OPEC nations to lose sales, Yamani says

By Joe Alex Morris Jr The Los Angeles Times

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia - Oil production will slump by 25 per cent in the first quarter of this year in those oil exporting nations that raised their prices by 10 per cent, Saudi Arabian petroleum minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani predicted Wednesday.

He said Saudi Arabia - which raised its prices by only 5 per cent - was going ahead with plans to increase eventual production capacity to 14 million barrels a day, 50 per cent more than current output. Increased Saudi production would pick up business lost by nations with highpriced oil. The Saudis will boost production in the first quarter from the current rate of 9.3 million barrels a day to 10 million, then take another look at the situation, Yamani said in

'If by then we have to make a second increase, we will do it," he said. As for the other producers, he said "either they reduce their prices or face production cutbacks.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates broke with the 11 other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) after meeting in Qatar last month and declared they would increase oil prices by only 5 per cent for the whole of 1977.

The others, who voted for a 10 per cent increase as of Jan. 1 and plan another 5 per cent hike in July, are Iran, Iraq, Qatar, Libya, Algeria, Gabon, Kuwait, Nigeria, Indonesia, Ecuador and Venezuela.

The OPEC split has thrown the world oil market into a turmoil. Yamani said it was too early to predict how market patterns will develop, but he predicted "there will be some (price) discounts" by the 11 OPEC states which voted the 10 per cent increase.

In the first three months of this year, he said, there will be a temporary surplus of oil stocks in the OPEC states. He said this was the result of extensive stockpiling of oil by the international companies, in anticipation of the Jan. 1 price increase. He put the surplus at a capacity of 3 million barrels per day.

"If you take away Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, who will not be affected because of our cheap crude, and add the additional oil we will produce, it will be more like a 25 per cent reduction for the 11," Yamani said.

Iran has reported its exports are off by one-third for the first nine days of this month, and Kuwaiti oil sources are talking of a production cut ranging as high as 38 per cent. Indonesia. which voted for the 10 per cent increase, actually increased the price of 80 per cent of its oil exports by only 5.85 per cent.

A Saudi Arabian production capacity of 14 million barrels a day would fill almost half the total of OPEC's current oil exports. Construction of addi-

Sawhill favors 'federal' oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill today proposed that the government get into the oil business, beginning on a small scale by establishing a national oil-purchasing

Sawhill, now the president of New York University, told a congressional hearing the agency could start out by purchasing crude oil from oilproducing countries to help build up the government's national oil stock-

But Exxon Corp. President H. G. Kaufmann replied at the same hearing that "direct government involvement in the commercial operations of the industry is neither necessary or desirable.'

While conceding that the government should move to acquire oil for its strategic reserves, Kaufmann said that for the government agency to attempt to buy and distribute crude oil would result in "a bureaucratic nightmare.

Kaufmann and Sawhill testified before the energy subcommittee of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, which is examining what the nation should do about the escalating prices of oil imported from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries - OPEC

Earlier, subcommittee Chairman Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said energy self-sufficiency this century is an unrealistic goal, and the incoming Carter administration should face up to this as it forges a national energy policy.

Kennedy said the hearings are aimed at "clarifying the basic policy choices that are open to the United States.'

Kennedy said the Ford administration's efforts to deal with the OPEC cartel amounted to little more than "rhetorical confrontation tough talk with little to back it up.

One of the basic flaws of Ford's approach was his insistence that the nation could become energy selfsufficient by the mid 1980s, Kennedy said at Wednesday's session.

"I am convinced that the U.S. energy program will remain in limbo until we decide how to deal with the reality that this country will be importing substantial amounts of oil for most, if not all, of the balance of this century," Kennedy said.

"And even if, by some miracle, we could become self-sufficient in energy, our closest allies overseas will still be heavily dependent on oil

Bell tells committee if confirmed he plans to replace FBI's Kelley

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Attorney General-designate Griffin B. Bell said Wednesday that FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley will be replaced "before too long" as head of the federal government's principal law enforcement agency. Testifying at the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearings on his confirmation. Bell replied to a question about Kelley by saying: "I think we can look forward to the time when

CHICAGO - Jack Carter, son of President-elect Jimmy Carter, Wednesday defended the use of his father's name in promotional material issued by a carpet company that employs him as its lawyer.

"When somebody hires me as an attorney," Carter said," "and I am the son of the President-elect, I am not going to tell that man that he cannot say I'm the son of the Presidentelect - because it's true. If he wants to use this in his business, frankly that's his ball game."

Carter made his comments at a televised press conference arranged by Contract Carpet and Interiors, Inc., a Chicago company. The company's promotional material had mentioned President-elect Carter's name.

Panel OKs housing rehabilitation

Midland Housing Authority Wednesday gave its approval to go ahead on a $160,000 housing rehabilitation project to renovate an estimated 30 to 35 substandard houses of poor homeowners in the city.

The decision by the authority's board of commissioners was the prime action taken at the regular

It followed Tuesday's approval by Midland City Council to permit the housing authority to expand its original scope of providing housing assistance to the elderly and handicapped.

At the agreement of both the council and the board, the limit on rehabilitation funds for a house was raised from 50 per cent of the current market value to 65 per cent. The maximum limit of $5,000 per house was retained, although the council agreed to reconsider the percentage limit if it proves unworkable

The only board member to vote against the rehabilitation project was Smith Ray.

"I think it's going to raise a lot of hopes that aren't going to be fulfilled," said Ray after the meeting. He said the $160,000, which comes from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will not be enough. He also said the housing authority should stick to only helping the elderly and handicapped.

After a lengthy discussion of eligibility requirements, unanimous approval was given to a plan for selecting homeowners for the grants.

Priority will go to elderly and handicapped persons, followed by honorably discharged veterans and then other low-income homeowners. Annual income limits to be eligible range from $7,200 for one-person households to $12,850 for families with eight or more members. A family of four could have a gross income up to

The homeowner must agree not to sell or rent the rehabilitated house within one year after completion of

H. L. Berry, a Midland realtor, was picked to perform inspection and related services for the program at a fee of $280 per house.

Berry has performed similar work for the Federal Housing Administration on 1,000 homes in Midland, housing authority chairman Harry Clark said.

Helping draft eligibility requirements was Susan Edwards, executive director of the Human Relations Council. She said her organization will be ready immediately to start screening applicants and educating chosen homeowners on how to use their rehabilitated homes. Many, she said. are ignorant of how to live in modernequipped homes.

The authority's executive secretary, Fred Kester, said the effort to improve housing for the city's poor is a small start, but if it proves successful the city council has indicated it will seek larger rehabilitation funding where the present grant ends in September.

In other action, vice chairman Eugene Abbott gave a report on construction progress of the authority's first public housing project, Hillcrest Manor. Abbott said the project, located at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street, is 30 per cent complete. He said minor workmanship problems have been corrected, according to information

CAB suggests Midland join El Paso, Lubbock in request

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

The Civil Aeronautics Board may yet decide to grant a formal hearing and approve a request by the City of Midland for more direct air service to the East, two CAB officials said Wednesday, if Midland consolidates its efforts with El Paso and Lubbock. The conclusion - which is not a formal promise of the CAB board was presented by Charles Barclay and Cornelius Ryan, two CAB of-

The two discussed why CAB refused to grant a hearing and outlined possible steps for an acceptable petition at a meeting involving elected and chamber of commerce officials of Midland and Odessa.

Although the meeting was put together largely through the efforts of Rep. George Mahon, Barclay said at the outset that political pressure has not been a factor, nor would it be. when a decision is made on a change in air routes.

'The board operates under very strict procedures," Barclay said, "Nobody can pick up a phone and talk about the case with a board mem-

The Lubbock Democrat had made it clear in announcing the meeting that no change in CAB's decision was expected to be announced.

In tracing why CAB has not held a hearing, Barclay said there is a docket of some 500 route matters for a relatively small staff to handle. Hearings get top priority where there is a "serious route deficiency" and such was not true for traffic to the East from Midland, according to Barclay. The inconvenience of a stopover to another plane at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport is not enough, he ad-

In addition, CAB doesn't feel there is enough passenger traffic to the East when going directly from Midland

"Traffic in the Northeast that you are trying to get to is thin," said Barclay

The CAB official also said Braniff's proposal for air service to the East out of Midland had not coincided with what Midland and Odessa were proposing

Braniff joined with the two cities in the petition effort and offered two flights to the East from Midland. Despite Braniff's interest, Barclay

Above freezing temperatures and misting rain were found this morning in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton and Rankin. Skies were foggy throughout the area this morning, but rain had stopped in Crane and Big Lake.

Temperatures were relatively mild in early morning with Dalhart's 22 degrees the only freezing mark reported. Readings at most other points ranged from the middle 30s into the 50s, staying as warm as 64 in Corpus Christi on the coast.

Printed bills brew trouble

She direly wanted that dollar bill imprinted on the annual report. (Can't you just hear all those Midlanders giving Miss Dishman a resounding "Good Job!")

Her letter got a response - five pages' worth. After deciphering the goobledygook, Miss Dishman determined, or thought she did, that she and printer were in the clear. Permission to print was granted.

"Well, we think that's what it said." she said. "You never could (exactly) understand the letter.'

That incident took place about five years ago. And the PR gal decided to take advantage of the hassle. Anyway, she and, presumably, Midlanders liked the graphic effect of that greenback in the annual report. It's there to this day.

French protest comment by U.S. about terrorist government protested today against official U.S. criticism of its release of Palestinian leader Abu Daoud.

The Foreign Ministry called in U.S. Charge d'Affaires Samuel Gammon to tell him that the criticism, expressed on Tuesday by State Department spokesman John Trattner, "constituted an inadmissible comment on the acts of French courts.'

Trattner said the U.S. government was dismayed that the French had rushed the Palestinian terrorist out of the country before requests for his extradition to West Germany and Israel could reach Paris.

"Terrorists should be dealt with sternly and firmly by legal authorities of all countries," Trattner said. On Wednesday, State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said the department did not expect the criticism to have an adverse effect on U.S. relations with France.

The French government underlined its anger over Trattner's statement by announcing its protest before Gammon returned to his office.

The French statement made no reference to President-elect Jimmy Carter, who said he was deeply disturbed and very much surprised at the release of Abu Daoud. Carter was planning to telephone French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing today as one of a series of calls he is making to the heads of America's chief allies, but he said he would not bring up the Daoud affair.

Israeli officials said relations between the French and Israeli governments had reached the crisis point because of the release of the man accused of commanding the terrorist attack on the Israeli team at

That is the conclusion of a new government study which notes that income tends to rise to keep up with inflation. But the bad news is that taxpayers are moved to constantly higher tax brackets while, at the same time, the inflation erodes the real value of tax exemptions, credits and standard deductions. The study said this problem may continue to plague American taxpayers through 1981 if there is no change in tax law and if inflation grows at an annual rate of 5 to 6 per cent between 1977-81 as forecast by the Congressional Budget Office and the executive

The report by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations recommends changes in federal and state tax laws to soften this impact. One solution set forth is to tie the amounts allowed for personal exemptions, the standard deduction and some credits directly to each year's rise in the Consumer Price Index, theinflation indicator. As inflation rose, so would those tax return items that lower a person's taxes. Similar proposals have been made by a number of congressmen and senators. Several countries, including France, the Netherlands and, since 1974, Canada, already are using this type of a tax system. The commission said that such a revision of U.S. law, known as indexing, would work to wipe out any unintended tax increase caused by heavier than normal in-

Santa Fe Opera fund drive gets under way

SANTA FE, N.M. - The Santa Fe Opera, looking ahead to its 21st season which begins next July 6 and continues through Aug. 27, is also casting a realistic eye on the financial requirements for the 36-performance season. Accordingly, it is sounding an appeal for public support through financial contributions.

According to Arnold A. Rivin, chairman of the SFO's fund drive steering committee, attendance at the Santa Fe Opera during the 1976 season reached an all-time high of 53,000 - representing more than 90 per cent of theater capacity for each performance. "But the cold, hard facts in the performing arts world mean that public support is necessary in addition to ticket sales and other earned revenues, which covered only slightly more than half of the 1976 season expenditures," Rivin said. pointing out that the remainder of the income to meet expenditures has to be raised through individual and business contributions and through grants from foundations and federal and state agencies.

Rivin also stated that "We who live in New Mexico and the Southwest know this is a good place to live. The Santa Fe Opera contributes greatly to the cultural climate of this whole region, a condition that makes for a quality of life that money alone could never buy. Yet it takes money to keep it that way and since earned income pays only about half its costs, the Santa Fe Opera must raise the remainder through contributions.'

Rivin is inviting Texans, who flock to the Santa Fe Opera in greater numbers each year, to join their neighbors in New Mexico in sending tax-deductible donations to the Santa Fe Opera. The mail address is P. O. Box 2408, Santa Fe, N.M. 87501.

The Mansion will open daily at 6 p.m. (at 12 noon each Sunday) with a gourmet buffet to be served between 6:30 and 8 p.m. Performances will begin at 8:30 p.m. The theater will be closed Mondays.

Dana Andrews, whose screen and stage career spans the 1940s to the '70s, will be remembered for his roles in such outstanding filns as "Laura," "The Best Years of Our Lives" and 'The Oxbow Incident.' The son of a Mississippi minister, Andrews moved to Texas with his family as a young man. The family settled in Huntsville and Andrews attended Sam Houston State College.

In "Marriage Go-Round," Andrews portrays a happily-married college professor, Paul Delville, who temporarily falls prey to the wiles of a gorgeous young Swedish houseguest. Andrews' real-life wife, Mary Todd, portrays Delville's wife, Content, who copes with the Scandinavian bombshell with wit and humor. Busy, busy session

The 65th Legislature of the State of Texas now is in session, with the possiblility that more than 4,000 bills and resolutions will be introduced during the 140-day

The first order of business in the House of Representatives was the re-election of Bill Clayton of Springlake as Speaker. This was a wise move on the part of the House members. Mr. Clayton is due congratulations on his reelection and commendation on his willingness to continue his untiring and unselfish service to the State of Texas as Speaker of the House.

The session opened with a surplus of funds totaling almost $3 billion which, of course, is a most favorable condition in which most states would like to find themselves.

But it does present problems in that there will be wide differences of opinion as to how the funds should be appropriated and spent. Hopefully, some of the surplus will be put aside for a rainy day, so to speak.

There are, however, numerous other problems, some of them really pressing, facing the legislators. Some of the issues involved undoubtedly will bring widespread disagreement among the lawmakers. But this is to be expected.

One of the major problems will be in the field of public education. with the legislators confronted with another revision of the finance formula. It appears that the state will be called upon to assume a greater share of the

It also is essential that additional funds be appropriated for the Department of Highways and Public Transportation if the state's system of highways is to be maintained.

A possible revision of the state's property tax statutes also will provide considerable controversy during the session.

Legislation concerning various phases of insurance - topped by malpractice and compulsory automobile - also must be placed near the top of the legislative list.

Add 4,000 other legislative proposals to the major ones cited ... and the Texas legislators have their work cut out for them.

Good luck to them!

ART BUCHWALD Financial disclosure could be disastrous.

WASHINGTON - It is not generally known but President-elect Jimmy Carter is having a hard time recruiting business people for his Administration. One of the reasons is his insistence that all his appointees must make full disclosure of their financial worth and itemize their holdings in stocks, bonds, bank accounts and real estate. On the surface this sounds like a good idea as it keeps the Carter appointees clean - but on the other hand, you can take Melnick's argument that full disclosure could destroy him forever.

Melnick told me he had been offered a high post in one of the federal departments. He would have taken it if he hadn't had to reveal his net

"I don't care if Carter knows what I own," Melnick said. "But I'll be damned if I want my brother-in-law to know it. If he ever finds out what I'm worth, he'll haunt me for the rest of

"I never thought of that," I admitted. "It's one thing for the public to know what a man in government is personally worth - but it's another for his relatives to find out. "I have a fraternity brother who came to see me last week and wanted to borrow $20,000 to open a Pizza Hut in New Jersey. I told him I didn't have any money. Once my financial report is published in the newspapers, he'll come back and ask for $50,000.

"It's hard to say you're broke when your true net is reported in the newspapers," I agreed

"It isn't just my relatives and my friends," Melnick said. "I have to

It seems that Broger sometimes became so absorbed in evengelical activities that he neglected the administration of his empire. He concerned himself principally with the content of the broadcasts and articles that were disseminated by his worldwide communications network.

Greener told us he was amazed by the plethora of allegations against Broger, including charges of mismanagement, malfeasance, corruption and conflict of interest. Greener responded by ordering an immediate financial audit of Broger's operations

As the charges multiplied, Greener called in the Defense Dept.'s general counsel and the Air Force's special investigators. A summary of their findings was forwarded to the Justice Dept., which found no evidence of criminal culpability. We have learned however, that some of the most damaging facts were strangely omitted from the report.

We have obtained a copy, meanwhile, of the Defense Dept.'s confidential investigative report. Here are the highlights:

Within AFRTS, investigators found widespread mismanagement. The report alleged that "AFRTS-Washington had not established a formal property account, and property records were fragmented and incomplete.

Equipment on hand, costing about $516,000, was not identified in the records. Various government items were located at the homes of AFRTS employees

AFRTS-Los Angeles had on hand 59,405 reels of audio tapes worth approximately $68,000. This was enough tapes to last five years.

The system benefits the consumers of the politically powerful nonproducing states, and New Mexico is only one of four major producing states.

stays in the state.

The problem in New Mexico is that Gas Co. contracts are tied to the highest interstate price, which explains the growing inequity.

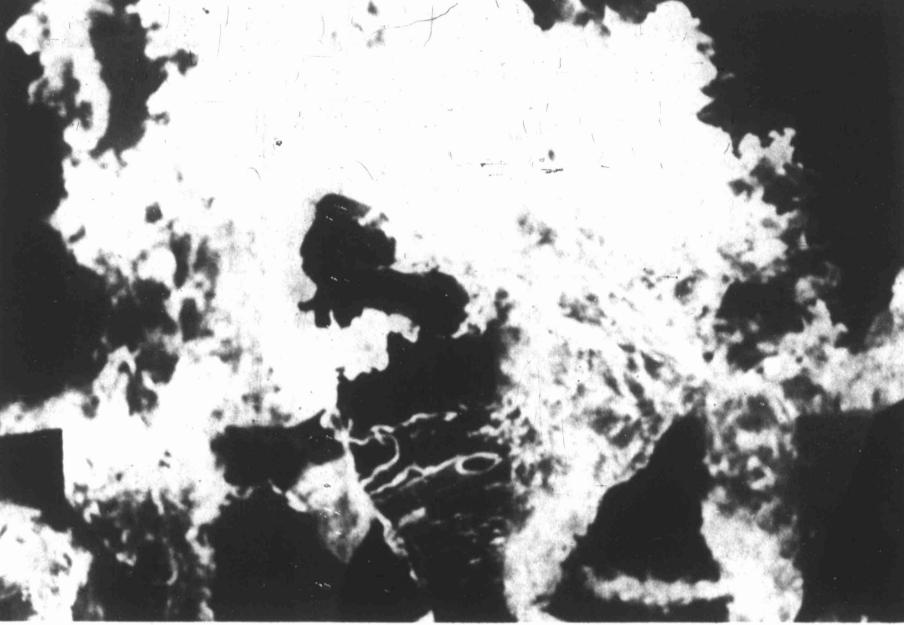

State Energy Administrator John O'Leary argues the state better protect against the possibility of FPC deregulation of new gas. The interstate pipelines could afford to buy new gas at $5 per thousand cubic feet because the price could be rolled in to the artificially low prices for the 85 per cent of their volume which is old gas, he said.

But in such an event, Gas Co. would have to pay the free market price for new gas to all its suppliers. O'Leary said if this came about a New Mexico residence paying $300 a year for gas would be hit with bills of $1,000 a year. Vice President Jack Hertz of Gas

Co. rejects this argument He says nobody would pay $5 for gas. He says unregulated gas being offered in Texas at $2 doesn't have any buyers. O'Leary's proposed answer to the gas pricing problem is state regulation of intrastate wellhead prices. He proposes a system of price controls that would be triggered only when average intrastate prices exceed average interstate prices by 20 per cent, as they do now.

Apodaca has advocated the idea. although with enough qualifications that he could change his mind later. Atty. Gen. Toney Anaya also has taken a public stand for price con-

Sweepstakes offers saturate consumer

By The Associated Press

'Twas the month after Christmas and all through the nation, many bills were piling up, as was aggravation. So through the mails were sent many sweepstake giveaways, to people in need of cash soon after the holidays.

It's no accident that for the past several days, millions of Americans have received invitations to win as much as $125,000 for merely licking an envelope, mailing it in - and reading an advertising message.

At least four major companies chose the month after Christmas to make their pitches and sent out more than 80 million pieces of mail

"Through these mailings over the years, the best mailing period by far, as far as response is concerned, is right after Christmas," said Maren DeGraff, direct mail manager for Downes Publishing Co., which publishes Ladies Home Journal and American Home magazines.

"My personal opinion is that people have blown so much money, they say, 'Well, it's only a few more dollars (for a subscription).' Also, after Christmas, people need money.'

"We've also found the response to any type of mailing is always better in January," said Jim Lyles, a spokesman for the Exxon Travel Club in Houston. "I know I've received four

sweepstakes mailings in the past few days myself.

Reader's Digest is offering a $450,000 giveaway, backed by a national advertising campaign that one source estimated cost as much as the prizes. More than 84,000 people will share the $450,000. Prizes range from a top of $50,000 to $5 each to 21,000 respondents.

Publishers Clearing House, a Port Washington, N.Y., firm that sells cutrate subscriptions to magazines, is offering $125,000 cash in a $400,000 giveaway that will include 60,000

Club's $100,000 sweepstakes is a vacation home, car and other prizes, or $50,000 in cash. About 1,160 people will share the prizes.

The Ladies' Home Journal and American Home are dividing $200,000 among 3,700 winners. Top prize is a new home or $77,000.

The giveaways work in basically the same way. A computer selects winning numbers before the numbered applications are even in the mail. The recipient returns a form, and the firm hopes it includes an order for the magazine or product. When the contest ends, entrants who

If a winning number is thrown away - and thousands are - rather than the prize money being returned to the company, it is given away through a drawing of previously losing entries. The companies say all prizes are awarded and all entrants stand an equal chance to win, whether or not they ordered the product.

Officials of the Federal Trade Commission support those claims.

'We haven't had a wealth of complaints on this type of thing," said Noble Jones, a Cleveland-based attorney for the FTC. "It's my feeling that there are very few abuses in

Committee looking into food additives' safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee is looking into whether the government is insuring the safety of chemical food additives before they are served to consumers.

Saccharine is an artificial sweetener allowed by the FDA, although studies since 1970 have raised questions about whether it could cause cancer. A study last year by the General Accounting Office of Congress questioned the wisdom of leaving saccharine in circulation while its safety is still being tested.

Red Dye No. 2 was banned last year, 15 years after its safety was first qustioned. The FDA had repeatedly postponed its decision on the food coloring at the behest of the food industry to allow more tests.

Aspartame is another artificial sweetener. The FDA has approved it for use, though later the agency revoked its approval after discovering discrepancies in test data submitted by the manufacturer indicating the substance might not be safe for human consumption.

Nelson said in a statement released before the hearings, "Many chemicals long used in the food supply are being shown to be harmful under new scientific scrutiny.

"Spider called my name three times, and he sort of slid down, and I told him I would call the hospital, not to move." Miss Longet testified, biting her lips to hold back tears.

Both defense and prosecution said they expected the reckless manslaughter charge against the 35-yearold entertainer to go to the jury today or Friday. If convicted, she faces a maximum 10 years in jail and $30,000

Defense attorney Charles V Weedman asked his client about her affair with Sabich, who would have been 32 this week. He had captured the world ski title in 1971 and 1972, but his career plummeted after repeated injuries the next season.

"Spider and I loved each other very much," Miss Longet said. "I think we were the very best of friends.

Williams, his bright blue eyes redrimmed from crying, began staring at the courtroom's rust carpet. He and Miss Longet were divorced two years ago but still are friends.

He steadfastly defended her character when testifying earlier for the prosecution, then the defense

They also entered a cottage that served as Norman's business office and seized furnishings, books and records. In neither case did the agents first obtain a search warrant.

The leasing company brought suit against the government, seeking return of the autos and suppression of the documents as evidence. The company argued that entry of the office and seizure of property should not have taken place until the agents had obtained a warrant from a judicial magistrate - someone who could pass objectively on the agents' re-

A federal district court found in favor of the company, but the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit reversed the decision, finding in favor of the government.

When the case reached the Supreme Court, the leasing company maintained that seizure of the autos. documents and office furnishings was illegal under the Fourt Amendment.

The government contended that the seizures did not require warrants because they were undertaken to collect debts - not for investigation that might lead to charges.

Blackmun, writing for the unanimous court, held first that the IRS' warrantless automobile seizures - occurring in streets, parking lots and other open areas - involved no invasion of privacy and were not unconstitutional. But the agents' office intrusion — in the absence of "exigent circumstances" that would permit a warrantless search - deprived the company of its constitutional rights, Blackmun said.

"It is one thing to seize without warrant property resting in an open he wrote, "and it is quite another thing to effect a warrantless seizure of property, even that owned by a corporation, situated on private premises to which access is not otherwise available for the seizing officer."

In the union officeholder case (Local 3489, Steelworkers vs. Usery, 75-657), the court dealt with a federal law passed in 1959 as a result of Senate investigations into labor racketeering.

The law, aimed at reducing leadership entrenchment and abuses in union politics, allows unions to require only "reasonable" qualifications for office.

In an opinion by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., the court, ruling 6 to 3. noted that because of the meeting attendance requirement, 97 per cent of the membership of the local involved in the case had been ineligible for office - and of the 23 members eligible, nine had been incumbents.

The union and the AFL-CIO had defended the meeting attendance requirement - widespread in various forms among U.S. unions - as encouraging attendance and insuring qualified candidates.

Woman throws out husband for advances toward daughter molested his daughter has given me the courage to

Quite a few years ago, when my daughter was 12, I learned that her father had been bothering her. (She finally got scared and told me.) It happened over several months. It was only serious foreplay, but I felt it would lead to the final act sooner or later.

I confronted her father, and he admitted it. I told him he was sick, and he had to either see a doctor or leave. He refused to see a doctor, so needless to say, he is not with us any longer.

I should have realized something was wrong sooner because my daughter never wanted to be left alone with him. She begged to go with me, everywhere I went.

My daughter feels that I did the right thing in giving her father an ultimatum. However, my doctor told me I handled it badly. He said that sort of thing is quite common and had I let it go, it probably would not have gone any further. He said most mothers just put a lock on the girl's door.

I would like your comments on this.—NO NAME,

DEAR NO: I think you handled it exactly right. I disagree with your doctor. Your husband is SICK And for you to have "let it go," or simply put a lock on your daughter's door, instead of insisting that your husband either get help or get out, would have DEAR ABBY: Reading about the father who made you as guilty as he, had his molesting continued

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just returned from Las Vegas, where we married off our 17-yearold daughter to her boyfriend of two years. (No, she's not pregnant.)

Our daughter had been the ward of the court for two years because she had repeatedly run away from home. She had been placed in I don't know how many places, but she managed to escape from all of them.

The court released her to marry because they ran out of places to put her.

My question: Should I give her a reception, send out marriage announcements or just forget it?--MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: Disregard her hectic record and treat her as you would a loving daughter who had just married. But consult her first.

Court says

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that ambiguous language of a dead pilot's flight insurance was sufficient to extend death benefits to the surviving family members of two passengers who perished when the plane crashed after leaving Midland under poor weather con-

The 6-to-2 opinion by the Supreme Court went in favor of the widows and children of Burlon C. Glover and Ray Eugene Rives, who were passengers in the flight that crashed north of Eagle Pass on Dec. 9, 1972, while en route to Del Rio.

The ruling upholds the trial court in Odessa, and overturns an appeals court ruling in favor of National Insurance Underwriters.

The newest associate justice, Don Yarbrough, did not participate in the ruling because he was not a member of the court when arguments were heard.

Pilot of the plane was William O. Rogers

Norma Dean Glover filed suit against the estate of the pilot and Bill Rogers Trucking Co. for the "wrongful death" of her husband and Rives.

The insurance firm had refused to extend death benefits under Rogers' policy, saying he was not qualified to fly under conditions which required instruments and not visible ground navigation.

"We have concluded that the pilot clause (of the insurance policy) here in issue is ambiguous." Chief Justice Joe R. Greenhill wrote for the majority Citing dnother established case law. Greenhill said when language of an insurance contract is ambigious, then the construction which affords the coverage to the policyholder in this case for Rogers' libability, will be the one adopted.

Dissenting Justices Sam Johnson and Jack Pope argued in a separate opinion that the insurance firm was correct in denying its benefits because of poor weather at the time Rogers left. Midland.

They argued "the flight" must be looked at as a whole, rather than in segments, in determining whether instruments were needed or whether the flight could proceed with the pilot navigating by viewing the ground below. Undisputed in the case was a report surrounding the cause of the crash, compiled by the National Transportation Safety

In its case, National Insurance Underwriters had contended that Rogers had operated the plane under conditions which required an instrument pilot rating. failed to communicate with the various ground communications stations in the Del Rio-Eagle Pass area to ascertain weather conditions, flew the plane at an altitude, which was "dangerously low," failed to return to Midland or alternate airports when instrument-flying conditions existed, and flew into an area fully knowledgeable of existing imclement weather conditions.

WHAT OPEN DATING DOES FOR YOU!

This aid provides you with a guide to product freshness. An example is milk! Look at the date imprinted in the top of the carton. This specifies the last date this item can be sold and still allow you reasonable time to store and use the product at home. You'll find this same kind of dating on many other products. Cottage cheese has the date stamped on the bottom. Egg cartons have the dates imprinted on the end. The places for the date may vary but their purpose does not.

Store clerks know these products are not to be sold beyond the stamped date. The quality and freshness of the food also depends on the efficiency of storage and handling it receives in-store.

While this care and Open Dating is your assurance of freshness and quality, your handling of the product is also important. Never buy milk, eggs, butter, sandwich meat or other fresh products and then let them remain in your car for a couple of hours while you do other shopping. Their freshness will deteriorate out of refrigeration. Arrange your shopping so that you buy perishables on the last stop before going home. Refrigerate perishables as soon as you get home. Then, Open Dating will truly pay big dividends in freshness and top

Party snacks as tasty minus fat

Copley News Service

You can stay within the bounds of a fat-controlled diet and still serve tasty snacks at a party.

Use vegetable sticks of carrots, celery, green peppers, squash and cucumbers to scoop up the dips. Cauliflower pieces, radish roses, cocktail onions, pickles and mushrooms are fine. Cocktail rye bread, Rye Krisp, toasted tortillas, plain soda crackers, matzo crackers or melba toast make good fatcontrolled dippers. The new polyunsaturated potato chips and corn chips are OK, too.

cocktail food is too high in saturated fat, but these heart-saving suggestions and recipes are low in both saturated fat and cholesterol BASIC CHEESE SAUCE

Use this basic recipe with variations as a dip, a spread, a salad dressing or a delicious replacement for sour cream.

2 cups cottage cheese 2 tbsps. lemon juice

One-fourth cup skim milk or buttermilk

Place all ingredients in a blender jar. Blend until creamy, adjusting the milk measure to produce desired consistency. Yield: two cups.

Variations: DILL: To one cup of basic cheese sauce, add one tablespoon chopped fresh dill and one tablespoon minced onion. Chill

GARLIC: To one cup of basic cheese sauce, add wo tablespoons mayonnaise, one or two tablespoons chopped onion, a dash of garlic powder and two sprigs of fresh parsley. Mix in blender at high speed until smooth. Chill

ANCHOVIES: To one cup of basic cheese sauce, add four anchovy fillets, one teaspoon paprika and one-half teaspoon dry mustard. Mix in a blender until smooth. Serve chilled.

Here's an idea for an inexpensive but noteworthy maindish you can put on the table in 30 minutes. Individual Meatloves, created in the test kitchens in Rochester, New York, gives a fresh look to an old favorite and has a sprightly orange sauce that makes it really different. Don't worry about the sauce ... it's easily put together with orange marmalade and an envelope of onion gravy mix.

Dehydrated onion first reached the spice shelf in 1935 and since that time more than half a dozen forms of this aromatic and tear-free seasoning have been developed. Depending on use and brand, you can buy instant minced onion; chopped or sliced onion; onion flakes; salad onion; minced green onion; onion powder and onion

When you are correcting the seasoning of a dish otherwise ready to be served, use onion powder, for it releases its flavor immediately. If the dish needs a little salt as well, use onion salt.

Instant minced or chopped onion or onion flakes can be added right from the container to any mixture which is moist enough to let them rehydrate.

Guinea pigs may benefit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Guinea pigs traditionally have been used for testing new medical techniques. Now a device used first on humans may wind up helping guinea pigs.

Dr. Charles Reid, a veterinarian and associate professor of radiology at the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary clinic, recently found that the xeroradiography process, which has been used for a number of years to aid in the early detection of breast cancer in women, also does an excellent job of spotting hairline fractures in animals.

Senate unit proposes consumer legislation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A Senate subcommittee recommended Wednesday that the legislature consider forcing grocery stores to mark prepackaged items so the customer will know the price of each item and exactly how much he's getting for that price:

The subcommittee on consumer affairs said in a report to the Senate that Texas shoppers will be confronted with as many as 20,000 prepackaged items within the next decade.

The legislature should continue to monitor prices, the subcommittee recommended, and should "consider the imposition of mandatory unit and item prices should the industry fail to make a sincere effort at voluntary compliance.'

"Unit pricing legislation would require that both the total price and the price per standard unit be provided to the shopper," the subcommittee said. Standards, for example, would be price per ounce, pound or square foot. Items not appropriate for unit pricing, such as kitchen utensils, would be exempted. "Item pricing is the practice of putting the price on each individual box, can or package," the subcommittee noted.

The subcommittee also recommended that

-Written estimates be required on all auto repairs of $25 or more. Final charges could not exceed the original estimate by more than $15 or 10 per cent-whichever was greaterwithout the auto owner's consent. The subcommittee noted that auto repair is the "number one source of consumer complaints in the United States.

-That manufacturers of mobile homes should be prohibited from selling to dealers who are not bonded.

-The 1975 public utility act should be amended to "clearly provide" that customers of a municipally owned utility company living within the city limits may appeal to the utility commission. It also should be made clear, the subcommittee said, that the commission is not responsible for regulating. "bottled water"-a question that arose because of the way water utility was defined in the

Television price war aims at imports from Japan

The Washington Post

on one

er. The WASHINGTON - The television price war, which has been heating up over the past year, is expected to become "ferocious" in the first quarter of 1977, according to industry sources. While consumers stand to benefit from all-time low prices for portables domestic manufacturers stand to lose more jobs to Japanese competition.

Two warning salvos were fired last week by RCA and Zenith. RCA announced it would reduce factory prices on eight color sets during a five-week promotional campaign. The models include 15, 19 and 21-inch portables in their standard XL-100

consoles in their higher-priced ColorTrak line.

This works out to a 4 to 7 per cent cut, or $20 to $40 per set off suggested retail prices. Reductions on already discounted prices will be smaller.

Zenith declined to give details of its marketing program or comment on what it will mean to the consumer. Distributors were notified Dec. 28 of the start of a merchandising program, involving "promotional color products and sales allowances (that) will keep Zenith competitive with recent color TV pricing moves." During the 1974 recession, the lowest-priced 19-inch TV - the most $250. But it contained tubes.

Today's cheapest 19-inch set is solid state. This advance, taking into account inflation, puts the 19-inch at a record low price. At the other end of the scale is the 19-inch Sony at nearly twice the price.

Price cutting is normal during the slow six months after Christmas and before the introduction of new models. However, what escalates this into a war is the very slow market, which lacks new major technological innovations like the Sony Betamax video recorder to spark sales, as well as high inventories.

Approximately 8 million color and 5 exports to this country for the first 11 months of 1976 totaled almost 4 million sets (an increase of 135 per cent over the previous 11 months), but numbers of these remain unsold in dealers' inventories. Japanese manufacturers continue to ship in anticipation of possible quotas and-or tariffs later this year.

Last September an organization of labor unions and domestic manufacturers, the Committee to Preserve American Color Television (COMPACT), petitioned the International Trade Commission to rule that imports have caused serious injury to the U.S. industry. Another in the United States, has been suspended pending resolution of the COMPACT action.

Corning Glass Works has been quoted as estimating 8,000 American jobs are lost for each million color TVs imported from Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and, starting last November, Singapore.

By law the ITC must act by March 22, after which President Carter will have 60 days in which to decide on a remedy, if any. International political considerations, added to what industry sources see as the only 'moderately beneficial' help quotas could offer, make presidential action recently predicted it would recom-mend restrictions solely on finished big screen (25-inch) imports and not on imports of small-screen color and monochrome sets, chassis and kits.

The newsletter reasoned that slapping quotas or tariffs on these would create difficulties for U.S. manufacturers whose black-andwhite components and sets come from abroad. As a result, more foreign companies are likely to set up assembly operations in this country.

Sony, for example, is expected to buy a former Westinghous tube plant to produce Trinitron sets. The net effect, therefore, would be little change in the market situation, ac-

WICKENBURG, Ariz. - Phil Reinhardt and Larry Johnson are sitting on top of a veritable gold mine +

Udall warns Carter to go slowly on reorganizing energy agencies

WASHINGTON — Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.), who will head the House Interior Committee in the new Congress, Wednesday urged President-elect Jimmy Carter to "go slowly" on his announced intention of reorganizing the scattered federal agencies dealing with energy

Udall, whose committee would be involved in any major restructuring of federal energy agencies, said some could be merged quickly. But he expressed "grave misgivings" about any efforts to change the Interior Department's present authority over coal, oil, shale, natural gas, and other energy resources on public lands.

Managing public lands requires a balancing of "diverse, often com-peting interests" and Carter will "provoke resistance" if he tries to subordinate all these interests to the

Lea draws oil strike

Cleary Petroleum Corp. of Midland has recompleted as a Pennsylvanian oil discovery its No. 1 Pubco-Federal. former Morrow gas discovery in the Salt Lake, South field of Lea County,

It gauged a 24-hour flowing potential of 30 barrels of oil, through a 10-64-inch choke and perforations at 12,850-12,891 feet. Oil gravity is 49

Drilled to 14,400 feet, it has 5-inch casing set on bottom, and is plugged back to 12,998 feet.

Completion from the Morrow was effected im July, 1973, for 4.2 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 13,968-14,026 feet, natural. Location is 3,300 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 2-21s-32e, 21 miles west of Oil Center.

It finaled for a daily pumping potential of 28 barrels of 38gravity oil and 15 barrels of water. through perforations at 9,000-9,414 feet, after fracturing with 30,000 gallons. Drilled to 12,850 feet as a wildcat to reopen the C-Ranch (Wolfcamp and Devonian) field, it is plugged back to 10,344 feet, where 41/2inch casing is set. Location is eight feet from south and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 30, block 40, T-3-N. G&MMB&A survey.

Union President A. F. Grospiron emerged from a meeting with members of the union's policy argaining committee to announce the dispute with Gulf, which broke out over the weekend, was over. Archuleta said the agreement represented a compromise between the company and the union and would provide expanded eligibility as well as increased benefits while granting a company request that leave and strike time not count toward pension

Hours before a possible strike deadline last Friday midnight, the union accepted a contract offer from Gulf as a pattern settlement for some 400 other contracts. But the dispute over pension caused Grospiron to raise again the possibility of a strike.

"We'll go back to the bargaining tables now." Archuleta said. "We now have a complete and full understanding. This the Gulf contract again is our pattern settlement.

FPC may give okay to emergency sales

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Power Commission is deciding whether to allow emergency natural gas sales to two pipelines that are short of gas and that have cut back service to customers in a number of states.

The action by the commission is being watched closely because the way could be cleared for gas-starved pipelines to buy fuel from sources not subject to federal price regulations.

Such fuel would cost more but it would allow the pipelines to get through the winter, which has brought record-low temperatures to much of the United States.

In the case being heard today by the FPC, the Houston Pipeline Co., of Houston, Tex., wants to sell the gas. Houston Pipeline is a firm that does not transport natural gas across state borders and so is not subject to federally regulated gas prices.

Buying the gas are two hardpressed interstate pipelines ordinarily subject to FPC regulation and price ceilings: Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. and United Gas Pipe Line Co.

Those two pipelines have suffered increasing shortages of gas supplies since 1970, forcing them to curtail deliveries to their customers in a number of states.

The latest FPC report, covering July through September, showed the Transcontinental company was short some 115.3 billion cubic feet of gas. Its shortages hit most heavily in North Carolina, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Through November and December, the two pipelines had been able to buy gas, at prices unregulated by the federal government, from Houston Pipeline under PFC rules allowing such emergency purchases for 60

Houston Pipeline has asked the FPC to allow continuation of such sales - up to 85 million cubic feet a day to Transcontinental and up to 150 million per day to United - for another 60 days starting Jan. 6.

But it is not clear how much authority the FPC has to permit that. When the commission tried in 1975 to authorize such emergency sales for as long as 180 days, the attempt was overturned by the federal courts which considered it an indirect way of abandoning the price regulations required by law

On Jan. 5, just one day before the new Houston Gas deliveries were to begin, the FPC authorized the new

Union says firm's tankers undermanned

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Standard Oil Co. of California is operating three dangerously undermanned oil tankers in West Coast waters, two maritime union officials charged Wednesday.

Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union, told a Senate Commerce committee hearing that the Coast Guard acted improperly in permitting tankers to operate with a single officer in the engine room, rather than a conventional crew of three to five people.

His statement was echoed by Morris Weisberger, president of the Sailors Union of the Pacific.

However, Adm. Owen Siler, com mandant of the Coast Guard, told a reporter that automation and advanced technology make the new vessels safe to operate with fewer personnel. Highly sophisticated U.S. Navy vessels are operated with empty engine rooms, their instruments monitored from another location, he said. The Standard Oil of California vessels are "more reliable and safer than anything afloat today," Gordon Colberg, engineering manager for Chevron Shipping, said in a telephone interview from San Francisco. Chevron shipping is a Standard Oil subsidiary Testifying at the committee hearing on tanker safety, Hall said the Standard tankers are "running with sealed engine rooms.

"I wouldn't want to be a sailor on a ship with a sealed engine room," Hall said. "There's just one person in there; if he makes a mistake, you're

Traditionally, tanker engine rooms have an engineer on watch and two to four crewmen, Hall said in an interview outside the crowded hearing room. The crewmen check machinery, equipment and "make rounds like a cop on the beat with mechanical ability," he said.

The three Standard tankers have just the engineer on duty now and will eventually be allowed to operate with an empty engine room. That is why the union calls them "sealed" engine

"We protested, we talked with the Coast Guard, but it didn't do any good," said Weisberger of the Sailors Union, West Coast affiliate of the Seafarers. "They approved the ships anyway. The Coast Guard will do anything the oil companies want them

Don't let opponent draw third trump

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD In some hands the best plan is to draw two rounds of trumps and then go about your other business. You can't afford to do this if an opponent can gain the lead and draw a third

Then he cashes the top diamonds and discards his losing club on the third round of diamonds. CLUB RETURN East returns a club, and South ruffs and gives up a heart. South ruffs the despite the singleton.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Danger lurks in cocaine use

by Neil Solomon, M.D. Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine told me the new "in" thing is to take cocaine, and that it really isn't so dangerous. How do you see it?-Jeff Dear Jeff: One of the most dangerous things in life is to listen to someone who tells you a drug like cocaine "really isn't dangerous" Derived from the coca leaf, cocaine is a powerful stimulant of the central nervous system. It is usually sniffed or injected and either way, it can have very serious consequences. The immediate effect is a feeling of euphoria, of exhilaration, of great power. But this lasts only a short time; it may be as little as 10 or 15 minutes, and depression often follows. So the temptation is to have another sniff or shot, then another, then another. Heavy use is likely to bring on a number of unpleasant or alarming symptoms-muscular twitching, a crawling feeling on the skin, hypertension, rapid heartbeat, anxiety, sleeplessness, even delusions and

The drug is not physically addictive, by which I mean you don't have physical withdrawal symptoms when you stop using it. But it is psychologically addictive. Its only medical use is as a local anesthetic.

The smartest thing for you to do is to stay clear of such "friends." Dear Dr. Solomon: I have recently gone through a bad bout of joint pain. particularly in my big toe and fingers. My doctor said I have pseudo gout, which afflicts people in their 80s and 90s. (I am 84.) Although I'm doing well now following my doctor's treatment, I wondered if you could shed any additional light on this condition.-Max B. Dear Max: In a recent study of seven cases of calcium pyrophosphate crystal-induced arthritis, all of the patients were in the ninth or tenth decade of life. The majority of cases were misdiagnosed as acute septic arthritis, until joint fluid analysis, using polarized light microscopy revealed the "pseudo gout" in six of the seven patients. I'm glad your doctor has you on proper treatment and that you're

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - Accompanied by a dog named Dumbo. Peter Robinson, a former motorcycle racer, has been touring the nation in a bus he resurrected from a dump in his home town of New York, collecting in an album the signatures of all governors and the mayors of capital cities.

So far he has logged some 12,000 miles and collected signatures of 29

governors and 29 mayors. Since his 40-foot-long vehicle averages only about 6 miles a gallon. Robinson picks up odd jobs whenever he can to finance the trip.

When he completes the tour, he intends to present the album to the Smithsonian Institution in

Dieting tips presented to change habits

The holiday feasting is past and looking good in bathing suits and bare summer clothes is ahead. So this is the time when about 70 million Americans decide they should go on a diet.

Most will lose some weight; unfortunately, nearly all will gain it back again. Keeping weight off appears to be more a matter of changing the dieter than

Here are some tips to modifying your eating habits so you won't have to suffer the yo-yo effect of the usual diets. One of the big pluses is that you don't have to give up desserts, usually the biggest sacrifice most dieters force themselves to make.

.Before you start a diet, keep a record of everything you eat for a few days. Write down how much you eat, the time and the place you eat it. The reasons for this food diary is to help you recognize and break a chain of weight-adding habits. For example, a television program is an instant food cue for many to eat and drink even if they have just finished a big meal. Using sweets as a reward or as an answer to problems instead of as part of a meal is another eating habit that can show up in a food record.

*Use a calorie chart to learn the calorie count of food you commonly eat. Then take time to plan wellbalanced, low calorie meals. Make desserts part of the meal, don't use them for comfort or as a reward.

.Weigh and measure food until you know what a serving size looks like. (It's usually smaller than one thinks.) Give yourself smaller than average servings-and no seconds.

*Serve your smaller portion of dessert on a small plate. It will look like more. Be leisurely about serving dessert. It takes a while for your stomach to tell your brain that you have had enough to eat.

*Don't waste calories on instant munchies. Save them for foods you really enjoy, especially ones that take time and energy to prepare.

 Develop a repertoire of lowered-calorie desserts. Emphasize ones that make a nutritional contribution One of the easiest ways to cut out dessert calories is to use artificial sweetener for part of the sugar. Since granulated sweeteners don't perform just like sugar in cooking, it's best to use special recipes. For a free collection, including many basic desserts, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to Recipes for Dieters, 1177 Pillsbury Building, 608 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis,

However, you don't need recipes to substitute liquid or granulated sweetener for sugar calories in beverages, on fruit and cereals, or in recipes where small amount of sugar is added for sweetening.

A recipe to try right away is this lowered-calorie

Carrot Cake. modest-sized piece, two inches square, adds 160 calories and is an excellent source of vitamin A, as well as providing some B vitamins, calcium, iron and protein. Non-dieters will be glad for more generous servings of this exceptionally

Casserole what cook wants it

Copley News Service
"You could have fooled me!" That's what your family and guests will say when you serve one-dish meals that taste like a million, but are extra-kind to your food budget and your heart.

A casserole can be whatever you want and can be baked at your convenience. There is no end to the personal touches that will make any one-dish recipe personal touches that will make any one-dish recipe your specialty.

A casserole gives good, balanced nutrition and just as important, is appetizing. Casseroles cook virtually unattended, with ingredient preparation often done ahead of time. Oven-easy, many casseroles can cook as well over a low heat as in the oven.

Ingredients can be cooked or uncooked, or a combination of both. Meat, fish, poultry or low-fat cheese are teamed with rice, pasta and vegetables in a savory sauce. Low-cholesterol variations of the classic white sauce can be used instead of canned, condensed cream soups which have become a basic ingredient for many casserole recipes.

For guest appeal, select casserole recipes that will appeal to those being served — think of ages, tastes and appetites. Complete your menu with a compatible salad, bread, dessert and coffee. Hold that second casserole in a slow oven. Add extra eye appeal with a few sprigs of parsley, a sprinkle of paprika, lemon wedges on seafood casseroles (dip points in paprika or snipped parsley), overlapped tomato slices or a small amount of grated Parmesan cheese as a topping.

Choose attractive casserole dishes in sizes that suit

Choose attractive casserole dishes in sizes that suit your recipes. Be sure they are ovenproof or the type that can go from freezer to hot oven. One of the advantages of casserole cooking is the one-dish feature — from oven to table. And, don't overlook using your electric skillet for casseroles.

For best results, always use a baking dish or easserole of the correct size and shape called for in

Whenever you prepare a casserole ahead of time, keep it refrigerated until time to bake. Allow additional time (30 to 40 minutes) for heating a chilled

These dishes are guaranteed to heat palate

By ARTHUR SCHWARTZ The Washington Post

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. — Many a soul is fired by hot food. Just look at the ancient tribes of Mexico, who, in their search for the ultimate aphrodisiac, took the power of the chili as seriously as modern cattle breeders take cantharidin, better known as Spanish

The interesting thing is that there may be a hot breath of truth in this reverence for the pepper. Vitamin A, in plentiful supply in pepper, is a prerequisite for both male and female sex hormone pro-

For what it's worth, then, here are three dishes guaranteed to at least set your palate aflame. The first, using dried red chilies in combination with plenty of garlic and ginger, is a chicken dish from the Hunan province of China.

Next is a Mexican-inspired recipe for rabbit that includes both hot green peppers and tomatillos, tiny green tomatoes whose fierce flavor belies their innocent look. The version given here has been adapted from a creation of Jose Wilson, a well-known wine and food expert. Finally, there's a lamb and bean dish from South Africa where the hotness of chilies is heightened by curry and the tang of lemon.

EXPLODE-IN-THE-MOUTH CHICKEN

1 3-pound chicken, cut into bite-size pieces

1 tablespoon dark soy sauce l egg white

1 1-2 cups vegetable oil
4 dried chili peppers, cut in half, seeds removed
1 1-2 teaspoons finely chopped garlic
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh ginger
2 tablespoons dark soy sauce

1 tablespoon white vinegar 1 teaspoon cornstarch

3 tablespoons water

1-2 teaspoon sugar

In a large bowl, mix the chicken pieces, soy sauce and egg white.

2. In a very large skillet or large work, heat the oil over high heat. Add chicken and fry, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. With a slotted spoon, remove chicken and set aside.

3. Pour off almost all the oil, leaving ju st enough to coat the skillet or wok. Add chili peppers and fry until they begin to turn black. 4. Add the garlic and ginger and stir-fry about 15

5. Mix the soy sauce, vinegar, cornstar ch, water, sugar and salt together. Return chicken to: skillet and immediately add the liquid mixture. Allow chicken to sizzle a few seconds with liquid mixture, stirring constantly. Serve immediately with rice. Makes three servings as the only main dish. AFRICAN-STYLE LAMB, BEANS

3 medium onions, sliced thin

3 tablespoons vegetable oil 2 pounds lamb shoulder, cubed

Salt and freshly ground black pepper

Juice of 2 lemons

1 teaspoon curry powder 2 fresh green chili peppers or 3 to 4 canned a treen

chilies, seeded and finely chopped 2 large cloves garlic, mashed

1-4 teaspoon sugar 2 one-pound cans black-eyed peas or small wi lite beans, drained

In a large casserole, saute onions in oil un til golden. Add lamb cubes, season with salt and pepp er and continue to cook until meat loses its raw color. 2. Add lemon juice, stir well, cover and cook in a preheated 350-degree oven for about 30 minutes.

3. Add the curry powder, chopped chili peppers, garlic and sugar Cover again and return to oven.

4. When meat is almost tender, about another 30 minutes, add beans, mix well, cover and return to oven. Dish is done when meat is beginning to fall off bones. Makes about six servings.

RABBIT OR CHICKEN IN SALSA VERDE 5 to 6 pounds frozen rabbit, thawed, dried and cut into serving pieces, or 2 chickens, cut into serving

3-4 cup olive oil 6 ribs celery, chopped

6 ribs celery, chopped
1 large onion, chopped
2 to 3 fresh green chilies (or 5 to 6 canned green chilies), seeded and chopped
40 whole cloves garlic, peeled
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
1-2 cup dry white wine
1 can Mexican green tomatoes, drained (available in speciality food stores)
1 cup plain vocatet

1 cup plain yogurt Fresh coriander or flat parsley, finely chopped

1. Dip the rabbit or chicken pieces in oil, coating all

2. In a large deep casserole with cover, make a bed of the celery, onion and chili pepper. Arrange the rabbit or chicken pieces on top, tucking all 40 garlic cloves in among them. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

3. Pour on the wine and bring to a simmer on top of the stove. Cover casserole, then place in a preheated 350-degree oven for one to one and a half hours or until meat is tender, but not falling off the bones. (Rabbit will probably take longer than chicken and dark meat chicken longer than breasts).

4. Add green tomatoes, cover again and heat

4. Add green tomatoes, cover again and heat through on top of stove. 5. Remove rabbit or chicken from casserole and

5. Remove rabbit or chicken from casserole and keep warm while preparing sauce.
6. Puree remaining contents of the caete (solids and juices) in a blender, food mill or food processor. Add yogurt and stir well until incorporated.
7. Heat through without boiling. Taste and correct salt and pepper, if necessary. Pour sauce over rabbit or chicken, garnish with chopped coriander or parsley and serve immediately with rice. Makes about six requires. about six servings.

Two board members of the Midland Community

Action Agency, Inc., resigned this week.
Winfree L. "Win" Brown and Fran Henderson presented their resignations Monday, charging the agency is not serving the purpose for which it was designed.

The agency, which is funded by the federal government, has been in turmoil several weeks. Last summer the executive director was fired. A search for an auditor to review the agency's books for fiscal year 1975 is now under way, but several certified public accountants have said the books cannot be

Brown, a representative of Midland County on the agency, asked the county, the City of Midland and the Midland Independent School District to withd raw support of sponsorship from the agency.

His letter also was sent to the executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs and to the regional chief of Community Services Administration.

In a two and one-half page letter to members of the agency's board of directors, Fran Henderson said she could see no good which has come from the agency, except for "salaries for a few people who definitely are not residents" of the areas which the agency is supposed to aid.

Among her complaints against the agency, she said at least three independent certified public accountants had found the agency's books 'unauditable.'

Further, she said that no action had been taken on numerous recommendations from the Department of Community Affairs and Community Services Administration that the agency streamline its bookkeeping and office procedures.

In addition, Mrs. Henderson charged that agency staff members acted on numerous financial and other matters without the authorization of the board of directors.

Because of these alleged abuses of federal funds, Mrs. Henderson said she will ask the City of Midland. the school board and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission to withdraw support of the City realtors hear authority

Marshall E. Surratt, vice president of The First National Bank and a recognized authority on city planning and community development, was the speaker Tuesday at the meeting of the Midland Board of Realtors

Surratt cited the "images" of various Texas cities, describing Midldnd's image as being "a white-collar. totally modern city on the plains where miracles are commonplace. A city of great sophistication for its size, its skyscrapers a surprising contrast to the surrounding flat lands.'

The speaker, author of the book "Land Values in Texas Cities," said that no city can exist of itself, but must serve a larger area - immediate surroundings, a number of counties or several states

He mentioned the important role of transportation in community development and discussed land values and the factors determining them. Population gains and losses among Texas cities also were Surratt said that Texas cities can be grouped into four general types according to individual economic function - port cities, area service centers, major office centers and international border cities. He explained that only a few cities are major office centers, Houston and Dallas being the leaders in this field. Smaller cities such as Midland in West Texas and Tyler in East Texas are important in oilcentered demand and use.

Direction of growth in cities also came in for some discussion, with special emphasis on Midland.

'We can make Midland what we want it to be." Surratt said. "The thinking through of community problems and potentials should have top priority. Realtors should be most active in this.

We don't have to wait on the state or the federal governments. We have the wisdom to make our city what it should be.'

He lauded Midlanders on their recently approved plans for renovation and beautification in the eastern downtown business district, where an exhibition and convention center will be erected.

"Patriotism begins at home," Surratt continued. "Let us ask the youngsters to think creatively on how to make their neighborhood a better place in which to live. From there they should be encouraged to think creatively on the problems and potentials of the community, area, state and nation.

Joop and Toos Wouters escape boredom by traveling the globe by thumb. To date, they have hitchiked a total of 132,400 miles. The Wouters claim they have never experienced any serious trouble, although they have been known to fly by commercial airlines when rides get scarce.

Elderly couple uses wits and 'thumbpower'

By JERRY BELCHER The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - At a time of life when all too many folks spend their days just sitting at home and twiddling their thumbs, Joop and Toos Wouters employ their thumbs to carry them to faraway places with strange-sounding names.

He is 66 years old. She is 62. And they believe themselves to be the world's oldest husband-and-wife hitchhiking team.

During the 28 years since they first took up hitchhiking in their native Holland, the couple has covered 132,400 miles, always together and always on thumbpower. "That," says Joop, a tall, precise man who loves to quote statistics, "is the equivalent of five times around the world.

Other statistics: they've visited 75 countries, all 50 states and all 50 state capitols, their longest trip was a 22.133-mile circuit of the United States over five months in 1971, and they wear out an average of 1 1-2 pairs of shoes on each journey.

Contrary to what one might think, the Wouters are neither superannuated hippy-drifters nor wealthy wanderlustful eccentrics. They are, in fact, ordinary respectable middleclass people who simply love to travel, see new places and meet new Joop is a retired cartographer (map-maker) and Toos is a retired Bank of America credit-checker. They've lived in the United States since 1954 ("We crossed the border from Canada at 6:45 a.m. on April 2," the ever-exact Joop remembers) and in Hollywood for the last 20 years. They are now naturalized citizens.

Both say they have been fascinated by the thought of traveling to exotic places since childhood - hence, in Joop's case, the profession of cartography.

It was Joop who introduced Toos to hitchhiking. And it was the American GIs who liberated Holland from the Nazis who introduced Joop to thumbing rides

"Before World War II, hitchhiking was unknown in Europe." Joop explains. "Then the Americans and Canadians came, and we saw them hitchhiking ... I thought it was fantastic - I'll try it too.

Joop did some solo hitchhiking before he met and married Toos in 1947, but doesn't include that mileage in their 132,400-mile total.

They made their first trip together in April, 1948, hitchhiking from the Hague to Antwerp, Belgium. "We went to Antwerp because you could get nylon hose there," says Toos. "I enjoyed it."

During their three-week vacation that same summer, they hitchhiked through eight European countries - and from then on, they knew how they would spend every subsequent vacation of their lives.

They've never regretted the decision. They've never had any major trouble, never been robbed or mugged, never been arrested despite the fact that hitchhiking is frowned on by the law in some places. "The police always are cooperative - many times the highway patrol or a sheriff's deputy will pick us up and take us to the end of their beat," says Joop. "Sometimes they will radio ahead to the next patrol car and have it pick us up." There are certain people the Wouters refuse to accept rides from & "drunks, people who act strange, or those who insist on giving us a

"When in doubt," advises Toos, "don't do it. That is a very good rule.

'We have encountered some weirdos," says Joop. "There are some very hairy characters around. One day, somewhere in the Eastern United States, a car stopped and it was a hippie-rabbi.

"He rolled down the window and a bunch of hair came out - inside all that hair were two bright spots. His

In the next few minutes, the hairy character first tried to sell his car to the Wouters. Then he inquired if they would like to adopt a friend, an 18year-old, 6-foot orphan boy." And finally, he invited them to join him on a trip to Israel. Although the Wouters have never owned a car, are childless and delight in travel, they politely declined the hairy character's offers.

Joop and Toos agree that women are more likely to respond to their outstretched thumbs than men, but they haven't figured out why

County cases granted Appeals Court relief

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Wednesday granted relief sought in habeas corpus petitions filed in connection with two Midland County cases.

Stephen Max Combs, convicted in 1972 for the stabbing death of his girlfriend, Vicki Berneathy, on July 16, 1970, has sought an appeal. On May 17, 1974, Combs was retried on the murder charge and again was convicted and was sentenced to 15 years in prison

Following sentencing on the second conviction, Combs filed notice of an appeals and remained free on a bond signed by his father.

However, some time in July 1974, Combs' father went "off the bond" and Combs was arrested, the court

Combs has signed a pauper's oath and asked for a court-appointed attorney to aid in his appeal.

That request was denied, the appeals court noted, since evidence was introduced that Combs did not meet the definitions of an indigent.

The appeals court, however, ruled that Combs is entitled to an appeal at this time with an appointed counsel.

And the court said that Combs will be responsible for paying all or a part of the transcription of his trial, depending on a determination of his available funds by the trial court.

"If the funds are not sufficient to pay the full cost of the transcription," the court stated, "the county should be ordered to pay the balance.

Having it happen in your own backvard and to someone you've worked with, respected and have no reason to suspect, outside of this one fatal misstep, is other than he appears, the shades between black and white, right and wrong somehow become a little blurred.

Chester Story, J.D. Menasco and Neill McClung are outcasts because they allegedly conspired to falsify the transcript of a former player.

STORY ADMITS he was wrong and if there's one pitch he'd like to have back it's the one where he told Oklahoma State that the basketball player he "was trying to help' wouldn't have to appear on campus to receive credit for the three one-hour courses in physical education.

It was a pitch that not only went out of the park, but took 17 years of high school and college coaching with it. Chester was wrong, dreadfully

Vols upset Kentucky

By Associated Press

Ray Mears has coached 387 college basketball victories, but the latest one was something special

"In the 14 years I've been at Tennessee, this has to be one of the biggest victories," said Mears after his Vols invaded 23,300-seat Rupp Arena at Lexington, Ky., Wednesday night and posted a 71-67 overtime upset of No. 2-ranked Kentucky

Kuhn consulted baseball owners

CHICAGO (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he received conflicting advice from some of the game's top officials on whether to void the sales of three Oakland A's stars for $3.5 million.

Kuhn testified Wednesday in U.S. District Court in a $3.5 million suit filed by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley after Kuhn blocked the deals last June.

Finley was expected to return to the stand today. The trial is expected to end this week.

During a conference call last June with baseball's Executive Council, Kuhn testified, American League President Lee MacPhail and National League President Charles Feeney recommended that he let the sales stand. But Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ed Fitzgerald of the Milwaukee Brewers told him something should be done. Kuhn decided to disapprove the sales of pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to Boston for $1 million each and pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5

He said he was attending a White

Sox' game in Chicago last June when he was notified of the sales.

"I asked the White Sox to get Mr. Finley on the phone and we had a conversation. I said 'Charlie, these deals are disastrous to baseball. They are troublesome and I don't know if they can stand. His response was strong. He said 'Commissioner, you shouldn't be butting in' and suggested we get together. We later met in the lobby of the Pick-Congress Hotel.

"Finley argued vigorously against the wisdom of my doing it (possibly negating the deals), but he never mentioned that I didn't have the authority," Kuhn testified.

"I said Charlie had created a disastrous situation and he told me he had difficulties signing the players and that he also had financial problems. He told me about the difficulties he had getting his team's games on radio and had to pay $300,000 to do so."

Kuhn said he and Finley talked at great length about how the Oakland owner had once built a championship team from a loser. Kuhn said he cautioned Finley, however, that he might not be able to do it again.

an NCAA school. However, Dr. Langford learned Friday that Daniel was not in Midland for the classes last summer and brought the matter to the attention of the MC Board of Trustees, who asked for the resignations of the three coaches

"I never saw the transcripts," said Oklahoma State basketball coach Guy Strong, when informed of the situation. "At this point, I can't understand why the athletic director at Midland College has implicated me.' Story had said Oklahoma State asked whether it was necessary for Daniel to attend the MC summer session.

Strong said he has never talked with the athletic director at Midland about alleged falsification of Daniel's grade reports and declined any further comment until Athletic Director Floyd Gass returns from the NCAA meetings in Miami Beach, Fla.

NCAA restructuring Injuries reduced may cause convulsions in football HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) - A stand taken by a football coaches association not to teach the use of the head in blocking and tackling has reduced the number of gridiron injuries, a researcher said Wednesday. Dr. Carl Blyth of the University of North Carolina made the report at the 54th annual business meeting of the American Football Coaches Association (AFCA), which adopted the stand last year.

The AFCA, gathering at a Hollywood hotel, was told by Blyth that the reduction of "spearing" by helmeted tacklers and head blocking by offensive players has "brought very favorable results in lessening of injuries this past season to the head and neck.'

Blyth, head of the physical education department at North Carolina, gave few details during his brief report.

But he said it had been projected that 25 college players would have become paraplegics this past season if there had been intensive teaching of the technique. He said there was just one such case and it was not attributed to the head blocking technique

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association says the organization "may go into convulsions' before resolving its restructuring problems.

Walter Byers said Wednesday that failure to reorganize the various divisions "could be destructive, but I don't think it will be.

Reorganization probably was the key issue that faced the NCAA during its 71st convention which ended

Wednesday, and it was defeated. "I see it as both necessary and inevitable," Byers said at a news conference. "I don't minimize the problem. The NCAA was born in crisis and has survived with considerable turmoil. There was speculation following defeat of the Division I reorganization proposal that danger existed that the larger football-playing schools which provide most of the financing for the NCAA might leave and form a College Football Association. Proponents of the CFA have repeatedly insisted that they want to resolve their problems within the "I have reservations about the CFA decide the issue rather than those at the extremes. Another major proposal that failed was one requiring athletic grants in aid to be based on need. Academic scholarships are based on need-the students' ability to pay-while most athletic scholarships are "full ride." Byers said he believed economy matters peaked a year ago when the convention set limitations on the number of scholarships permissable for each sport and on the size of coaching staffs. He noted that the policy making NCAA Council sponsored restructuring this year and need grants last year and, "I seriously doubt that they will next year.

Study recommends revamping of athletics NEW YORK (AP) - Amateur athletics in the United States should be run by a new central organization composed only of the various national bodies, the President's Commission on Olympic Sports recommended

Noting that 'incessant organizational squabbles waste time and talent and threaten the fundamental rights of athletes" to compete, the 22-member commission called on Congress to create the new organization on the structure of U.S. Olympic Committee.

The two-volume, 613-page report, which took 18 months and $1 million to compile, was submitted to President Ford and President-elect Carter earlier this week and was outlined at news conferences today here and in

"United States sports organizations are fragmented, not bound by com-mon purpose or any effective coordinating system," the report noted. "No clear policy or direction in amateur sport, physical education or physical fitness can be or has been maintained.

The panel, which included four U.S. senators and four members of the House, said the new USOC "is proposed as the highest congress of a representative, vertically integrated American sports system, with appropriate checks and balances built

Under the proposed organization, each national governing body, such as those that administer and operate sports like badminton, cycling, luge or weightlifting, would send a maximum of five representatives to an annual Congress. The Congress would elect a 15-member board of directors, containing at least three athletes, which would be the major policy making body of the central sports organization.

WEST TEXAS OUTDOORS

Deer can roam WT plains again

BY GREG AKINS

The end of the 1976 deer season has arrived and the predictions of this being a poor year were proven partly true, and partly false.

It does appear that the total harvest may be down slightly, but I haven't really seen any evidence that the antler growth was not as good as last year. However, I am basing my assumptions on what I have seen in west and southwest Texas.

I have not heard who will be crowned the West Texas champion as far as whitetail deer are concerned, but I did see one whitetail buck with a spread of 25 1/4 inches, and another which was reported to have field dressed out at 176 pounds.

BILL FULGHAM didn't do too badly either, by bagging his eightpointer with a 19 1/2 inch spread.

Lowell Fuller outdid me by bringing in an 11-point with a heavy rack which measured 17 1/2 inches. The Parks and Wildlife people have to be part psychologists by letting hunters taper off, rather than stopping us all at once. Although deer season is over, quail and dove season will last a while longer to help us withdraw as painlessly as possible. The winter dove hunt runs to Jan. 16 with hunting hours from one half hour before sunrise to sunset. Quail season

WASHINGTON - The Senate's first major attempt in 30 years to reorganize its sprawling committee structure - by chopping the number of committees from 31 to 15 - is in serious jeopardy and will be substantially watered down both in the Senate Rules Committee and on the Senate floor, key senators said Wednesday.

The plan was put together by a special committee on committees neaded by Adlai E. Stevenson (D-Ill.). It calls for the elimination of all the joint committees, including Joint Atomic, and of such minor units as the Veterans', Space, Ethics, Nutrition, Post Office, Small Business, District of Columbia and Aging Committees, with their functions redistributed to the 15 remaining committees.

A second key feature is to limit a senator in most cases to two committees and two subcommittees on each

The idea is to reduce overlapping jurisdiction, rationalize committee functions so that four or five committees aren't dealing with the same subject, and end the situation in which some senators belong to four or five committees and 12 to 14 subcommittees each, an impossible burden on their time.

The need for some sort of reorganization was well illustrated Wednesday when the Senate Rules Committee's final hearing on the issue had to be cancelled because most of the Senate Rules Committee members were absent - attending other committee meetings

The Stevenson plan is foundering because of rivairies between committees for jurisdiction over favored subjects, and heavy lobbying by veterans', small business, government employes, senior citizens and related groups for preservation of the minor committees which they regard as their special protectors.

Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.), whose chairmanship of the Nutrition Committee would disappear if the plan went through unchanged, said, "I'd like to see this whole reorganization thing sidetracked for a while even if they allow Nutrition to sur-

Vainly waiting for a quorum, Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon (D-Nev.), told a reporter that judging from the temper of his committee, it appeared that the Small Business, Veterans', Joint Economic and Ethics committees all would be retained in their current status as separate com mittees, rather than being absorbed into other units as called for by the Stevenson plan. Similar predictions came from Rules members Jannes B. Allen (D-Ala.) and Dick Clark (D-Iowa), earlier. Clark said, " Certainly, it is in great

Stevenson said retention of these minor committees would severely harm the plan toy (1) making it impossible to ration alize and consolidate jurisdiction over certain subjects and (2) by making it e xtremely difficult to hold down the nunaber of assignments of each senator (the current average is 18 membership's per senator on committees and sul ocommittees).

g Some of the adde d jurisdiction problems are illustrated by these facts: the Foreign Relations Committee is furious at the proposal to transfer control of some international financial foreign aid institutions, like the International Bank, to the Banking Committee. (It will probably win this Leaders of the Sens te Commerce

Committee aren't particularly interested in having it assume most jurisdiction over transportation and mass transit, and are very unhappy about giving up juristiction over oceans. Public Works Committee leaders want to keep public roads authorization jurisdiction and not give it up to Commerce, and aren't too happy about becoming the consolidated central Environment Committee, which is expected to be an umpire between business and environemtnalists and get kicked in the rear end by both. Some Northern Democrats want to take away' welfare functions of the Finance Cornmittee. which Stevenson left intact.

Still an added complication is the desire of the Republican Caucus, announced by Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker (R-Tenn.) Tulesday, to use the committee reorganization plan as a vehicle for getting more GOP staff on the committees

THE LOYAL opposition is represented by John Michels, who served as President Ford's campaign coordinator in New Hampshire and New England. Michels says the only problem with his new District of Columbia inaugural plate may be that next week's inaugural will be for President -elect Jimmy Carter.

Gilmore called 'cool' as he awaits death

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Gary Gilmore, described by his attorney as "cool as a cucumber and fit as a fiddle," faces new legal challenges of his right to die by firing squad next Monday.

The U.S. Supreme Court rejected the latest bid to stop the execution Wednesday, but American Civil Liberties Union attorney V. Jinks Dabney said more suits seeking to delay it would be filed today in federal and state courts.

Dabney, though declining to say specifically what the actions would involve, said, "I'm confident of one thing: Gary Gilmore is going nowhere on Jan. 17.

problems occurred most often among women who took the drugs. sometimes accidentally, during the second and third months of pregnancy. Ordinarily, women are urged to stop taking birth control pills when they become pregnant. The researchers said the problems usually occurred when women did not realize they were expecting. The study, conducted by doctors at the Drug Epidemiology Unit of Boston University Medical Center, was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The research showed that the increased risk of heart trouble occurred among children of women who took two commonly prescribed female hormones - estrogen and progestogen

Women are sometimes given the female sex hormone by doctors who believe the drugs reduce the chance of miscarriage

The doctors found a rate of about 18 babies with heart defects among every 1,000 infants born to women who took the drugs during early pregnancy. The rate was about eight such cases for every 1,000 babies whose mothers did not take these drugs.

"Female hormones taken in the early stages of pregnancy may disturb the normal cardiovascular development of the fetus," the doctors wrote. "Both estrogens and progestogens were associated with the occurence of congenital heart disease in the offspring.

Carter plans work on new canal treaty

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Members of Congress were told in private Wednesday that the Carter administration plans to resume negotiations on a new Panama Canal treaty the week after the inauguration, and expects to complete the new pact by June.

President-elect Carter said he is thinking of going to the country with a fireside chat broadcast to build support for the new treaty.

Dispute over giving Panama greater rights over the Canal was an emotional issue during the presidential election campaign. President Ford and Carter both took a firm line on retaining U.S. control of the Canal in the campaign. Nevertheless, the treaty being negotiated is certain to make concessions to Panama, in a dispute which is a symbolic test of American policy for all Latin America.

The Carter administration's plans were disclosed at a unique, allday seminar on foreign policy with about 50 members of Congress, including Republican and Democratic leaders, at "The Castle" of the Smithsonian Institution.

Secretary of State-designate Cyrus R. Vance told the group that Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd will arrive here the week after the inaugural for the Panama Canal negotiations. Veteran U.S. negotiator Ellsworth Bunker has said he believes the negotiations can be completed by June. Vance said

Sources said that when House Republican Leader John Rhodes (Ariz.) cautioned that the public must be prepared to accept a new canal treaty, Carter mentioned a fireside chat. Rep. Clement J. Zablocki (D-Wis.), senior Democrat on the House International Relations Committee, suggested a special need to solicit support among the military and veterans for a new treaty.

Carter told newsmen that the meeting also produced agreement that there are prospects for 'dramatic improvements in the Middle East.'

He said "the moderation of Arab leaders" in recent statements, coupled with Israel's yearning for peace, "all give us hope that we might have substantial achievements in new Arab-Israeli negotiations.

During a meeting with newsmen, in a brief recess of the eight-hour seminar, Carter expressed dismay with France's decision on Tuesday to release arrested Palestine guerrilla strategist Abu Daoud.

Carter said "I am deeply disturbed and very much surprised that this man was released." Daoud has been accused by Israel of masterminding the terroristic attack on the Israel team at the 1972

The most significant aspect of Carter's full day meeting with members of Congress and his top national security staff was the gathering itself, to signify a new page in executivecongressional relations Carter described the conference on foreign policy and economics as "the beginning of an interrelationship that might bring us together." It was hailed on all sides, and Carter said when the session ended just after five p.m., "I'm very pleased with the outcome

Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) lauded it as an unprecedented, pre-inaugural, "free-flowing exchange" of views. Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker, Jr. (Tenn.) said he told Carter there are bound to be disagreements in the four years ahead, but he commended the effort to FOR help with an unwed pregnancy. minimize disputes and also praised "Carter's depth Texas. 1 900 792 1104.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President-elect Carter says he thinks Greg Schneiders will still get a White House job, although it will not be the prestigious post of appointments secretary.

"I think so, yes," Carter said Wednesday when he was asked whether he still intended to gige a job to the 29-year-old who last year rose from failed restaurateur to confidante of the president-elect.

Schneiders did not rise far enough, however, to escape completely the bad debts of his business career. An FBI background check turned up enough questions that Schneiders withdrew his name from consideration for the appointments job.

Schneiders, in an interview Wednesday, said he is convinced that nohing will come from the investigation because, "I don't think all of this stuff, taken totally and in context, would be upsetting to anyone.

The most serious allegation against Schneiders is that he collected $117 weekly in unemployment insurance for a year, while at the same time operating two restaurant consulting firms that he started after his own restaurants failed. The companies were supposed to organize seminars in which restaurant experts taught management techniques to novices. 4

Schneiders said he did reimburse himself for a 'few hundred dollars' in out-of-pocket expenses for running the two firms. But he denied ever taking any salaries or loans from either firm.

Schneiders had told the Washington Star on Saturday that he had taken some loans from the companies but had paid them back.

Teng may be new Chinese premier

HONG KONG - Former Chinese senior vicepremier Teng Hsiao-ping, disgraced last April, has been appointed Premier, it was claimed here Thursday.

The Chinese newspaper Ming Pao quoted a traveller from Canton as saying that Teng. 73, already had taken up his new job from Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng

The traveller reportedly said that the appointment was disclosed in a party central committee document from Peking. Teng's appointment would be officially announced later this month. Teng, disgraced during the Cultural Revolution of the 11960s, returned to the Peking political scene in 1973. He was China's acting premier for nearly two years during the illness of the late Premier Chou En-After Chou's death on Jan. 8 last year, Teng was held responsible for the Tienanmen Square riot in Peking last April and dismissed from all party and government posts. Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, then a vice-premier and minister of public security, was appointed Premier and first party vice-chairman. During the last few days, posters appearing in the streets of Peking have demanded the reinstatement of Teng.

Never cook when you're angry or upset, says John W. Gregory of Marina del Rey, Calif. "You must cook when you're happy and relaxed."

He also says he always shakes in a little love into his cooking.

"I've always had a flair for cooking, and still don't measure anything. It's an artistic thing," says Gregory, who owns 300 cookbooks.

Cooking is only one of his loves. London-born Gregory was a docent for the Egyptian Museum when he lived in London, and he has studied the archaeological histories of the pyramids of Mazatlan, Mexico.

Gregory also made the jump from the aesthetic to the martial, and was the European jui-jitsu (judo and karate) champion, and holds a thirddegree black belt.

Now an American citizen, he has served as chief of protocol in the U.S.

Air Force. Along the line he spent many years in the management end of hotels.

restaurants and resorts, which led to his arrival in California. Gregory has changed his style of eating and has been a vegetarian for the last 20 years. "I'm a vegetarian because I feel it's better for my body at my particular time in life," he says.

He is what is called a lacto-ovovegetarian, which means he includes milk products and eggs in his diet. "You do have to get your full protein," he says.

To make his plain vegetable dishes more interesting. Gregory prepares a variety of herb butters ahead of time.

He also makes delicious flaming cottage cheese pancakes, which he serves as dessert following his main dish casserole of a meatless

Beware of 'diet' on label

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY Registered Dietitian Copley News Service

The word "diet" is one of the most misused and misconstrued words in American life.

In the minds of most people it means "weight loss" regardless of where they see it or in what context it is used. Shrewd food companies, well aware of this, will use the word diet on their labels in the hope of increasing sales, even though it is meaningless in the context used

A glaring example of such deception is found in certain bakery products which are advertised as "diet cookies," "diet cheesecake," "diet rolls," "diet cakes" and "diet candy." If the labels are examined they will be seen to usually have the calories of flour. fats and ingredients of standard recipes, but with part or all of the salt and sugar substituted.

There is nothing harmful in these substitutions. but the public is misled into believing such foods will somehow cause a weight loss.

I recently witnessed the results of such deceit when a woman called my office greatly elated over the discovery of a new product, diet cheesecake. She had weighed over 200 pounds and had suffered two moderately severe heart attacks.

Reducing her weight was vital and until she discovered this diet product, she had lost 35 pounds on our program. When she returned to my office after two weeks of eating the cheesecake she had put back 12 pounds.

In her innocence she had actually believed the product would help her lose weight and she is only one of many thousands who are fooled into accepting diet foods as a means to take off pounds.

Diets are prescribed as therapy for a vast number of ailments, as well as for weight loss. Diet therapy belongs in the hands of registered dietitians who have years of training in their field. of training in their field, and diets to lose weight should be as carefully prepared as diets for physical ailments. The ambiguity with which the term is treated leads companies to use it as a sales tool without regard for its true meaning. It is another form of exploiting the overweight consumer. The term "low fat" is also used occasionally as a deceptive labeling device to imply weight loss. The term appears in milk and yogurt advertising.

Low-fat milk is described as 98 per cent fat-free which sounds wonderful until you realize that whole full-fat milk is 96.5 per cent fat-

A popular variety of yogurt with fruit is promoted as low fat but when the product is checked out it is found to contain from 200-300 calories for the small carton. It is purchased by overweight people in the belief it will help them in losing weight.

It is difficult to convince people of these facts because they are conditioned to think of diet in only one context. Prices Good Thru January 15, 1977 We reserve the right to limit quantities. None sold to dealers

Yamani says OPEC nations to lose sales

By Joe Alex Morris Jr. The Los Angeles Times

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia - Oil production will slump by 25 per cent in the first quarter of this year in those oil exporting nations that raised their prices by 10 per cent, Saudi Arabian petroleum minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani predicted Wednesday.

He said Saudi Arabia - which raised its prices by only 5 per cent - was going ahead with plans to increase eventual production capacity to 14 million barrels a day, 50 per cent more than current output. Increased Saudi production would pick up business lost by nations with highpriced oil. The Saudis will boost production in the first quarter from the current rate of 9.3 million barrels a day to 10 million, then take another look at the situation, Yamani said in an interview.

'If by then we have to make a second increase, we will do it," he said. As for the other producers, he said, "either they reduce their prices or face production cutbacks.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates broke with the 11 other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) after meeting in Qatar last month and declared they would increase oil prices by only 5 per cent for the whole of 1977.

The others, who voted for a 10 per cent increase as of Jan. 1 and plan another 5 per cent hike in July, are Iran, Iraq, Qatar, Libya, Algeria, Ecuador and Venezuela.

The OPEC split has thrown the world oil market into a turmoil. Yamani said it was too early to predict how market patterns will develop, but he predicted "there will be some (price) discounts" by the 11 OPEC states which voted the 10 per cent increase.

In the first three months of this year, he said, there will be a temporary surplus of oil stocks in the OPEC states. He said this was the result of extensive stockpiling of oil by the international companies, in anticipation of the Jan. 1 price increase. He put the surplus at a capacity of 3 million barrels per day.

"If you take away Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, who will not be affected because of our cheap crude, and add the additional oil we will produce, it will be more like a 25 per cent reduction for the 11," Yamani said.

Iran has reported its exports are off by one-third for the first nine days of this month, and Kuwaiti oil sources are talking of a production cut ranging as high as 38 per cent. Indonesia, which voted for the 10 per cent increase, actually increased the price of 80 per cent of its oil exports by only 5.85 per cent. A Saudi Arabian production capacity of 14 million barrels a day would fill almost half the total of OPEC's current oil exports. Construction of addi-

Energy independence nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Energy self-sufficiency in this century is probably an unrealistic U.S. goal and the incoming Carter administration should face up to this as it forges a national energy policy, suggests Sen. Edward M. Kennedy

The Massachusetts Democrat said he hopes Congress can work with the Carter administration in agreeing "on a basic posture for the United States in its international energy dealings" as soon as possible.

Kennedy is chairman of a joint economic subcommittee which is holding hearings on the price increases voted last month by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting than "rhetorical confrontation -Countries.

Witnesses scheduled to testify today include Howard Kauffmann. president of the Exxon Corp., the largest American petroleum company, and former Federal Energy Administrator John Sawhill.

Kennedy said the hearings are aimed at "clarifying the basic policy choices that are open to the United

Kennedy said the Ford administration's efforts to deal with the OPEC cartel amounted to little more tough talk with little to back it up.'

One of the basic flaws of Ford's approach was his insistence that the nation could become energy selfsufficient by the mid 1980s, Kennedy said at Wednesday's session.

"I am convinced that the U.S. energy program will remain in limbo until we decide how to deal with the reality that this country will be importing substantial amounts of oil for most, if not all, of the balance of this century," Kennedy said.

"And even if, by some miracle, we careful review of tax policy."

could become self-sufficient in energy, our closest allies overseas will still be heavily dependent on oil imports. In this sense, the issue of energy independence is a mirage," he Kennedy said that Congress and the new administration must grapple with the problem of dealing with U.S. multinational oil companies that provide markets for OPEC oil. Breaking up these oil giants is one possible remedy, he said. Another might be "more vigorous en-forcement of antiturst statutes and

Carter defends link with dad

CHICAGO - Jack Carter, son of President-elect Jimmy Carter, Wednesday defended the use of his father's name in promotional material issued by a carpet company that employs him as its lawyer.

Carter also said he would not tell other clients not to use his father's name in their promotional efforts.

'When somebody hires me as an attorney," Carter said," "and I am the son of the President-elect, I am not going to tell that man that he cannot say I'm the son of the President-elect - because it's true. If he wants to use this in his business, frankly that's his ball game.

Carter made his comments at a televised press conference arranged by Contract Carpet and Interiors, Inc., a Chicago company. The company's promotional material had mentioned President-elect Carter's name in its press release, in its invitation to a reception honoring Jack Carter, and in a special biographical sketch of Jack Carter distributed to the press Wednesday.

Bell discloses in hearings he will replace Kelley

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Attorney General-designate Griffin B. Bell said Wednesday that FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley will be replaced 'before too long' as head of the federal government's principal law enforcement agency.

Testifying at the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearings on his confirmation, Bell replied to a question about Kelley by saying: "I think we can look forward to the time when we'll have a new director.

Bell said he couldn't give the committee a "time frame" for the FBI changeover. But he added, "I think it would not be long."

In his remarks, which came during the committee's morning session, Bell was reluctant to discuss details of the incoming Carter Administration's plans for the FBI. And, when he returned to testify in the afternoon, he seemed to hedge slightly about Kelley's status.

When committee members pressed him to be more specific. Bell said that during the luncheon recess he had received a number of calls from Kelley's supporters in Congress.

"I'd like to stand on what I said this morning," he added

In his earlier testimony, Bell had praised Kelley for his three-year effort in trying to restructure the scandl-torn FBI and repair the damage caused to the bureau's reputation by its past abuses of civil liberties in domestic security investigations.

But he also seemed to confirm in an indirect way the widely held belief that the Carter team feels Kelley has not succeeded in exerting control over the FBI and wants a director of its own choosing.

Bell noted that, under a new retirement law, most of the FBI's top management echelon will be leaving at the end of the year and that it is likely that Kelley will stay on only for a time to assist with the transition to a new executive team.

He pointed out that Kelley, 65, was appointed to a term that would normally enable him to remain in office until at least age 70. The "legislative history" of how the law would apply in case of an attempt to drop Kelley earlier "is not clear," Bell said.

However, congressional sources familiar with the legislation granting the FBI director a single term of 10 years said it was not intended to bar a President from replacing him before the end of that term. The director, these sources said, still "serves at the pleasure of the president" and can be removed by him.

Although Bell did not mention it, another factor known to be complicating Kelley's situation is his pen-

Ford's exit like auld lang syne

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pausing briefly in its preparations for the administration of Jimmy Carter, Congress heard "an old friend," President Ford, bid an emotional farewell in a State of the Union address that looked back with pride and forward with hope and prayer.

"Touching ... a nice eulogy ... a good swan song." were the comments from members of Congress, Democrats and Republicans alike, at the con-clusion of Ford's Wednesday night address.

Throughout the day, delegations from Congress held meetings with Carter, who will be sworn in as president a week from today.

Acknowledging that "the people have spoken," and the new president would outline his program in his inaugural address, Ford said, "I will not infringe on that responsibility, but rather wish him the very best in all that is good for our country.

Rather than present Congress with a list of legislative requests, Ford chose to emphasize accomplishments of his 30-month presidency.

Panel OKs housing rehabilitation

Midland Housing Authority Wednesday gave its approval to go ahead on a $160,000 housing rehabilitation project to renovate an estimated 30 to 35 substandard houses of poor homeowners in the city.

The decision by the authority's board of commissioners was the prime action taken at the regular meeting

It followed Tuesday's approval by Midland City Council to permit the housing authority to expand its original scope of providing housing assistance to the elderly and handicapped.

At the agreement of both the council and the board, the limit on rehabilitation funds for a house was raised from 50 per cent of the current market value to 65 per cent. The maximum limit of $5,000 per house was retained, although the council

The authority's executive secretary, Fred Kester, said the effort to improve housing for the city's poor is a small start, but if it proves successful the city council has indicated it will seek larger rehabilitation funding where the Aramco's four parent companies, marketing 93 per cent of this, are in the process of handing over Aramco ownership to the Saudi government. They are Exxon, Mobil, Texaco and Standard Oil of California.

Whether the Saudi controls will be effective is an open question, and it is doubted by some oil experts. "They have no way of monitoring oil prices and they know it," said one specialist in Jeddah. "They are only trying to scare the oil companies.'

Midlanders learned over the past degrees and this morning's low was 40 day or two that it doesn't have to freeze for the weather to be generally miserable.

But relief may be in sight. The weatherman predicts sunny and mild weather Friday.

After intermittent rain all day Wednesday, it was still misting this morning, with a total 24-hour rainfall of .44 inch. Wednesday's high was 41

Gov. Jerry Apodaca has called this regulatory inequity "an intolerable system." It has existed for years, but the gap between interstate and intrastate prices didn't have "intolerable" impact until a Federal Power Commission decision last sum-

Now most legislators coming to Santa Fe for the 1977 session next week agree the state shouldn't be exporting an increasingly valuable natural resource at less than half the price charged its own people.

Further, five times more gas goes out of state at 40 cents than stays in state at $1.05. The interstate pipelines can take it as fast as the sandstone formations release it.

But the utility that buys 90 per cent of the instate gas, Gas Co. of New Mexico, already takes more than it can sell the state. In warm months the firm dumps gas on the interstate

There are enough gas reserves in New Mexico to meet the state's needs for at least 100 years. But everybody agrees trying to put the interstate pipelines out of business would be like trying to secede from the union.

So the state's known interstate reserves will be depleted in 10 years, mathematically speaking

New Mexicans will still have gas long after that in communities served by intrastate pipelines because Gas Co. has longterm contracts with pro-

Gas Co. has argued for years it must pay more for longterm contracts. Otherwise, the well owners would sell for quick money to the fasttake interstate pipelines.

One thing the adversaries who will argue about gas prices before the 1977 legislature can agree on is this: New Mexico would get a fair deal in a free gas market. But the chances of total federal deregulation or even an end to the FPC's tiered pricing system look

The system benefits the consumers of the politically powerful nonproduc-ing states, and New Mexico is only one of four major producing states.

What the FPC has done is hold down prices for gas from older wells - the basic supply for the interstate pipelines. It has compromised with the producers by lifting the lid on price controls from new wells.

The new price was set at $1.42 last summer with an automatic increase of one cent every three months.

The problem in New Mexico is that Gas Co. contracts are tied to the highest interstate price, which explains the growing inequity.

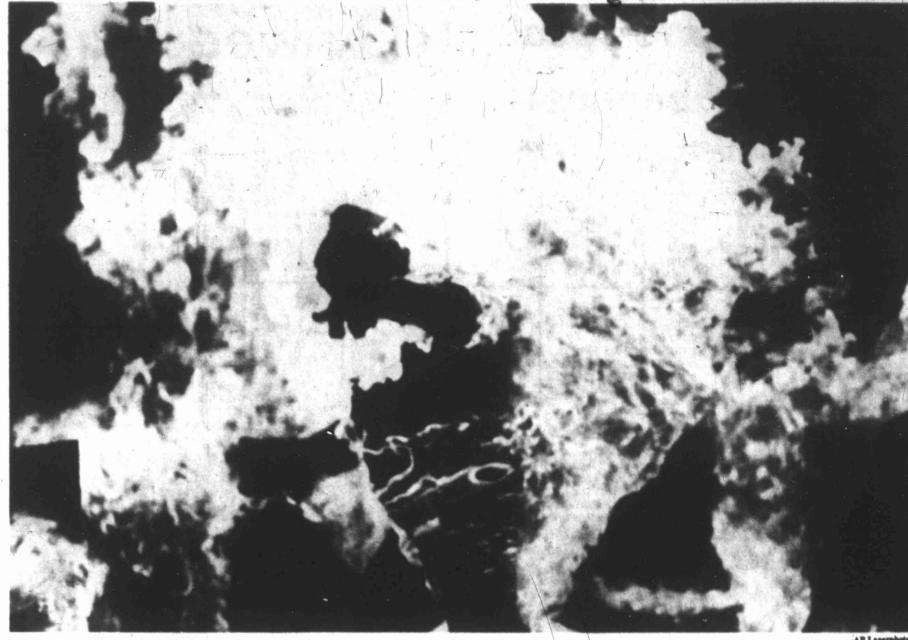

State Energy Administrator John O'Leary argues the state better protect against the possibility of FPC deregulation of new gas. The interstate pipelines could afford to buy new gas at $5 per thousand cubic feet because the price could be rolled in to the artificially low prices for the 85 per cent of their volume which is old

But in such an event, Gas Co. would have to pay the free market price for new gas to all its suppliers. O'Leary said if this came about a New Mexico residence paying $300 a year for gas would be hit with bills of $1,000 a year. Vice President Jack Hertz of Gas

Co. rejects this argument. He says nobody would pay $5 for gas. He says unregulated gas being offered in Texas at $2 doesn't have any buyers.

O'Leary's proposed answer to the gas pricing problem is state regulation of intrastate wellhead prices. He proposes a system of price controls that would be triggered only when average intrastate prices exceed average interstate prices by 20 per cent, as they do now.

Apodaca has advocated the idea, although with enough qualifications that he could change his mind later. Atty. Gen. Toney Anaya also has taken a public stand for price con-

Sweepstakes offers saturate consumer

'Twas the month after Christmas and all through the nation, many bills were piling up, as was aggravation. So through the mails were sent many sweepstake giveaways, to people in need of cash soon after the holidays.

It's no accident that for the past several days, millions of Americans have received invitations to win as much as $125,000 for merely licking an envelope, mailing it in - and reading an advertising message.

At least four major companies chose the month after Christmas to make their pitches and sent out more than 80 million pieces of mail

"Through these mailings over the years, the best mailing period by far, as far as response is concerned, is right after Christmas," said Maren DeGraff, direct mail manager for Downes Publishing Co., which publishes Ladies Home Journal and American Home magazines.

"My personal opinion is that people have blown so much money, they say, 'Well, it's only a few more dollars (for a subscription).' Also, after Christmas, people need money.

"We've also found the response to any type of mailing is always better in January," said Jim Lyles, a spokesman for the Exxon Travel Club in Houston. "I know I've received four

sweepstakes mailings in the past few days myself.

Reader's Digest is offering a $450,000 giveaway, backed by a national advertising campaign that one source estimated cost as much as the prizes. More than 84,000 people will share the $450,000. Prizes range from a top of $50,000 to $5 each to 21,000 respondents.

Publishers Clearing House, a Port Washington, N.Y., firm that sells cutrate subscriptions to magazines, is offering $125,000 cash in a $400,000 giveaway that will include 60,000 Club's $100,000 sweepstakes is a vacation home, car and other prizes, or $50,000 in cash. About 1,160 people will share the prizes.

The Ladies' Home Journal and American Home are dividing $200,000 among 3,700 winners. Top prize is a new home or $77,000

The giveaways work in basically the same way. A computer selects winning numbers before the numbered applications are even in the mail. The recipient returns a form, and the firm hopes it includes an order for the magazine or product.

If a winning number is thrown away - and thousands are - rather than the prize money being returned to the company, it is given away through a drawing of previously losing entries. The companies say all prizes are awarded and all entrants stand an equal chance to win, whether or not they ordered the product.

Officials of the Federal Trade Commission support those claims.

"We haven't had a wealth of complaints on this type of thing," said Noble Jones, a Cleveland-based attorney for the FTC. "It's my feeling that there are very few abuses in these sweepstakes.

husband Andy Williams weeping in a hushed courtroom, Claudine Longet told jurors that her lover cried, "Claudine! Claudine! Claudine!" as he fell dying to the bathroom floor after a gun went off, accidentally in her hands.

Williams, a television and recording star, wiped his tears with a pink tissue Wednesday as Miss Longet holding the fatal pistol as she spoke -decribed how champion skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich died last March 21 in the $250,000 Rocky Mountain chalet they shared.

"Spider called my name three times, and he sort of slid down, and I told him I would call the hospital, not to move," Miss Longet testified, biting her lips to hold back tears.

Both defense and prosecution said they expected the reckless manslaughter charge against the 35-yearold entertainer to go to the jury today or Friday. If convicted, she faces a maximum 10 years in jail and $30,000

The prosecution doesn't claim she intended to shoot Sabich, but says she was criminally reckless in handling

The tiny state district courtroom was packed for the diminutive, darkhaired defendant's testimony. At one point, spectators peering over library shelves in the rear of the room were asked not to stand on law books to watch her.

"I saw he was sort of fainting," Miss Longet said. "So I tried to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but I didn't know how.

Sabich died of a single bullet wound in the stomach from a .22-caliber pistol modeled after the German

Miss Longet said she had asked Sabich how to use the gun because she was frightened for the safety of her three children by Williams, who lived with her and Sabich. "I was holding it with both hands,"

Miss Longet said, gingerly taking the pistol from a defense attorney and holding it flat between her palms. It was then she began crying. She had not held the gun since the night

Sabich died. "I raised the gun, and I said, 'When that lever is on the red spot, is it safe, it won't fire?'

The dozen jurors leaned forward to hear the soft-spoken defendant, whose accent still shows strong traces of her

"He said, 'Yes, it won't fire. You've got it. You have it,' or something like that ... I went back to holding it, and it just went off .

"I ran to the bedroom, and I called the hospital and told someone to send an ambulance right away. By the time I came back to Spider, my children were standing there, and I sent them out.

"I told them to go to the bottom of the hill to look for the ambulance so they wouldn't go the other way.'

During cross-examination. prosecutor Ashley Anderson questioned Miss Longet closely about the testimony of two law enforcement

They said Miss Longet told them at the hospital where Sabich was rushed the night of the shooting that she "playfully pointed the gun at (Sabich) and she gestured at him, saying, 'Bang bang.'''

Anderson asked, "You did not jokingly point the gun and say 'bang bang' and it went off?"

"I wouldn't joke with guns," Miss Longet quickly replied.

Anderson asked her to hold the weapon twice, then asked, "Are you positive your hand was not on the trigger?'

"I had my hand on the trigger," Miss Longet answered

Anderson repeated, "Your hand was on the trigger when you raised

"I have to assume it was" because the gun fired, she said, adding later, "I did not raise my hand with my finger on the trigger ..

A ballistics expert testified for the prosecution that the safety device didn't work, but the trigger had to be pulted for the gun to fire. Miss Longet's mention of the "red spot" referred to the safety.

Senate unit proposes consumer legislation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A Senate subcommittee recommended Wednesday that the legislature consider forcing grocery stores to mark prepackaged items so the customer will know the price of each item and exactly how much he's getting for

Udall warns Carter to go slowly on reorganizing energy agencies

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.), who will head the House Interior Committee in the new Congress, Wednesday urged President-elect Jimmy Carter to "go slowly" on his announced intention of reorganizing the scattered federal agencies dealing with energy.

Udall, whose committee would be involved in any major restructuring of federal energy agencies, said some could be merged quickly. But he expressed "grave misgivings" about any efforts to change the Interior Department's present authority over coal, oil, shale, natural gas, and other energy resources on public lands.

Managing public lands requires a balancing of "diverse, often competing interests" and Carter will "provoke resistance" if he tries to subordinate all these interests to the

Udall, who last year sought to represent the liberal wing of the Democratic Party in a protracted struggle against Carter for the party's presidential nomination, discussed the energy reorganization issue at a breakfast meeting with

As the new chairman of a major House committee, Udall would stand to lose considerable influence if the Interior Department should be stripped of its energy responsibilites. Thus, beyond the underlying policy issues involved, his reaction on energy reorganization was an early indication of the resistance that could develop in many areas if Carter seeks a substantial restructuri g ok the federal government

While unwilling to say he would actively oppose any effort to tamper with the Interior Department's jurisdiction over energy and public lands, Udall said that if an attempt were made "then you had better stand back, because at that point something is going to hit the fan.'

'What I hope they'll do is go slowly," he said.

Thus far, Carter has not spelled out his plans in detail, though he has indicated that former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger will head the energy reorganization from a position on the White House staff.

FPC may give okay to emergency sales

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Power Commission is deciding whether to allow emergency natural gas sales to two pipelines that are short of gas and that have cut back service to customers in a number of states.

The action by the commission is being watched closely because the way could be cleared for gas-starved pipelines to buy fuel from sources not subject to federal price regulations.

Such fuel would cost more but it would allow the pipelines to get through the winter, which has brought record-low temperatures to much of the United States.

In the case being heard today by the FPC, the Houston Pipeline Co., of Houston, Tex., wants to sell the gas. Houston Pipeline is a firm that does not transport natural gas across state borders and so is not subject to federally regulated gas prices.

Buying the gas are two hardpressed interstate pipelines ordinarily subject to FPC regulation and price ceilings: Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. and United Gas Pipe Line Co.

Those two pipelines have suffered increasing shortages of gas supplies since 1970, forcing them to curtail deliveries to their customers in a number of states.

The latest FPC report, covering July through September, showed the Transcontinental company was short some 115.3 billion cubic feet of gas. Its shortages hit most heavily in North Carolina, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

United Gas was short some 198.3 billion cubic feet, forcing large curtailments in Louisiana - ironically, one of the nation's major gasproducing states — and Mississippi.

Through November and December, the two pipelines had been able to buy gas, at prices unregulated by the federal government, from Houston Pipeline under PFC rules allowing such emergency purchases for 60

Houston Pipeline has asked the FPC to allow continuation of such sales - up to 85 million cubic feet a day to Transcontinental and up to 150 million per day to United - for another 60 days starting Jan. 6.

authority the FPC has to permit that. When the commission tried in 1975 to authorize such emergency sales for as long as 180 days, the attempt was overturned by the federal courts which considered it an indirect way of abandoning the price regulations required by law.

On Jan. 5, just one day before the new Houston Gas deliveries were to begin, the FPC authorized the new sales but scheduled public hearings on the complicated issue.

It promised Houston Gas that while the FPC makes up its mind about the deal, Houston Gas will not risk becoming an FPC-regulated company just because it is selling more gas to Transcontinental and United.

That decision kept the gas flowing to those two pipelines temporarily.

Union says firm's tankers undermanned

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - Standard Oil Co. of California is operating three dangerously undermanned oil tankers in West Coast waters, two maritime union officials charged Wednesday. Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union, told a Senate Commerce committee hearing that the Coast Guard acted improperly in permitting tankers to operate with a single officer in the engine room, rather than a conventional crew of three to five people.

His statement was echoed by Morris Weisberger, president of the Sailors Union of the Pacific.

However, Adm. Owen Siler, commandant of the Coast Guard, told a reporter that automation and advanced technology make the new vessels safe to operate with fewer personnel. Highly sophisticated U.S. Navy" vessels are operated with empty engine rooms, their instruments monitored from another location, he said.

The Standard Oil of California vessels are "more reliable and safer than anything afloat today," Gordon Colberg, engineering manager for Chevron Shipping, said in a telephone interview from San Francisco. Chevron shipping is a Standard Oil subsidiary.

Testifying at the committee hearing on tanker safety, Hall said the Standard tankers are "running with sealed engine rooms.'

"I wouldn't want to be a sailor on a ship with a sealed engine room." Hall said. "There's just one person in there; if he makes a mistake, you're

Traditionally, tanker engine rooms have an engineer on watch and two to four crewmen. Hall said in an interview outside the crowded hearing room. The crewmen check machinery, equipment and "make rounds like a cop on the beat with mechanical ability," he said,

The three Standard tankers have just the engineer on duty now and will eventually be allowed to operate with an empty engine room. That is why the union calls them "sealed" engine

"We protested, we talked with the Coast Guard, but it didn't do any good," said Weisberger of the Sailors Union, West Coast affiliate of the Seafarers. "They approved the ships anyway. The Coast Guard will do anything the oil companies want them

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In some hands the best plan is to draw two rounds of trumps and then go about your other business. You can't afford to do this if an opponent can gain the lead and draw a third

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine told me the new "in" thing is to take cocaine, and that it really isn't so dangerous. How do you see it?-Jeff

Dear Jeff: One of the most dangerous things in life is to listen to someone who tells you a drug like cocaine "really isn't dangerous" Derived from the coca leaf, cocaine is a powerful stimulant of the central nervous system. It is usually sniffed or injected and either way, it can have very serious consequences. The immediate effect is a feeling of euphoria, of exhilaration, of great power. But this lasts only a short time; it may be as little as 10 or 15 minutes, and depression often follows. So the temptation is to have another sniff or shot, then another, then another. Heavy use is likely to bring on a number of unpleasant or alarming symptoms-muscular twitching, a crawling feeling on the skin, hypertension, rapid heartbeat, anxiety, sleeplessness, even delusions and hallucinations.

The drug is not physically addictive, by which I mean you don't have physical withdrawal symptoms when you stop using it. But it is psychologically addictive. Its only medical use is as a local anesthetic. The smartest thing for you to do is to stay clear of such "friends." Dear Dr. Solomon: I have recently gone through a bad bout of joint pain, particularly in my big toe and fingers. My doctor said I have pseudo gout, which afflicts people in their 80s and 90s. (I am 84.) Although I'm doing well now following my doctor's treatment, I wondered if you could shed any additional light on this condition.—Max B.

Dear Max: In a recent study of seven cases of calcium pyrophosphate crystal-induced arthritis, all of the patients were in the ninth or tenth decade of life. The majority of cases were misdiagnosed as acute septic arthritis, until joint fluid analysis, using polarized light microscopy revealed the "pseudo gout" in six of the seven patients. I'm glad your doctor has you on proper treatment and that you're

Kenya boasts black African stock mark By DAVID LAMB

The Los Angeles Times

NAIROBI - On the seventh floor of a downtown office building, the five Africans and Asians gathered over coffee to assess the status of Kenya's health.

It was precisely 10 a.m. For the next few minutes they scribbled notes, bickered and bartered, accomplishing their ritual with the good-natured kidding of old friends. And at 10:23 a.m. the meeting adjourned

The Nairobi Stock Exchange, one of the world's smallest, was closed for another day.

"WE MAY NOT BE London or New York," explains Francis Thuo, 43, a one-time school dropout who has headed the exchange for the past six years, 'but we have a good reputation internationally and we're growing.

The Nairobi Stock Exchange was born in 1964, a year after Kenya's independence. It was the first institution of its type in black Africa - or, as Thuo likes to put it, the "first one south of the Sahara."

It does a comparatively brisk business with the increasingly capitalistic-minded Kenyans, but it has no trading floor, no permanent home and no assess-

Prices are established during the daily "call-over" when the five members gather for 20 or 30 minutes, usually in a different office every day. Actual trading is done over the telephone and through the mails by Nairobi's five brokeage firms, which offer their clients 70 stocks valued from a few cents to a few

SMALL AND SOMEWHAT informal though it may be, the exchange is serious business. Thuo says that 'an educated witch doctor's guess'' would be that about 1 per cent of Kenya's 13 million people are stockholders. That is a significant figure, considering that Africans in the colonial era had virtually no money and most measured their wealth by the size of their family or herd.

"Capitalism has been part of the African life since time immemorial," Thuo says. "Measuring your wealth in cattle or the size of your family was a sort of capitalism. This is a new world we live in now and what we're dealing with is just another form of capitalism — money instead of cows."

The Nairobi market is giving Kenyans an opportunity that few Africans have in the scheme of Africanization so in vogue throughout the continent - the opportunity to have a stake in what were traditionally white-owned companies. The only other exchange in black Africa, Nigeria's, is not privately operated and the exchanges in South Africa and Rhodesia are run by whites.

IN THE FIRST FEW years of its existence, the Nairobi Exchange attracted investors mostly from the European and Asian communities here. The Africans jumped aboard - and have been aboard ever since - when the market came of age in April, 1972, with a $2.3 million offering from the giant tea growers, Brooke Bond Liebig Kenya, Ltd.

The issue was oversubscribed in a matter of hours and to this day Brooke Bond, along with the breweries and some banks, remains a blue-chip

Last year, like markets everywhere, the Nairobi Exchange fell. But the most distressing news for investors was the adoption of a capital gains tax, a measure the government finally undertook after months of debate. It was the first major governmental intervention in an institution whose self-policing exchange still sets its own rules and regulations.

THE NAIROBI PRICE index, which started at 100 in 1964 and now stands at over 200, reacts primarily to events in East Africa.

"The presidential election in the United States didn't have any effect because that is too far away," Thuo said. But the tensions along the border with Uganda or the nationalization of some institution in Tanzania will send the jittery index hurriedly

Thuo, who has visited 13 stock exchanges around the world, has a vision for his own institution: he hopes eventually it will have more members, although now there is just enough business to spread among the five brokers. He is urging the government and the university to set up, for the first time, some type of training program for young Africans who want careers in the market.

Visions are nothing new to Thuo. He dropped out of high school when his father's money ran out. He took odd jobs and studied economics through a correspondence course until he mastered the complexities of the stock market. In 1964 he opened the first African brokerage house in East Africa and serves as director of the company, which today employs 14

"As I said." Thuo muses with obvious pride, "it's a

Joop and Toos Wouters escape boredom by traveling the globe by thumb. To date, they have hitchiked a total of 132,400 miles. The Wouters claim they have never experienced any serious trouble, although they have been known to fly by commercial airlines when rides get scarce.

Elderly couple uses wits and 'thumbpower'

By JERRY BELCHER
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — At a time of life when all too many folks spend their days just sitting at home and twiddling their thumbs. Joop and Toos Wouters employ their thumbs to carry them to faraway places with strange-sounding names.

He is 66 years old. She is 62. And they believe themselves to be the world's oldest husband-and-wife hitchhiking team.

During the 28 years since they first took up hitchhiking in their native Holland, the couple has covered 132,400 miles, always together and always on thumbpower. "That," says Joop, a tall, precise men who loves to quote statistics, "is the equivalent of five times around the world."

Other statistics: they've visited 75 countries, all 50 states and all 50 state capitols, their longest trip was a 22,133-mile circuit of the United States over five months in 1971, and they wear out an average of 1 1-2 pairs of shoes on each journey.

Contrary to what one might think, the Wouters are neither superannuated hippy-drifters nor wealthy wanderlustful eccentrics. They are, in fact, ordinary respectable middle-class people who simply love to travel, see new places and meet new people.

Joop is a retired cartographer (map-maker) and Toos is a retired Bank of America credit-checker. They've lived in the United States since 1954 ("We crossed the border from Canada at 6:45 a.m. on April 2," the ever-exact Joop remembers) and in Hollywood for the last 20 years. They are now naturalized citizens.

Both say they have been fascinated by the thought of traveling to exotic places since childhood — hence, in Joop's case, the profession of cartography.

It was Joop who introduced Toos to hitchhiking. And it was the American GIs who liberated Holland from the Nazis who introduced Joop to thumb-

"Before World War II, hitchhiking was unknown in Europe," Joop explains. "Then the Americans and Canadians came, and we saw them hitchhiking... I thought it was fantastic—I'll try it too."

Joop did some solo hitchhiking before he met and married Toos in 1947, but doesn't include that mileage in their 132,400-mile total.

They made their first trip together in April, 1948, hitchhiking from the Hague to Antwerp, Belgium. "We went to Antwerp because you could get nylon hose there," says Toos. "I enjoyed it."

During their three-week vacation that same summer, they hitchniked through eight European countries — and from then on, they knew how they would spend every subsequent vacation of their lives.

They've never regretted the decision. They've never had any major trouble, never been robbed or mugged, never been arrested despite the fact that hitchhiking is frowned on by the law in some places.

"The police always are cooperative—many times the highway patrol or a sheriff's deputy will pick us up and take us to the end of their beat," says Joop. "Sometimes they will radio ahead to the next patrol car and have it pick us up."

There are certain people the Wouters refuse to accept rides from ''drunks, people who act strange, or those who insist on giving us a ride.''

"When in doubt," advises Toos, "don't do it. That is a very good rule."
"We have encountered some weirdos," says Joop. "There are some very hairy characters around. One day, somewhere in the Eastern was a hippie-rabbi.

"He rolled down the window and a bunch of hair came out — inside all that hair were two bright spots. His

In the next few minutes, the hairy character first tried to sell his car to the Wouters. Then he inquired if they would like to adopt a friend, an 18-year-old, 6-foot orphan boy. And finally, he invited them to join him on a trip to Israel. Although the Wouters have never owned a car, are childless and delight in travel, they politely declined the hairy character's offers.

Joop and Toos agree that women are more likely to respond to their outstretched thumbs than men, but they haven't figured out why.

County cases granted Appeals Court relief

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Wednesday granted relief sought in habeas corpus petitions filed in connection with two Midland County cases

Stephen Max Combs, convicted in 1972 for the stabbing death of his girlfriend, Vicki Berneathy, on July 16, 1970, has sought an appeal. On May 17, 1974, Combs was retried on the murder charge and again was convicted and was sentenced to 15

years in prison

Following sentencing on the second conviction, Combs filed notice of an appeals and remained free on a bond

signed by his father.

However, some time in July 1974,
Combs' father went "off the bond"
and Combs was arrested, the court records indicate.

Combs has signed a pauper's oath and asked for a court-appointed attorney to aid in his appeal.

That request was denied, the appeals court noted, since evidence was introduced that Combs did not meet the definitions of an indigent.

The appeals court, however, ruled that Combs is entitled to an appeal at this time with an appointed counsel.

And the court said that Combs will be responsible for paying all or a part of the transcription of his trial, depending on a determination of his available funds by the trial court.

"If the funds are not sufficient to pay the full cost of the transcription," the court stated, "the county should be ordered to pay the balance." In the other case, Jack Friday, also on a habeas corpus petition to the appeals court, was convicted in Midland County on Sept. 18, 1975, of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and sentenced to life in prison as a result of two prior felony convictions.

The appeals court said Friday is entitled to partial relief, since the enhancement of his sentence merited punishment being assessed only as a second-degree felony, which carries a maximum sentence of not more than 20 years in prison.

Culver in Austin to check state Medicaid status

Midland County Judge Barbara Culver is in Austin today and Friday to meet with other prominent Texans to evaluate the state Medicaid program.

The group is a task force headed by W. Marvin Watson of Daingerfield, former U. S. Postmaster General.

They will study the Medicaid program and make recommendations to the Welfare Board as to whether Medicaid can continue to operate at present elevated cost levels and remain within the constraints of recently lowered federal financial participation and apparent Legislative intent to hold the line on state expenditures.

Some 680,000 Texans are eligible for Medicaid, which is administered through the Department of Public Welfare (DPW). The program, which provides health care for the low-income Texans, has a budget of $734 million for medical services for the

The scope of Medicaid makes DPW the largest provider of health care in Texas.

Governor Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker of the House Bill Clayton will address the opening session of the task force today. Briscoe's wife Janey will serve in the group.

The 46 members of the task force will report to the Board of Public Welfare in March on recommendations for reducing or altering Medicaid ser-
