POTATO GROWERS HAVE MEETING

In March of this year Mr. R. R. Morrison, county demonstrator, and myself started a move to organize the sweet potato growers of Houston county, in the Farm Bureau Sweet Potato Growers Association and we have the following to say: We have to date signed up 112 acres for market.

While in Mt. Pleasant last week at the cane growers meeting we made a thorough investigation in regard to the amount of acreage that we will have to have in order to get into the association. We were assured that nothing less than 150 acres would be recognized, so we feel that we have worked for this good move in an unbiased way, at our own expense for your benefit.

We are appealing to you that are interested in this product, to see your neighbor and talk this over with him and ask that he or she send in the contract signed with the number of acreage specified and give the ones that have signed up already your co-operation.

See your neighbor if you have already signed up, and if not signed, then see your neighbor, two or three of them, and get their contracts in. We will attend to every thing here for you and will go to any community in the county at night or Saturday afternoon, to tell the people about it all we can, we will do anything to get the acreage required.

A large number of farmers have planted and prepared for this great sales plan and they need assistance more than anyone to help them to get a market for their products and, too, it will be the dawn of a new day for you. This is one of the greatest and fairest moves ever placed before the farmers of the county, so join the farm bureau yourself and get your neighbors to join with you, this week, as we want to announce our going over the top in next week's issue. S. M. Monzingo.

De Luxe Annie.

Norma Talmadge has never, perhaps, had a vehicle which offered her an opportunity for the display of her great emotional power than "De Luxe Annie."

"De Luxe Annie" is not new to the screen for it was first released several years ago but the picture enjoyed such a wide vogue at the time and was considered so good by the producers that it was brought back in revised form for a second appearance.

"De Luxe Annie" tells an absorbing story of criminal life which ends an unexpected psychological twist. As Julie Kendall, the wife of a prominent lawyer who is interested in the workings of criminal minds, whom a blow on the head turns adrift on the world, a total victim of aphasia, Miss Talmadge registers a tremendous hit in a most realistic portrayal. She becomes the confederate of Jimmy Fitzpatrick and, with him, operates the deluxe book game, a variant of the old badger game. Later, although his face seems strangely familiar, she meets her husband, treats him as a stranger and seeks to victimize him.

Pretty Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Leita C. Young to Mr. George Kelly of Longview Wednesday afternoon was the social event of the year and said to be one of the prettiest weddings taking place in Crockett in several years. The happy vows were consummated at the home of the bride's parents, Hon. and Mrs. J. W. Young, in this city Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, and the bridal couple departed on the Sunshine Special at 2:45 for Galveston where they will remain until next week, and then go to Dallas before returning to Longview to make their home. The home of the bride was a scene of loveliness for the event in its decorations and the wedding chorus was truly beautiful. Many Crockett friends, as well as a number of guests from out of town, were present to participate in the social enjoyments of the occasion. A complete write-up of this very pretty affair will be found in the Courier next week.

Music Recital.

A recital by pupils of Mrs. J. H. Lewis was given at Pickwick hotel Saturday evening, May 13, as follows:

Dream Dance (Spaulding); A Jolly Letter (Paloverde)—Eva Mae Satterwhite.
Tramerei (violin) Schumann—Augusta Ione Shivers.
Pricilla Mullins (Engleman); Birthday Blossoms (Spaulding)—Diamond Latham.
Dream Waltz (violin) John—Stella Mildred Younas.
Mountain Twilight (duet) Bohn—Eva Mae Satterwhite and Diamond Latham.
Evening Prayer (violin) Franklin; The Mandolins, Franklin—Evelyn Frances Brown.
Hello, Mr. Weather Man (Rowe)—Evelyn Satterwhite.
Perfect Day (violin) Carrie-Jacobs Bond—Rallie Traylor.
Zerlene (two violins) John—Augusta Ione Shivers and Mrs. Lewis.

Try It Once.

The drama was a thrilling one, but a talkative young man had seen it before. In an audible voice he announced what was coming next, and described how funny it would be when it did come. He had a pretty girl with him, and he was trying to amuse her.

At length he said: "Did you ever try listening to a play with your eyes shut? You've no idea how queer it seems."

A middle aged man sat in front and twisted himself in his seat and glared.

"Young man," he said, "did you ever try listening to a play with your mouth shut?"

JUST A WORD WITH OUR SUBSCRIBERS

The Courier has another good list of subscription renewals this week. But for the rain and the cool weather following, the list would have been larger.

Among the number calling to renew or subscribe or sending in their renewals and subscriptions since last issue are the following:

MOTHER'S DAY.

Sunday was Mother's Day. Grateful, loving souls some years ago asked that one day in each year be set apart in memory of mother, as a time to pay tribute, as best we can, to mother and her love. All of us have had a mother. Each of us knows that the loving, gentle creature that gave us birth and had our first kiss is or was the purest and sweetest creature that has lived in the flesh. Most of us have sorrowed from the lack of love or gratitude from others; all of us have felt at times that we were ignored, despised and maltreated by those from whom we expected better things; but not one of us can bring a charge against mother. She was ever the center of affection to which we appealed for sympathy and love, and no appeal to the loving throne was ever in vain. Others have failed, but she was ever true. Others deserted when the night of trouble came, but she remained, and soothed, and loved and prayed. Others scoffed and bemoaned when we strayed from the paths of rectitude and our frailties were blazoned to an unsympathetic world, but her sympathy stole through the mesh work of faults even as light steals through prison bars, and her tears washed our guilt away. God bless the dear, good mothers who remain to bless the world, and God grant heaven's richest joys to the sainted mothers who watch over the children from Glory Land and ever pray that their foot-steps may be guided aright.

To some mother is yet a gentle being who loves and smiles and sympathizes; to others, mother is but a memory, physically evidenced only by a faded wrinkled picture or a strand of hair; but to all mother is love's truest name and the heart's purest thought. And so, on Mother's Day, whether our love is entwined about the form that yet lives, or sends its tendrils to the other shore, let all bow in holy reverence and love before earth's sweetest name and purest shrine and give again our holiest love to her—

Bridge Party at Country Club.

Miss Delha Mildred Wootters' bridge party Wednesday evening at the Country Club was a charming springtime affair arranged in honor of Miss Elizabeth McKellar of Dallas, who is visiting Miss Ruth Warfield.

A group of young people were assembled for the diversion which was enjoyed in an environment featuring a motif of yellow poppies. Bridge table accessories favored the yellow tone in carrying out the decorations. The score cards and tallies were hand painted in yellow and delft blue with the initial "W", the hand work of the attractive young hostess.

After the games were over, a delicious chicken salad and ice course was served on flower trimmed trays.

Wedding.

Mr. Jno. Barfield and Miss Fannie Morfatt were married in Crockett last Thursday. Rev. E. A. Maness performed the ceremony at the Methodist parsonage. Mr. Barfield and Miss Morfatt were both residents of Weldon, this county.

The groom is in the employment of the state government. He works in connection with the state farm at Weldon. The bride belongs to one of the respected families of Weldon and has many friends in her community.

We heartily join the friends of both bride and groom in congratulations.

SOME NEWS OF THE CROCKETT OIL FIELD

There is not much to relate this week in the matter of news regarding the proposed Crockett oil field. Mr. George L. Porter, drilling on the Austin farm, is still hard at work with the hope of ultimate success. He has tried pulling, sidetracking and digging around the lost strainer at the bottom of his well 3500 feet underground, but has not yet succeeded in dislodging this perforated pipe. Thursday morning he had just finished going down by the side of it and was getting ready to take another pull at it. Mr. Porter doesn't know the meaning of the word "quit" and it is truly hoped that his efforts may be finally crowned with success.

The Porter Springs and the Weldon wells have both passed their first thousand feet, while the Driskill and the Grapeland well remain shut down, temporarily we hope.

Buy's Interest in Theatre.

Mr. N. E. Field, who formerly operated the Crockett moving picture theatre, has returned to Crockett and bought an interest in the moving picture business. Mr. Field is an experienced "movie" man and will keep the Crockett theatre up to the standard established by himself and so well maintained by his successor, Mr. S. J. Powell. Mr. Powell retains an interest in the theatre and will be associated with Mr. Field in the management, which guarantees a good show.

Jazzing Trough Georgia.

On the subject of Savannah's having adopted an ordinance forbidding the playing of jazz on the stage and at all public dances as "indecent and injurious to public morals," it occurs that somebody might sing:

Bring the good old saxophone,
we'll zoom another song;
Zoom it with a chorus with rhyme and meter wrong;
Yell it as we used to yell it,
awful loud and strong,
While we go jazzing through
Georgia.

Hurrah! hurrah! the toddle game for me!
Hurrah! hurrah! I shake a nasty knee!

So we'll shout the chorus till they chuck us in the sea,
While we go jazzing through
Georgia.

ISRAFEL.

Miss Bessie Berry of this city has won honorable mention in the state-wide poetry contest open to girls of Texas by Baylor College at Belton. Her poem, as printed in the college paper, was written at the Crockett High School in a regular class period after hearing Poe's Israfel read for the first time.

Israfel holds a place in the sky,
 And sings so wondrous well;
 Just like an angel passing by—Wondrous Israfel.

Making sweet music with a lyre
 That is heard clear from afar;
 Music, passionate with fire,
 And holding mute each star.

Israfel hates unimpassioned song
 It should so clearly swell;
 Never a thought of committing wrong,
 Was the nature of Israfel.

Such music only angels inspire,
 And play it thus so well;
 All day long just playing his lyre,
 Sits the Angel Israfel.

Junior-Senior Moonlight Picnic.

At dusk last Wednesday evening, a group of cars assembled at the school campus. The rumor was spreading that a moonlight picnic was to be the event of the evening.

The crowd of boys and girls consisted of juniors, seniors and chaperones, the affair being given to the seniors by the juniors.

Mrs. H. A. Fisher kindly turned her home over to the two classes for the evening and a delightful time was had by all. Games and dancing were listed in the program, and every heart was in time with the step as the latest music issued out to the veranda which was wide, long and waxed just right for dancing.

A spacious and far-reaching lawn furnished ample room for strolling and a comradely spirit was circulated in the air.

All were ready for the welcomed call "Come to supper" and accordingly they did come. Such a supper was a fitting repast for a king. All sorts of delicacies were passed and soda pops served as drinks.

The merriment ensued until 11 p. m., and as the guests departed, all felt gratitude in their hearts for our hostess who had furnished us such a pleasant evening at so lovely a place and the juniors who had made the event possible. Z. Y. 7

WHERE BUSINESS IS ALWAYS GOOD

EDITORIALS BY COL. R. T. MILNER

What the Former A. & M. President Writes in the Rusk County News.

Among the useless and dangerous people of the world the fellows who are controlled by greed and selfishness stand out most conspicuously.

The Governor of Porto Rico has been living a fast life. For a trip to Washington he drew out of the treasury of his poor, little island $5000 to pay his expenses.

The famous General Cox who marched an army to Washington during Cleveland's administration called on Harding a few days ago and notified the president if something is not done to give work to the millions out of employment, he would come back with another army.

For the last years we have had reports from the metropolitan press that Bryan was politically dead. But the other day he appeared at a great church in New York where the crowd was so large and the rush to get in to hear him that the doors were locked to prevent a panic and the policemen called to prevent a riot, so great was the desire to hear the oft-reported dead man.

Governor Neff has made it plain that he stands for the enforcement of all laws. He is not able to go out and perform the duties of judges, juries, sheriffs, constables, and all the whole mass of citizens. If there were more acting upon the part of citizens generally and less talking the country would soon witness a higher standard of conduct and a healthier state of the body-politic. Then there would be no reason for an extraordinary session of the Legislature to put down lawlessness. How many criminals that ought to have been punished have been acquitted we have no way of knowing, but one thing is certain that too many who have been convicted have been pardoned.

Wichita Falls has a candidate for Governor in the name of District Judge Napier. He is running on a platform of a Ku Kluxism. Mr. Rogers of Bonham is also a candidate for Governor, having been endorsed by many of the labor organizations of the State. In the meantime Governor Neff is preparing to make a speech this summer which he declares is going to be the most unpopular speech of the season.

Judge Felix J. McCord, who died recently at his home in Longview, was for many years an active and useful citizen of Eastern Texas. He held many official positions and filled them all with signal ability. He was district attorney, district judge, assistant attorney general, a member of the supreme court, and served several years as a member of the Legislature, in all of which places he was true to his trust, and at all times enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the public generally.

All of Texas will be planted to cotton this year including the counties that border on New Mexico. Should conditions be favorable throughout the cotton belt it is safe to predict the largest cotton crop ever produced. Also the cotton crop in foreign countries will be the largest ever planted. It is proposed this year to double last year's acreage in Turkestan. England is extending the acreage in her possessions in Africa, and all over the world where cotton will grow and labor is available to grow it the acreage will be increased. But no man is wise enough to tell what may happen to cotton, as it is subject to more kinds of disasters than any other crop. But since the world has its mind, money and energy devoted to the production of cotton wherever it will grow we may reasonably expect an enormous yield. We have so often attempted to call the attention of our readers to the importance of growing other crops, without any perceptible effect, that we feel loath to again mention the subject. It may, in the end, be better for posterity to reach the awful collapse which this kind of farming is hastening, as soon as possible, and then there may come a sudden readjustment.

We have hundreds of people all over our cotton country, good people, industrious people, who are trying to succeed on farms who have no business to be on farms. They are not equipped either financially or temperamentally for the farm. That number is constantly on the increase. Hence, what we need is to be able to provide places for them in factories and other industries, where they could earn a living, educate their children and escape the toil and drudgery in cotton fields where poverty will hold them in its clutches forever.

He may be a new convert to the supremacy of the law. He may be a man who has laid the precedent for lawlessness by charging accounts to the State for victuals and things for his own private and personal use. He may be a man whose pardoning power turned loose upon society criminals by the wholesale, some of whom had committed the most heinous crimes. But the precedent which he created however base does not license others to violate the law. It is only greater reason why the great mass of the people should stir themselves for the restoration of law and order. This seems to be the day of high crimes and misdemeanors in high places. Governors are being indicated for something about money—bribery, the appropriation of money to their own use—stealing it is termed when a fellow goes into a stable and takes out another man's horse. All these things make it more incumbent upon the honest men of the country to rise up in their majesty and swear anew their obedience to law and proper conduct. If this Nation is to be saved from law breakers, crime in low place and crime in high places, the plain citizens must do it. But charity imposes upon us the moral obligation to encourage the reformation of all men—criminals as well as all other evil doers—and the man who may have violated the statutes and then turns back in the way of righteousness and takes his stand for law and constituted authority should be encouraged.

Mellon Creates Surplus by Postponing Payments Due.

Secretary Mellon is certainly the modern wizard of finance. By a simple twist of the wrist he changes a deficit into a surplus, thus:

There is an admitted threatened deficit of $24,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922. Within that period $71,000,000 obligations fall due. By postponing the payment of these obligations until next year the Secretary of the Treasury is able to make it appear that there will be a surplus of $47,000,000.

This is the same kind of financial sleight-of-hand by which $17,000,000 is put in the list of "savings" of the Harding administration when $17,000,000 of Pittman Act certificates fell due and were not paid.

Secretary Mellon has already admitted that there will be a deficit of $484,000,000 for 1923, but this does not include a proposed $50,000,000 for Mr. Lasker of $75,000,000 for the initial bonus, $17,000,000 extra for rivers and harbors and $60,000,000 extra for the navy in excess of Gen. Dawes' estimates. There is a prospective deficit therefore, for 1923 of $866,000,000, and the admiration is going right on claiming that it is saving money, practicing economy and reducing taxes.

Juniors Entertain Seniors.

The juniors of the high school on Wednesday, the tenth, entertained the seniors and their friends with a moonlight picnic given at the home of Mrs. W. A. Fisher on the Huntsville road. The beautiful home was thrown open for music and for entertainment of the young people. Games were played under the trees in the moonlight. About two hundred guests were present and all declared they had the best of fun and pleasure. At ten o'clock refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and soda pop, were served out in a bright patch of moonlight, and at ten-thirty all had said good night, the honking of horns had died away, and all was still again where so much merriment had held sway.

Besides Mrs. Fisher, those chaperoning the party were Mesdames E. B. Stokes, J. L. Jordan, H. Morrison, J. B. Stanton, W. Eardley, C. E. Hayes, F. F. Archibald, and the Misses Mabel Guinn and Nell Beasley.

CANE GROWERS HOLD MEETING

The cane growers of East Texas met at Mt. Pleasant last Thursday, May 11, to further perfect the organization to blend and make a uniform syrup, put it up in a uniform package so it can be sold, with the following results:

The Farm Bureau plan was unanimously adopted and there remained to be perfected, the number and size of mixing and blending plants and where they shall be located and a few minor details.

A committee of one representative from each county was appointed, with S. M. Monzingo of Houston county as chairman, to meet at either Jacksonville or Longview June 7th with chemist, engineers, horticulturists, etc., from Washington, D. C., and state extension department, College Station, to perfect the plans and order the contracts printed.

County demonstrator, R. R. Morrison, and S. M. Monzingo, wish each cane grower in the county to give them the following information in person or by letter: how many acres of cane you are growing for the market this year? and will you sign up with this plan if it meets with your approval?

Send this information in yourself and tell your neighbor who does not take this paper and give us every assistance possible to secure for Houston county one of the biggest enterprises ever attempted for the farmers. Remember a large acreage is necessary for us to get this factory located here.

S. M. Monzingo.

LEVEE BREAK AGAIN BRINGS DISASTER TO FORT WORTH

Trinity Rising Two Feet An Hour; Many Sections Isolated.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 8.—The levee winding around the banks of the Trinity river in Arlington Heights here broke at 6:20 o'clock Monday afternoon, flooding that district for the second time in two weeks. It is believed no persons were drowned, as Sheriff Carl Smith of Tarrant county had been directing the work of removing persons from the lowlands throughout the day and had announced a few minutes before the lowlands in Arlington Heights were flooded that all residents had abandoned the flooded section and were safe on the higher ground.

With the Trinity river rising at the rate of two feet an hour at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon, flood warnings were issued by Weather Observer D. S. Landis and members of the Fort Worth police department warned persons to get out of the lowlands.

Hundreds of residents in the river bottoms of the city left their homes, fearful of a repetition of the flood that visited Fort Worth two weeks ago devastating homes and causing loss of 11 lives and property damage that has never been accurately estimated.

The flood stage of the river is 30 feet, Weather Observer Landis said. At 4 o'clock the gauge marked 27 feet and was rapidly rising. The weather observatory predicted that the rise would go to 32 feet, seven feet lower than the previous flood mark, which registered 39.1 feet two weeks ago.

Landis predicted overflows of the river into the lowlands through the crevasse in the levees caused by the break of the recent disaster. Unless heavy rains fall during the night in Fort Worth or above this city, the river is not expected to rise more than 32 feet.

Police and Fire Commissioner John Alderman issued orders to more than 100 policemen on duty to warn residents of the lowland districts. The people quickly responded to the warning.

The Red Cross again established headquarters at the city hall to care for flood sufferers. People who left their homes were being housed, fed and otherwise cared for during the night, M. H. Dirks, chairman of the chapter of the Red Cross and chairman of the disaster committee, said.

At 6 o'clock Monday evening, the water had flowed through the crevasses of the levee and over North Main street. Police roped off the thoroughfare and would allow no vehicles to pass over the street, the water reaching to the foot of the Paddock viaduct.

Both the West fork and Clear fork were reported out of their banks at a late hour Monday evening.

Sycamore creek was rising and had backed water over the Dallas pike east of the bridge. The water was deep enough to impair traffic at 6 o'clock, but was still rising. Those who lived in the flats between the creek and the river along the pike were moving out or preparing to do so. At the Polytechnic crossing the water was four feet below the bridge but still rising. Bessie street from Tennessee avenue west was a flowing river and was going over the curb. Some of the streets to the south of Bessie were almost impassable and several cars had to be abandoned. The water was two feet deep at the corner of Bessie and Virginia streets.

The water at Seventh street was creeping up on the levee and all of the flats inside of the embankment were covered at 6:30 p. m. Trinity park was all under water and attempts to reach the break in the levees were fruitless. Many residents of Van Zandt had sent their families out of the danger zone while in some cases the men of the families stayed behind to board up the windows. They were working industriously.

Patently Waiting.

A teacher in the primary room in a public school became nervous over the restlessness and noise her pupils were making and endeavored to stop it by suggesting "Now, let's be quiet for just a moment, so quiet that we could hear a pin drop." After a few minutes of peace in the room an impatient youngster in the rear of the room shouted: "Well, let'er drop!"

ADVERTISE IN 1922 SAYS ROGER BABSON

Famous Statistician Outlines the First Opportunity of Coming Period.

In discussing his recent trip about this country, Roger W. Babson, statistician and business authority, outlined the first opportunity of the coming period of prosperity as follows:

"On this recent trip which took me into practically every large industrial center in the United States, I talked to business men, large and small, about their business, and we discussed both the present situation and future plans.

"It is very apparent that the executives of America have been busy since January 1920 even if the businesses themselves have not.

"In fact, American business men have probably done more real thinking since the depression set in than they did in the whole period of prosperity which preceded it. Almost every man I talked with has a plan for a new building, a new product, or the development of a new sales field. The project is on paper, the details have been worked out, and he is just waiting for conditions to get settled. All of these plans mean potential business for next year or the year after—actual orders will be placed just as soon as prices and markets reach stable levels.

"This situation, apparent as we reach the bottom of the present area of depression in 1922, offers the first real chance of the coming period of improvement. Future business is now on the production counter. You can buy it cheaper now than you will be able to buy it at any time during the next four or five years.

"It takes no little courage to go counter to the popular current and spend money for advertising

Senior Class Entertained.

On Friday evening last, Miss Dorothy Ellen Shivers entertained at her home in honor of the senior class. The entertainment took the form of a stunt party out on the beautifully illuminated lawn, and each one did his share toward the amusement of the guests. Before that, there was a guessing contest in the form of thirty-two riddles, the answers to which were the names of the senior class. Miss Sibyl Towery and Robert King won this contest, while the opposite honors went to Miss Victory Tunstall and Guy Lansford. This contest was originated by the hostess and furnished much merriment for the crowd.

Supper was served at seven o'clock, and afterwards delicious punch and ice cream was enjoyed. The decorations were in brown and gold, the class colors. From a hanging basket, hung ribbons of the same colors. The young men were asked to each take a brown ribbon, and the young ladies each a yellow one and pull, when out came beautiful favors for each.

The party will long be remembered as will also the gracious hostess by all who were present. Guest

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORY OF CHAS.

R. STEPHENSON

To the Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday School at Crockett, Texas, Hon. I. A. Daniel, Chairman.

Dear Brethren:

We, your committee, appointed to frame suitable resolutions in memory of our deceased brother, Charles Richardson Stephenson, beg leave to report that we have discharged that duty, and in connection therewith respectfully submit the following:

Charles Richardson Stephenson was born on the farm near Canton, in Lewis County, Missouri, on September 12, 1856, and died at Crockett, Houston County, Texas, on the night of April 30th, 1922, and was therefore 65 years, 7 months and 18 days old at the time of his death.

He had the misfortune to lose his eye-sight when he was seven years old from scarlet fever. His father was Charles Stephenson and his mother Elizabeth Stephenson, both of whom are dead, and he left surviving him his wife, Marieta Stinson Stephenson, who resides at Crockett, Texas, four brothers, viz: Eben, who resides at Phoenix, Arizona; John, who resides at Hood River, Oregon; Frank, who resides at Enid, Okla., and Dr. W. C. Stephenson, who resides at Trenton, Missouri. He had no children and never had any. But he had two sisters, Mrs. H. B. Garnett, who resides at Ewing, Missouri, and Mrs. Wm. Wygal, who resides at Berger, Idaho. He was the special friend of orphan children, having raised a number of them, and remembered two foster children in his will. His boyhood and young manhood days were spent on his father's farm near Canton, Missouri, and he was educated in the common schools near his home and at St. Louis, Missouri, graduating there at the age of eighteen years. After his graduation, his first work was as traveling salesman of encyclopedias, and then he ran a broom factory with his father at the latter's farm, raising the broom corn on the farm, following this business for a number of years. We also understand that he served two terms in the Missouri legislature when quite a young man.

He was married on November

29, 1881, having never been married but once. After his marriage, he and his wife first lived at Tolona, Missouri, and then removed to Canton, where they lived for ten years, and then at Springfield, Missouri, where they lived another ten years. From thence they came to Crockett, Texas, reaching here on December 20, 1901, where they lived the remainder of his life.

The most of us are familiar with his career after he came to Crockett. Though totally blind, he traveled most of the time, and with his own hands partially erected the home in which he lived and died. He was a good salesman, earned his own living, and spurned with deep resentment all offers of assistance from his friends that had the least tint of charity. For four years, embracing the years 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920, he held the office of justice of the peace of Crockett precinct, filling the office acceptably and holding the scales of justice with an even hand, as he saw it. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was about grown, and remained a devoted and consistent member until his death. As we all know, he was a typical and thorough Christian gentleman, a man of deep piety and the strongest religious convictions. He was a man of the most rigid honesty and sterling integrity, a friend of law and order, always found on the right side of all moral questions, and did all in his power for the promotion of the best interests of his state and country.

In connection with the foregoing brief review of his life and character, we recommend the adoption of the following resolutions expressive of the opinion of this Bible class upon the splendid life and the exalted character of this most excellent American citizen, viz:

Resolved, first: That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved wife and his brothers and sisters in their great loss, and extend to them our deepest condolence, not forgetting the heart-broken foster children, whom he loved so well and who owe so much to him, and were so devoted to him.

Resolved, second: That his community has lost one of its very best men, the state one of its best citizens, and the church one of its most devoted and faithful members.

Resolved, third: That this class is profoundly moved by the death of its most worthy member, whose wise counsel, splendid examples, lofty ideals and unpretentious but deep piety have left their imprint upon the hearts and affections of its every member, and we commend his splendid life as "a beacon of light" to all Christians, pointing as it does to a life of immortality beyond the grave.

Resolved, fourth: That this statement and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this class, and that the secretary send a copy of the same to the bereaved widow, with assurances from this class of its most heartfelt sympathy in this her most trying ordeal, and that a copy also be delivered to the newspapers of Crockett for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. Madden,
G. Q. King,
John I. Moore,
Committee.

OLIVER Walking Cultivator

THERE are many features of the OLIVER WALKING CULTIVATOR which appeal strongly to the farmer, especially the larger ones who work hired labor. They are so simple anyone can adjust them, and so strong and durable the cost of upkeep is very small. The ease of control is produced by springs which counter balance the weight of the gangs against the weight of the tongue and making it easy to lift the gangs. These springs are so arranged that they give the gangs the proper suck under all soil conditions, making it unnecessary for the operator to ride handles. The weight is not thrown on the horses necks when the gangs are raised, because the wheels are placed far enough back of the arch to balance their weight; a perfect balance whether gangs are raised or lowered. Let us show you the complete OLIVER line.

J. H. LOWRY IN HONEY GROVE SIGNAL.

How long a sermon ought to be has long been a mooted question. The Bible enjoins it upon ministers to preach the Word, but does not tell them how long to preach at a time, and so it's a problem for preachers and pewholders to work out. Two or three sermons are reported in the great Book, and those who contend for short sermons have in these a good argument to present in behalf of their contention. The Savior's sermon on the mount or Peter's sermon on the day of Pentecost can be read in ten minutes, but I am sure the advocates of long sermons advanced the argument that these sermons were not reported in full, or that people had to travel farther to get to church in those days, and, travel being slower, sermons had to be short in order to give those who attended church time to get home. The question has never been settled, and, so far as I am informed, no attempt to pass on it was made by an ecclesiastical body until recently.

I read in the daily papers that the ministers of the religious denominations in St. Louis have entered into an agreement with their parishioners to use not more than 22 minutes for the delivery of a sermon. I am not so advised, but the number of minutes agreed upon as the proper length of a discourse argues that a compromise verdict was reached when the ministers and hearers entered into an agreement. I have an idea that the parishioners demanded 20-minute sermons. Doubtless the ministers contended that a sermon can not be properly and effectively preached in less time than 25 minutes. Each side presented its argument, but after all arguments were presented it was found that neither side had been convinced and, for the sake of harmony and good will, both sides made concessions and reached a compromise by splitting the difference existing between them and making 22 minutes the time limit for discourses. I am confident that during the discussion the contenders for short sermons attempted to show the bad effects of long sermons by calling attention to the Bible story of a young man going to sleep, falling out of the window and sustaining fatal injuries when Paul preached a long sermon. I am also confident that the advocates of long sermons showed how the young man was raised to life by the Apostle, and then made the point that no harm can come to the man who stays with the preacher when the sermon is long, even though he fall a victim to sleep. But the compromise verdict showed magnanimity of spirit upon the part of the contenders, and both sides should be congratulated.

There has always been lack of agreement on how long sermons or other public addresses ought to be. Indeed, those who speak and those who hear have always been far apart in their views on this question. Be it said to the eternal credit of the opposing factions that each side has been very considerate of and very charitable toward the other. The fights between capital and labor have been marked by displays of selfishness and greed, but not so with the speakers and hearers. The employers of other classes of labor demand long hours, but the employers of speakers ask for short hours. The employers of other labor demand the maximum of service, and their employes tender only the minimum; but the fight between speakers and hearers is different. Here consideration is felt; here magnanimity burgeons and comes to full flower. The public speaker will gladly work overtime without extra pay; in truth, he nearly always insists upon working overtime. And the hearer is just as generous. He knows public speaking is a hard strain on the voice and nerves, and when indulged in at length it rapidly undermines and destroys the constitution of the speaker he employs or patronizes and must make his address short. It is paradoxical indeed that generosity should ever cause a clash, yet it frequently does. Many times have I seen public speakers, who had already given hearers more than their money's worth, urge their voices to the most sonorous pitch and gesticulate vehemently in order to give "double measure, shaken down and running over." It would seem that the hearers should appreciate the overtime service, but the facts are that they never do. Moved by sympathy for the overworked preachers, and filled with fear for the speakers' health, they center their attention on the clock or consult their watches. Occasionally sympathy for the speaker works such a spell over the hearer that he falls asleep. Perhaps he fears the speaker will collapse from overwork and hopes to escape the horror of the physical break-down by having the goddess of sleep pull down his eyelids.

I do not pretend to know how long a sermon, or other public address, ought to be, but I feel that I can weigh the arguments of both sides unselfishly and without partisan bias, since I have frequently served on each side of the line. As an agitator of the circumambient it seems to me that a speaker ought to use time enough to tell all he knows and then prove every position taken and every argument advanced by analogy, logic and all the best authorities. If he has committed to memory some of the gems written or uttered by great statesmen or philosophers he ought to embellish his address by quoting the gems. Of course he should have time to tell all the jokes he knows, even if the jokes are of ancient vintage, and he should by all means quote a few verses of poetry. The greatest sorrow that can come to a speaker, whether in the pulpit or on the platform, is to know something and not be able to tell it on account of the limit of time. I have on several occasions, when dispensing knowledge to a waiting public, left out some of the finest things in my addresses on account of the time limit, but audiences are so forgiving that not once has a hearer complained on account of an omission.

THE POWER OF LOVE.

Life at longest is but a span. Then comes a long silence, the years of eternity that pile upon one another in great profusion. No one knows how long eternity is. Every one who reasons at all is sure of the inevitableness of death. Then why should we hate each other, why should we harbor greed, cherish envy and malice? In the brief period allotted to us mortals, it seems to me it should be our earnest desire to cultivate good feeling, cherish love, build personal regard, and try to leave behind us as much of sweet recollections for helpfulness and service as we possibly can. Envy, hatred and malice leave behind us a trail of miserable recollections. If we would but act sensible, we would realize there is nothing in life worth while but service, good will and love that keeps the old world moving, everything else, life itself, resolving around it.—Cleburne Enterprise.

Twenty-Five Miles of Jazz.

A young Boston girl recently found that she had traveled twenty-five miles while dancing five hours. She wore a speedometer. She finished fresh as when she started and still ready for more.

A Marathon runner, after covering twenty-five miles on the road, is ready to collapse. The difference lies in the intervals of pause between dances. An occasional rest is all that the body needs. Denied these intervals of pause, muscles and brains refuse to function beyond a certain point.

Five minutes of every working hour should be spent in absolute rest. The time so spent is not wasted. Efficiency experts have found that men can do more and better work over a long period when they rest five minutes in every hour than when they work straight through.

If both mind and body are kept rested interest is retained in the work. In the case of the dancer she was given frequent rests, retaining her original interest in the dance. In the case of the Marathon runner the steady grind over several hours of running wore down his brain power as well as his muscular energy. He lost interest, becoming a mere machine, and, like all machines, he sooner or later ran down.—Ann Arbor Times-News.

Auto Parties.

According to the late grand jury automobile parties are responsible in a great measure for immorality among the young people. And has it come to pass that there is no safety in numbers? Aren't the young people of today just the same as the young people were when grandfather was a jazzier and grandmother a jazzabell? Has human nature ever changed? Didn't they have hug-me-tight buggies when father was a boy and mother a girl? There is a lot of bunk going the rounds of the press, the rounds of some of the pulpits and the rounds of some of the lecture platforms and the rounds of some of the grand jury rooms.—Wichita Falls News-Record.

Dance Monday Evening.

As a compliment to the city's visitors, some of the young men of Crockett gave a dance-party in Eichelberger hall Monday evening. Chas. Dixon's orchestra of five pieces was secured from the Bender hotel at Houston for the event. The visitors who were honor-guests included Misses Mary Fay House and Becky George of Dallas and Miss Margaret Kelly of Longview, who were here for the Kelly-Young wedding, and Miss Elizabeth McKellar of Forney, the guest of Miss Ruth Warfield. The dancers were properly chaperoned, the music was the best to be had and a most enjoyable evening was the result. The hall was decorated with streamers of tissue and crepe, enhanced by electric light effects. About twenty couples participated.

Supt. Webb Coming.

Sunday night, May 21, Dr. Webb of Dallas will speak in Crockett. The services will be in the Methodist church. By mutual agreement the other churches in town will have no services Sunday night, and all will attend the services at the Methodist church.

Dr. Webb is a man of state and national reputation and has a burning message upon a most important subject, "Law and Law Enforcement." He is superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas and is by far the best qualified man in the state to speak upon the question of prohibition and the enforcement of prohibition laws.

His message will be vital and pointed and inspiring. You should hear this man as he pours the fire of consecrated energy into his mighty theme. Admission free. All citizens, men and women, young and old, are cordially invited to hear Dr. Webb. Tell your neighbor about the big meeting Sunday night, and be sure and come.

BLOSSOM TEACHERS STRIKE

Blossom school teachers went on a strike Wednesday and there is no school being conducted at that place, according to information given to Deport people who visited Blossom Wednesday. The trouble arose over invitations to be issued by the graduating class. Editor Fort of the Blossom Bee is a member of the school board and it appears the faculty was not pleased with something he said in his paper about invitations. The faculty sent the school board a message stating Mr. Fort must resign or they would. The board was with Mr. Fort in the controversy and told the teachers if they felt that way about it come and get their money—and they did—Deport Times.

Such a condition in any community school is unfortunate and will result in detriment to the boys and girls, who are "innocent bystanders" when such blunders result in closing the school.

The teachers are wrong in making any such demands or threats, but a member of the school board, who happens also to be editor of the local paper, is also wrong in saying anything about the action of the faculty in sending away for this printing. Teachers usually do that when they or the student body are to pay for the job. If the board is to pay the bill the local paper some times is favored with the order. They do not as a rule subscribe for the local paper, yet when the school needs boosting they do not hesitate to ask the local paper to get in and do it—and if the editor of the local paper is a good citizen he gets busy and does the necessary work without making faces at the faculty.

We say this after an experience of thirty-two years in the local paper game. All the money we ever received for subscriptions from the teachers of our home schools could be counted in $1 bills on the fingers of one hand, and we have never yet handled the invitations for the local graduating class. The only explanation we ever had was a ten per cent rebate to the faculty for securing the order, which is legitimate and their privilege, and the local paper should never seek to damage the school simply because the faculty does not spend their money—or the money of the students—with him. He should be too broad minded and patriotic. But when he is a member of the board and rakes the faculty over the coals for this universal short-coming, he is taking a mean advantage of them, besides doing the boys and girls of his community a positive, inestimable injury.

Editor Fort should resign from the board if he wants to roast the faculty and then go after them. But when he roasts them for not giving their printing to him or subscribing for his paper he is attacking a universal custom, which most of the old-time local paper men have learned to accept as a matter of course and say nothing.—Forney Messenger.

The Modern Method.

A professor had a class in English composition, and was teaching them the intricacies of punctuation.

"Now I would like you to consider this sentence, he said, "and then tell me how you would punctuate it. 'A lady was passing along the street smiling pleasantly.'"

The pause was merely momentary. Briskly came this suggestion from a member of the class: "What about a dash after the lady, sir?"

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE.

The State of Texas, County of Houston.

Whereas, on the 24th day of October, 1919, William C. DuPuy and wife, Mary Lee DuPuy, executed a certain Deed of Trust to Andrew Kingkade, Trustee, which is recorded in Book 18 page 135, of the Deed of Trust Records for Houston County, Texas, for the purpose of securing the payment of six promissory notes executed by said William C. DuPuy and Mary Lee DuPuy and payable to the order of the Oklahoma Farm Mortgage Company, as follows:
