A SINGULAR CROP. Bow the Cochineal Insect Is Prepared

The cochineal insect is a fat, dark, spherical little creature, looking like a black current and with neither head, legs, nor tail, to the casual observer. In fact he is so inanimate that one may crush him between finger and thumb without any qualms of conscience. He is nothing but a black current, sure enough, though the bright carmine or lake exusion from his body which serves him for !!

and us for dye, is a better the juice of the current. It was the cultivation pleasant little individu more than a score of y no less than forty per cell upon investments into the the cultivators. Such pro too good to last.

The insect was not introduced into Teneriffe until 1825, and for a time it could not be incouraged to propagate successfully. A priest had the honor of being the discoverer of the right method of nurture, and to him it is due that from 1845 to 1866 an annual crop of from 2,000,000 to 6,000,000 pounds of cochineal was produced.

A cochineal plantation has a singular aspect. The larves, being very delicate and rather thick-witted, have to be tied upon the cactus plant, which is to be their nursery and their nourishment at the same time. Thus one sees hundreds of the shoots of the prickly pear-the cactus in questionall bandaged with white linen, as if they had the toothache. In this way the insects are kept warm and dry during the winter, and induced to adhere to the plant itself. When they are full grown they are ruthlessly swept from their pricky quarters, shaken or baked to death, and dried in the sun. The shriveled corpses are then packed in bags and sold as ripe merchandise at about $25 a hundred weight.

The equipment of a fish farm, as it is called, is a very simple an inexpensive operation. Land which would be valueless for ordinary farming may be used for the purpose, the only requirement being a plentiful supply of good running water. The best site for a fish farm is a hilly or mountainous district where the water runs swiftle and is interrupted by waterfalls, since this serves to acrate and refresh the water. The fish farms are usually provided with three ponds, each of which is reserved for fish of about the same size. . As the fish grow they are changed from one pond to another. The fry is usually bought the first pond. The food variety of prepared fish the fish fed with the prehave a decidedly beefy plan very generally adopted planting the ponds with an of fresh water shrimp, row very quickly and soon

Mrs. Hart, who has covered the globe with her notabook, declares the English people to be the most garrulous and quarrelsome of any she has encountered. She says there is more bickering and distemper in the Englishman's family and more homes are made unhappy by domestic squabbles than in any other of the nations she has visited. This condition she atbributes chiefly to the Anglo-Saxon's fondness for a meat diet. She says the great meat eating people are. notably ill-tempered. We are only animals, and the sequence of meat and fits, as demonstrated in the animal kingdow, has a significance in relation to the human animal. Mrs. Hart has gone further than this, and has studied the gentle Japanese, the mild Mongolian, and other_light-living races, which research confirms her ideas touching flesh-eating and family jars.

Pistol Practice in 'exas. "We have 15,010 mutilated and worn silver dollars in our vault," said a subtreasury official. "We also have 500,-000 half-dollar, quarter and dime pieces which have become too thin for use. It is a curious thing that the mutilated dollars that we receive from Texas are deeply indented. This is a result of the target practice in Texas The crack shots down there think that a silver dollar is the best kind of a mark. Do we give a good dollar for a mutilated one? That de-

Rev. Dr. King, the noted abolition at, who died recently at Chatham. Ontario, is said to have been the one from whom the character of Clayton in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was drawn. He was born in 1812, the son of a Southern planter, but some time before the civil war, deciding that slavery was wrong, he freed his slaves and those of his wife, and securing a grant of land from the Canadian government, founded a colony for refugee slaves at Buxton, Ontario, which exists till this day.
