MONOPOLY OF OIL INDUSTRY CHARGED ON SENATE FLOOR

THREE CONCERNS SAID TO CONTROL AMERICAN MARKET.

Washington, August 16.—Tariff duties on crude petroleum and fuel oil were advocated Wednesday in the senate by Senator Harreld, republican, Oklahoma, as the only means of protecting the independent oil producers of the United States against what he described as a monopoly by the Standard, E. L. Doheny and Royal Dutch Shell Oil companies.

The Oklahoma senator said that since his attack on these companies in the senate a year ago "great pressure" had been brought to bear on him to desist in his efforts to curb "the rapacity of these monopolists," and that he had felt the effects of their efforts directed against his promotion in the senate.

"In this connection," he said, "I feel it my duty to say that they are more strongly entrenched in governmental affairs than a great many people realize. I have wondered at the influence they have over certain members of congress, only to find later that there was a reason. They seem to be able to employ the friends and relatives of members of congress in a way that gives them friends in high places. Members high in administrative circles are either stockholders in these monopolistic companies, or who have relatives who are, and I have ceased to wonder that they sometimes get favors from unexpected quarters."

Renewing his charge of last August that the Standard, Doheny and Royal Dutch Shell companies were seeking to monopolize oil production in this country, Senator Harreld said that since this time, the Royal Dutch Shell had taken over the Union Oil company of Delaware, thus getting control of $75,000,000 worth of properties; that the Standard and Doheny companies had acquired valuable holdings in California and Wyoming, and the Standard of Indiana had acquired 99 per cent of the stock of the Midwest Refinery company.

The Oklahoma senator also asserted that during the past year when oil prices were the lowest, the monopolists succeeded in purchasing the holdings of a great many independent operators at practically forced sales and at a small percentage of their value.

Charging that the three companies he named had a monopoly of production of oil in Mexico, Mr. Harreld told the senate it was their policy to charge all that the tariff would bear and that consequently the price would not be affected by a tariff. He argued that on the other hand the tariff would bring to the government a huge amount of revenue and at the same time protect the thousands of small independent producers in the United States.

Mr. Harreld said the fact that the representatives of the companies had not appeared before the finance committee to oppose the proposed rates on petroleum and fuel oil "show how completely and shrewdly these people operate."

"They had consumers of fuel oil appear before the committee," he continued, "in the form of railroad companies, represented by one Mr. Thom, and various other users of fuel oil from various parts of the country, and oppose the imposition of this tariff."

Senator Harreld said in beginning his speech that he anticipated some discussion of his personal interest in a tariff on oil, and for that reason he would say that he had sold all of his production of crude oil several years ago. He added that his holdings now consisted of "some stock in several independent oil companies, some in a refinery, but this is not of great value, and some royalty rights in oil being sold to the Standard." The rights, he added, could not be made worth much for the reason that the crude now was selling at 75 cents a barrel. Senator Hefin, democrat, Alabama, asked if Senator Harreld would not profit by duties on oil and be "voting money into his own pocket." The Oklahoma senator replied that any profits would be "so small as to be insignificant." Senator Hefin then asked Senator Harreld that if he thought he should vote on the question, but Senator Harreld refused to permit further interruption.

Later in the debate Senator Hefin again questioned Senator Harreld regarding the Oklahoma senator's oil holdings, and the latter reiterated the statement that his interests were of no consequence, amounting, he said, to only five per cent of his total property.

Senator Hefin recalled that Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, had refrained from voting on the zinc paragraph in a former tariff measure, and said that the only course left open was to tell "the homefolks about the senators who vote money out of the other people's pockets into their own."

Senator Edge of New Jersey deplored what he said was the "continued casting of inference and insinuation" by senators regarding rights of other senators to vote on the various questions. He declared that the time had arrived for it to cease, saying that when the voters of a State elected a senator they usually knew something about him and trust him or they would not send him to the senate.

PRISONER HELD AT SAN ANTONIO PROVES ENIGMA

IS NOT MISSING DENVER BANKER, AS HE HAD CLAIMED.

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 19.—Edwin Frederick Morse, accused of absconding with $78,166 from the International Trust company of Denver, is still at large and so far as officers know is enjoying the pleasures which money can buy. With the arrival in San Antonio of A. W. Copeland, chief clerk of the Denver bank, the man held here for the last week following his assertion that he was Morse, was positively identified as not being Morse. The identification settles a question which has disturbed federal officers' minds since the man in custody waded the Rio Grande at Laredo a week ago, and subsequently said that he was Morse, "the man you want."

Copeland reached San Antonio Friday night. Saturday morning he visited the suspected man in jail. The first glance satisfied him that the man was not the missing bank employee, for he had worked side by side with Morse for two years and knew him intimately.

Definite determination that the man is not Morse leaves the officers to face one of the strangest cases called to their attention. Who is the man? is the question they have been unable to answer. Another question they all ask is "why did he say he was Morse?"

NEW BUILDINGS AT A. & M. WILL OPEN THIS FALL

TWO DEPARTMENTS WILL OCCUPY NEW QUARTERS SOON.

College Station, Texas, August 19.—Improvements to buildings and grounds are being rushed, vacancies in the teaching and administration forces filled and supplies are being received daily at the A. and M. college of Texas in preparation for the reception of fall term students on September 18. Entrance examinations will begin on September 14 and recitations will start on September 22.

Two departments of the institution will expand into new quarters before the opening of the term, which will mean greater comfort and efficiency.

The agricultural department will occupy the new agricultural administration building erected the past year at a total cost of approximately $250,000 and the mechanical engineering department will move into the new shops building built simultaneously with the agricultural building at a cost of $150,000. The present quarters of these two departments are practically the same as was provided on the establishment of the institution over 40 years ago and their growth permitted with the acquisition of the new buildings this year will mean a great step in the progress of the college. Unlimited facilities will be provided with the new equipment. The long years of waiting on the legislature for expansion of these departments seem rewarded in the extent of the improvement given in these two new buildings, which will be sufficient to take care of a normal growth in the institution for a number of years. The agricultural building is a beautiful specimen of architecture and has every facility and arrangement for competent work by students and officials.

The mechanical shops building is a model of its kind. For its design and construction it compares more favorably with a section of some enormous commercial plant than with any similar college plant in the country. No greater comforts of ventilation, light and other requisites of good shop and machine work can be given than will be afforded in this building. It is the crowning building accomplishment of the present administration, representing years of struggle.

The increase in the student body which is expected this fall was not provided for in the way of permanent dormitory facilities by the last legislature, although ample accommodations were requested in the budget presented to the board of control. To meet this exigency the college has been forced to take advantage of emergency funds and provide temporary quarters in addition to the dormitory space utilized last term. As far as comfort to the student is concerned the temporary arrangements will be entirely satisfactory, for the reason that the college was able to take over two well constructed buildings formerly operated on the campus as hostels. They are on the immediate campus as well located with reference to the mess hall and other college buildings as any other dormitory. Sidewalks are being extended to the front of the buildings connecting them with the campus system of walks. Steam heaters are being installed, also convenient and adequate lavatories and bathing facilities.

Texas Cotton Crop to Be 2,752,920 Bales—Terrell.

Austin, Texas, Aug. 17.—Answering inquiries from the president of the American Cotton Association, Texas

Commissioner of Agriculture George B. Terrell declared that the condition of the cotton crop on August 1 indicated a yield of 2,752,920 bales for Texas, and there may be further reduction account of hot winds causing cotton to shed. The Texas crop is badly damaged by boll weevil, leaf worm and drouth, Terrell said. He predicts a maximum crop of 11,000,000 bales, or 2,000,000 short of the world needs.

The present short crop, Terrell declares, warrants a price of 25 to 30 cents, and "nothing short of a conspiracy to bear the price can keep cotton at the present low price."

CITIZEN SOLDIERS STAGE REVIEW ON CAPITOL GROUNDS

PRESIDENT TELLS MEN HE WOULD LIKE TO SEE 100,000 TRAINED.

Washington, August 21.—Tanned and hardened by three weeks' training at Camp Meade, Maryland, 1000 citizen soldiers, most of them still in their teens, staged a review Monday on the historical White House ellipse, which President Harding declared gave him new assurance, new confidence and new belief in the perpetuity of the American republic.

This opinion, voiced by the chief executive in a brief extemporaneous address after the youths had passed in almost faultless formation, brought similar expressions of commendation from General Pershing, Secretary Weeks, other members of the Cabinet and members of the house and senate who stood in the reviewing line with the president.

On returning to the White House, the president delayed plunging again into consideration of governmental affairs to review again the khaki-clad contingent, divided into infantry, artillery and cavalry units, as it swung by on its return to camp. Mrs. Harding viewed both appearances, applauding frequently as detachments filed by.

It was said the president's purpose in addressing the troops from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, was to convey through them his message to the 27,000 other students in scattered army camps. He declared that if he could have his wish the 28,000 would be increased "until more than 100,000 were annually studying and preparing for armed service." Such training as the young men were receiving, he added, was not given with the expectation that they would be called upon for military service.

"You are citizens of a republic wholly devoted to peace," he asserted. "There is not a thought in America of armed warfare; there is not a design on the part of your country to carry on an armed campaign in any direction. We are concerned only with peace and the security of peace."

Per Capita Debt of United States Shown to Be $226.

New York, Aug. 21.—The State governments of the United States have a total bonded debt of $1,071,506,981 or $10.18 per capita, according to a survey made public Monday night by the Bank of America. New York has the largest individual State debt, but its per capita debt of $15.07 is comparatively low. South Dakota has the largest per capita debt $75.02. While Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska and Wisconsin have no bonded indebtedness. The present public debt of the federal government is $23,022,000,000 or approximately $226 per capita.

State Should Spend $50 Per Child on Education.

Austin, Texas, Aug. 18.—The State should spend $50 per child on education, Dr. H. T. Musselman of Dallas, chairman of the legislative survey committee of the State, declared tonight after a conference with Governor Neff. Reporting on progress of the survey being made, he advocated the severance tax on natural resources to provide extra funds.

KLAN WILL HAVE SPECIAL DAY AT FAIR IN DALLAS

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 19.—The Ku Klux Klan will have a day at the State fair this year. It was announced at Klan headquarters here Saturday that Saturday, October 14, will be Klan Day at the big celebration. Invitations have been sent to imperial officers at Atlanta and all high officials of Texas to attend the big celebration here that day.

Special rates will be put on for the occasions and fair directors expect Ku Klux Day will be one of the largest attended during the fair.

Announcement was made Saturday that the local Klan initiated a class of 3,000 Friday night. This is the largest class yet initiated by the local Klan.

CANE GROWERS OUTLINE DISTRICTS

Representatives From Sixteen Counties Present—Angelina County Lead in Acreage.

About forty representatives from 15 counties met in Lufkin Thursday of last week in attendance upon the East Texas Ribbon Cane Growers Association and drew up the districts for the cane producing counties. Angelina County led all other counties in the amount of acreage and gallons.

The gallons pledged by Angelina County was 106,000. All other counties combined had the sum of 160,000 gallons pledged, making a grand total of 266,000. The erection of a standardization plant is assured and Lufkin, by reason of this county's lead and rail connections in this city, will likely get the plant when it is finally located.

It was arranged to have the next meeting at Dallas on August 23rd at which time the directors will locate the syrup standardization plant.

SOME NEWS OF THE CROCKETT OIL FIELD

The tools that were ordered to be made for the Austin No. 2 well of the Porter Oil Company have not yet arrived, and the well remains shut down pending the arrival of these tools. Mr. George L. Porter has been away since the closing down of the well, but is expected to return to Crockett this week and the tools are expected to be here by the time he returns. The drill had been in hard rock for several days before drilling was discontinued and the order placed for special tools to penetrate the rock. Operations continue in the Driskill and Weldon wells, but the Porter Springs and Grapeland wells remain shut down.

Cost of Food and Other Commodities Take Upward Jump.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Wholesale and retail costs of food and other commodities took an upward jump during the month of July, retail prices averaging a 1 per cent increase, while wholesale prices registered a gain of about 3 1-3 per cent, as compared with June prices, the department of labor announced today.

The largest retail increases were noted in the sale of granulated sugar, 6 per cent; strictly fresh eggs, 6 per cent; navy beans, 7 per cent; potatoes, 3 per cent, while a one per cent increase was registered against certain kinds of meats, cheese, baked beans and prunes.

EDITORIALS BY COL. R. T. MILNER

What the Former A. & M. President Writes in the Rusk County News.

ALL HAVE FAILED.

All efforts to settle labor troubles in this country have failed. And the reason is so plain that a wayfaring man, though a fool, ought to see it. Human justice, Christianity, and common decency have all been left out of the reckoning. Greed, selfishness and down-right rapacity are the elements that have caused the troubles, and these mean principles have always sought to dictate terms of settlement. A person attaching blame ought to be better informed than the average citizen. It requires no particular information and none of the essential principles of Christianity to denounce the strikers as criminals, neither is it to the credit of an intelligent man to class all employers as heartless and soulless individuals. It is a fact that quite a number of employers of large bodies of men are constantly concerned about the general welfare of their employees, and their conduct toward their employees is such as to challenge their esteem and admiration. It is hardly reasonable to suppose that the executives in large corporations where thousands of men, women and children strike, have been living according to the doctrines laid down in the New Testament. If these corporations have been treating their employees just exactly as they would have their employees to treat them, then the whole trouble could be charged up to the failure of the Golden Rule. If Christianity cannot be lived, acted, and practiced in business, between wage earner and wage payer, then the whole scheme is a failure, and greed, and avarice, and the love of money are cures of all evil. What the world needs is less hate, less selfishness, less love of money and a spirit of comradeship among the toilers in the shop and those in the office that will elevate all and redound to the betterment of all. Soldiers and guns on one side and resentment on the other is what brought about revolution in Russia. It is the principle that makes right that has brought about nearly all wars of which history is acquainted. And if one will study the internal affairs of business, commerce, trade, traffic and even social matters, he will find that mean principles of might permeating through and through, doing its level best to convince everybody in some way that right is the thing sought. Might, power, force—these devils have been here a long time trying to convince the world that they are right—and in all cases where they have been strong enough they have used their strength to a mighty bad purpose. Randolph used to go out to a large negro church he built on his plantation, and he with a minister he always carried with him, would get down on their knees together in the presence of the negroes and invoke Almighty God to lead them in all ways of righteousness. Why in the world cannot employer and employee get down on their knees together once in a while and talk to God about their troubles in the spirit of men and brothers?

Remember that raw cotton has never made any country rich, while the spinning of it has made countless millions for the people who manufactured it into cloth.

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Popular-Priced Cord Tire Without a Rival

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tire is built with genuine high-grade long-staple cotton as a foundation. It is liberally oversize—the 4½-inch tire, for example, measuring nearly 5 inches. The deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern of its tread affords excellent traction even in snow and mud, engaging the road like a cogwheel. The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear. This new tire is a genuine Goodyear through and through—in design, in material, in construction. It costs less to buy than the net price you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value. Why be satisfied with less than this efficient tire can give—why take a chance on an unknown make?

will finally line up with them. If they are wrong they will lose out, and the sooner the lines are drawn intelligently and soberly the better it will be for the country. The only way for the strikers to win is to obey the laws of their country faithfully, and to present their side to the public in a fair and impartial manner. If they are right they should win, and if wrong they should lose. At Marshall where the merchants and business men ought to know the merits of both sides of the controversy they refused to go on record in favor of either side.

There is no doubt but that the railroads have greatly prejudiced their case with the farmers by charging them rates so high for all manner of truck and other things that it amounts to absolute prohibition. When fair prices for the farm products will not pay the freight and truck is forced to rot in the fields the railroads need not expect the farmers to take sides with them in a controversy with men who work for a living. In spite of the fact that the farmers have been sorely hurt by deflation and other impositions, and have not for years made a cent on their farms, yet they are willing for the railroads to make money on their investments, but when it comes to the awful situation that their products will not pay the freight they naturally complain.

We are told that at the beginning of this year we owed the railroads five hundred million dollars. For what? McAdoo says we turned them back to the owners in as good condition as they were when his father-in-law, Mr. Wilson, took them over to win the war.

One French railroad is converting 200 of its locomotives into oil burners and another will experiment with that fuel.

MORAL ISSUES OF THE TIMES—SOME SCHOOLS OF SATAN

(Note: These articles are not tirades, but honest efforts to provoke thoughtfulness.)

In this brief article it is possible to mention only a few of the most sinister influences at work today.

It is an interesting study to tabulate the currents of life which play around the average person—to note the proportionate pull of the moral and the unmoral and the immoral, such as church, home, street, movie, literature, amusements, work and various others.

That society has advanced morally since the day when, 2000 years ago, a few thousand Jews represented true religion and morality, there can be no doubt. We are indeed somewhat superior to the Elizabethan era in the choice of words, as any unexpurgated Shakespeare will show. And yet it is to be doubted whether the celebrated Queen Bess would have appeared on the streets with only a bathing rag around her middle.

Apologists are fond of saying that these moral lapses are the aftermath of war—the let-down from the high tension. Maybe so; but some of them at least have been waxing more vicious for a long time. Satan's schools have been running wide and long and have grown in popularity. One of his largest is

The School of Luxury and Extravagance.

It is human to love ease and luxury; but Oliver Goldsmith pronounced a truism of history in his couplet,

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

America is a land of wealth—a land of easy money. And this age of ours is the age of silk—silk dress, silk shirts, silk stockings, silk socks, silk music, silk profits, silk smokes, silk drinks, silk rides, silk glides, silk swims, silk speeches, silk sermons, silk religion.

Extravagance is in the saddle with spurs on. Economy non est. "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined," is the gay tune to which the world has jazzed itself into debt, dishonor and moral ruin.

Ease is the Delilah which is shearing the modern Samson of his strength. Ease is the canker which has eaten the heart of many civilizations. Work is nature's restorer, physical, mental, moral. Once there lived a man with a following who preached the gospel of work and economy. His name is forgotten—almost. Now everybody shirks. Now everybody rides. Nobody walks—except the pauper and the moss-back. Legs are no longer needed. They will probably atrophy.

Formerly the greatest virtues were solid ones like economy, honesty, temperance, energy, intellect, soul. Now the popular virtues are spending, speed, "pep," smoothness, slang and the like. The topwaters seemingly have the day; the big fish are swimming low.

Yet I am persuaded that the under-currents of moral strength are strong and will sweep out the channel some day. What we need is to know that ease is our enemy and extravagance is sin. What we need to do is to get a new grip on God and our responsibility to the world.

Another popular school of Satan is the School of Indecorous Dress and Fashion.

Mrs. Porter takes occasion to endorse the styles of dress—dresses are getting longer, but flays the paint. She actually mistook a lot of school girls for a crowd of movie actors—with their chalk white faces and blood red cheeks and lips. Camouflage! Barbarism! Reversion to savage female stunts to charm the male! But the male universally resents it.

There be those who profess to think that the fast assertive female is the proper model for the times; indeed forwardness seems to be the vogue; but to the masculine mind modesty and reserve will always be the par excellence charm of womankind.

The little devils of fashion have always sought to break down this fence. It is fatal; because the nature of the male is not to hesitate when the bars are let down. Shame is woman's instinct looking to self-preservation. I resent with every fiber of my better nature every step that wipes out the native sense of shame in womankind. I resent the kissing craze among the young people; I resent the close embrace and sensual steps to suggestive music of the modern dance; I resent the too familiar packing together in cars; but most of all I resent the naked contact of bodies in the swimming pools.

O modesty, where art thou! The modern bathing girl "revue," where girls display their naked charms to the critical gaze of the crowd, out-herods anything that erratic Rome pulled off in her decadent days. Only in the Bacchanalian revels of Greece do we find a parallel.

"But this is art," they say. Art has always been a licentious sinner, uncontrolled by christianity.

Still another immoral agency is Satan's School of Jazz, the Dance and Automobile.

All modern music is not jazz; neither is all jazz immoral; but through much of it there runs the hidden sex suggestion, luring lust, and sensual sin. So it is of the fancy "holts," and familiar poses of the modern dance. Music is a devil of destruction or an angel of inspiration. The measured, rhythmic, syncopated motions of swaying bodies folded in the passionate dance is not conducive to morality.

Many schools have had to call a halt on the wild revelry of its student body. Some time ago Chicago schools did so and published the following statements concerning the baneful effects of these pastimes: "We believe that jazz music has done much to corrupt dancing, at the same time vitiating the taste for good music. We believe that the modern method of dancing has done much to break down respect for womanhood. We believe that the unrestricted use of the automobile is another demoralizing influence. Extremes of dress are deplorable." These schools blamed the parents. Who else is responsible?

Akin to these influences are the Schools of Immoral Movies, Vaudeville and Stories.

Of the movies John Barrymore, movie star, says, "The old time medicine man who gave a fake show and sold bogus remedies or cure-alls, was a piker in his potential power for harm alongside of the movie producer." Scarcely any amusement has the vogue of the movie. It is the seen story. Among the things condemned by censors and church committees are: pictures dealing with white slavery, with sex-suggestion, pictures showing nakedness, inciting dances, illicit love; pictures making drunkenness attractive, pictures of the underworld, excessive gun-play, bloodshed, condoning crime, ridiculing religion.

What is said of the movie is true of the obscene vaudeville, the too realistic novel, where the ugly side of life too often appears uncondemned by the author.

The excuse of the movie producers and these other peddlers of the immoral (where they do show immorality) is that the public demands thrills, and they must produce them. This is casting moral considerations to the winds. It is time for the most reckless fan to think when writers like Rex Beach and Booth Tarkington condemn any interference with the license of the movies, claiming that is the province of fiction, drama and the screen to portray nature as she is, good and bad, and leave the callow youth to choose his part.

So much for the pitfalls of youth. There is a large private school which Satan runs for the old soakers, and some of the youths—

The School of the Bootlegger.

It is private, its scholars are select, and the tuition high. Compared with the open saloon it is small, since the saloon was a public school, with low rates, and universally patronized.

But even the old soakers who prefer to roast their bellies and sneak behind the law, would scarcely have the temerity to defend this outlaw. And after all, drunkenness is a matter of preference. It is a question of motives. On the one side is the pull of the motives of love for family, respect for law, regard for social standing; on the other the sinister desire to feed their bellies, enjoy their cronies—in a word feed the beast in them.

Buy this Cigarette and Save Money

A man's standing in life is largely determined by his tastes, and a man who is a man has no right to complain if society kicks him out for persisting in dragging the low and beastly into its gaze.

As an incubator of crime the bootlegger's school has turned out many chicks. A man must be an outlaw to patronize this outlaw chief. He immediately becomes an opponent of good officers, and opponent of the courts of justice, grand jury, and law enforcing public.

To such depths will a man go to worship his god which is his belly.

Space forbids reference to such satanic agencies as Profligate, Divorce, Scepticism and many others.

It is my purpose to deal with the enemies of home, church and school in other articles if the patience of the editor and interest of the readers will permit.

Tired

"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired, all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't ever hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"... I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."

Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.

American Legion Auxiliary.

The ladies of the American Legion Auxiliary met August 18, 1922. A great deal of business has been accomplished since date of last meeting. Many letters from state officers were read. It may be interesting to let the public know more specifically what the ladies are doing. The government gives the medical attention to these hospital patients, but does not furnish clothing and other comforts, which are necessary to a sick or convalescing patient. This unit has adopted a needy boy in Camp Logan hospital; they need help now as well as American people needed them during the war. We earnestly think this is a worthy and noble work and we continue to select members—wives, daughters, mothers and sisters, of an ex-service man belonging to some Legion Post.

Part of this meeting was devoted in a memorial service in memory of our president, Mrs. Geo. R. Brailsford, who has passed from our midst. Letters and telegrams were read from our district chairman in which she expressed her sympathy.
Next meeting will be Friday, August 25, 1922, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. C. C. Warfield. Please join us in our effort to keep alive Americanism.

Social Affair.

Friday evening, August 18, Mrs. Lee Brasher and mother, Mrs. J. C. Stockton, entertained quite a number of girls and boys at their home four miles east of Crockett. Everyone was met with a sunny smile by Mrs. Brasher, and the evening started in a pleasant way.
The crowd was first honored by having Miss Bessie McClough of Houston play some of her most select pieces on the piano. Then little games and tricks were played for some time. Everyone enjoyed the games, but at the same time they seemed anxious to hear some of the good music that was going to be furnished by the Shupak brothers of Lone Pine community. It wasn't but just a few moments after the music started until there were several couples on the floor dancing, and the evening passed all too quickly.

After having spent a very pleasant evening, we departed for home about eleven-thirty and all hoping that we should again have the pleasure of spending another evening as this one "in the same home."

TARIFF BILL PASSES AFTER FOUR MONTHS

Borah Only Republican to Vote Against Measure; Three Democrats Support It.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The administration bill, officially "the tariff of 1922," was passed late Saturday by the senate after four months of debate. It now goes to conference.

Senator Borah of Idaho was the only republican to vote against the measure. Three democrats—Brousard, Kendrick and Ransdell—voted for it.

The vote was 48 to 25.
Attacking the provisions of the tariff bill proposing broad authority for the President to increase or decrease duties, Senator Borah declared in the senate that he could not give his support on the final vote unless these provisions were eliminated. He could not arrive at the conclusion that they were constitutional.

Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, who has opposed many rates in the administration measure, expressed an opposite view stating that if the provisions for presidential powers were not in the measure it would be "difficult" for him to vote for it.
He added that these provisions constituted one of the "saving features."

The Wisconsin senator said that there were many "excessive" rates in the bill but that he would vote for it in the hope that reductions would be made in the conference committee.
"If they are not cut," he added,
"then I shall exercise the liberty and prerogative of voting against the bill finally."

Senators Harrison and Pomerene announced that had they been permitted to vote they would have voted against the bill and the same announcement was made in behalf of the seven democratic absentees. It was stated also that had Senators La Follette and Norris been present they would have voted against the measure, while the other 12 republican absentees would have voted for it.
Senators Lenroot and Jones of Washington, republicans, announced that they supported the bill because of the provisions giving the president broad authority to increase or decrease rates and in the hopes that the senate and house conferees would reduce rates which they considered excessive. Senator Lenroot said that if this were not done he would vote against the conference report.

BELIEVE BONUS BILL WILL PASS

Washington, Aug. 21.—Senate republican leaders continued negotiations Monday for a unanimous consent agreement for a final senate vote on the soldiers' bonus bill, but apparently with little prospect for immediate success.

It was understood that four or five senators objected to an agreement at this time.

The bonus is the senate's unfinished business and will be taken up after the senate reconvenes Wednesday.

Chairman McCumber of the finance committee plans to deliver a prepared address at that time in support of it and some majority leaders said that unless there was an agreement meantime for a time for the final vote the legislation would have to be fought out to a finish on the floor.

Estimates as to the time which would be required to pass the measure in the absence of any agreement varied, but it appeared that it might require several weeks. Several substitute measures have been proposed and in addition many amendments to the committee draft are promised. All of them are expected to lead to more or less prolonged discussion.

After the bonus is passed by the senate, and the general belief at the capitol is that it will go through finally by a substantial majority, it would in the usual course be sent to conference for the composing of differences between the senate and the house. In that event it would be handled by the same conference committee to which the tariff measure will be referred this week with little prospect that it would receive attention until after the committee had completed its work on the tariff.

signal is illuminated intermittently by automatic mechanism operated by acetylene gas.

HOGG'S LAST MESSAGE TO TEXAS.

In November, 1905, a feature of the Dallas fair was the "Legislative Day" banquet, given in honor of the members of the Texas legislature, and attended by scores of notable men from all sections of the State. James Stephen Hogg was to have been one of the speakers, but in October he had suffered a dangerous relapse of the malady which afflicted him during the last year of his life, and this made his presence at Dallas impossible.

So anxious were the managers of the banquet to have him represented that they sent a phonograph to his bedside in the Worth hotel at Fort Worth, where he was lying desperately ill, and requested a message from him, and he complied. At the banquet when his turn came, the phonograph was placed on the table and the company heard his solemn message as he had spoken it.

The closing words of that memorial deliverance were:

"Before I go, I should like to see public records disclose every official act and be open to all, to the end that every one shall know that in TEXAS PUBLIC OFFICE IS THE CENTER OF PUBLIC CONSCIENCE, AND THAT NO GRAFT, NO CRIME, NO PUBLIC WRONG SHALL EVER STAIN OR CORRUPT OUR STATE."

Did James S. Hogg foresee what was to happen in the State he loved so well within less than a dozen years?

Was he fearful that the seat in Austin he had rendered illustrious might have an occupant disgracing the governorship of this commonwealth?

Did he foresee that Texas might have in its highest office an occupant who regarded public office a private snap?

Did he foresee one of his successors scourged from office by a high court of impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanors?

He must have foreseen such possibilities, and surely the closing words of his message were words of admonition to the assembled lawmakers.

This phonographic message was the last public utterance of James S. Hogg, for four months to a day afterward he was buried at Austin.

The scrupulous honesty of James Stephen Hogg's public service will ever remain a grateful memory to the people of Texas. He served four years as attorney general and four years as governor and left office homeless and with but $50 in all the world.

As a private citizen, he represented the State in the prize fight cases for half the fee the Dallas citizens had offered him to represent the prizefighters.

He refused many fees to represent various interests before the legislative committees, but he so hated the lobby that he declined them all. And the only time he appeared before a legislative committee was in behalf of his constitutional amendments which the Waco convention had pledged the democratic legislature to submit.

He had an unutterable contempt for the grafter. He wanted no crime or scandal to stain the escutcheon of his native State.

And his last words to his people warned them to safeguard the State against such things.

And now we behold a candidate for the United States senate in Texas demanding vindication—demanding justification for acts such as James Stephen Hogg condemned in his dying message to the people of Texas; demanding reparation for the act of the high court of impeachment driving him from office and barring him forever from holding office in this State.

Are we to have the ideals of James Stephen Hogg maintained in our public service, or the ideals of Jim Ferguson?—Houston Post.

BEARING FALSE WITNESS

One would think the injunction against bearing false witness would operate with exceptional force on ministers of the gospel, that they would be less prone than most others to impute unworthy motives. It but testifies respect for the ministerial calling to say that a suspicion would be doubly credentialed to get acceptance from the clerical mind.

But it is not always so. The Reverend Mr. Hearon of Denison for example, told the strikers of that city the other day that the newspapers are against them, and for the reason that their editorial expressions are dictated by the interest with which the strikers are at war. There was once a time, Mr. Hearon told them, when the newspapers were animated by high principles of justice, but that now they have no other motive than a desire to make money.

That is a grievous charge to bring against the newspapers. It would be natural to suppose that one who made it would support it with some kind of evidence. But The News has discovered no such evidence in the report of the Reverend Mr. Heron's remarks to the Denison strikers. His only citation seems to have been the fact that nearly all the newspapers, nearly all the big ones at least, have expressed the opinion that the strikers did wrong in quitting work. That is probably a fact. But as an evidence that the newspapers are governed by the motives imputed to them by the Reverend Mr. Hearon it lacks a great deal of being conclusive. It could hardly support an indictment, and much less the judgment of guilt which the Reverend Mr. Hearon has pronounced against them.

It is entirely possible that in holding the strikers to have been justified, and their cause a good one, the Reverend Mr. Hearon's judgment is the better one. Yet is also entirely possible that the contrary opinion expressed by so many of the larger newspapers is, in respect of honesty, not inferior to his own. Yet that possibility finds no place, apparently in the thinking of the Reverend Mr. Hearon. Since he has offered no other evidence, the fact that their judgment is contrary to his seems to be conclusive proof, in the estimation of the Reverend Mr. Hearon, that the newspapers have been actuated by a sordid and corrupt motive.—Galveston News.

NORTH CAROLINA A FARMING STATE.

When one thinks of farming States, Texas, Kansas, Missouri and other great Western commonwealths come to mind. The average person would not look eastward for a real farming State. Agriculture is supposed to be centered in the West.

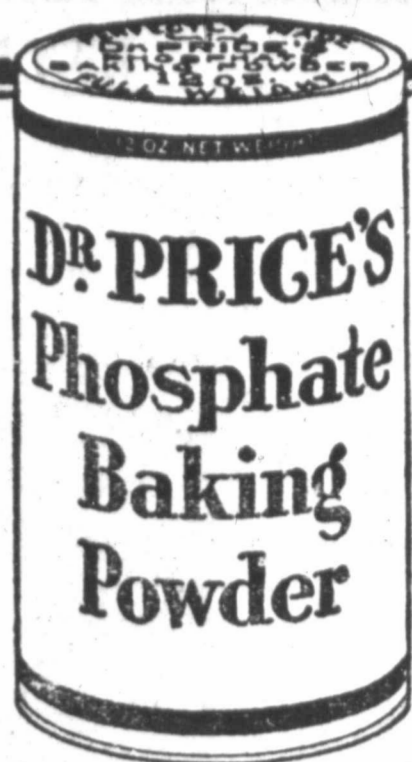

Yet the records of production show that North Carolina, one of the oldest settled of the Eastern States, is fifth in line in the Union. If Kansas and Iowa have their wheat and corn, the Old North State has her cotton, tobacco, sweet potatoes, and fruits and vegetables, in such abundance, even though the crops are grown in small plots, as to bring the State near the top in agricultural production and wealth.

North Carolina's agricultural development is all the more surprising to many outside the State by reason of the fact that so much more has been heard of the development of manufacturing in the State. North Carolina has become one of the greatest textile manufacturing centers on the continent. Of late years the country had come to regard the State more as a manufacturing than a farming State, owing to the greater publicity given the mill industry.

But the record of development speaks for itself. Farm values have risen from $78,211,083 fifty years ago to $857,815,016 in 1920. And fifty years ago people were leaving the State, many believing that its limit to development had been reached. This is a record which goes to show what can be done in an old State under intensive methods of farming.

Perhaps, one of the secrets of the success of both farming and manufacturing in North Carolina is that these industries are closely related. The tobacco and cotton grown in the State are turned into the finished product within the State. The farmers have ready markets for their products, and the manufacturing population has reasonably cheap living by being in close proximity to the food producing areas.

North Carolina works the two industries together in such a way as to create general prosperity and to bring the State within the ranks of the richest in the Union, without possessing the natural advantages that many less wealthy States have.—Houston Post.
