City Council Hears Planning Commission Recommendations

The Muleshoe City Council met in regular session Tuesday morning, March 19, at the Muleshoe City hall.

The council passed an ordinance regulating the break up of curb and gutters. This ordinance is to make sure that if someone breaks one out it will be put back in properly.

The council formally ratified the appointment of Buddy Black as the new Chief of Police.

A letter was presented from the City Planning Commission listing things that they thought needed to be done.

The priorities include: widening of Highway 84; water system improvements; every effort should be made to provide the residents of Muleshoe with adequate medical care facilities every attempt should be made to pave the remaining dirt streets in Muleshoe; the council should support a county-wide bond election thus letting the people decide on the magnitude of the community center project; should search for solutions to the housing shortage.

This list is by no means comprehensive in nature, but merely represents the planning commission's attempts to define the most pressing problems.

Heart Fund Goes Over Goal For 1974

The Bailey County Heart Fund campaign has surpassed their goal set for 1974. The goal this year was set for $2,000 and the campaign has already collected almost $3,000 and still has some time to go.

Bailey County Heart Fund Chairman, Mrs. Steve Bass, reports that the campaign collected $56.75 in special gifts; the business campaign netted $1,547.25; the Heart Sunday drive collected $1,003.11; and the memorial income was $343.50 for a total of $2,950.61. This year the campaign raised 35 cents per capita which is a 155 per cent increase over last year since only 19 cents per capita was raised last year.

The Bailey County Unit of the American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate, will receive a heart and torch award this year. A unit has to set a new record and raise 25 cents per capita or more to receive this award.

Bailey County was the first county in Region II to receive this award and is tied for first in the state with Foard County.

Local Spring Tornado Season Approaching

COLLEGE STATION --- Tornado season is approaching in Texas, and certain precautions can save lives, warns Wayne Keese, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Tornadoes are violent wind storms that usually grow out of threatening thunder clouds. In Texas, the peak tornado season is during the months of April, May and June, but tornadoes may occur anytime.

"Although tornadoes may occur at any hour of the day or night, they are most frequent during the warmer hours of the day," points out Keese.

When the possibility of a tornado exists, the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Missouri, sends out a tornado watch to the threatened area. The message is teletyped to radio, television and National Weather Service stations in the area.

"A 'tornado watch' alerts people to the possibility of a tornado," explains the Texas A&M University System specialist. "When a watch is announced for your area, there is no need to interrupt normal activities except to listen for weather advisories and watch for threatening weather. Be sure a battery-powered radio is available in case power is lost."

A tornado watch identifies a specific time and area, but everyone in the general area should be alert for threatening conditions.

"When a tornado has actually been sighted or detected by

The Citizen's Committee, elected by the people of Muleshoe to find the best way to have better hospital facilities, met in a called meeting, Saturday afternoon, to hear a report from Architect Grady Cosby and engineers Ken Williams and Ken Simpson, who came from Abilene as a special favor to Rev. H.D. Hunter, chairman of the group.

They spent the morning touring the hospital and nursing home and studying the different possibilities to make the hospital a better plant and at the least expense to the citizens of Bailey County.

The existing hospital building should be remodeled to accommodate the doctor's clinic and the business offices and the lab. The west wing should be kept open for some patient rooms, with some updating. Property on the west, along second street, should be purchased and here, build a new facility for 25 patient rooms, surgical suite, and dietary unit. The new dietary area will connect with the nursing home and provide more space, garbage disposal equipment, updated equipment and a more efficient lay-out of this department.

The architect suggested that his master plan would provide for future expansion as the need and finances become available. They stated that the cost would be enough lower that a complete new hospital to merit study and consideration.

No definite plan of action was accepted at this meeting. The group will meet again Thursday evening with the place and time to be announced. At this time, some action may be voted on. As yet, a way to raise the needed money has not been determined. The committee has been given some donations already, and many encouraging comments.

The public is urged to attend these meetings.

Wholesale Fuel Users May Apply For Hardship Fuel Applications

Governor Dolph Briscoe announced that Texas wholesale fuel users qualifying for additional temporary emergency allocations for a current month may submit a hardship fuel application on Form FEO-20 to the State Emergency Fuel Allocation Office in Austin.

The state office orders additional fuel from a limited supply of fuel reserved each month for emergency use.

Federal Energy Order forms are available from county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Offices, the Regional Federal Energy Office and the State Emergency Fuel Allocation Office.

The State Emergency Fuel Allocation Office address is P.O. Box 12577, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Alvin C. Askew is Administrator of the state office.

Gasoline, middle-distillates including kerosene, #2 heating oil and diesel fuel, propane, and residual fuel oil are the emergency fuels allocated by the state office.

Source of the emergency fuel is from what is called the state set-aside. Suppliers, refiners, importers and wholesale purchasers are required by the Federal Energy Office to set-aside a percentage of their marketable supply monthly for emergency use by the state office.

The gasoline set-aside, for example, is three percent. The state allocates set-aside fuel within the general provisions of the Emergency Petroleum Act of 1973.

Applicants sending a Form FEO-20 to the State Emergency Fuel Allocation Office for emergency fuel, must include a concise and comprehensive statement which specifies the character of the hardship, including an estimate of the anticipated injury which denial of the requested allocation would have on the applicant's operations.

In some cases, it requires a minimum of seventy-two hours to get fuel delivered to the applicant after an order has been given by the State Emergency Fuel Allocation Office. Contacting suppliers, making arrangements for allocations, and travel time it takes to actually move the fuel, all mean a certain lapse of time before fuel delivery.

Who applies to the Federal Energy Office in Dallas? Wholesale purchasers who have failed to get the fuel to which they are entitled through their 1972 suppliers or from local suppliers if they had no supplier in 1972, may send Form FEO-17 to the Regional Federal Energy Office.

The definition of a wholesale purchaser in the Federal Energy Office regulations is the key to the use of the FEO-17 in applications to the regional Federal Energy Office rather than use of the applications to the state office.

A wholesale purchaser is defined as any person, firm, corporation, cooperative or government unit which purchases, receives through transfer, or otherwise obtains an allocated substance in bulk or under contract at wholesale level including: (1) only those agricultural users who consume more than 20,000 gallons per year; (2)

WASHINGTON REPORT BY

Lloyd Bentsen,

United States Senator

The so-called emergency energy bill is an example of a cure that is worse than the disease.

It is a hastily-contrived, ill-conceived administrative nightmare that would compound our energy troubles by stangling the national effort to achieve energy self-sufficiency -- and I voted against it.

Rewritten five times amidst a political furor, the 100-page 40-section bill has glaring administrative, procedural, and environmental defects.

It establishes an agency to handle energy programs, but doesn't give it proper authority. It entangles energy conserva-grams in a confusing amalgam of procedures which open the door to bureaucratic bungling. The country deserves well thought out and carefully constructed legislative proposals which deal individually with the problems that this bill addresses in a collective, haphazard fashion.

But the most serious defect in the measure is a provision written in haste and with high emotion that rolls back the price of domestically produced crude oil.

This provision may be good politics, but it is very bad economics. It is good politics because it addresses a legitimate problem of great public concern -- oil prices that are too high. It is very bad economics because it addresses the wrong oil prices -- domestic, not foreign.

After all, what is it that allowed the Arabs and others to triple and quadruple the price of oil in a year's time? The answer is very simple. They have what everyone else in the world needs -- oil.

NEED TO SPEED DOMESTIC ENERGY PRODUCTION.

If we could speed up the development of our own domestic sources of energy, we could loosen the hold of foreign oil upon us.

But, ironically, for the last decade, almost everything has been done to bring American production down. A rollback in domestic oil prices would only accelerate the dangerous trend.

How is a rollback on the price of domestic crude oil going to help us find substitutes for imported oil? How is it going to help us get the marginal field and the deep wells drilled? How is it going to make gasification of coal and production of shale oil economically feasible? This rollback provision would effectively destroy the incentive to explore and develop more oil in this country.

do, report it promptly to the nearest law officer or National Weather Service Office. Otherwise, do not make calls so that lines can be kept open for emergency information.

After a tornado, always wear shoes and gloves in cleanup operations and damage inspections. Watch for hazards like broken or downed electrical wires and broken gas pipes. When entering a storm-damaged building, watch for ceilings and walls that may be ready to fall.

Never light a match, smoke or carry open flames into a building until you are sure there are no gas leaks.

Do not sight-see in disaster areas. Your presence will only hamper rescue and cleanup operations.

CONGRESSMAN

Bob Price

18th Congressional District

As we work to deal with various shortages which are being faced by consumers and businessmen, some people are again looking for an easy answer through increased regulation of our economy by the federal government.

We hear now of people who think we should regulate the oil industry as a public utility. Their answer to the energy shortage is more government controls and more decision-making in Washington.

We've experienced all that before. For 30 years the Federal Power Commission has regulated the natural gas industry to the point where production has been discouraged. Over a number of more recent months, our federal government has been experimenting with various systems of price controls; and this has resulted in shortage, too. What these actions have done is simply to remove the profit motive from our economic system -- and our free enterprise economic system is based on the profit motive.

I'm a consumer too. So are you. We would all like to be able to buy things for less money; but most important, we want the things we need to be available in adequate supply. The profit motive brings supply and there is nothing wrong with making a profit.

We're going to have to choose, in this country, between a return to full free enterprise; or increased government controls. I'm for a return to free enterprise. Free enterprise has led this nation to world economic pre-eminence in the past, and I am confident it can keep us in good economic health if we will just let it operate freely.

An opportunity is coming up for the Congress to take a deliberate step toward a return to free enterprise. The authorization for government price controls expires on April 30th. I think we should let that authorization expire and resist temptations to continue that authority.

This past week, the Congress was able to beat back another attempt to further erode free enterprise. This came from members who are trying to hold down energy prices, but who do not seem to understand that such action will only discourage further exploration and development and thus result in a longer period of shortage.

At one point in the debate in the House of Representatives, it appeared that a crude oil price roll-back provision was going to sail through, and so I supported an amendment which I felt would exempt from the roll-back all independent producers of 30,000 barrels a day or less. Later, a good deal of confusion was evidenced in the Chamber as to whether the amendment would actually have that result. The members then wanted another vote on the roll-back provision; I voted against the roll-back and so did enough of my colleagues to defeat the measure (163 to 216). At week's end, the House passed the Federal Energy Administration Act without the price roll-back.

THE HIGH COST OF RETAIL BEEF is an issue I asked this week the Cost of Living Council to probe. High retail beef prices at a time when cattle prices on the hoof are so low feeders are going broke, is a rip-off. Large packers and retail chain stores should be asked to explain their costs and profit margins.

FOR THE RECORD (Legislative actions I have taken since my last report) -- Introduced resolution opposing transfer of ownership of the Panama Canal to Panama (referred to Committee on Foreign Affairs).

Supported amendment to Federal Energy Administration Act which would have prohibited the Administration from imposing an energy rationing plan without the approval of Congress (rejected, 160-241).

Introduced bill to increase service-connected disability payments for war veterans (referred to Committee on Veterans Affairs).

REJECTS AGNEW OUTLINE NEW YORK--Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew offered the outline of a novel to Random House but the firm rejected the proposed book, a spokesman for the publishing firm said.

A-PLANTS WARNING WASHINGTON--The Government has disclosed plans to create a special warning system designed to minimize radiation casualties in the "highly unlikely" event of a major accident in a nuclear power plant anywhere in the country.

FEW USE 'CHECKOFF' WASHINGTON -- In early tax returns, one taxpayer in ten is earmarking $1 of his federal taxes for use by presidential candidates in the 1976 race for the White House.

Clayton Asks Study In Fertilizer Licensing

Rep. Bill Clayton, (D-Springlake), today asked the House Agriculture Committee to begin an immediate investigation into the possibilities of establishing state-wide licensing requirements for fertilizer dealers. Rep. Clayton, who recently led current critical shortages in agricultural fertilizers, reported that such licensing provisions may be the only effective means of monitoring fertilizer sales and transactions.

In Austin, Rep. Clayton stated, "In conjunction with the study on licensing provisions, I plan to initiate the inquiries into several other areas when our state government may not have fulfilled its obligations to the farmers and consumer public of Texas. I am asking the Fertilizer Control Institute at College Station to re-evaluate their reporting and recording methods to find out why there was so little forewarning of the shortage, as well as why the Institute's estimates of the shortage differ so drastically from the actual amount of fertilizer available in Texas."

Clayton expressed his concern over the alleged exportation of fertilizer products into Mexico, products which then apparently are shipped to Texas and sold at a much higher price. Clayton stated his office is asking for coordination of an investigation into these questionable exports with the Agriculture Commission, the Attorney General's office and the House Agriculture Committee.

Rep. Clayton also reported that in furtherance of his campaign to find solutions to the fertilizer shortage, he would be petitioning the Council of State Governments to determine if there is any legislation in any state that might be used as a model for Texas in controlling deceptive trade practices in fertilizer dealings. The Council will meet in Florida in May.

Rep. Clayton urged all persons with information or questions on the fertilizer situation to contact him or the Department of Agriculture at 512-475-6686.

Book learning isn't all of education but it's an essential part and there is no substitute.

"To save energy and money this summer . . . cool your home with Gas Central Air Conditioning.

You save with a gas system because it's a more efficient energy user than its electric counterpart. It's more efficient because gas, unlike electricity, is a direct source of energy. You don't have the energy loss that occurs in electrical generation and transmission.

We help you save in another way, too.

In addition to determining the exact cooling requirements of your home, our cooling specialists also check your attic insulation. If it's insufficient, insulation is added and included as part of the job. Proper insulation saves energy and money for both cooling and heating.

So, beat the summer rush.
