of peanuts to have them threshed and sacked and to hold them for the present, as the price is going to be much better a little later. It is now generally conceded that this is to be the most prosperous year for the farmers of this vicinity, and throughout the country generally, that they have experienced in meal equal parts. a number of years. The high price of cotton has been the leading factor in bringing about these improved conditions, but there are other things that have helped. The farmers have, for the past two years raised more feed and largely increased the number of livestock particularly hogs and cattle, and they are bringing good prices. The large number who have increased their dairy herds and bought separators have done well, and their number is gradually increasing.

To illustrate the effect of having an outside cotton buyer in Crockett, it is only necessary to relate that during the past two weeks many farmers from points like Weldon, Groveton, Augusta and other points thirty to forty miles distant have brought their cotton here and sold it at prices that paid them well for the extra haul. Some of these parties stated they had not been in Crockett before for eight to ten 2

Crockett is living up to the promises the merchants made through the commercial club campaign last 10 spring in providing a better market for the surplus products of the farmers. We hear no complaints of not being able to sell, and there is noticeably a better sentiment growing on the part of the farmers toward the merchants, and every one is beginning to realize that the co-operative plan is the basis for improved conditions that will be permanently beneficial.

A HISTORICAL OLD TREE.

One Planted on Long Island by Sens tor Rufus L. King.

Perhaps the most historic tree in th vicinity of Jamaica is that on the grounds of King manor, in front of the east entrance, planted over a hundred years ago, it is believed, by Senator Butus L. King himself. That the distinguished contemporary of Washington and Jefferson and Hamilton and brilliant defender of federal principles planted this tree with his own hands was testified to by the late Hon. John A. King, grandson of Rutus L. King, in a conversation he had on the grounds of the manor on the occasion of the transfer of the historic property to the village of Jamaica

John A. King in talking with Judge Fleming at that time, pointed to this old sycamore or buttonwood tree and remarked that his eminent grandfather had planted it. He said, "I think I'll have a plate put on the tree to perpetuate the fact." Whether he ever did so or not, there is no plate there at the present time.

There are several big boles in the trunk, which have been filled in with coment to preserve it. At one time it sheltered a doghouse which stood in the hole at the bottom of the trunk. It is related that in the days of Rufus King and his son, Governor King, there was a bell on the tree, which was rung when people appeared at the gate to give notice that they stood waiting to be admitted. The tree belongs to the plane tree family. It is doubtless one of the finest specimens of this family to be found in this country.-Long Island Life.

SHOWED HIM THE DOOR.

Diekens Went and Steed Upon the Order of His Going.

Colonel B. was the proprietor of a widely known old house in the south which three-quarters of a century ago had earned its reputation as a well conducted tavern.

When Charles Dickens came to America he stopped at this southern house. He was hardly settled in his room before Colonel B. was at the door. He assured him that his horses, his wines. all the lavish hospitality of a state famed for its generosity, stood at the convenience of the distinguished visitor.

Dickens received the proffer coldly. In London one did not accept a tavern keeper as a social equal. So it was that he returned the courteous offer by saying that when he wished the services of the innkeeper he would send for

For sixty seconds Colonel B, stood silent, his great face growing redder all the while. Finally he stretched out a long arm toward Dickens.

"You go, sir!" he stammered. "And do not going."

The novelist went. And it is to be trusted he had learned that the American hotel keeper of that day and age was not to be confused with his brother in faroff Europe. Edward Hungertord in Saturday Evening Post.

Social Structure

What is a social structure? It may be an ant hill or a democracy. It is usually composed of a mass of individuals banded together for mutual disagreement. It is centripetal and centrifugal. Each individual would like to get out of it, but he doesn't know how. Small masses of individuals, also banded together, would like to get out of it, but they don't know how. Larger masses of individuals banded together would like to get rid of some of the smaller masses, but they don't know how. Nobody wants everybody else to stay. Everybody doesn't want anybody to stay. The result is that nobody can get rid of anybody.

Hence the social structure.-Life.

Origin of Geometry. There is little doubt that the science of geometry had its origin in Egypt. out all landmarks and boundaries, and some reliable means of measuring the earth was an absolute necessity: hence the rice of geometry, which means earth measurement. From all accounts the philosopher Thales took the science from Egypt to Greece, where it was greatly improved and carried very near the perfection it finally reached through the discoveries of the celebrated Descartes of the seventeenth century.

LANTERNS IN CHINA.

Bizes, Shapes and Prices, They Are in Common Use. Particularly gay and attractive are the shops of the lantern venders in the Chinese cities.

All varieties of lanterns are to be seen—the large silken ones three and four feet high, gorgeously painted with variegated colors, embroidered in gold and allver or decorated with deep fringe of the same material, costing from $100 to $200 and used by the wealthy mandarine and others, and common small born and paper lanterns. used by the coolles, which cost one sixteenth of a dollar.

The mode of making horn lanterns is ery ingenious; the horns are cut into remarkably thin slices which, by means of heat and pressure, are joined together and formed into various shapes; round, square, hexagon, octahourglass

It is usual for servants, after sunset to carry before their masters large lanterns made either of horn or highly varnished paper, with the name, title and dignities painted in large letters thereon.

At the feast of lanterns, which takes place in the early part of the Chinese New Year, these lantern shop proprietors reap a rich harvest, as it is customary for parents to make presents of lanterns to their children. brother to sister, friend to friend, inferior to superior, and vice versa Harmony In the Leaves of a Tree. One of the remarkable characteristics of a tree is the process of leafage, and if we examine the bough upon which the leaves grow the admiration of the scientific agriculturist will become thoroughly aroused over the perfect consistency and artistic skill manifested in the arrangement of each spray and the exact number of leaves arranged with the most exquisite art and regularity. Every group of leaves forms merely long lines, no two alike. no two in the same position, yet all so perfect and harmoniously blended that there can be no antagonism, no same ness and all those thousands and thousands of strange and delicate forms grouped together, neither confused nor (II arranged.

SUGUE CENT

We are so used to su We are so used to sugar that we are likely to forget to give it its properly important place. Right now if somebody asked you what sugar was good for you'd probably say—"Oh! to put in coffee and tea and for making candles and desserts." That's it—we all think of murar. it-we all think of sugar as a sweetener and over look its value as a food.

F HOW SUGHA CAME GROWS sugar as a hydrocarbon

sugar as a hydrocarbon—
that name may or may not be interesting to us, but what is interesting is their statement that it has, as a hydrocarbon, equal food value with the starehy foods and by digestion largely adds to the fatty tissues of the body.

Why do we eat sugar anyway? Your first answer might be: "Because it is sweet and tastes good." Of itself the answer would be correct, but the more important fact is that the body craves sugar because it needs it. And when the body craves something it gives us an appetite for it. So primarily that's why we like sugar and things made with sugar and not just because they are sweet.

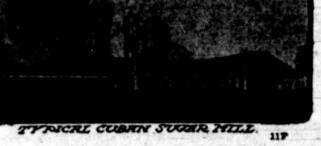

In view of the fact that sugar has gone up so tremendously of late these facts stead of the luxury sugar having gone up it is the FOOD sugar that has raised its price. Yet—even though the price is up we have to have our sweet food just the same.

Certainly the makers of that delicious beverage Coca-Cola must have discovered that sugar is up, because one of the principal ingredients in making Coca-Cola syrup is fine cane sugar. Think of it!—they use an average of 80 tons of sugar a day—about 4 carloads. But unlike many manufacturers that company has itself borne the raise and so you and I pay just the same today for our bottle or glass of Coca-Cola that we've always paid, Incidentally, this phase of the situation is a good reminder of the benefits one gets from drinking a beverage as pure and good as Coca-Cola. Not only do we please our palates and derive wholesome refreshment from the drink but we also give our systems that bit of sugar sweetness that they crave and which is necessary to health and tissues. Is it any wonder then that Coca-Cola is so popular and so universally drunk that it are interesting because we find that in-

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

A curious little book is an old, old treatise on aeronautics by Jean cques Rousseau, called "Le Nouveau

Like Leonardo da Vinci and Cyrano de Bergerac. Rousseau was haunted by the dream of aerial navigation. We read in his treatise: "Men walk on the earth, they sail on the water and swim in it. Is not the air an element, like the others? What business have the birds to shut us out of their premises while we are made welcome in those of the fishes?"

Rousseau took no stock in any the ories propounded by the Darius Greens of his day. He sifted the matter for himself and thought it involved two problems. First, to find a body lighter than air, so that it would rise. He imagined that sooner or later such a body might present itself. There was no telling.

But what stumped him was his second problem—how to make that obliging body stop rising and how in creation to make it come down. This was too tough a problem for Jean Jacques. and he wound up his book by admitting it.

For a long time "Le Nouveau Dedate" remained unpublished, appearing only in 1801.

BE FAIR WITH THE DOG.

Give It a Square Deal and It Will Repay You For Your Care.

Only muzzle a dog if it is absolutely necessary. The wearing of a muzzle tends to make dogs cross and snappish. It does not prove that a dog has rables or is mad because it froths at the mouth. It may have a sore throat or a

If you must tie up the dog have the end of the chain secured to a ring on a long wire so that it can have the run of at least twenty or thirty feet.

Don't blame the dog for showing no ambition if it is overfed on meats and of the best if it is given simple but substantial food and allowed the freedom of outdoor life.

Train the dog with firmness and fairness. The animal is eager to learn what is wanted of it and when once it understands will follow instructions with almost human intelligence.-Our Dumb Animals.

"A Right and Lawful Rood."

An example of the old rough and ready methods of arriving at a measurement is the Elizabethan way of getting the "feet." Falentin Leigh, who wrote on surveying, records that after service on Sunday sixteen men were stopped at the church door, just as they happened to come out, and drawn up in line, left foot to left foot. The length thus obtained was taken as "a right and lawful rood to measure and survey the land with," and a sixteenth part of it as "a right and lawful foot." Although big and little men were thus roughly averaged against each other. the results naturally varied to some extent. Hence it is, as Shaw Sparrow notes in treating of this "rood" as the architectural "bay" which gives us the "bay window," that a bay is sometimes found to be rather less than sixteen feet of twelve inches.-London Chronicle.

Epictetue.

The "Discourses of Epictetus" were written not by the philosopher himself, but by his faithful pupil Arrian, afterward the historian of Alexander the Great. Arrian tells us that he took down the sayings of his master at the time they were delivered, and thus we may rely upon the substantial correctness of the discourses. Epictetus wrote nothing, and but for the thoughtfulness of his affectionate disciple we would have known nothing of his wonderful teachings-teachings which have inspired many of the greatest men who have lived during the past 2,000 years.

THE MAKING OF TUNNELS.

An Industry That is Almost as Old as the World Itself.

While tunneling is among the most ancient of enterprises, yet more progress has been made in it the last century than in the twenty centuries which preceded it. It is now known that back in the semi-mythical days of the Theban kings the long tunnel a distance of 400 feet or so into some lofty chamber, was a common work of princes. The rock temples of Nubia, too, and of India show that in certain matters, at any rate, moderns may still learn from ancients. Then again in Algeria, Switzerland, wherever the Romans went, are to be found tunnels of all kinds and designed for all purposes, for roads and drains and water supplies. Pliny makes mention of one notable achievement, the greatest of its kind in his day, the great tunnel constructed for the drainage of Lake Fucino. It was by far the longest artificial tunnel in the world at that time. More than three and a half miles long, it was driven under Monte Salviano and required for its construction shafts of no less than 400 feet. Some 30,000 men were employed on it for eleven years.

From the time of the Romans until the latter end of the eighteenth century no great advance was made in tunneling methods. Old engravings of mining work in the early years of the seventeenth century show the pickax or hammer and chisel as still the chief tools employed. With the advent of the railway, however, tunneling became one of the grand necessities of construction, and progress was more

AN APPEAL TO DEMOCRATS AND SOME CAMPAIGN NOTES

Houston county democrats, are you interested in the success of your party in the election to be held next November?

Are you interested in the moral, social, political and financial welfare of your country?

Do you want Woodrow Wilson re-elected to the presidency, or do you prefer that Chas. E. Hughes, the republican nominee, be elected? In short, are we real democrats, or are we only such in name? Do we want this government conducted by the democratic party and upon democratic principles, or do we want it controlled by the republican party and conducted "by the classes and against the masses?"

These are important questions and such as should appeal to every democrat in this great country of ours. Without the present democratic administration we never would have had a law that prevents "panics;" nor a law to efficiently control the "trusts;" nor a law that regulates and equalizes the burdens of the "tariff;" nor a law levying an "income tax;" nor a law providing for "rural credits;" nor a law making lighter and better the matter of "child labor;" nor a law providing for a "trades commission:" nor scores of other far-reaching and wholesome laws, all passed in the interest of the masses. It has also kept us at peace with the world and averted the greatest "strike" ever threatened in this country.

Do we want these laws retained, or do we want them repealed? The answer to this question depends upon the result of the pending contest for a president of these United States. If Wilson is re-elected, they will be kept on the statute books. If Hughes is elected we may confidently look for either their appeal or such emasculation of them as will render them practically useless.

But, let us remember, that the democratic party can not win in this great fight, nor can Wilson be reelected, without money with which to meet the legitimate expenses of high. the campaign. It takes money, and lots of it, to meet these expenses, and Wilson is not a rich man, and hence can not pay them. He must have help. The democratic national committee, with headquarters in New York, is making a great fight for Wilson's re-election, but this committee must have help. It is badly in need of funds. The democratic party has no "trusts" nor "capitalists," nor men of great wealth to whom it can appeal for aid. It is forced to go to the people for assistance. Will we, as democrats, do our part? That is the makes this appeal to you, every is the farmer best fixed.

The Crockett Courier democrat in this county, who can reasonably help, to do it, and do it now. The time is short. In about another month the fight will be over and it will then be too late to help. Please do not wait to be asked to contribute. Do it voluntarily and as a good democrat and patriot. ·

> Is there a democrat who can not spare $1 to help re-elect Woodrow Wilson? A national democratic campaign can not be run on "wind."

> The democratic national campain committee is terribly handicapped for funds. Will you not help them to the extent of $1? Don't wait till the election is over. Pay

> The Wilson campaign fund committee can not hope to see everybody. Can't you call and see some of them and pay that $1?

> Do not wait to be asked. It is sometimes embarrassing to ask people for money.

> Woodrow Wilson $1.00 Campaign Fund Committee.

There is no necessity for any man's subscription costing him more than a dollar for next year. The subscriber has from now until the first day of December to renew and pay for a year in advance. The subscription price of the Courier is only a dollar a year if paid by December 1, 1916. We hope every subscriber will take advantage of this offer and save the extra 50 cents. The high cost of printing paper and everything else forces us, certainly against our wishes, to raise the price after December 1. We'd a lot rather go along in the old way and collect a dollar a year and it would be much easier, if we could do it and stay in business. Everybody knows that there is less profit in a dollar and a half's worth of business now than in a dollar's worth formerly.

Twenty-cent cotton is a probable happening—then why should not the farmer of this section be at ease? Never before in the history of this country have cotton, hogs and cattle-things the farmers of Houston county sell-sold for so much. Never before have the things entering into the making of a newspaper cost so much. The Courier at a dollar a year, which will be the price until December 1, is the cheapest commodity on the market and the biggest available bargain when the cost of production is considered.

The Courier will return to the old subscription price of $1.50 a year on December 1. Many subscribers whose names are yet on our books paid that price for a number of years. They did not consider it too much then, when everything else was so cheap, and they tell us that they do not consider it too much now, when everything else is so

The Courier is issued for the busy man who wants to keep informed in regard to local happenings, political and otherwise. Its information is helpful and practical. Many subscribers save every issue, which they file to be used as a reference library. The price is only one dollar a year until December 1-after that time it will be $1.50 a year.

The present price of cotton and cotton seed ought to put the country at ease and would but for the shortness of the cotton crop.

Welcome, Teachers!

THE teachers of this county will hold an institute in Crockett next week. The Courier, on the part of the people of Crockett and voicing its own sentiments, extends an expression of welcome. Not one hand but both hands are extended to you, our fellow co-workers in education, and the freedom of the Courier sanctum and of the city is yours. There are no latch-strings on the doors—the hinges have been removed and the doors taken down. The Courier feels that it is one of you, for, while it has no class in any particular school room, its work is of an educational nature and its class is confined only within the boundaries of its circulation. We welcome you, teachers of Houston county, to Crockett and to the homes of Crockett people.

Crockett as a Cotton Market. Merchants and other cotton buyers of Crockett are paying the topnotch price for cotton this season, and as a result Crockett is getting cotton heretofore considered outside its trade boundaries. Good Interest on Your Money.

H. E. Bitner of Lovelady Route 2 was an appreciated caller at this office last Thursday. Mr. Bitner always pays his subscription in advance, but called Thursday to pay for next year, which puts him considerably over a year in advance. He said he expected to continue his subscription and that by paying now he would save the price increase. Mr. Bitner, like many others of our subscribers, has a good eye for business. They figure that if a county newspaper is worth anything at all it is worth $1.50 a year, but that if they can save the 50 cents by paying the $1 now for a year in advance, it is good interest on their money and up to them to take advantage of it. That is the interest-50 per cent-the Courier proposes to pay subscribers for the use of their money next year. Can you get a bigger cash discount anywhere? No, you bet you can't!
