Carter requests spirit of unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a soft Georgia accent, uttering the simple oath set out in the Constitution, Jimmy Carter came to power today and promised a government "both competent and compassionate."

Carter's first words as President were words of thanks to Gerald R. Ford for all he has done to heal the nation.

Amid applause that swelled to cheers, Carter paused to shake hands with the man he had just succeeded. Then he spoke of the future:

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are," said the President who leads America into its third century.

"Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust... let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath to the former governor of Georgia at two minutes past the appointed hour of noon.

"Congratulations," he said, as the transfer of power was concluded in the oath as old as the Republic, and a 21-gun salute boomed from Army cannon on the Capitol grounds. Carter stood, first solemn, then with a momentary smile on his lips, as the strains of "Hail to the Chief" sounded in salute.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was sworn in first, his oath administered by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

A crowd estimated by Capitol police at 150,000 stretched across the plaza before the inaugural stand.

Carter's inaugural address was a brief one — 12 minutes.

The inauguration, said Carter, "marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all." While a president may sense and proclaim that new spirit, he said, "only a people can provide it."

It was a promise to govern with compassion in partnership with the American people.

With the oath to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States," James Earl Carter of Plains, Ga., became America's 39th President.

Carter said he had no new dream to put before the American people but urged "a fresh faith in the old dream."

Though little more than 1,000 words long, the speech had a ringing quality and made these points:

"We are a strong nation and we will maintain strength so sufficient that it need not be proved in combat — a quiet strength based not merely on the size of an arsenal, but on the nobility of ideas."

"We will be ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice, for those are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshaled."

As he repeated the oath, Carter's hand rested on an ancient family Bible open to the admonition from the prophet Micah "to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

When his time as president is done, Carter said, he hopes people will say the nation remembered the words of Micah "and renewed our search for humility, mercy and justice."

He hoped, too, for a legacy of finding work for the unemployed, strengthening the American family, ensuring respect for the law and equal treatment under it.

"I would hope," said Carter, "that the nations of the world might say that we had built a lasting peace... These are not just my goals, but our common hopes."

For Carter, it was the beginning of what once seemed an impossible dream. He began as an outsider, a man virtually unknown outside his home state, challenging the political establishment.

For Ford, it was a leave-taking from the government he had served nearly half his 63 years, the last 2 1/4 as a president elected by no one. He had sought today's swearing-in ceremony for himself, but, failing to win election, directed full cooperation to smooth the new administration's way.

In that spirit, the departing 38th president and the incoming 39th paused for coffee in the White House before riding together to the Capitol in a display of unity and continuity.

With them were their wives, each a

'We can be stronger...'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a text of President-elect Carter's inaugural address:

For myself and our nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land.

In this outward and physical ceremony we attest once again to the inner and spiritual strength of our nation.

As my high school teacher, Miss Julia Coleman, used to say, "We must adjust to changing times and still hold to unchanging principles."

Here before me is the Bible used in the inauguration of our first President in 1789, and I have just taken my own oath of office on the Bible my mother gave me a few years ago, opened to a timeless admonition from the ancient prophet Micah:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Micah 6:8)

This inauguration ceremony marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all. A President may sense and proclaim that new spirit, but only a people can provide it.

Two centuries ago our nation's birth was a milestone in the long quest for freedom, but the bold and brilliant dream which excited the founders of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.

Ours was the first society openly to define itself in terms of both spirituality and of human liberty. It is that unique self-definition which has given us an exceptional appeal — but it also imposes on us a special obligation — to take on those moral duties which, when assumed, seem invariably to be in our own best interests.

You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are. Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Your strength can compensate for my

Missing pen brings tear to eye

"Super, man, super!" candidly declared Charlie Welch, as if he were riding high in the saddle and ahead of a dust storm.

He seemed mightily pleased with all the goings-on around him.

"Now, that's the best," he said. Super.

"The livestock show is excellent. The quality of the livestock is extra good," Welch opined, as youngsters were showing their know-how in judging the beef cattle, swine and lamb at the Midland County Livestock Show this week.

Things never looked better or brighter — to hear Welch talk.

But all too soon, he was sort of moaning and groaning.

The world suddenly looked dismal in the exhibit barn that was filled with dust, carpeted with a livestock litter called sand, and almost echoing with baas, moos, squeals, and honks.

Welch, the county commissioner, livestock hound and water-well

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

digger, had "lost" his fancy writing pen. Some youngster borrowed it for another, who needed to make his marks in the livestock judging contest.

Time passed on by, and the gold-tinted ballpoint pen had not been returned to the man's shirt pocket.

Quite understandably, Welch was concerned. More than just a fine writing instrument, the pen was a gift from a friend, namely, Bud Lea, president of the Midland County

Livestock Association.

Only recently, Welch, because he prized the pen, had his name, "C. R. Welch," inscribed in italic lettering on the writing tool.

He didn't want lose it.

Hope strode up in the form of Jim Crowder, a Midland banker, who was chairman of the show's livestock judging contest.

His breath flowed into the public-address microphone, and his voice filled the dusty air.

"Will the person that borrowed Charlie Welch's pen bring it back?" Crowder spoke.

"He's got a tear in his eye."

Faster than a speeding wild horse could gallop across town (or twice around the barn), the pen was back in good ol' Welch's pocket.

Super, Charlie Welch was riding high again.

Energy agency forecast grim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration is greeting incoming President Carter with a grim forecast of tight energy supplies and rising prices for years to come.

In a report issued Wednesday, the energy agency predicted a near doubling of residential fuel costs by 1985 as a result of inflation and real energy cost increases.

The outlook beyond that may be even worse, the report warned.

The FEA says the world's demand for oil will bump up against the limits of its production capacity in the mid or late 1980s. That supply-demand collision is likely to spark even steeper price increases.

The report's relatively good news was that U.S. energy demand was expected to increase more slowly than previously predicted, a trend that will make it easier to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

Compared with a historic growth rate of about 3.3 per cent a year before the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, U.S. energy consumption was predicted to rise at about 2.5 per cent a year, slightly lower than last year's 2.8 per cent forecast.

The FEA said the slower growth is due to the combination of energy conservation measures and fuel price increases.

John Christie, assistant administrator for energy information and analysis, said in an interview that the FEA is assuming continued inflation ranging from last year's 5.6 per cent down to 4 per cent by 1985, forcing energy prices up a total of 58.4 per cent by then.

Regardless of inflation, the FEA estimated, residential energy prices will reflect annual real cost increases of about 3 per cent if imported oil prices rise by 2 per cent. That alone would cause the 1976 residential energy bill to grow more than 30 per cent by 1985.

Taken together, inflation and real cost increases may add nearly 89 per cent by 1985 to the size of the residential energy bill — including purchase of natural gas, fuel oil, electricity and motor gasoline.

If Congress ends regulation of interstate natural gas prices, the FEA said, the cost of residential gas may reach some 37.5 per cent higher by 1985 than if regulation at present rates continued.

More realistically, even regulated rates would probably increase. The Federal Power Commission has a policy of reviewing them every two years and adopted substantial increases just last year.

Either way, said Christie, householders using natural gas for heating, hot water, cooking, or air conditioning will take the brunt of natural gas price hikes.

Looking further into the future, the FEA said that "by the mid-to-late-1980's projected world demand for oil could approximately equal the world's production capacity, and produce pressures for increases in world oil prices."

Weather strangling energy use

By The Associated Press

Despite a letup in subzero temperatures, the current cold spell is putting mounting strain on generating plants, gas pipelines and water traffic in the eastern two-thirds of the nation.

Hundreds of thousands of workers and school children were staying home as factories and schools remained closed to conserve fuel.

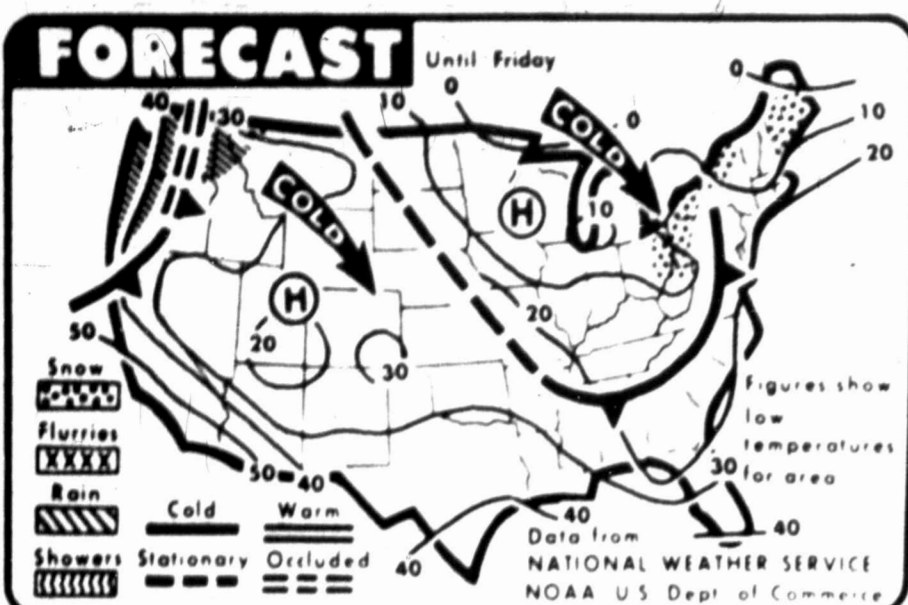

Oranges froze on trees in Florida and fishermen were kept off the frozen Chesapeake Bay. A 160-mile stretch of the frozen northern Mississippi River was officially closed, stranding hundreds of barges and towboats — many of them carrying fuel supplies.

Temperatures were still cold throughout the region, with little change expected today.

In Miami, snow flurries fell Wednesday for the first time since the National Weather Service began keeping records in the 1880s. The afternoon high was a chilly 47 degrees

Ford Cabinet members bid adieu

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were no crises to defuse and no last-minute decisions to make. In the end, for President Ford's Cabinet, there was only one final deadline: They had to leave office by noon.

Immediately after Jimmy Carter's inauguration as president, the Senate planned to confirm their Democratic successors.

From Henry Kissinger's tearful farewell to Edward Levi's security debriefing and David Mathews' packing his household effects, the Ford administration wended down Wednesday for today's finale.

Most of the 11 members of Ford's Cabinet were to join Ford and his staff at a farewell breakfast today in the White House. Some planned to join the crowds on Capitol Hill to witness Carter's swearing in.

But not Carla Hills, the secretary of Housing and Urban Development, or Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson.

The 43-year-old attorney plans to spend the rest of her day at home with her children, parents and husband.

Roderick, the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Richardson, 56, who held four Cabinet posts and was ambassador to Great Britain during the past seven years, said he was going home to clean out his basement.

David Mathews, 41, the outgoing secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, didn't wait. He stayed home Wednesday to pack for his move back to the University of Alabama, where he reassumes the presidency.

Treasury Secretary William Simon stole a march on everyone. He began a month-long vacation in Hawaii five days ago.

Simon, 49, reportedly is considering returning to the Wall Street bond brokerage firm he left in 1972 when he joined the government.

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi took almost no notice that Wednesday was his final full day in office. Levi, 65, who is taking a trip down Egypt's Nile River and expects to return to the University of Chicago next fall, had several routine appointments and received a 30-minute security debriefing, which is routine for all departing government workers who had access to classified documents.

But most of his peers set aside Wednesday for their farewells.

Henry Kissinger overslept following a party at the White House. The secretary of State, who is expected to make a fortune by selling his memoirs, spent the afternoon shaking hands with hundreds of State Department employees who filed through his office.

At day's end, he delivered a tearful farewell to several hundred persons who crowded the department's flag-bedecked lobby.

"I want to tell you how much it has meant to me," said Kissinger. "I'll never forget you." One employee watched Kissinger's limousine pull away and commented, "It's like touching a piece of history."

Like several other Cabinet members and President Ford himself, Kissinger plans to spend some time in the groves of academia. He will lecture at Georgetown University in the spring.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld received a full-dress farewell salute at the Pentagon on Wednesday, then received the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, from Ford at a ceremony in the Oval Office.

Reeves County judge takes PBRPC helm

By LARRY SUTHERLAND

ODESSA — Reeves County Judge H. Darrell Glover was elected chairman of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Wednesday at the semi-annual general membership meeting of PBRPC.

The election also saw more than 150 members attending from the 15-county region choose Norborn Sikes, Monahans, vice chairman, and Peggy Garner, Upton County, secretary-treasurer.

Reagan Legg, trustee of Midland College, was chosen to represent school districts and colleges on the board of directors.

At the board meeting following the general membership meeting, several committee appointments were made. Bryan Henderson, public works director of Odessa, was chosen chairman of Regional Development Review Committee. This committee reviews and comments on government grant applications concerning physical facilities.

Four new members on the Alcoholism Advisory Committee are Anne McBeth, Andrews, and Gayland

Hurst, Rev. Hugh Magers and Bill Lee, all from Ector County.

Ebon Warner was appointed to the Human Resources Advisory Committee.

Representing Midland County were County Judge Barbara Culver and Commissioners Charles Welch and Winfree Brown. City Manager James Brown and Municipal Court Judge William Ahders represented the City of Midland.

Ernie Crawford, executive director of PBRPC, described in detail some of the past five years' accomplishments of programs which the PBRPC had a role in bringing about.

The organization reviewed 366 grant application requests totaling $86.2 million during the past five years. Crawford said the review eliminated duplication, but did not approve or disapprove the requests. Most of the grant requests covered transportation, community development, criminal justice, health care and human resources.

Some of the projects PBRPC helped implement include establishing a Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy in 1973, completing a five-year plan outlining health care goals for the region, and acquisition of 13 emergency medical vehicles.

Angelo airman asks how he's outstanding

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Craig Johnson is the recipient of an award as the outstanding Chinese language student in his class as the Army's Defense Language Institute.

However, Spec 5 Johnson can neither read, write nor speak Chinese.

Johnson, from Branford, Conn., is one of 26 recruits who filed a class action suit against the U.S. Army charging fraud in the recruiting of cryptologists.

The recruits, who are continuing their training while an appeal of the suit's dismissal is pending in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in California, said their enlistment contracts assured them of training as interpreter-translators.

Johnson and 18 more of the plaintiffs in the suit are stationed at Goodfellow Air Force Base at San Angelo, location of the armed services' School of Applied Cryptologic Sciences.

Their training as "electronic warfare cryptologic interceptors" does not include a requirement to speak, read or write the foreign language, Johnson says.

A Pentagon spokesman said Wednesday the Army had no comment on the suit.

The 26 men and women recruits said in the suit they were encouraged to enlist because of the opportunity to become an "interpreter-translator."

What they learned in class was not what they were promised, they allege.

"We were forbidden to speak the foreign language in class," said Andrew Toler of Richmond, Va., who completed the Defense Language Institute course in Russian with honors.

Toler could not reply to the question "How are you?" in Russian, although he said he could construct a sentence "with the aid of a dictionary."

Toler said he still likes the Army, despite the misrepresentation.

"I love the Army — the Spartan life appeals to me," he said. "I like serving my country."

The suit, filed July 1 in San Francisco, alleges the Army allowed recruits to sign people up for a specialty that is non-existent.

Ector officials arrest trio on marijuana charge

ODESSA — Two Odessa men and a woman remain in the Odessa city jail following an early morning raid Wednesday which netted 265 pounds of marijuana.

Israel Valasquez is in the Odessa jail in lieu of $100,000 bond this morning as is Manuel Madrano on $40,000 bond and Delma Moreno also on $40,000 bond. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Police said the trio arrested following a stake-out in west

Ector County where a substance believed to be marijuana was transferred from one car to another about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The seized contraband would conservatively sell wholesale for $26,000, police said.

Officers from the Department of Public Safety, the Ector County sheriff's office and the Odessa Police Department participated in the arrests.

DEATHS

Extended Texas forecast

Saturday through Monday
 North Texas: Mostly fair Saturday through Monday. Warm Saturday. Cooler Sunday and Monday. Highest temperatures lower 30s to mid 30s. Lowest temperatures upper 20s to near 40.
 South Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and mild. Highest temperatures to the low 30s to the low 70s. Lowest temperatures in the high 30s north-west to the low 30s south.
 West Texas: No significant threat of precipitation Saturday through Monday. Turning cooler over the weekend. Warming trend first of the week. Highs mostly 50s except 60s extreme southwest. Lows mostly 30s and low 30s.

New Mexico, Oklahoma

Oklahoma: Fair and mild today Friday. Highs Friday upper 40s to upper 50s. Lows Friday 20s to 30s. Highs Saturday upper 50s to upper 60s. Lows Saturday 20s to 30s. Highs Sunday upper 50s to upper 60s. Lows Sunday 20s to 30s.
New Mexico: Cloudy with increasing cloudiness east tonight. Friday mostly cloudy a little cooler and showers develop in south central mountain and southwest. Highs Friday mostly 40s and 50s. Lows tonight 1 to 20 mountains and southwest 20s and low 30s elsewhere.

Weathermen foresee clouds, warmer marks

Many Midlanders faced the day through heavily frosted windshields this morning, after an overnight low of 27, but the weatherman said tonight should not be so cold.

Increasing cloudiness and not so cold tonight is the official word from the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Friday should be partly cloudy and mild, a spokesman said.

The low tonight should be in the mid-30s. The high Friday should be near 60.

Winds should be from the west and southwest at 5 to 15 mph tonight.

Throughout the Midland area, cities reported generally clear to partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer weather.

Andrews reported 26 degrees at 7 a.m., with partly cloudy skies and no wind.

Lamesa was clear and calm, with about 30 degrees at 8 a.m. Crane was partly cloudy with a slight breeze.

Rankin was frosty early this morning with thin clouds and a slight breeze later in the morning.

Big Lake also was frosty and partly cloudy with no wind. Odessa was cold, "but not as cold as it has been," partly cloudy and still.

Dust-churning winds subsided in other areas of West Texas during the night and a sharp norther was dying down along the Texas coast today, the Associated Press said.

Aside from some high clouds in the extreme west, skies were generally clear and further warming was promised across the state.

Lack of cloud cover permitted temperatures to drop to freezing or below again at many points, but the early morning marks were noticeably more comfortable than 24 hours earlier.

Police check 7 incidents of vandalism

Police are investigating seven reported incidents of vandalism to automobiles Wednesday night in the city's north side.

Damage was estimated at $475 to the cars after windows were broken, apparently with an air rifle, between 10:47 p.m. and

Billy same 'good old boy' despite brother's title

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter, a beer can in hand and a wide grin on his face, is getting acquainted with the city his older brother will dominate for the next four years. But Billy, visiting Washington for the first time, seems unimpressed by his new status, the people who kowtow to him and the trappings surrounding the incoming president. He brought a tuxedo to wear to the inaugural parties tonight, but he was dressed in a blue denim leisure suit when he arrived aboard a chartered jet from Georgia on Wednesday for five days of partying. As the bus carrying his group passed the White House, he was asked whether he would stay overnight there before returning to his peanut warehouse and gas station in Plains.

Jack, Chip and Jeff — and their wives. The scene was chaotic on the ninth floor Wednesday afternoon, with Carter children running back and forth and Chip, 26, trying to help his family and friends figure out what parties they were going to and at what time. On Wednesday night, with temperatures in the low 20s, Billy Carter emerged coatless from his suite with his wife, Sybil, to attend several private parties and the inauguration eve gala at the Kennedy Center. Billy said he enjoys his brother's glory, but he's sorry to see him leave the little Georgia town where they both grew up. "I hated to see him get the damn job, but I'm glad for him that he won," he said at the airport shortly after he arrived. "I just hate to lose him." Billy Carter will continue to run the Carter peanut warehouse and his gas station in Plains.

SW Bell loses effort to void reduced hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has lost its attempt to void a rate increase smaller than it requested and now must decide whether to ask for a stay, and risk the temporary loss even of the smaller hike, or follow the slower normal appeal procedure. State District Judge Jim Meyer said Wednesday, "I have decided that the (public utility) commission position with respect to the matter is correct. Contrary to what Bell argued, I do not believe the appeal automatically voided the order."

The next move will be up to Bell, Meyer said. The commission granted a $57.8 million rate increase for Bell. But Bell had requested $296.8 million, and it sought a temporary injunction, continuing the commission's order was so low it amounted to confiscation of Bell's property. The law creating the commission provides for injunctions in confiscation cases. Bell lawyers said the company was entitled to charge any rate it wanted during the appeal so long as it posted a bond large enough to handle refunds in the event it lost the appeal.

Meyer said Bell may decide now to ask for a stay, pending appeal, but this may mean the old rate will remain in effect, thus denying Bell even the $57.8 million while the appeal is being pressed. Gen. John Hill said last week that option was the only one open to the company.

Clayton to cull House bills today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Speaker Bill Clayton planned to play catch up today with the more than 600 bills filed in the House. While senators remained in adjournment for Jimmy Carter's presidential inauguration, the House met at 9 a.m., mainly so Clayton could refer bills to the committees that will kill them or keep them alive for floor action. "We hope to catch up," he said before Wednesday's adjournment. Two bills of more than passing interest were introduced Wednesday. Rep. Sam Hudson, a black Dallas lawyer who has a client on death row, introduced legislation to repeal the death penalty. "I don't think anyone should kill anyone, including the state. It makes this a hypocritical situation. The better remedy would be to send a person to the pen for the rest of his life without parole," Hudson said. Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, said he opposes repeal and voted for the death penalty law four years ago. "I haven't had a lot of groundswell support (for repeal) and I don't believe the members of the committee have had a lot of groundswell support for it," Nabers said. Hudson defended Ronald Chambers of Dallas, who was sentenced to death in the slaying of a Texas Tech student on a Trinity River levee. "My client is not guilty as far as I am concerned," Hudson said. "The chance you take of frying an innocent man argues against the state killing anyone." Three House members introduced a bill to repeal the "blue law" that prohibits merchants from selling more than 40 categories of items on both Saturdays and Sundays. Reps. Craig Washington, D-Houston; John Hoestenbach, D-Odessa; and Henry Allee, D-Houston, said it is "ridiculous that a person can buy beer on Sunday but not a baby bottle."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe submitted his $16.2 billion recommended budget Wednesday. It deleted funds for the welfare department, youth council and Governor's Committee on Aging, merging them into a $2.4 billion Texas Department of Human Resource. "It sounds like it's going to be too big an agency to me," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan.

Check and balance (?)

The genius of the American Constitution is that it vests power in three branches of government which serve as a check and balance on one another.

Not long ago there was talk of an "imperial presidency," the gathering of too much power in the executive branch.

Now we're hearing of an "imperial judiciary," the usurping of legislative or administrative functions by the courts.

A Boston judge has assumed the powers of an elected school board to dictate how the city shall integrate its schools.

Judges have overruled elected or appointed state officials to mandate changes in the administration of jails, prisons and hospitals. The California Supreme Court has just ordered a fundamental change in the way public schools are to be financed.

The courts, rather than legislative bodies, are now having the most to say about such controversial issues as abortion and the death penalty.

We hesitate to put all the responsibility for this state of affairs on a power-grabbing judiciary. If judges are going too far in trying to remodel society, it's due in part to failure by other branches of government to satisfy demands for political and social reform.

When citizens flock to the courts with their grievances, they often believe, rightly or wrongly, that they can get no satisfaction through the normal political process.

So, while some judges are going overboard in their exercise of judicial power, the root of the problem doesn't lie with them. It lies with legislative bodies that are not responsive to the public will, that pass ambiguous laws and dodge difficult issues.

We'll face the excessive power of an "imperial judiciary" only so long as the other branches of our representative government cede such power to the courts through their own default.

A 'brave' minister

The throwing of pies at the face of the minister is being encouraged in the First Christian Church of West Salem, Ill.

And the young minister, the Rev. Randy Whitehead, terms it "a contest to get more contact with Christ."

"And I'm going to bake the pies myself," he added. "The only shot I can call is what kind they'll be."

We would hesitate to say just what response Midland ministers would get to such an invitation, or just how well such a program would be accepted here, but chances are that some preachers attract some pie-throwers. Mr. Whitehead explains that the program was launched after he became concerned about the number of young people who aren't churchgoers.

So, recently he started a youth program called "God Squad." Its purpose primarily is to get young people strengthened in Christ. The squad is made up of three age groups, ranging from 10 to 18.

Announcement of the program was said to have been greeted with considerable enthusiasm.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Cuban says CIA asked his help

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency asked one of its Cuban operatives to help fabricate a story about Lee Harvey Oswald during the investigation of the John F. Kennedy assassination.

In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed.

He identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely.

He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked."

The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years made a strange request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cuban couple in Mexico.

The CIA agent said, "Why don't you just ask him, saying we'll bribe him, if he said it was really him that Oswald met."

It isn't clear from the confidential transcripts why the CIA would want to fabricate this evidence. Perhaps the CIA could have sought to tie Kennedy's killer to the Castro government.

In any event, the CIA agent called off the scheme, and Mr. X "never did talk to his cousin," according to a summary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicated the CIA in the Kennedy killing.

The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes.

The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a barooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches.

Not only do women become prostitutes for the same underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling.

For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand."

The study also dispels old wives' tales about "fallen women," who sell sex because they hate men or have abnormal sex drives or are forced into the business by "the coercion of brutal pimps."

Customers who expect to find true love for their money can forget it. Yet prostitutes who develop relationships after business hours tend to have a better love life than non-prostitutes, according to a study cited by the authors.

Finally, Dr. James and Ms. Meyerling reached the clinical conclusion that "all women must somehow come to terms with the fact that their personal value is often considered as inseparable from their sexual value."

NICK THIMMESCH

Recantation by Cyrus Vance a big mistake

WASHINGTON — The Democrats brought us the Vietnam ordeal; and now that they are in power again, the cold warriors among them try to wipe the slate clean by recanting for their Hawkishness of a decade ago.

This grand exercise in mea culpa reached a high point here last week when Cyrus Vance, President Carter's choice for secretary of state, admitted his grievous error one day, and 48 hours later there was William E. Colby, once the CIA's tough guy in Vietnam, arguing in print for reconciliation with the Hanoi regime.

Colby, who retired as CIA director in early 1976, is not looking for work, only a sense of perspective. It was Vance who responded to pointed questioning by Sen. George McGovern during the confirmation hearings.

Sen. McGovern remarked that he voted against confirming Dr. Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state because of Kissinger's Hawkish views on the war, so why should he vote for Vance who once held the same views? Vance replied that "it was a mistake to intervene in Vietnam," apparently hoping the answer would satisfy McGovern and other antiwar senators.

If it was a mistake, then did the 50,000 Americans who died there give up their lives in a vain enterprise? And if Vance, who was the Hawkish No. 2 man at Defense in the Johnson Administration, really believes U.S. intervention was a mistake, was it necessary for him to announce this to the world?

Nick Thimmesch

Some students of the Vietnam period could argue that it wasn't intervention which was wrong, it was the way the United States conducted the war — the fits and starts, the lack of direction and weak will to settle it militarily. In a word, the Vietnam mission was botched by civilian policy makers, not by the military.

These students would debate Vance that intervention was a mistake. But their opposites certainly must have appreciated hearing Vance confess to McGovern that "I know I made more than my share of mistakes." After all, Vance had spoken with eloquence in public in defense of the war and, back at the Pentagon, had pushed for more intensive bombing of the North Vietnamese.

But now, being the gentleman he is, Vance was disposed to go beyond Sen. McGovern's question and recite the lessons that the United States learned from Vietnam. Vance's explanation of why we were wrong, offered in 1977, sounded an awful lot like what McGovern and others were arguing back in 1968.

Vance's supplication was not total. He would not agree with Sen. McGovern that the Johnson Administration hoked up a story about

North Vietnamese aggressiveness to get Congress to pass the Gulf of Tonkin resolution — the 1964 "green light" for the Johnson White House to wage bigger war.

But in denying this sort of chicanery, Vance was also backing his old friend, Robert S. McNamara, who, as defense secretary, had pushed for the first bombing of North Vietnam. This is all suggestive of the Nuremberg Trials, in terms of confession and then mitigated guilt.

If Vance believes the revisionism, what is he, as the new secretary of state, telling the world? Is he saying that the pledge of President Kennedy for the United States to hold the torch of freedom high, no matter the price or pain, is also revised? Are we ashamed that we tried to preserve South Vietnam's imperfect government (it was still the most democratic in Southeast Asia) and protect the lives of its people? Are there other small nations in a world where democracy seems to be going out of business that might become cynical about the United States?

As for Colby, the man who dealt in what he regarded as necessary programs of murder, he believes that the South and North Vietnamese suffered far more than we did (and he is right), and therefore, whatever the sins of both sides (and of the United States), the goal now should be to bind the wounds and make Vietnam whole. This is not cold warrior talk, but neither is it recantation.

However honest and high-minded Colby might be on this score, it might be difficult for Americans to summon enough compassion for the North Vietnamese to support large-scale aid for the economic mess which is the

ART BUCHWALD Nodding acquaintance with Jimmy recalled

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Everyone these days seems to ask me the same question, "How well do you know Jimmy Carter?" I'd be stretching the truth if I said I knew him real well. It's true our family lived a few miles down the road from Jimmy in Plains, Ga., and we both went to the same grammar and high schools. But he sat a couple of rows away from me and I never saw much of him except after school when we used to go fishing together.

One day I said to Jimmy, "What do you want to do when you grow up?" and he said, "I want to go to Annapolis and become a naval officer." I said, "What a coincidence, so do I!" So we both applied. I got the appointment, but I told him I wouldn't accept it unless they took Jimmy as well. Since they wanted me for the football team they relented and allowed as Jimmy could go too.

Jimmy and I were roommates at the naval academy and one day I introduced him to a lovely girl named Rosalyn Smith. They fell in love and were later to marry, which pleased me to no end.

After leaving the academy Jimmy and I went our separate ways until we both found ourselves in the nuclear submarine program. Jimmy was given command of a sub, and I was his executive officer. One stormy night he was on the bridge and a big wave came along and washed him overboard. I jumped over the side, without a life jacket, and grabbed him. "Hold on, Jimmy," I told him. "Have faith and we will be saved." I held his chin with one hand and swam back to the sub with the other. After we were back in the wardroom Jimmy said to me, "I don't know how to thank you. You saved my life."

I remember replying, "Forget it. You would have done the same for me. Besides, us Georgia boys have to stick together."

Jimmy decided to leave the Navy about the same time I did. He wanted to go back to his peanut farm and build it up from scratch. I had a little money I had saved in the Navy and I lent it to him: interest-free. "Someday you can pay me back," I told him.

Then after making a success of the peanut business he had the urge to go into politics. One day after Sunday school he told me he wanted to run for governor of Georgia. Jimmy was bitter about Georgia's backward stand on race, and he had no use for the political machine that had been running things down there for centuries.

I got together a group of far sighted Southern businessmen and labor leaders and persuaded them that Carter could turn Georgia and the South around. We worked hard but we got Jimmy into the governor's mansion — something none of us ever regretted.

I lost touch for a few years, but one day I ran into Jimmy in a supermarket in New Hampshire. "Whatcha doing up here?" I asked him.

"Running for President of the United States. Nobody believes I can do it," Jimmy said. "I'm thinking of giving up."

"I believe you can do it," I told him. I talked to several friends of mine, and we raised enough money to back Jimmy in the primaries in Florida and Ohio. I always stayed in the background but every night, no matter how late, Jimmy called and asked me what he should say the next day.

I helped him with the debates and I talked to him about campaign strategy, but I can't say I won the election for him. Jimmy did that himself, and I'd be the first one to admit it.

It comes as no surprise to me that this week we're going to swear in Jimmy Earl Carter as our President. I saw it early ago when as kids we were whitewashing a fence and he had that strange look in his eye as if to say, "I'm not going to be doing this for the rest of my life."

So when people ask me if I know Jimmy Carter I have to say, "I've met him once or twice. He seems like a nice person." If Jimmy wants to admit we know each other better than that, I think it's up to him to say so, not me.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

1. That very important article to humanity, a mirror, is first mentioned in Exodus 38:8. It was put at the door of the tabernacle, so women could take a look before "going to meeting." We can all feel reasonably sure that the men took a look too. Of what was it made?

2. In the Apocrypha there is a reference to mirror in Wisdom 7:26 which says "the unspotted mirror of God's majesty, and the image of his goodness." What does James 1:23 say about a man's reflected image in a glass?

'Tokyo Rose' glad to have country after pardon

CHICAGO (AP) — "Now I have a government to protect me," said Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was cleared by President Ford of treason for her "Tokyo Rose" broadcasts after living for nearly three decades as a woman without a country.

"After all these years, it's hard for me to believe that it's all over and the pardon is really true," said Mrs. D'Aquino, a slight, 60-year-old Japanese-American woman whose voice was known to millions of World War II servicemen.

Mrs. D'Aquino, who spent more than six years in prison but consistently maintained her broadcasts did no harm to the Allied cause, had lost two previous bids for a presidential pardon. The pardon restores all her forfeited rights, including citizenship.

Now working as a shopkeeper in her family's gift store on Chicago's North Side, she spoke at a hastily called news conference Wednesday after announcement of the pardon, one of Ford's last acts in office.

As Iva Toguri, a native of Los Angeles and a UCLA graduate, she had just passed her 25th birthday in July 1941 when she sailed for Japan to care for a sick aunt. Because of her hurried departure, she failed to obtain a U.S. passport and was stranded in Tokyo when the war began after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

She described those years as "living hell."

Because she refused to give up her U.S. citizenship, she was considered an "enemy alien" and, without a food ration card, found it difficult to live even at subsistence levels.

In August 1943, she took a part-time job as typist at Radio Tokyo. Three months later, Japanese officials ordered her to take part in the English-language program aimed at demoralizing U.S. troops.

She agreed, she contends, only after imprisoned officers convinced her she could actually help the Allies, by voicing subtle absurdities which the Japanese wouldn't understand. Those officers testified on her behalf at her 1949 San Francisco trial for treason.

The only one of 14 women who were on Radio Tokyo's "Zero Hour" program accused of treason, she was held without trial for two years, convicted on one of nine counts, sent to jail and fined $10,000.

"I only mouthed the things that were written by the Allied prisoners of war," she said Wednesday. "If you can find any propaganda material in that, I will give up the citizenship I gained back today."

In Washington, California Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, one of many who felt Mrs. D'Aquino was victimized by postwar anti-Japanese sentiment, said she had "remained loyal to the United States despite the States treated her unjustly."

Doctors minimizing heart disorders

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Disorders that cause a person's heart to slow, speed dangerously or otherwise lose its steady rhythm are being treated in laboratories where doctors can turn the rhythm changes on and off at will.

As a result, the sometimes long process of finding a suitable drug or other solution to the problem is often dramatically shortened.

News from the research front in the field of cardiac arrhythmias, as the disorders are collectively known, was reported at the American Heart Association Science Writers Forum that ended Wednesday.

Described by Dr. Kenneth M. Rosen of the medical school at the University of Illinois, the new methods of diagnosis and treatment involve the natural electrical network that controls the sequential beating of different chambers of the heart.

In principal, it is like the electrical system of a car, which uses a distributor to send electrical impulses to the spark plugs in a certain order. But like a car, the heart can have timing problems that throw the firing sequence out of whack.

Persons who suffer from these conditions, which include tachycardia (excessively fast heartbeat), palpitation (attacks of a pounding heart beat), heart block (interference with the transmission of the electrical impulse), may have symptoms of and on for years. Ordinary examinations such as electrocardiograms often don't detect the problem because they are made at a time when the heartbeat is normal.

In such cases, said Rosen, the arrhythmia can now be brought on with the patient in a laboratory. Wire-like catheters passed through a vein into the heart are used to spark the abnormal rhythm in the heart, so physicians can see just when and where it occurs.

"If we can reproduce the rhythm, we can control it," said Rosen. Though it might seem likely to scare a patient, Rosen said the technique generally reassures people who have intermittently suffered from an arrhythmia that has never occurred when doctors were looking for it.

One frequent cause of these conditions is that the impulse traveling through the heart reaches an area where instead of passing through the

Smoking dangers repeated

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Children whose fathers smoke at least 10 cigarettes a day run a higher risk of dying at birth than babies of nonsmokers, German researchers say.

If the father is a heavy smoker, there is also a greater risk that the child will be born deformed, the German Research Society said in an eight-year study. It said there were indications that male sperm was damaged by excessive use of nicotine.

The government-subsidized group, whose 40 members represent universities, scientific academies and research institutes, said 4 per cent of the children of non-smoking mothers and smoking fathers died just before, during or shortly after birth, compared with 2.9 per cent when both parents were non-smokers.

The institute also said it had studied 14,774 women and found it unlikely that infant death at or near birth was increased by "passive smoking" by the expectant mother breathing her husband's smoke.

Researchers found that in extreme cases of morning sickness, odds might favor the birth of a girl. The ratio for the entire study group was 107 boys to 100 girls, but the ratio for women complaining of intense nausea was 93 boys to 100 girls, the report said.

A spokesman for the society said that although U.S. researchers had suspected a link between a father's smoking and the health of his offspring, the German study provided the first conclusive evidence on the matter.

The society's study began in 1964 after a rash of birth defects were blamed on mothers' taking the tranquilizer Thalidomide during pregnancy.

Among other conclusions of the report: — Morning sickness may be a good sign for pregnant women. "Without these complaints, miscarriages are frequent."

— Excessive consumption of coffee by mothers often caused underweight newborn children as did smoking by mothers. Tea and soft drinks had no negative effects.

Heading the cast of Texas Opera Theater's new production of "The Marriage of Figaro" are talented young singers Maryanne Telese as Susanna and Eric Halfvorson as Figaro. The Mozart opera will have a performance in Midland a week from tonight.

TOT's 'Figaro' coming to town

Texas Opera Theater, the Southwest's only professional operatic touring company, raises the curtain on its brand-new production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" tonight in Galveston's historic Opera House.

performance of "Figaro" in Midland High School auditorium. The performance is being sponsored by Midland Community Concerts Association.

with its goal of taking quality, English-language operatic productions "to the people" throughout the state, the company has been described as one of Texas' most valuable cultural assets.

During March and April, TOT will tour to Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming under auspices of the Western States Arts Foundation.

"The Marriage of Figaro," one of the best-loved and most-often-performed operas in the world, will be sung in English in its TOT performances. The production is staged and directed by Rhoda Levine whose directing credits include productions for the Netherlands Opera and the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy. The TOT production is designed by company manager Terrel W. Miller. The lavish sets and costumes for the new production were made possible through a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation of Los Angeles.

Pivotal roles in TOT's "Figaro" will be sung by Eric Halfvorson as Figaro, Maryanne Telese as Susanna, Pamela Porter as the Countess Almaviva and Warren Ellsworth as the Count. Linda Kowalski will be in the "trouser role" of Cherubino.

Symposium features premiere of sonata

LUBBOCK — The 26th annual Symposium of Contemporary Music scheduled at Texas Tech University late this month will feature the world premiere of a new sonata for violin and piano by noted young American composer John Beall.

for Piano and Wind Orchestra, to be presented Jan. 27 with the composer's wife Carol Allen Beall as guest pianist, and a Texas Tech wind ensemble directed by Ron Dyer.

given presentations on Jan. 25, 27 and 28, and the composer will be heard in a special lecture titled "Creativity in Music."

A native of Belton, the 34-year-old Beall is professor of composition and electronic music at Eastern Illinois University. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Baylor University and a doctoral degree from the Eastman School of Music.

'Barefoot in the Park' at Hayloft in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Neil Simon's wildly funny comedy, "Barefoot in the Park," is having a series of preview performances at Lubbock's Hayloft Dinner Theater this week, prior to beginning its regular run Friday night.

"Barefoot in the Park," one of playwright Simon's most popular comedies, is fitted out with all-new staging and a sparkling new cast straight from Hollywood.

Bands' chili supper set

The Midland High School and Lee High School bands' annual chili supper and music festival will be from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 5 at Midland High School.

Money raised will be used for band camp scholarships and spring concert tours.

Mansion cast solid, but some rough spots

ODESSA — Tuesday night saw the long-awaited grand opening of The Mansion dinner theater.

If, as can be reasonably assumed, the key words in this ambitious new entertainment enterprise are "dinner" and "theater," then Tuesday's gala opener was not altogether successful.

Top cop defends TV, complains about it

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Chief Ed Davis defends television — and complains about it.

The top cop in the nation's third largest city is also the president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. And what he says is sometimes controversial.

some people without strong character can be influenced toward crime, he said.

"We're having young Mexican gang members kill one another. They're not seeing any of this on television... When I see the rampant use of dope on our high school campuses, there's very little dope usage shown on television.

Davis does have some criticism of television, which he says he rarely has time to watch.

still were kids at home, the chief said he wouldn't let them watch the new shows "glamorizing" homosexuals and "a lot of wife swapping."

But "I don't think you could take a very, very good person who has learned to love other human beings and has motivations to be good and show him all kinds of bad things, let's say about killing, and make a killer out of him."

The new work was commissioned by the TTU department of music for the symposium and will be performed publicly for the first time on Jan. 28 by Dr. James Barber, violinist, and Trudi Post, pianist. Both are members of the TTU music faculty.

Several other recent works by Beall also will be performed during the upcoming symposium. Included is his Concerto instrumental and vocal, and electronic music also will be featured in the symposium. Beall's compositions will be

Baird heads cast of operetta

FORT WORTH — Bass-baritone Edward Baird, well-known throughout North Texas as a solo artist and a featured singer in numerous past productions of the Fort Worth Opera, heads the cast of Fort Worth's upcoming production of "The Mikado." The comic operetta by the famous team of Gilbert and Sullivan will have performances at 8 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Tarrant County Convention Center theater. Subject to availability, tickets will be for sale at the theater box office in advance of each performance. "The Mikado" is Fort Worth Opera Association's second production of its current season and the first Gilbert and Sullivan work ever presented by the association. Joining Baird in featured roles in the production here will be New York soprano Annette Parker as Yum-Yum, a fair young maiden; New York Opera baritone James Billings as her guardian KoKo, who wishes to marry her; Metropolitan Opera tenor Jon Garrison, her sweetheart, and a host of others, including bass-baritone Richard McKee, baritone Thomas Jamerson, mezzo-soprano Claudia Catania, soprano Diana Kehrig and mezzo Nell Evans. "The Mikado" is staged and directed by Jack Eddleman. Rudolf Kruger, the Fort Worth Opera's general manager and musical director, will conduct the pair of performances.

Toys to be featured
DALLAS — Approximately 90,000 square feet of the World Trade Center will be devoted to the exhibition of toys, holiday decorations, hobbies and crafts during the 18th Annual Dallas Toy Show. The show is concentrated on the seventh floor of the World Trade Center. The Dallas Toy Show, the largest and most progressive regional toy show in the county, will feature more major lines of toys in permanent and temporary show areas which are concentrated on the seventh floor of the World Trade Center.

Musicians coming to Odessa

ODESSA — More than 70 young musicians from many parts of the nation will converge on Odessa this weekend to participate in the 15th annual National Young Artist Competition sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale. The competition, one of the most prestigious of its kind in the U.S., will begin Friday morning on the campus of Odessa College, continuing through that day and all day Saturday. Finals are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the college's main auditorium. The student musicians will be vying for $5,600 in prize money to be awarded to finalists, winners and performing winners in the competition. The prize money is given by Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noel of Odessa, and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bradford, Mrs. and Mrs. D. A. Ross and Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, all of Midland. In addition, the Beal Foundation of Midland annually makes a $2,500 grant to underwrite administrative expenses of the competition. The competition alternates yearly between Midland and Odessa. Students designated performing winners will return here to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony in its March concerts. There are two major divisions in the contest, college and secondary school. In the college division, there are 11 contestants in the strings category, 16 in woodwinds, 14 in piano and 21 in voice. The secondary schools division will have 10 contestants in strings category, two in woodwinds and four in piano. There is no vocal section in the secondary schools division. Youngest contestant in this year's event is Renita Kalhorn, 12, of Dubuque, Iowa. The City of Eugene, Ore., is the sponsor of the contest. Other contestants include Peter Orth, who will play during current Presidential inauguration festivities in Washington, D.C., before coming to Odessa. Permian Basin area students participating in the college division contest are Marty Connelly of Midland and Vicky Parr of Odessa. Adjudicating this year's National Young Artist Competition are Dr. Everett Gates of Rochester, N.Y., Janice Harsanyi of Winston-Salem, N.C., Jerome Renita Kalhorn, 12, of Dubuque, Iowa, Eugene Pridonoff of Tempe, Ariz., and Elsie Ludewig-Verdehr of Michigan.

'Magic Flute' next from Met

NEW YORK — Mozart's "Die Zauberflöte" (The Magic Flute) will continue the current series of Metropolitan Opera broadcasts when it is aired over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network Saturday afternoon. The performance will be heard over Station KCRS in Midland, Tex., among many other stations in the U.S. and Canada. The performance will begin at 12:30 p.m. (CST), concluding at approximately 3:48 p.m. Singing principal roles in Saturday's performance from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City will be soprano Benita Valente as Pamina, tenor Stuart Burrows as Tamino, bass Donald Gramm as Papageno, bass Paul Pliska as Sarastro, soprano Rita Shane as the Queen of the Night, baritone Morley Meredith as the High Priest and tenor Nico Castel as Monostatos. The performance will be conducted by James Conlon. The single intermission between the two acts of "Flute" will present a panel of Metropolitan artists in a "Singers' Roundtable." The panelists will be Regine Crespin, John Alexander, Donald Gramm and Sherrill Milnes.

Boston archbishop decries abortions

BOSTON (AP) — Decriing "the rapidly growing social policy of aborting the children of the poor," Humberto Cardinal Medeiros of Boston says better aid for the disadvantaged would reduce abortions. The archbishop of Boston also renewed the call by U.S. Catholic bishops for a constitutional amendment to provide "clear and unquestioned protection for unborn children." He made the comments in a pastoral letter published in the current issue of The Pilot, the archdiocesan newspaper. "For four years now — since the fateful abortion decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court on January 22, 1973 — the law of our land has denied unborn children their basic right to life," the cardinal said. "The unborn are victims of increasing discrimination and prejudice." Abortion is often justified because "it may be more expensive in the long run for society to allow a poor child to be born than to snuff out his or her life before birth," he said. "But if human dignity means anything, the rapidly growing social policy of aborting the children of the poor must be rejected." He called for better maternal and infant care as a way to fight abortion.

Dallas Theater Center doing 'Three Sisters'

DALLAS — Anton Chekhov's "Three Sisters" is currently onstage at Dallas Theater Center. The play, a portrait of life in pre-revolutionary Russia, will run through Feb. 12 in DTC's Kalita Humphreys Theater. Performances are at 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and at 4 and 8:30 p.m. each Saturday. DTC's production of the Chekhov classic is directed by Ken Lattimore and features DTC resident company members Norma Moore, Mary Rohde and Mona Pursley as the three sisters who long to escape their humdrum lives in a provincial Russian town to enjoy the excitement of Moscow. Other pivotal roles in the drama are assigned to John Figmliller, Robyn Flatt, Randolph Tallman, Ryland Merkey and Matt Tracy. "Three Sisters," which was first performed at the Moscow Art Theater in 1901, followed the playwright's "Uncle Vanya" (premiered in 1899) but preceded his "Cherry Orchard" which was first produced in 1904. Dallas Theater Center's production of "Three Sisters" is underwritten by the G.B. Dealey Foundation. Seat reservations for all performances may be made through the DTC box office, 214-526-8857.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

MEAL PLANNING FROM A FOOD AD

Study the weekly food ads for the best buys and build your menus around them. Keep in mind the basic four food groups to help make sure the meals provide proper nutrition. After checking your home shelves to see what you've already on hand to fit the menus, make a shopping list and head for the store. If you've any coupons to use, attach them to your shopping list so they won't be overlooked in your purse. At the store, stick to your list but keep flexible enough to take advantage of special in-store values and cents-off buys you can use. If your list is made up according to the store's layout, it will speed shopping time and may also avoid your overlooking some items on the list.

Plan to personally do as much of the meal preparation as you can. Convenience foods can be more expensive. However, there are exceptions. Many flour and pasta mixes cost less than those you make yourself. Frozen orange juice concentrate costs less than fresh-squeezed orange juice. It pays to make comparisons on the cost of convenience foods and the cost of home-prepared foods. Then let your budget and time saved help you decide the purchase for you.

Learn to use the unit price tags that show the per-measure cost of each item. If you can use the larger size, buy it and save money. If you'd let part of it go to waste, then by all means choose the smaller size even if the per-measure cost is a bit higher. In making your comparisons, be sure to check on the store brands because they often offer you a much better value than a national brand. In cases where appearance isn't so important, such as tomato bits and pieces for soup, a lower-priced brand is a good buy.

A good rule is to avoid shopping when you're hungry... it may lead to buying foods you don't really need. Early morning is a good time to shop because you can take your time in comparing items. Early evening is also a good time if you're employed out of the home.

Don't forget to take advantage of any leftovers in your menu planning. For instance, a little bit of leftover pork roast goes a long way in making a dish such as chow mein or chop suey.

Hesburgh marks 25 years as Notre Dame president

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Practicing the virtue of humility, the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh submits his resignation as president of the University of Notre Dame once a year.

But it hasn't been accepted yet and isn't likely to be accepted soon.

Now in his 25th year at the helm of the nation's best-known Catholic university, Father Hesburgh qualifies as dean of university presidents across the country.

"The cemeteries of the world are full of indispensable men and women, but somehow the world goes on. So does the world of colleges and universities," he said recently.

Still, while other university presidents have come and gone during the last quarter-century, Father Hesburgh remains in firm control at Notre Dame. And the 8,800-student university, once known almost exclusively for its football program, is now regarded as an academic institution of growing prestige.

So while Knute Rockne's reputation may still be alive on the 1,200-acre campus located incongruously in northern Indiana — a state where Catholics make up only 13 per cent of the population — so too are social science departments that were all but dormant before Father Hesburgh assumed control.

Perhaps that is why he dismisses with a puff on his pipe and a smile George Bernard Shaw's statement that "a Catholic university is a contradiction in terms." It just isn't so any longer, the Notre Dame president says.

Father Hesburgh, now 59, continues to earn plaudits in the field of education without shrinking from the public sector. He has served as chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights and the Overseas Development Council; as president of the Association of American Colleges; as the permanent Vatican City representative on the International Atomic Energy Agency; as a member of the Carnegie Commission on the Future of Higher Education and as a director of the Chase Manhattan Bank.

Father Hesburgh is not apologetic for his involvement outside the university. Nor has his outlook narrowed in the face of criticism.

During a recent interview with The Associated Press, for instance, he pointed with satisfaction to his work in some of the world's underdeveloped countries and to plans he and others have to formulate a public lobbying group to promote world peace.

During a speech commemorating his quarter-century as president of Notre Dame, Father Hesburgh said: "One would hope that beyond competence in doing something to earn a living, students would emerge from our institutions with some compassion for and commitment to the improvement of the larger, less favored world around them.

"If we, as presidents, do not show these concerns in our own lives and works, then I doubt that our students will take any of our words very seriously."

That, in turn, reflects Father Hesburgh's larger concept of a moral world — a concept, he believes, the university president should advocate and advance.

Many of the educational leaders who were deposed in the late 1960s were Father Hesburgh's personal friends — and his anger at their troubles drew him into sharp conflict with some of Notre Dame's students.

In 1967, he said "Notre Dame will not have its undergraduates making policy decisions." A year later, he threatened to expel 1,000 students before permitting girls to visit the dorms.

And, in 1969, he said that anyone substituting "force for rational persuasion" would merit 15 minutes of "meditation," followed by suspension.

Father Hesburgh has always been a staunch advocate of civil rights, speaking, for instance, on the nation's bicentennial of the "need to get more people from minority groups involved in the American dream."

'We can be stronger than before,' Carter tells inauguration crowd

weakness, and your wisdom can help to minimize my mistakes.

Let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right.

The American dream endures. We must once again have full faith in our country — and in one another. I believe America can be better. We can be stronger than before.

Let our recent mistakes bring a resurgent commitment to the basic principles of our nation, for we know that if we despise our own government we have no future. We recall in special times when we have stood briefly, but magnificently, united; in those times no prize was beyond our grasp.

But we cannot dwell upon remembered glory. We cannot afford to drift. We reject the prospect of failure or mediocrity or an inferior quality of life for any person.

Our government must at the same time be both competent and compassionate.

We have already found a high degree of personal liberty, and we are now struggling to enhance equality of opportunity. Our commitment to human rights must be absolute, our laws fair, our natural beauty preserved; the powerful must not persecute the weak, and human dignity must be enhanced.

We have learned that "more" is not necessarily "better," that even our great nation has its recognized limits, and that we can neither answer all questions nor solve all problems. We cannot afford to do everything, nor can we afford to lack boldness as we meet the future. So together, in a spirit of individual sacrifice for the common good, we must simply do our best.

Our nation can be strong abroad only if it is strong at home, and we know that the best way to enhance freedom in other lands is to demonstrate here that our democratic system is worthy of emulation.

To be true to ourselves, we must be true to others. We will not behave in foreign places so as to violate our rules and standards here at home, for we know that the trust which our nation earns is essential to its strength.

The world itself is now dominated by a new spirit. Peoples more numerous and more politically aware are craving and now demanding their place in the sun — not just for the benefit of their own physical condition, but for basic human rights.

The passion for freedom is on the rise. Tapping this new spirit, there can be no nobler nor more ambitious task for America to undertake on this day of a new beginning than to help shape a just and peaceful world that is truly humane.

We are a strong nation and we will maintain strength so sufficient that it need not be proven in combat — a quiet strength based not merely on the size of an arsenal, but on the nobility of ideas.

We will be ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice, for those are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshalled.

We are a proud idealistic nation, but let no one confuse our idealism with weakness.

Because we are free we can never be indifferent to the fate of freedom elsewhere. Our moral sense dictates a clearcut preference for those societies which share with us an abiding respect for individual human rights. We do not seek to intimidate, but it is clear that a world which others can dominate with impunity would be inhospitable to decency and a threat to the well-being of all people.

The world is still engaged in a massive armaments race designed to insure continuing equivalent strength among potential adversaries. We pledge perseverance and wisdom in our efforts to limit the world's armaments to those necessary for each nation's own domestic safety. We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth.

We urge all other people to join us, for success can mean life instead of death.

Within us, the people of the United States, there is evident a serious and purposeful rekindling of confidence, and I join in the hope that when my time as your President has ended, people might say this about our nation:

That we had remembered the words of Micah and renewed our search for humility, mercy and justice;

That we had torn down the barriers that separated those of different race and region and religion, and where there had been mistrust, built unity, with a respect for diversity;

That we had found productive work for those able to perform it;

That we had strengthened the American family, which is the basis of our society;

That we had ensured respect for the law, and equal treatment under the law, for the weak and the powerful, the rich and the poor;

And that we had enabled our people to be proud of their own government once again.

I would hope that the nations of the world might say that we had built a lasting peace, based not on weapons of war but on international policies which reflect our own most precious values.

These are not just my goals, but our common hopes. And they will not be my accomplishments, but the affirmation of our nation's continuing moral strength and our belief in an undiminished, ever-expanding American dream.

Addressing a pre-inaugural service at Lincoln Memorial this morning, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Sr. extols the new President. King was speaking from the east steps of the memorial where his son, Martin Luther King Jr., delivered his "I have a dream" speech of Aug. 28, 1963.

Carter urges spirit of unity

partner in her husband's success: Rosalynn Carter, who campaigned day after day in Carter's dogged rise from obscurity, and Betty Ford, a first lady of dignity and grace whose popularity rating in polls often rivaled or surpassed her husband's.

And there was another transition as the vice presidency passed from Nelson A. Rockefeller to Walter F. Mondale.

With the oath-taking — Mondale first, then Carter — the nation once more had elected officials at the top.

Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew, who assumed responsibility on this day four years ago, also vowed to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," but were forced from office for failing to do just that.

Carter's presidency began the instant he placed his left hand on a Bible that had been in his mother's family for 150 years and repeated the 35-word oath prescribed by the Founding Fathers:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Carter, as Ford before him, is renewed validation of the American dream that anyone, no matter how humble his birth, can become president.

Carter's roots are in Plains, Ga., population 683, and his success is self-made. A product of Plains public schools, educated at the U.S. Naval Academy, nuclear engineer, naval officer, peanut farmer, state senator, governor and now president.

"If I can stay close to the people of this country and not disappoint them, I think I have a chance to be a great president," Carter told his neighbors upon leaving home Wednesday.

"It still remains to be seen. I'll do the best I can, and I think I have it within me, to the extent that I can represent the American people well, to achieve greatness."

To the end, as a private citizen, he acted as any husband and father. He turned down the thermostat in his home before locking its doors, and he helped carry 9-year-old Amy's doll house to the moving van.

The man who has said he will wear blue jeans and an open shirt in his private time at the White House, donned a tuxedo for a star-filled pre-inauguration gala at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts on Wednesday night.

With Mrs. Carter beside him, Carter held Amy on his lap as they waited for the performance to begin.

Carter has said that Amy, reared in Georgia, has never seen snow. She may get her chance tonight as the Carters make the rounds of seven inaugural balls — a whirlwind not scheduled to end until after 1 a.m.

For Ford, leaving Washington after 25 years as congressman, one as vice president and 2½ as president, the burdens of office give way immediately to the burden of the golf course.

A plane from the presidential fleet waited at Andrews AFB to take him to Monterey, Calif., where he will play in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am on Friday as the partner of Arnold Palmer.

As the new guard of Democrats was arriving in Washington Wednesday to rejoice and take the reins of government, Ford telephoned world leaders to say goodbye and pardoned Tokyo Rose.

And, fulfilling a promise made to the widow of the late Sen. Philip Hart, Ford approved what amounted to a token change in the rules on clemency for Vietnam-era military deserters. True to his oft-stated stand, Ford rejected Mrs. Hart's plea for a blanket amnesty.

Carter has said that one of his first tasks will be to declare amnesty.

Ford invited about 25 close aides to share his last moments at the White House over breakfast, before his coffee chat with the Carters, Mondales and Rockefellers.

— the lowest recorded high temperature ever there.

In North Dakota, they were calling the 20- and 30-degree readings a January thaw after the extreme cold earlier in the week. The higher readings, however, posed a new problem.

"A marked increase in the cases of the common cold and other illnesses have been noted to correspond with warm periods during the cold season," weathermen at Bismarck warned.

The common cold was not worrying officials in at least 21 states. They were concerned with "energy emergencies" — shortages, near-shortages, or severe strain on power plants or pipelines that carry natural gas to residences, businesses and industrial plants.

Warnings were phrased variously, but the message was the same: Conserve.

—Officials of the Dayton (Ohio) Power & Light Co. said Wednesday they would tell business and industrial customers that when they exceeded their winter natural gas allotments, service would be terminated.

—Electric power customers in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and parts of Missouri were told Wednesday to conserve or face "periodic interruption of electric service" during peak demand daytime hours. The warning came from Middle South Utilities Co., a distribution system for power companies in the four-state area.

There were disruptions to businessmen and farmers:

—The 7,300 persons who make their living harvesting clams, oysters and fish from Chesapeake Bay have suffered losses of $20 million, said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel. He asked the Agriculture Department for federal aid.

—Winter vegetables and fresh citrus fruit from Florida may become scarce. The cold weather froze tomatoes, melons and cucumbers on the vines and so many oranges froze that the state citrus commission said it might impose an embargo on the crop Monday.

The Federal Power Commission offered some relief from the strain on natural gas supplies. It said Wednesday that the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. would be allowed to tap a reserve supply of 3 billion cubic feet over the next 60 days. The company, based in Houston, has customers from Texas to New York.

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. FORD take a break Wednesday in the White House Oval Office as they prepare to leave their home for the past 2 1/2 years. Before exiting, Ford told the 75 members of his staff: "I've enjoyed the White House mainly because of the fine people. You all have contributed to an administration I think was good and which history will treat kindly." Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who had spent the night at the White House, told Ford: "Mr. President, this is the proudest moment of our lives."

Appeals court upholds 20-year prison term for Audrey Sheppard

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the 20-year prison term assessed Audrey Sheppard, convicted by a Midland jury of shooting her husband inside their mobile home.

The prosecution had sought first-degree murder charges in the shooting of Delmir Sheppard, with evidence showing that as many as nine shots were fired and as many as six to eight bullets in the head.

Mrs. Sheppard was convicted on the lesser offense of voluntary manslaughter, arguing she was attempting to defend herself from her husband as he threatened to "kick her head in" in a fit of drunken stupor.

To rebut Mrs. Sheppard's self-defense theory, the state prosecutor produced medical witnesses who testified the victim had such a high content of alcohol in his blood system that he "must have been" unconscious at the time of his death, and could not have attacked or threatened the defendant.

The state's highest criminal court overturned Mrs. Sheppard's grounds for appeal in a unanimous six-page opinion.

In her first attempt, Mrs. Sheppard said the court erred in refusing to grant a mistrial when the prosecution questioned her about a prior marriage. She also said remarks made by the prosecution, while stating an objection, warranted a new trial.

In her third and fourth points of error, Mrs. Sheppard said the jury should have been instructed on state law regarding self-defense, especially a right to strike first and to arm oneself.

The appeals court said the charge to the jury on self-defense had properly been given by the trial judge.

FIREFIGHTER OF THE MONTH for the Midland Downtown Lions Club in January is John D. Davidson. Davidson, who has been with the Midland Fire Department for three years, is a state certified firefighter and emergency medical technician. He was recently recognized for performing life saving duties on a heart attack victim. Davidson is an equipment operator for the fire department.

Klansman faces trial

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. Marine Corps says a Marine member of the Ku Klux Klan will be tried before a special court-martial for printing KKK literature at government expense.

The Corps ordered the action Wednesday against Pfc. Dennis L. Campbell, who was among a group of Marines admitting KKK membership after a racial brawl Nov. 13 brought presence of a Klan cell on base to light. The KKK members were targets of an attack by a group of black Marines who mistakenly assaulted another group of Marines living in the same barracks as the Klan members.

The Marine Corps said Campbell will be tried for using a government photocopier to produce racist literature and for illegal distribution of the material on base.

If found guilty, he could be reduced to private or given a bad conduct discharge, or could face six months at hard labor and forfeiture of two-thirds of his pay for six months.

Following the fight that sent six whites to the hospital, the Marine Corps uncovered the names of 17 alleged KKK members. At least 12 were transferred to other bases to ease racial tension at Pendleton.

Paratroopers patrol Cairo following riots

CAIRO (AP) — Army paratroopers with machine guns guarded key squares and bridges and patrolled Cairo's slum districts today after two days of riots over price increases.

Police sources said today 40 persons were killed and 250 injured in Cairo during the riots. The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram reported 34 persons were killed and 409 injured in Cairo and Alexandria and 439 arrested in the capital.

A 14-hour curfew, Cairo's first since King Farouk was overthrown in 1952, brought calm back to the metropolis.

People were moving about the streets normally. Buses were running. Workers began clearing away the rubble and broken glass left by the rioting. Many shops reopened.

The curfew was shortened three hours today. Cairo Radio announced it would begin at 7 p.m. instead of 4 p.m.

Police reported calm also in Alexandria, the port city on the Mediterranean; Suez, at the southern end of the Suez Canal, and towns in the Nile Delta and Upper Egypt where disturbances occurred Wednesday.

The violence was the worst in Egypt since the revolution nearly 25 years ago. Al-Ahram said 29 were killed, 267 were injured and 439 were arrested in Cairo. In Alexandria, five persons were reported killed and 132 injured Tuesday.

The rioting was touched off by the reduction Monday of government subsidies that were keeping down the prices of staple foods, bottled gas, gasoline, cigarettes and other items in general use. The subsidies were reduced in an attempt to cut the $3.2 billion deficit in the government's budget.

The intensity of the public reaction forced President Anwar Sadat to suspend the price increases. The president, who was assailed personally in slogans shouted by the demonstrators, returned to Cairo Wednesday night from Aswan, the winter resort 600 miles to the south where he was waiting to entertain Yugoslav President Tito. Tito canceled his visit because of the death in a plane crash of his prime minister.

Lawyers question Priscilla Davis

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers who have filed a civil suit against multimillionaire Cullen Davis stemming from the Aug. 3 shootings at the Davis mansion questioned his estranged wife Priscilla for seven hours Wednesday.

Grover Swift, counsel for shooting victim Gus Gavrel Jr., led the questioning, which focused on events the night two persons were killed and two others wounded at the mansion.

Davis is charged with murdering his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, and former Texas Christian basketball player Stan Farr and attempted murders of Mrs. Davis and Gavrel.

After answering questions under oath Wednesday, Mrs. Davis said her deposition in the $3 million Gavrel suit concerned "the crime itself" and some inquiries about the vast Davis business empire.

Although lawyers representing Mrs. Davis in divorce proceedings fought in vain to prevent the deposition, she said she did not refuse to answer any questions.

"But I didn't have the answers to some of the questions about the business," Mrs. Davis said.

Bus service rounds scheduled for week

The bus service operated by Midland College and First Christian Church will stop at the following places during the week of Jan. 24.

On Jan. 24, Northland shopping area, which will include stop by location for new housing for elderly; Jan. 25, Dellwood shopping area; Jan. 26, thrift shops and garage sales; Jan. 27, Andrews Highway shopping area, and Jan. 28, beauty shops, grocery stores and laundries.

Reservations can be made by calling 682-7577, weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Rehearing nixed

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday refused the state's request for a rehearing in the reversal of a heroin case from Ector County.

The appeals court earlier had overturned the conviction and 99-year sentence of Rosa Elizondo, because of improper arguments by the district attorney to the jury.

Presiding Judge John Onion dissented from the refusal to grant a rehearing.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Early dental care indicated

Dear Dr. Solomon: How soon should my little boy start seeing the dentist? A friend of mine says she isn't going to take her daughter yet because these are just baby teeth and it really doesn't matter that much. But I don't want to take any chances. What do you think is best? —Betsy R.

Dear Betsy: Dentists advise a first visit not later than two and a half or three years old, when most children have all 20 of their baby teeth. They caution that it is a great mistake to think you don't have to take good care of these "primary" teeth. For one thing, your child will be using some of them up to the age of 12. And, for another, if they are not taken care of, their loss can affect the alignment and proper development of the permanent teeth.

So by all means, start your little boy off early with good dental care. Have him follow the home routine the dentist recommends, especially about avoiding too many sweets. The American dental record is surprisingly poor, half the children in the United States have a cavity by the age of two, and by 15, the average child has 11 teeth either missing or with cavities—filled or unfilled. I know you'd like to see your son beat the averages.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son tells me that smoking hashish is perfectly safe and not to worry, because it does no harm. I have read that hashish smoking does have an effect on the heart and blood vessels. Has this ever been documented?—Dory

Dear Dory: A recent West German study noted the physical and mental reactions before smoking 2 grams of hashish in 30 volunteers who had never smoked the substance before. The study found that hashish raises the heart rate considerably and blood pressure showed a tendency to fall. Heart and blood vessel disturbances may be so marked that collapse occurs. Hashish smoking also poses a danger to automobile drivers because they lack coordination of their legs and also suffer from alterations in the perception of time and space.

Besides, smoking hashish is against the law, so he would have plenty to worry about if he got caught.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read in your column about head lice and found your suggestions most helpful and effective. The question now is, how do I remove the dead head lice and nits that have adhered to my son's hair shafts? Also, when can I allow him to return to school?—Sonja

Dear Sonja: There is no way to remove the nits chemically, mechanically, or manually other than by the time-consuming use of a fine-tooth comb or with a haircut. Once all the nits are removed, you may send your son back to school.

Brazilian railroad now history

PORTO VELHO, Brazil (AP) — The ancient engines stopped running here four years ago, ending the 60-year history of the world's most isolated railroad. They are now rusting hulks in the tropical sun. Their ornate seals from the Baldwin Locomotive Works-Philadelphia have fallen away and their smokestacks are now pots for jungle plants.

Twenty-two thousand workers from around the world, many of whom had worked on the Panama Canal, built the Madeira-Mamore Railroad from 1907 to 1912, earning on the average 85 cents a day.

Part of a treaty agreement between Bolivia and Brazil under which Bolivia ceded the contested frontier territory of Acre, the "Madeira-Mamore" ran 226 miles along two giant tributaries of the Amazon. It allowed for the first time for the shipment of Bolivian rubber, nuts and hides around impassable falls of the Madeira and Mamore Rivers to the mouth of the Amazon 850 miles away.

The brainchild of Brazil's wily foreign minister Barao do Rio Branco, who won Brazil a large chunk of western territory, the railroad was never a commercial success. It was killed by the end of the rubber boom in the early part of this century and lost money steadily under British and then Brazilian administrations.

The Brazilians nationalized the railroad in 1931 with patriotic fanfare, but closed it down in 1972 after roads built along the same river path made the railway obsolete.

"Everyone in town thinks the British built the railroad," says Dr. Ari Pinheiro, a surgeon who came here in 1937 as one of the doctors who rode the railway treating malaria and hepatitis. "But it's just a local myth. The Americans built the railroad and they built this town."

The engineering contractors of the Madeira-Mamore Railway Company were May, Jekyl and Randolph of Portland, Maine. The firm had worked on the Panama Canal and used its jungle engineering experience to install sewers, water and electricity in Porto Velho, now the capital of this federal territory of Rondonia.

A sprawling Amazon frontier town of 60,000 people, Porto Velho owes its existence to its location a few miles downriver from the first of the falls that made the railroad necessary.

In front of the headquarters here of the Brazilian army's Fifth Construction Battalion is a locomotive built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia. It was the first engine to be shipped here after a British engineering firm, which later abandoned the project, completed 19 miles of track in 1878.

Baked potato salad, made with potatoes, marinated vegetables and topped with cottage cheese is a unique idea for a luncheon main course.

Combat doldrums of dieting by whipping up potato dishes

Combat the doldrums of dieting by including interesting baked potato dishes in your weight watching regimen. Baked potatoes combined with raw vegetables, cottage cheese and a low-calorie salad dressing are ideal for sturdy, filling luncheon main dish, or teamed with a light soup, this unique salad idea makes a perfect mid-winter supper.

When keeping track of calories, the flavors of those foods you can eat is ever so important. At a mere 90 calories in a five ounce baked potato, you may be skimping on the calories but not on nutrition. That same baked potato contributes vitamin C, iron, niacin, thiamin and riboflavin to your good health. Potatoes give a pleasant, filled feeling, reducing the desire to overeat.

Chalupas Potatoes are still another way with a baked potato salad. They combine chopped onion, green pepper, celery, lettuce, tomatoes, and ground beef with shredded cheese for a luncheon dish with a large dash of Mexican. The chili sauce is poured over the potato for a taco-like combination. Delicious, and so easy.

BAKED POTATO SALAD

- 4 potatoes
- 1 tomato, peeled and chopped
- 1/2 cup sliced radishes
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped red onion
- 2 tablespoons low-calorie Italian dressing
- 2 cups shredded lettuce
- 2 cups creamed cottage cheese

Scrub potatoes, dry and prick with fork. Bake in 425 degrees F. oven 55 to 65 minutes, until soft. While potatoes are baking, mix tomato, radishes, green pepper, and red onion in large bowl, stir in Italian dressing. When potatoes are cooked, remove from oven and open with a fork. Arrange lettuce on serving platter; place potatoes on lettuce. Spread potato out with a fork, keeping potato chunky. Spoon marinated vegetables over each potato, top each with 1/4 cup cottage cheese. YIELD: 4 servings; 230 calories per serving.

CHALUPAS POTATOES

- 4 potatoes
- 1/2 pound ground beef
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 cups shredded lettuce
- Mashed avocado (optional)
- 1/2 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

Scrub potatoes, dry and prick with fork. Bake in 425 degree F. oven 55 to 65 minutes, until soft. While potatoes are baking, break up beef in a saucpan over medium heat. Add onion, green pepper, celery and chili powder; cook until vegetables are tender. Add tomatoes, water and salt. Simmer, uncovered, 20 minutes. When potatoes are cooked, remove from oven and open with a fork. Arrange lettuce on serving platter; place potatoes on lettuce. Spoon chili mixture over each potato, top with mashed avocado if desired and sprinkle with shredded cheese. YIELD: 4 servings/290 calories per serving without avocado.

Overeating, not heredity, keeps one fat

Copley News Service

Heredity is often said to play a part in the problem of overweight, though just how important is still not known. But remember, family eating habits are vital, and by changing them people from so-called "overweight families" can reduce. You don't have to be fat just because your mother and father and brothers and sisters are too heavy. Even "middle-age spread" is not inevitable, and can be corrected. True muscle tone tends to slacken as we get older, which makes it difficult for some people to hold that youthful waistline.

But when birthdays begin to pile up pounds, it usually means one thing: a person's activity is slowing down while he is still eating at the same old pace. As we cut down on physical activity, we need fewer calories. Individual temperaments and emotional problems sometimes contribute to a weight problem. Some of us eat too much when we're bored or restless, for want of something better to do. Others may, without realizing it, eat to relieve tensions. And for some, food seems to fill an emotional gap.

No two overweight persons are exactly alike, but they both have one thing in common: they are escalating their risk of heart attack.

It is never too early to start youngsters on the road to good nutrition and weight control. But also remember that it is never too late to change faulty eating habits.

- HONG KONG BEEF
- 2 tbsps polyunsaturated oil
 - 8 scallions and stems, chopped

- 2 cloves garlic, pressed
- 5 stalks celery, sliced on bias
- 1 tbsps (or more) soy sauce, to taste
- 1 lb. boneless lean steak, cut in one-inch strips, all fat removed
- 1 large green pepper, cut in one-inch squares
- 1 (16-oz.) can bean sprouts, rinsed and drained
- or one-half pound fresh bean sprouts
- 1 (5-oz.) can bamboo shoots or water chestnuts
- One-half lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced through stems, or 1 (4.25-oz.) can sliced mushrooms
- 1 (9-oz.) pkg. frozen snow peas, just thawed
- 2 cups fat-free beef bouillon
- 3 tbsps cornstarch
- One-third cup cold water

Heat oil in a very large skillet (or Chinese wok); add scallions, garlic and celery, and saute five minutes. Add one tablespoon soy sauce, or more, to taste.

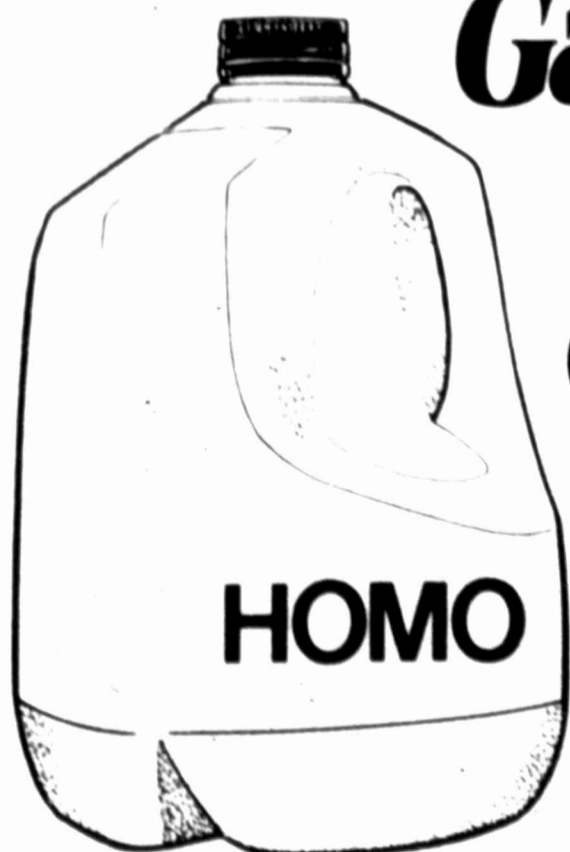

Add beef and remaining vegetables except snow peas.

Cook over high heat, uncovered, stirring constantly, five minutes. Add thawed snow peas. Keep turning with a wide spatula over high heat for two minutes more. Add hot bouillon and lower the flame to simmer.

Mix cornstarch with the cold water. Slowly stir into the sauce and keep stirring until sauce is transparent and thickens enough to coat spoon. Taste for seasoning and add more soy sauce if needed. Serve at once over one-half cup of boiled rice. Serves six.

Mexican salad entices appetite

By DARLA WELLES
Copley News Service

Salad making transcends all rules — sometimes to the disappointment of the diner who orders a "combination salad" and finds that it's a combination of brown-edged lettuce and three shreds of red cabbage dressed with an anemic mix of mayonnaise and pickle relish.

But on the plus side, the lack of rules allows for an unlimited range of flavorful innovation.

Almost anything can go into the salad bowl. And although lettuce is an accepted tradition there, not even the tiniest leaf need be included to make a great salad.

Nearly all vegetables — raw or lightly cooked — are pleasing to use, as are bits of leftover roast meat, chicken or seafood, chopped hard-cooked eggs, shredded cheese, croutons or crispy corn chips and most kinds of fruits.

When guided by taste and a bit of logic, possible combinations are limited only by the measure of the cook's imagination and adventurous spirit.

And that holds true whether the salad is to be a main dish extravaganza or a harmonious accompaniment to the main dish.

Say for instance, you're serving broiled lamb with a hot buttery pilaf of bulgur wheat. A perfect companion is a fresh fruit salad topped with a minted yogurt dressing.

A good mixture is thinly sliced peaches, fresh pineapple chunks, blueberries and wedges of red-skinned plums.

To make the dressing, mix together one-half cup of plain yogurt, two or three tablespoons of honey (depending on your taste), one teaspoon dried mint leaves, crushed, and enough fruit juice to thin the mixture to dressing consistency, one or two tablespoons. Beat until smooth and chill about 30 minutes before serving, spooned over the mixed fruit on a bed of lettuce.

Following are recipes for two main dish salads, both with a Mexican accent and fine for either lunch or supper.

The mission salad bowl combines tart orange slices, avocado and seafood with a spicy, hot chili dressing.

Although the recipe calls for shrimp, chunks of white chicken meat would be a good substitute for the economy-minded and those who don't care for seafood. Romaine may be substituted for the iceberg lettuce.

Complete the menu with hot crusty rolls, sliced jack or Cheddar cheese and tall, frosty glasses of iced tea.

The salsa salad bowl is an enticing mixture of hot and cold, blending crisp, cool iceberg lettuce and a hot sauce dressing.

Serve it with hot soft tortillas and butter or with crisp tortilla chips and warm bean dip to please heartier appetites.

MISSION SALAD BOWL

- 1 large head western iceberg lettuce
- Chili dressing
- 3 medium-size oranges
- 1 large avocado
- 1 sweet red onion
- 1 to one-and-one-half cups cooked shrimp

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Prepare chili dressing.

Shortly before serving, pare and slice or section oranges. Halve avocado, then remove skin and pit; cut fruit in wedges. Cut onion in thin slices.

Line salad bowl with a few crisp outer lettuce leaves. Tear remaining lettuce into bite-size pieces to measure three quarts. Turn into bowl. Arrange oranges, avocado, onion and shrimp over lettuce. Pour chili dressing over all and toss lightly. Serve at once. Makes eight servings.

Chili Dressing: Combine two-thirds-cup oil, one-fourth-cup white wine vinegar, one-fourth-cup chopped canned green chili, one-and-one-half-teaspoons dry mustard, one-and-one-half-teaspoons salt, one teaspoon basil, finely crumbled, three-fourths-teaspoon pressed garlic and one-fourth-teaspoon white pepper.

Shake together in a covered jar. Let stand several hours to mellow flavors. Shake again just before using. Makes a generous one-cup dressing.

SALSA SALAD BOWL

- 1 large head western iceberg lettuce
- One-half cup chopped onion
- 1 large clove garlic, pressed (one-half tsp.)
- One-third cup olive oil
- 1 (one-lb.) can tomatoes
- One-fourth cup chopped canned green chili
- One-half tsp. oregano, crumbled
- Three-fourths tsp salt
- 3 cups corn chips
- Shredded jack cheese and finely shredded beef jerky

Core, rinse and thoroughly drain lettuce; refrigerate in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper.

For dressing, saute onion and garlic in one tablespoon oil until soft but not browned. Add tomatoes, chilies, oregano and salt. Simmer, uncovered, 25 minutes. Cool, then stir in remaining oil.

Shortly before serving, cut lettuce into bite-size chunks to measure two quarts. Combine in a large, chilled serving bowl with corn chips. Stir dressing well, pour over salad and toss lightly. Serve at once. Top each serving with shredded cheese and jerky. (Eight servings.)

Mission salad bowl is given a Mexican accent with chili dressing that can be made at home.

Casserole uses tortillo chips

Casseroles are comfortable in many ways. They're soothing to the palate, and are easily prepared.

One of the best is a Tortilla Chip Casserole because it has a Mexican flavor accent. Furthermore, it will use the leftover turkey or chicken as well as broken tortilla chips. Can you think of a better way to use a bag of these popular snack chips? They add a flavorful note and good texture to the softness of the other foods.

The inspiration for this comes from the chilaquiles, which in turn, comes from chila-quilitl, meaning colloquially, "broken-up old sombrero." It was devised for using stale tortillas, but in this case, it's easier to use the tortilla chips.

As a contrasting dish to serve with the casserole, toss a salad of greens, sliced oranges, onion rings and a delightful orange-tarragon dressing. Dairy sour cream and orange juice make a base for the dressing that's just the right consistency. Milk tastes great with this meal.

- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 cans (8-oz. each) tomato sauce
- 1 can (4-oz.) whole green chilies, drained, seeded and chopped
- 1 teaspoon Mexican-style hot chili powder
- 1 teaspoon cilantro or dried parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package (8-oz.) taco flavor tortilla chips, broken
- 1 1/2 cups (6-oz.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 2 cups cut-up chicken or turkey
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 cup (2-oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

Melt butter, add onion and saute until lightly browned. Add tomato sauce, chilies, chili powder, cilantro and salt. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes.

Layer in buttered 1 1/2-quart casserole in the following order: half the tortilla chips, shredded Monterey Jack cheese, chicken, and prepared tomato sauce; repeat. Bake in preheated 350 degree F oven 25 minutes. Remove from oven, spread sour cream over top of casserole. Sprinkle with Cheddar cheese. Return to oven for 5 minutes just to heat sour cream and melt cheese. Garnish with fresh cilantro or parsley, if desired.

TORTILLA CHIP CASSEROLE
6 servings (about 1 cup each)
2 tablespoons butter

TARRAGON CREAM DRESSING

- Yield: 1 cup
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 1 dash salt
- 1/2 teaspoon crushed tarragon

Blend sour cream with remaining ingredients. Cover and chill to blend flavors. Serve over salad of torn leaf lettuce, sliced oranges and onion rings. Garnish with pomegranate seeds, if desired.

Cuisine develops with age

What comes to mind when you think of Mexican food? Tacos? Enchiladas? Tamales? Many Americans conjure up thoughts of tortillas filled with hot sauce and beans.

But Mexican cuisine is much more than a collection of spicy dishes covered with tomato sauce. It's a richly diverse and sophisticated kind of cookery based on 500 years of history and tradition.

The culinary cross-breeding of Mayan, Incan, Aztec and Spanish foods produced a style of cooking that's a unique and distinctive hybrid.

When the Spanish explorer Cortez landed in Mexico in the sixteenth century, he discovered an already sophisticated Indian cuisine. The food displays in the Aztec capital of Tenochtitlan (Mexico City) dazzled the weary Spaniard. As a visitor to Montezuma's court, he watched the Aztec emperor dine on such delicacies as: white tamales with beans forming a sea shell on top; turkey with a sauce of small chilies, tomatoes and ground squash seeds; white fish with yellow chili; lobster with red chili, tomato and ground squash seeds; squash flowers; small cactus fruits with fish eggs; and numerous chocolate drinks.

The Indians relied on the region's abundant game and fish as mainstays of their diet. But plain roast meat was rare in traditional Mexican cooking, partly because it had to be boiled for hours before human teeth could cope with its toughness.

So, almost everything was cooked in a sauce to add flavor. Three bold flavors dominated Mexican cooking: red, green and black chilies; lime-flavored cornmeal; and beans.

Corn was the sacred plant of the Mexican Indian religion. And it was the main source of energy and protein in the Indian diet. Many foods were made from this versatile plant, but the most important was the tortilla (made from lime-flavored cornmeal). It became Mexico's national bread, its staff and staple of life cooking.

Although corn was the Indians' staple, beans were also important for they supplied protein. In Aztec times there were probably even more kinds of beans than corn.

The chili-corn-bean combination formed the food foundation of the ancient Indian civilization.

The influx of Spanish conquistadors had a deep impact on Mexican cooking.

Mexican food--many things to many people

By DARLA WELLES
Copley News Service

Mexican food — like the elephant to the blind men — is many different things to many different people. It's more a style of cooking and seasoning than a collection of ritually prepared recipes. In fact, it's nearly impossible to find any given Mexican-style dish prepared exactly the same way by any two cooks, whether they work in restaurant or home kitchens.

Following are recipes for a variety of Mexican-style dishes to use as is or adjust to individual taste.

TOSTADAS GRANDE
6 flour tortillas
2 cups refried beans, heated
1 lb. ground beef, browned and drained of excess fat
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 (4-oz.) can chopped green chilies
1 medium head iceberg lettuce, finely chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
2 avocados, sliced
1 (4-oz.) can sliced ripe olives, drained
One-half cup sour cream
One-fourth cup grated Parmesan cheese
Oil for frying tortillas
Chili salsa (recipe follows)

In a heavy skillet, heat about one-fourth cup oil and fry tortillas one at a time until crisp and lightly browned on both sides. Drain on paper towels. Divide beans evenly among the tortillas and spread to a thin layer. Repeat with ground beef and cheese. Sprinkle with chopped chilies and onions. Add a generous layer of shredded lettuce and top with sliced avocado over lettuce and top with chopped tomatoes and olive slices. Garnish each tostada with a generous spoonful of sour cream and a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese. Serve with sauce to be added by each diner, according to taste.

GREEN CHILI SALSA
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
2 green chilies (or for a hotter sauce)
2 jalapeno chilies, chopped
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 garlic clove, minced
1 tbsp. dried cilantro, or 2 tbsps. freshly chopped
Combine all ingredients and let stand 30 minutes to blend flavors. Serve chilled or at room temperature.

CHICKEN ENCHILADAS
1 (16-oz.) can tomatoes
1 (4-oz.) can green chilies, drained and seeded
One-half tsp. ground coriander or 1 tsp. dried or 2 tbsps. fresh cilantro
One-half tsp. salt
1 cup sour cream
2 cups finely chopped cooked chicken
1 (3-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
One-fourth cup finely chopped onion
12 flour tortillas
Cooking oil for frying tortillas
1 cup shredded jack cheese
Combine first four ingredients and puree in a blender until smooth. Add sour cream and blend until smooth. Set aside.

Mix together chicken, cream cheese and onion. Season lightly with salt. Set aside. In heavy skillet heat about one-fourth cup oil. Dip tortillas into hot oil one at a time and fry for just a few seconds until limp. Drain and keep warm. Add more oil as needed. Spread chicken mixture on tortillas and roll up, placing each seam side down in a large baking dish. Top with tomato-sour cream mixture.

Cover dish with foil and bake about 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove foil and sprinkle with grated jack cheese. Return to oven until cheese melts. Serves six.

A tostada may be a mountainous creation with layers of beans, meat, shredded lettuce and chopped tomatoes.

Chorizo canapes add to evening refreshers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

EVENING REFRESHER
Chorizo Canapes Coffee Fruit Cookies
CHORIZO CANAPES
Adapted from a savory spread concocted by the late Elena Zelayeta

1/2 pound chorizo
6-ounce can tomato paste
4 scallions, finely chopped
2 tablespoons seeded and finely chopped canned jalapeno pepper
1/2 teaspoon oregano
French rolls, grated-

Parmesan and sliced Jack or Swiss cheese

Remove casing from chorizo. In a hot 10-inch skillet over moderate heat fry the chorizo, crumbling with a fork, until thoroughly cooked. Stir in tomato paste, scallion, jalapeno and oregano; cook gently until very hot. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. Slice the rolls crosswise and toast lightly; spread with the hot chorizo mixture; sprinkle with Parmesan; top with sliced cheese. Bake or broil briefly until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Cabbage adds to meal

FLORENCE LIN'S STIR-FRIED CABBAGE
Contributed by the well-known teacher of Chinese cooking and author of cookbooks.
1 small head cabbage, about 1 pound
2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Remove tough outer cabbage leaves and discard. Quarter head; cut out core pieces and discard. Cut cabbage into 1/2 by 1-inch chunks and separate leaves; there should be about 6 cups firmly packed. Sprinkle with a little water. Heat a wok; add oil and cabbage; stir fry over high heat for 2 minutes, lowering heat if the cabbage starts to brown. Add salt and sugar and stir to mix well. Add 2 tablespoons water and cook, covered, over high heat for 2 minutes. Toss well and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Creole Meatball Bake is good when time and money are at a premium.

Recipes create low-cost meals

The holidays have dented your budget even more than you had counted on and now you're looking the supermarket checkout counter square in the face and getting bad vibes. Hold it here are two new recipes that make parsimony pleasurable.

Both Creole Meatball Bake and Barbecued Meatballs and Beans use a few staples and inexpensive ground beef to create two low-cost meals you can be proud of. What's more, neither requires browning the meatballs, making them especially quick and easy to prepare.

In the Creole Meatball Bake, the meatballs bake on a bed of rice and a savory sauce easily made with an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix. The Barbecued Meatballs and Beans bake on a zesty bean mixture made with prepared yellow mustard.

Serve either of these meatball recipes with a green salad, bread sticks, apple dumplings, and milk or coffee.

CREOLE MEATBALL BAKE
Meatballs (recipe below)
1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes
1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) spaghetti sauce mix

1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 1/2 cups water
1 1/2 cups packaged precooked rice
Prepare meatballs following directions below. Combine tomatoes, contents of sauce mix envelope, green pepper, water, and rice in shallow baking dish. Top with uncooked meatballs. Bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees F. for 30 to 40 minutes, until meatballs are cooked. 4 to 6 servings.

Meatballs: Combine 1/4 cup water, 1 slightly beaten egg, 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, and, if desired, 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice. Add 1 pound ground beef, mix lightly. Shape into meatballs using a rounded tablespoonful for each.

BARBECUED MEATBALLS AND BEANS

Meatballs (recipe below)
1 can (1-lb.) tomatoes
1 jar (1-lb., 2-oz.) baked beans
1/4 cup prepared yellow mustard
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon instant coffee powder, if desired

Prepare and shape meatballs following directions below. Combine in shallow 2-quart baking dish remainder of can of tomatoes, beans, mustard, brown sugar, and coffee powder. Top with uncooked meatballs. Bake uncovered at 400 degrees F. for 30 to 35 minutes, until meatballs are cooked through. 4 to 6 servings.

Meatballs: Measure 1/4 cup liquid from can of tomatoes. Combine the 1/4 cup tomato liquid with 1 slightly beaten egg, 1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs, and 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 pound ground beef, mix lightly. Shape into meatballs using a rounded tablespoonful for each.

Husband loses his wife

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—On his way back from a Florida vacation to Mount Holly, N.J., Sam Garofola lost and found his wife.

"I feel so silly," said Garofola, 56, as he was reunited with the wife he had inadvertently left at a service station here. He was 55 miles north of Atlanta before he realized she was missing.

At the service station, Helen Garofola, who was riding in the back of their station wagon, got out briefly. "I told him that I was going to use the restroom. He didn't say anything, but I slammed the door and he should have heard me," she said.

Dieting controls cholesterol

There is much encouraging evidence that most people can reduce their risk of having a heart attack if they follow a diet to control blood cholesterol and triglycerides, avoid cigarette smoking, maintain a normal weight, exercise regularly and get medical treatment if they have high blood pressure or diabetes.

SALISBURY STEAK PROVENCAL
For a delicious new way to serve lean ground beef, try this meat-and-vegetable dish.

2 lbs. lean ground beef
1 tbsp. cracked black pepper
One-half tsp. monosodium glutamate
2 tps. salt
8 one-half-inch-thick slices French bread
One-half cup polyunsaturated oil
One-half lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced
4 medium onions, sliced
2 large zucchini, cut in three-inch strips
1 tsp. oregano leaves
1 pt. cherry tomatoes
About one hour before serving:
In a medium bowl, combine ground beef, cracked pepper, monosodium glutamate and one teaspoon salt. Shape into eight oval patties; place on rack in broiling pan. Arrange bread on cookie sheet. Set both aside.
In 12-inch skillet over medium-high heat, in one-fourth cup oil, cook mushrooms, onions and one teaspoon salt 10 minutes or until well browned. With slotted spoon, remove onion mixture to large platter; keep warm.
Preheat broiler. In same skillet, heat two tablespoons oil; cook zucchini, oregano and one teaspoon salt five minutes or until zucchini is tender crisp. Arrange zucchini next to onion mixture.
Broil patties eight minutes or until desired doneness, turning once. When meat is done, toast bread. Meanwhile, in same skillet, heat remaining two tablespoons oil; cook cherry tomatoes until they are heated and skins start to wrinkle, stirring and shaking skillet often.
To serve, top each slice of toast with a meat patty; arrange with cherry tomatoes on same platter next to onion mixture. Makes eight servings.

ACORN SQUASH A L'ORANGE
1 acorn squash, washed, seeded and cut into four wedges
2 tbsps. polyunsaturated oil
One-half tsp. seasoned salt
Dash pepper
One-half (6-oz.) can orange juice concentrate, thawed
Dash each: mace and nutmeg
Arrange squash, cut-side up in shallow baking pan. Drizzle oil evenly over squash wedges and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake, for 30 minutes in 350-degree oven.
Combine orange juice concentrate with mace and nutmeg and pour mixture over squash. Bake squash for 30 minutes longer.

One of the first hungry and witty gastronomes, Brillat-Savarin, believed you could really know a man by knowing what he yearned for in his dreams. — "Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are."

It's rumored that President-elect Jimmy Carter loves mountain oysters and hasn't missed Dublin, Ga.'s mountain oyster supper (where they serve 500 pounds of the delicacy) since it first started.

Rosalynn Carter says Jimmy likes eggplant sandwiches and catfish marinated in steak sauce and fried in pancake batter.

That doesn't sound all that great, but it beats that now-famous recipe from Rosalynn for Plains Special Cheese Ring made with grated cheese, chopped nuts, mayonnaise and grated onion, molded and filled with strawberry preserves.

It's only fair to give equal time to President Ford. Though he no longer can indulge in that celebrated morning ritual of toasting his own English muffins, White House chef Henry Haller says "the President likes everything." Red cabbage and pork chops is a favorite meal. So is pot roast with turnips, carrots, potatoes and pearl onions. The President is "very fond" of salads, according to Haller, and though he's not a dessert-eater, he can't resist butter-pecan ice cream.

There is also a recipe submitted to a Cosmetology Association cookbook from Betty Ford called Prawn Madras Curry that's made with tamarind juice and ghee — whatever that is.

Down through history presidents have not been particularly known for their gastronomic savvy or subtlety of palate. It's said that if invited to the White House during the Roosevelt administration, you went for Food For Thought.

Jacqueline Kennedy jazzed things up a bit by bringing in a French chef. But, alas, Lyndon Johnson brought it back to earth with Pedernales chili on the White House lawn. Richard Nixon had his cottage cheese and Pat Nixon had her Continental Salad made with canned grapefruit juice, canned beets and Jell-O.

Jefferson probably was the most inventive president food-wise, importing such newfound luxuries as tomatoes and pasta, and using a round table so every seat was equal and a dumbwaiter so the servants couldn't eavesdrop.

But truly grand eating with an opulent flavor can only be attributed to the Elizabethan Age, which inspired some of the most memorable meals in history.

Queen Elizabeth I had an uncontrollable love of sweets and always carried candy with her, even though she suffered more than her fair share of toothaches.

Her subjects often gave the queen marzipan goodies, the most elaborate of which was a replica of St. Paul's chessboard.

Elizabeth served such delicacies as peacocks in their plumage and swans with silvered bodies and gilded beaks perched on a field of green pastry.

But it was the medieval days that took decadent leanings. One lord wished to impress his guests with an enormous pastry. When it was cut, 20 little birds dashed out just like in "four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie."

Unfortunately the birds were part of the entertainment. Hawks were unleashed and they pounced on the unlucky little birds, much to the delight of the audience.

Roman dinner parties, too, were a bit overdone, especially by Marc Antony who never could control his indulgences. He and Cleopatra entered into culinary competitions early in their courtship, decorating their feasts with thousands of tiny lighted tree branches and designing dishes meant to outdo any previous preparations.

The contest finally was conceded by Antony when Cleopatra dramatically dissolved one of her exquisite pearl earrings in a goblet of lemon juice, and dinners of conger eel and the wombs of sterile sows never would be the same again.

It wasn't until the 17th Century that the fad for French cooking began with England's Charles II. Following his fashion, all the high-style homes brought in French chefs.

But it is the Bourbon kings who are responsible for turning the French into the world's most talented chefs. The Bourbons were enormous, if not refined, eaters.

Louis XIII was so afraid of being poisoned that he had a do-it-yourself approach to cooking, rare among royalty.

He both killed and prepared his own game, larding it, it is said, as well as any cook in his kitchen.

DEAR ABBY Mom paid dues

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Approximately a year ago you ran an article about a mother who never made her own Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner. Instead, she went to her mother's or her mother-in-law's. She wrote to say that she wishes now that she had developed her own holiday celebrations.

That letter was terrific. If you could publish it again, it would be a great help to a lot of people.

Believe it or not, I am a grandmother who wishes my married children would make their own holiday dinners and invite me as a guest. Sign me "TIRED," or — PAID MY DUES.

DEAR PAID: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is. DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" Your answer has always been "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year — as our children are ready to strike out on their own — that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself, and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't.

Abby, please urge young marrieds to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

Sign me — DOING MY OWN THING.
DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

Doubling ring rites held

Sandra Wahne Coffee of 122 S. Dewberry St. became the bride of Dick Don Neatherlin of 709 Kent St. in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Ray Reynolds in the bride's home.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. W. G. Christopher and her late husband of Weatherford and Mrs. Earl Cobb of Carlsbad, N.M.

Attendants were Bernice Andrews and Don Wooten, both of Midland. Janice Cates provided the organ music.

The bride, given in marriage by her son, Allen Coffey, wore a floor-length gown of green floral styled with fingertip sleeves. She carried a bouquet of orchids.

A reception was held in the bride's home following the ceremony.

After a trip to Lubbock, the couple will be at home at 122 S. Dewberry.

The bride graduated from Lamesa High School and is employed as a land secretary for Neely and Neely. The bridegroom is a graduate of Carlsbad High School and is senior technical representative for Xerox Corp.

Mexican dinner served AAUW gourmet group

"A Mexican Fiesta" was the theme for the January meeting of the Epicurean Gourmet Group of the Midland branch of the American Association of University Women.

The Mexican dinner was served by Mr. and Mrs. Bart Evans in their home at 3516 Camarie St. and were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lattu and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Walker.

The guests sampled appetizers of pinwheel cheese and pepper snacks, chill con queso and a picante surprise dip. They later ate a buffet of pinto bean soup and tortillas. Dessert consisted of an ice cream-fruit confection called Nieve and Pecan Pralines.

Members attending included the Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Burrall, Mr. and Mrs. Mary Ginzel, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Larry McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Grosse Mohler and Mr. and Mrs. Autry Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Williams

Robert Williams' wed 50 years ago

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Williams of 1210 W. Tennessee were honored at a party observing their 50th wedding anniversary.

Williams is a retired pipefitter and has lived in Midland the past seven-and-a-half years.

The couple's daughter, Bobbie

Hamilton, and her family hosted the celebration at their home in Garland. Also attending were the couple's son, L. M. Williams, and his family of Houston.

The Williams have five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

AT WIT'S END

Country needs leader to execute his office

By ERMA BOMBECK

Today, the 39th President of the United States takes office. There are a lot of things I don't want to know about him. I don't want to know his golf scores, his tennis scores, his bowling scores or see his spills if he is a skier. (It makes me nervous to see a President fumble a ball on first base.) I don't want to see his scars if he has had surgery, especially if it involves taking off his necktie. I don't want to know if he and the First Lady share a double bed or go singles. (I like to believe that a President's sex life is like that of my biology teacher whom I had a crush on in the 8th grade non-existent.) I don't want to see him stumbling off of Air Force One, or falling asleep during a commencement exercise at which he is the featured speaker. I don't care what sign he was born under or whether or not he cheated in college. (It's too late to do anything about either one of them.) I don't care to know what the First Family has for dinner or what they bought one another or where and if they attend church services on Sundays. I don't want to know about the men/women who crept into their lives through back doors and secret meetings. I don't want to know how he felt about Rhett Butler or whether or not he would have married Melanie or Scarlett. I don't want to know what dress designer the First Lady uses or particularly what size she is. I don't have to know what their living quarters in the White House look like, or what books they read and where they go when they leave for a weekend. I don't want to intrude for a moment on their joy, their grief, or the dignity of their private lives which some feel they owe us.

HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES. (Fri., Jan. 21) The morning is the time to wind up matters which were started yesterday. The afternoon and evening gives you a chance to get rid of secret annoyances. Quietly gather the data you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best time to meet with good friends and reach important decisions. The evening is best spent at home with family.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A vocational matter should be handled intelligently in the morning and then you have more time for being with friends later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new contact could be most helpful to you in the future. Your intuition is extremely good now, so be sure to use it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Begin day properly by doing whatever will please your mate. Be sure to rely on your intuition more now and get fine results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find a common point on which to agree with associates in a project that is important to you. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) First tackle all that work ahead of you and then you can look into a new interest that fascinates you. Take no chances with your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make those appointments early for the recreation you want later in the day. Be more alert to opportunities around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Consult a business expert for advice you need. Later engage in favorite hobby with congenials and relieve tensions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle important correspondence early in the day and then later you can attend to home matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First attend to a monetary matter that is vital to your welfare. Later get in touch with an expert who can be of service to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 29) Organize your plans in a most confidential manner in the morning then work out financial problems later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan your activities so you can easily gain whatever means the most to you. Attend the social tonight and be cheerful.

Being vegetarian restored 'Doctor Ann' to health

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

Vegetarianism is more than a way of eating for Ann Wigmore. It's also a way to save money and to conserve energy. "You save energy by not cooking your foods," says Wigmore. It's an inexpensive way to eat because it calls for no meat and you can grow much of your food. She hasn't always been a vegetarian, but she believes the diet restored her health. About 17 years ago she says she was crippled, hair had gone completely gray. "Gradually my health improved as I changed my diet," says Wigmore, founder of the Hippocrates Health Institute in Boston, Mass. While growing up in Lithuania, she says, her diet was a simple, natural one and didn't include the processed foods she later ate. "I was healthy then," she says. Food was scarce and expensive and her grandmother was a nature physician who believed in using only natural foods.

"She treated people with grasses, using them as polities," says Wigmore. Wigmore's approach to diet and health is a holistic one, she says. "I teach nourishment, how to exercise, breath control and how to stop thinking about sickness," she says. At the base of her diet is a drink made from wheat berries which she believes helps persons with a variety of diseases and ailments regain their health. All food eaten should be organically grown and living, says Doctor Ann, as she is called by her diet followers. But she admits it is hard to let go of old habits. "I believe you should let go of one thing at a time. Your mind has to be reprogrammed." "The transition to living food will be slower for some persons than for others," she says. To help make the transition to a vegetarian diet, she suggests first to avoid sugar, milk products, white bread and bakery products, all carbonated drinks, hamburgers and hot dogs, alcohol, cigarettes, snacks, canned food, salt and spices, vinegar, coffee and ice cream. The next step is to trim the size of your meals. Wigmore also stresses eating a balanced diet and to learn which foods to eat to get the proper amounts of protein and other nutrients. Gradually eliminate meat, she says, replacing it with cooked sprouts, grains and vegetable loaves. "If you have difficulty changing your diet, don't be afraid to cheat," she says.

Her grandmother also made a drink from grasses, weeds and herbs which she instructed her patients to drink instead of eating solid foods. "I didn't really want to go back to this way of eating, but I had to," she says. "I got rid of the doughnuts and wasn't using any cooked foods." She says she began using sprouts and greens in her diet and began to have much more energy. Now she needs only about four hours sleep a night where she once needed 10.

Good nutrition does not change for elderly

COLLEGE STATION — Don't tell your age by your eating habits — you may be aging, but you can eat young, Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, says. She's with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Calorie requirements are the only difference between what young and old people should eat — nutritional needs are generally the same. The body doesn't need any one particular food — it needs components of food: protein, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals, called nutrients. "Daily caloric needs decline with each decade over 50, so calorie intake must usually be reduced. Requirement for most other nutrients remains fairly constant during older life," she explained.

Foods furnishing nutrients are grouped into four basic groups.

"Major sources of protein in the American diet are red meat, poultry, fish and eggs. This group also contributes iron and some thiamine (Vitamin B1). The excellent protein contribution of milk and milk products is often overlooked. Dried peas, beans and peanut butter, especially when combined with meat or milk proteins are also good protein sources. Cereal protein and meat protein, combined in a frozen entree, provide useful protein at mealtime."

Calcium is the nutrient most likely to be consumed in amounts below recommended levels in the diets of the elderly. Milk and milk products furnish most of this important mineral. Those who do not drink milk may enjoy cheese, yogurt or milk desserts. Also, small amounts of calcium are found in vegetables, especially the dark leafy varieties. The milk group also supplies riboflavin and, if fortified, Vitamin D. Two cups of milk or equivalent calcium in dairy products is needed daily, she said.

"The fruit and vegetable group furnishes Vitamins A, C, some calcium and iron. In the American diet, orange juice has become the major source of Vitamin C. But other sources are grapefruit, cabbage, broccoli, vine-ripened tomatoes, green peppers and such fruits as strawberries and cantaloupe. A serving of a Vitamin-C rich food each day is recommended.

"Think 'green' and 'orange' for food sources to furnish Vitamin A. Deep green leafy vegetables, winter squash, carrots and cantaloupe are all excellent sources of carotenes, which are converted to Vitamin A by the body. Liver is a rich source of Vitamin A. Vitamin A is stored by the body, and one serving is needed every other day."

Four servings of the bread-cereal group are needed

daily. Cereal products contain the B vitamins: thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. These three vitamins are mentioned together because they normally appear in the same foods. Along with iron, they are the three vitamins added when cereal products are enriched. Whole-grain cereals are the most common source of these B vitamins. In addition, riboflavin is found in dairy products, while pork is a good source of thiamine or Vitamin B1.

"No single food has a high iron content. The dietary intake must come from small amounts of iron found in many foods. Meats, eggs, cereals, whole-grained or enriched, dark leafy green vegetables, dried apricots and raisins all add to the daily iron intake.

"Dietary fiber provides bulk necessary for the efficient function of the gastrointestinal tract. Food sources of fiber are fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grain cereals, dried fruits and nuts," she said.

Water is an important component of all body cells. It functions in the regulation of body temperature and the removal of waste products from the body.

Fox trapper gathers pelts for fur coats

By MARY MACDONALD

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — He marked in his mind the deepened stream channel to find it later in the snow — five feet from that tree trunk where a moose scraped antlers, between the hornbeam tree and a copse of pines.

Doug Ingraham, in green baseball cap, red plaid jacket, hip-high boots, was prospecting — checking out animal signs so he would know where to set his traps during the season, when the channel, home for beaver, would be hidden by ice.

THE FALL AND WINTER trapping season in Maine opens with fox, not beaver. But Ingraham, a construct worker when he isn't trapping, does his prospecting early.

At 34, he's been a trapper since his teens, an oldtimer with new competition. The sharp rises in the price of most furs have swelled the ranks of trappers all over the country.

Trapping is a more than $100 million industry in North America. Louisiana, where alligators and nutria abound, is the biggest trapping state, the take worth $11 million in 1973-74, according to the latest figures available. Maine's trapper take was worth about $2 million the same year. Its licensed trappers have doubled in the past four years, to 3,400, perhaps a third of them fulltime.

Foxes are the bread-and-butter catch here, worth $40 a pelt, up from 50 cents 10 years ago. In the five-week fox season, a good trapper can make $1,000. And a full-time trapper going for fox, beaver and other animals, might make a total of $7,500 in a year, Maine's fish and game officials say.

ON THE FOURTH DAY of fox trapping, at it since 7:30 a.m., Ingraham was after his eleventh fox of the season.

He was driving around in a pickup truck looking for a trap, one of nearly 50 he had set in areas where Maine's red foxes come to look for small rodents. By law, he must check every trap every day.

"I think I got one," he said suddenly and jumped from the truck. His green boots slid through the stubby corn stalks as he approached the trap, several hundred yards from the road.

Ingraham said he has never been hurt by a trapped fox, although the animals bite at him occasionally. "Some of the big ones, the males, act really ugly sometimes," he said.

BUT THIS FOX was small, about eight pounds, easily subdued. The animal struggled as the trapper approached, then crouched as Ingraham circled slowly.

He stunned it with a blow to the snout from his trowel. Then he killed it, putting one knee on its side to press its lungs and heart and tugging with his hand at the structures which support the heart.

The process, which he called "pulling the heart strings," was over in less than a minute.

"It seems a shame to kill an animal as pretty as that. Some things there's no answer for," Ingraham said. "But when you see them with mange and rabies ...

Overpopulation weakens them and makes them susceptible to diseases, he said.

INGRAHAM RESET the trap in the same spot. He worked in gloves. The trap and tools he used had been boiled in bark and buried under leaves weeks before the season — to remove human odor.

By the end of the day, Ingraham had three more foxes and two skunks.

Although trapping for bobcat or beaver could take him 20 miles to camp out overnight, he does his fox hunting generally within about 15 miles of his house on the edge of Portland, Maine's largest city.

ADDED COMPETITION from other trappers means he has to hustle to be first to ask a farmer for permission to trap on his land, and must walk farther from the road to find spots not covered by other trappers.

John Hunt, who does research for the state on fur bearing animals, said the tight job market has pressed new trappers into the industry, and that some of the newcomers are part of a current "resurgence to the land" that brings young people to Maine farms and woodlands from urban areas outside the state.

But the biggest reason for the swelling ranks of trappers is the soaring prices of fur pelts. The most valuable Maine furbearer, a bobcat, will bring a trapper about $140, up about 130 per cent in five years.

AT THE OTHER END of the industry, consumers are paying more for fur coats. Irwin R. Ware of Chicago's Bonwit Teller Fur Salon reports prices are up 50 per cent or more this year.

Fur is often bought on speculation without regard to fashion, says Sidney Schipper, a fur industry expert who is dean of fashion technology at George Brown University, Toronto, Canada.

Thus, it is almost impossible to trace prices directly from the trapper to the fashion industry to the consumer.

"Fur is transportable at little or no duty between most countries. It is an international medium of exchange," Schipper says.

MAINE'S TRAPPERS are resentful and wary because of the criticism of those who see trapping as unjustified cruelty. They contend that the harvesting actually improves the lot of the animals.

They consider themselves part of the scheme of nature. As Ingraham sees it, "The animals you're out after, most of them are predators. They're traveling too, having a great time, looking for places to catch their prey ... Some of them are super intelligent."

"I like animals. I know that sounds strange," he says. "Maybe I've inherited some of the traits of the basic man — the hunter, the predator."

Wind erosion total ahead of last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been about 8.5 per cent more land damaged by wind erosion in the Great Plains so far this season than during the same period last year, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Last year during the so-called wind erosion season which runs from Nov. 1 through the following May 31, a total of nearly 6.2 million acres of land was damaged, the most in 20 years. The department's Soil Conservation Service, in its first report of the new season, said that as of Dec. 31 some 1,122,517 acres were damaged by wind in selected counties in 10 states.

Officials said the heaviest damage occurred in the Dakotas where farmers were hit severely by drought last year and had poor vegetative cover to protect land.

Invasion from Mexico fails to materialize

By DIANNE ROWLAND

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Teletypes buzzed with alarm earlier this month in every Arizona law enforcement agency.

The state was about to be invaded by a group of Mexican terrorists armed with machine guns and on the march to several military installations.

The alert went out from the Yuma Border Patrol through sheriff's offices and police departments in southern Arizona.

Some officials are still waiting for the munitions raid, but most have filed it away as an "unverified rumor."

The report Jan. 7 that a band of about 25 Mexican guerrillas armed with M16 rifles, rocket and grenade launchers left Tijuana, Baja California, for Arizona originated with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).

THE REPORT quoted a usually reliable source as saying the terrorists had crossed the border at Yuma and planned munitions raids on military posts. The Army's Yuma Proving Grounds, Ft. Huachuca, the Marine's Yuma Air Station, Davis-Monthan Air Force Base and other installations issued alerts.

Two or three days later, most officials had relaxed and looked at the incident as just another rumor.

"I have no doubt of the authenticity of the report," said Tom Mataya, assistant chief of the INS Border Patrol in Tucson. "The information came from a law enforcement agency in Arizona and it still may happen. I can't hang my hat on anything definite, but you can't ignore it. Because of the publicity, they may be lying low for a while."

Mataya said border agents remain on alert for any sign of guerrillas, but that no extra manpower has been added.

HE DECLINED TO name the source of the report. However, a spokesman in the Border Patrol office in Yuma said the alert there had been cancelled and all was "back to normal."

"We were never notified, so we didn't do anything," said Maj. Raul Parada of the Nogales sheriff's office. "We read about it in the newspapers, so we're keeping our eyes open. We had a similar rumor and alert last summer."

The military installations apparently were notified to tighten security by headquarters in Washington, D.C., and most officials said the word came through "channels."

"The only thing I know is that the alert is off," said Maj. Terry Breen, Staff Judge Advocate at the Marine Corps Air Station in Yuma. "My only connection with it was in one of those hush-hush meetings when they asked me what the rules of law were for using deadly force if it came to that."

"OF COURSE, my initial reaction was that if they shoot at you, you shoot back. But we basically would have followed state law."

Yuma County Sheriff Travis Yancey said his office continued the alert for four days "but I never really did buy it."

"The federal government started the whole mess," he said. "INS put out a teletype on it, but I don't know why it got so blown out of proportion. I'd suspect something like this would come more from U.S. militant groups, not Mexicans. But the information was given to us in good faith, it's unusual as far as assaulting one of our bases, and we couldn't ignore it."

The "alert" was not a true one in military language, said Paul Stoll, public information officer at Ft. Huachuca.

"It wasn't like we had all sorts of troops standing by and recalled personnel to the post. We just beefed up security for a while."

STOLL ALSO said it was the second such report in four months. The military coordinated plans with local law enforcement agencies. Stoll said, but it would "remain a civilian problem until they reached the military installation."

"The last I heard was that the powers that be decided it was a rumor from an unreliable source. The kind of a thing I heard from a friend of a friend of a friend," he said.

The Department of Public Safety and FBI also were notified, but participated in no investigations, officials said. A spokesman for the Border County Narcotics Strike Force said his agency was not involved.

However, Gene Wood of the INS said the Tucson Border Patrol also said the information was checked out and came from a reliable source.

"And when we disseminated the report, we received other reports from various agencies that coincided with our information," Wood said.

HE WOULD'N'T elaborate on the reports or sources.

"It's just one of those things that can't be proven or disproven," said FBI agent Roger Young. "We weren't told where the report came from, but basically it's now thought to be spurious. Still, it was unusual that so many guerrillas were said to be coming to hit specific targets. Sometimes it's better to spread the word with that kind of rumor than ignore it."

Meanwhile, military officials reported no weapons missing or any unusual disruptions at Arizona bases.

'Weekend' stirs Canadian's ire

OTTAWA — A member of the Canadian federal government has criticized a U.S. television program on racial problems in Toronto as "irresponsible," subjective journalism.

The program, carried Saturday, Jan. 1, on NBC's "Weekend" series, suggested that Toronto was a city simmering with racial conflict.

But Cullen, federal minister for manpower and immigration, said he hoped to obtain a transcript of the program and planned to contact NBC. He said Canada had become known as a country of immigrants. Occasional disputes over minor differences were sometimes exaggerated.

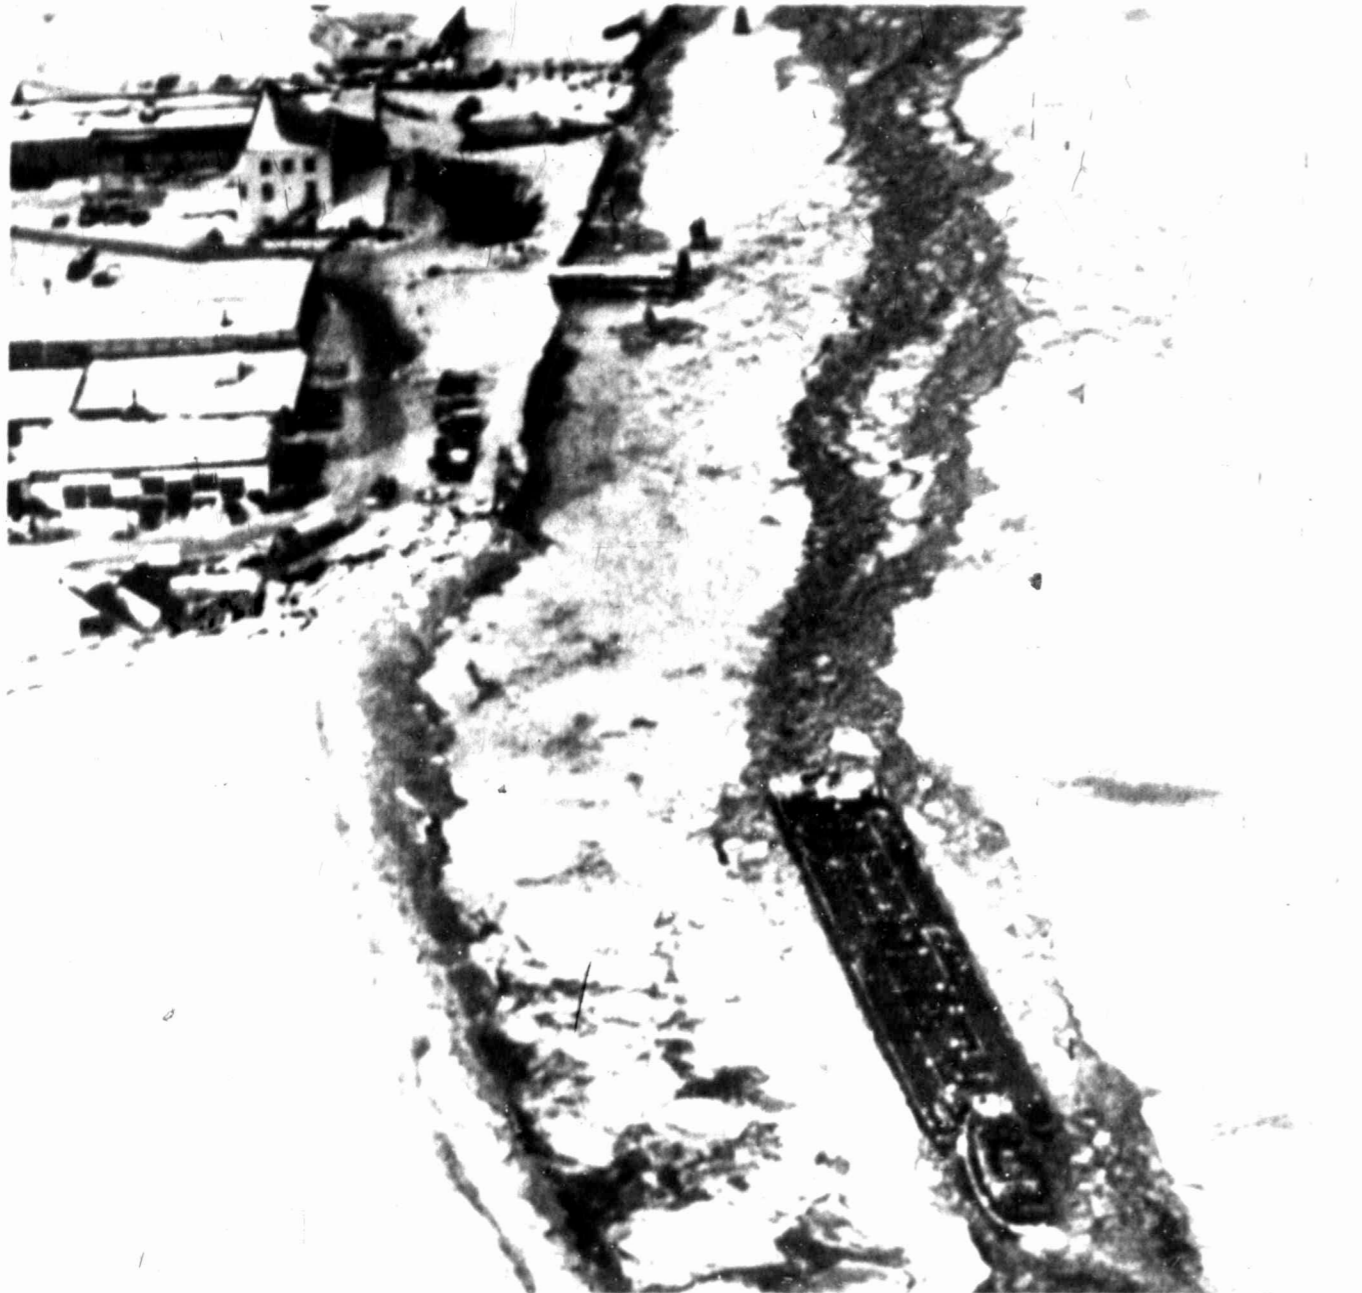

He charged that the NBC program was based on "a preconceived idea." The interviewers had spoken only with people who held similar views, he said.

Toronto Mayor David Crombie also has objected to the program.

Nixon fan plans site for visitors

LA HABRA, Calif. (AP) — A Southern California fan of former President Richard M. Nixon says he and two friends bought Nixon's former law office and will restore it so people can visit the site.

Don Bendetti, a developer who is an alumnus of Nixon's undergraduate school, Whittier College, said he met with Nixon several months ago after he and his friends bought the office.

Economist believes OPEC has weakness

DALLAS (AP) — Internal and external pressures eventually will reduce the power the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries currently wields over consumers, says a Federal Reserve Bank economist.

Writing in a publication of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, D.K. Osborne said an indication that even OPEC members are aware of a possible breakup in the cartel is the fact that they are pressing for an international agreement. The agreement would set a price range within which oil prices can move.

Osborne suggested that it would be in the consuming countries' interest to ignore OPEC's requests for the agreement. He said such a pact would only ease the organization's internal pressures and self-interest which, if maintained, can bring prices down.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

Osborne noted that OPEC's power comes from the unity shown by the countries in posting oil prices at a fixed level and staying with them.

Additional sales at or slightly below the posted price will add more to a member's revenue," he said, if it is done secretly. "But suppose that, contrary to his own interest, a member continues to honor the agreement; if he is ignorant of the other members' sales or prices, then he must fear their breaches...whether out of greed or fear."

Two areas get tests, Reeves, new gas wells

An outpost has been staked in a Sterling field and a Howard wildcat has been amended to extend and confirm a field. Also, field extenders have been finalized in Reeves County.

Well site is 1,600 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 24, block 57, T-3, T&P survey.

Howard Project Great Western Drilling Co., Midland No. 1 Myers, previously scheduled Ellenburger wildcat in Northwest Howard, one location northwest of the shut-in one-well Knott, West (Pennsylvanian reef) field, has been amended to plug back to 9,391 feet, for completion try in the Pennsylvanian reef.

Completion was effected through perforations at 3,101-3,107 feet, after acidizing with 2,250 gallons and fracturing with 2,000 pounds of sand.

'Arithmetic' big reason why many tankers fly Liberia, Panama flags

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — Federal law says U.S. merchant ships have to have U.S. crews, and the cost of a typical U.S. crew of 32 aboard a modern oil tanker is about $1.7 million a year, one New York tanker owners' association has calculated.

than $1 million a year by registering his vessel in some country other than the United States.

record, McKenzie said, partly because tankers are being built bigger year by year, so a single accident can produce a larger spill.

An Italian tanker crew of the same size costs only $600,000 a year. Italian wages are lower, benefits fewer. A Greek crew can be assembled for an even lower amount, perhaps $325,000, and a Chinese crew for under $300,000.

That compelling bit of international arithmetic is the major explanation for a strange maritime phenomenon that has been frequently in the news in recent weeks — the vast merchant fleet of the tiny nation of Liberia in Equatorial West Africa.

At the start of last year, the Commerce Department says, there were 5,311 tankers in the world, with a total bulk of 302.3 million tons.

A tanker owner can thus save more

There has been a spate of accidents and oil spills from these foreign-flag tankers in or near U.S. waters, beginning Dec. 15 when the Liberian-registered Argo Merchant ran aground 27 miles off Nantucket and eventually spilled 7.6 million gallons of oil into the ocean.

Enserch Exploration, Inc., Midland, has completed four new extensions to the Reeves, North (3,200) gas field of Reeves County, about eight miles south of Orla.

Mobil sets Gaines test

Mobil Oil Corp. will drill No. 8 Tom May as a 3/4-mile southeast stepout to the two-well G-M-K, South (San Andres) oil pool of Gaines County, 12 miles northeast of Seminole.

Two days later another Liberian tanker blew up in Los Angeles harbor, leaving nine dead and 50 injured.

Enserch Exploration, Inc., Midland, has completed four new extensions to the Reeves, North (3,200) gas field of Reeves County, about eight miles south of Orla.

Scheduled depth for the project is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 40, block G, WTRR survey.

Since then, two Liberian tankers have run aground in the Delaware River near Philadelphia, one spilling 133,000 gallons of oil, another Liberian tanker has run aground off Puerto Rico; still another has spilled 2,000 gallons of oil in the Thames River near Groton, Conn., and a Panamanian tanker, the Grand Zenith, has disappeared with a crew of 36 and 8.2 million gallons of oil in heavy seas off Nova Scotia.

No. 2-24 ARCO-State, a 1/2-mile northeast extension, finalized for a calculated, absolute open flow of 903,900 cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 3,157-3,161 feet. The section had been acidized with 250 gallons and fractured with 2,000 gallons and 2,000 pounds.

The firm's No. 6 Tom May, originally slated 1,830 feet from north and 610 feet from east lines of the same section, has been amended to 660 feet from north and 610 feet from west lines of section 40, 1/4 mile west of production.

And the accidents continue at 1 a.m. Friday the loaded Liberian tanker Barcola ran aground off Port Arthur, Tex., and at midnight on Friday an explosion injured several crewmen and knocked out the navigational equipment of the empty Liberian tanker Mary Ann 300 miles east of Norfolk.

Tool was open an unreported time on the test taken from 10,507-10,675 feet. The sampler recovered 3 cubic feet of gas, 1.400 cubic centimeters of gas-cut mud with a trace of oil, and 1.400 cubic centimeters of drilling fluid.

Terry project flowing crude

NRM Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1-A Cotten, location northeast offset to the recent San Andres oil reopener in the Wellman, Southwest field of Terry County, flowed 159 barrels of oil in 24 hours.

It is easy to conclude from all this that the problem lies with Liberia, that the Liberian merchant marine must be the bilge of the world's tankers and seamen. But the problem is more complicated.

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland today reported additional exploration and studies on seven areas of concentrated drilling in Wyoming indicate an estimated 2,300,000 pounds of uranium oxide defined as proven, inferred and geologically possible.

The flow was through an unreported choke and perforations at 5,474-5,496 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons. Testing continued.

Ships flying the Liberian flag are seldom owned or manned by Liberians. Their money and men come from every seafaring nation on the globe.

Reserves of 1,482,000 pounds were reported in October 1976 based on studies of the same areas by an independent consulting firm.

It is 2,173 feet from north and 1,840 feet from east lines of section 61, block DD, John H. Gibson survey, four miles southwest of Wellman.

What Liberia's "flag of convenience" represents is a stable government with a stable currency and mortgage and tax laws that are favorable to the industry — a combination not all that common.

Exploration to date has been confined to a small part of 60,000 acres of unpatented lode mining claims under agreement with Vipont Mining Co., Englewood, Colo., whereby Adobe earns 51 per cent after satisfying exploration and development commitments. During 1976, Adobe spent approximately $750,000 and expects to spend $500,000 in 1977.

The San Andres reopener, NRM No. 1 Cotten, finalized Nov. 11, 1976, for 143 barrels of oil and 16 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 3,475-5,485 feet.

Adobe estimates are based on the result of 103,000 feet of drilling and coring in 330 holes and includes chemical assays to determine the relationship between chemical and log measurements.

The flow was through perforations at 13,044-13,561 feet, after acidizing with 8,400 gallons. Testing continued.

NE Terrell well finals

Texas Crude, Inc., Houston, No. 1-8 C Allison has been completed as a 1/4-mile east extension to the Allison (Pennsylvanian detrital) gas field of Northeast Terrell County.

The basic oil-spill problem is simply that more oil is being moved today by sea. World tanker tonnage has increased four fold in 12 years. The more oil being moved, the greater the chance that some will spill.

The flow was through a 12-64-inch choke and perforations at 9,567-9,683 feet. The section had been treated with 3,000 gallons of acid. Testing continued.

Originally scheduled in the field, it was rescheduled to test the Ellenburger as a wildcat. Total depth is 12,482 feet.

One expert, Arthur McKenzie, director of the Tanker Advisory Center in New York, a ship-buyers' information service, says 604 tanker accidents occurred worldwide in the first nine months of 1976, of which 21 resulted in substantial spills. The total spilled was more than 60 million gallons. The number of accidents has been higher in previous years. It was over 900 in 1973, for example. But the amount of oil spilled in 1976 was a Location is 990 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 142, block E, CCSD&RGNG survey, 14 1/2 miles northeast of McCamey.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 8, block B-2, CCSD&RGNG survey, nine miles south of Sheffield.

It was completed as a Bend confirmation in the King Mountain, North field.

Anadarko Production Co., operating from Artesia, N.M., has completed a one-mile southwest extension to Morrow gas production in the Loco Hills field of Eddy County, N.M.

Monsanto hits crude

Monsanto Co. No. 3 Bernice, outpost to Ellenburger production in the Yucca Butte, West field of Pecos County, 11 miles west of Sheffield, recovered 200 feet of oil and 800 feet of oil- and gas-cut mud, along with 1,820 feet of drilling fluid, on a second consecutive drillstem test.

Drilled to 11,400 feet, it has 4 1/2-inch casing set on bottom, and it is plugged back to 11,399 feet.

Gulf finals

Gulf Oil Corp. has completed No. 4-A Bertha Glasscock as a location northeast extension to the Devil's River (Strawn) gas field of North Val Verde County.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 19.5 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, producing through perforations at 10,038-10,102 feet, after acidizing with 500 gallons and treating with 20,000 gallons of gelled water pad.

Well site is 2,291 feet from north and 610 feet from east lines of section 6, block G, GWTP survey, 23 miles northeast of Juno.

Try in Ward flaring gas

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1 T. B. Pruitt, et al, Gas Unit, Ward County wildcat, six miles southeast of the Vermejo (Fusselman and Ellenburger) gas field and 4 1/2 miles northeast of Ellenburger production in the Mi Vida field, was flaring gas at the estimated, daily rate of 2.2 million cubic feet per day, at 6,510 and 8,370 feet.

Total depth of the project is 19,082 feet.

Location is 1,505 feet from southeast and 1,119 feet from southwest lines of section 23, block 1, W&NW survey, 11 miles north of Barstow.

Union Texas Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1-26 Sugg, Irion County wildcat, 16 1/2 miles northwest of Mertzton, and 4 1/2 miles northwest of the one-well Burnt Rock (Canyon) gas field, flowed 64 barrels of oil and one barrel of water in 24 hours, from an unidentified section.

Testing continued through perforations at 6,904-6,960 feet, after fracturing with 31,000 gallons and 21,500 pounds of sand.

Location is 1,108 feet from south and west lines of section 26, block 6, H&T survey.

Location is 1,600 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 24, block 57, T-3, T&P survey.

No. 2-26 State of Texas had a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 477,700 cubic feet of dry gas daily. It was completed through perforations at 3,124-3,134 feet, after treating the formation with 250 gallons of acid and fracturing with 2,000 gallons and 2,000 pounds of sand.

Well site is 710 feet from north and 1,320 feet from east lines of section 26, block 57, T-3, T&P survey. It is a link well on the north side of the field.

No. 4-26 State of Texas, a 3/4-mile southwest extension, gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 2,531 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Completion was effected through perforations at 3,101-3,107 feet, after acidizing with 2,250 gallons and fracturing with 2,000 pounds of sand.

It is 1,980 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 26, block 57, T-3, T&P survey.

No. 3-26 State of Texas, one location north of No. 4-26, had an absolute open flow potential of 1,111,400 cubic feet of dry gas per day.

It was completed through perforations at 3,092-3,103 feet. The pay zone was acidized with 2,250 gallons and fractured with 2,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 26, block 57, T-3, T&P survey.

Anadarko Production Co., operating from Artesia, N.M., has completed a one-mile southwest extension to Morrow gas production in the Loco Hills field of Eddy County, N.M.

The firm's No. 1 Loco Hills Federal Communitized Unit finalized to flow 2.5 million cubic feet of gas and 89 barrels of oil along with 51 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 10,855-10,878 feet, and on a 24-64-inch choke. Gravity of the condensate is 55.6 degrees, and gas-condensate ratio measured 28,090-1.

Drilled to 11,400 feet, it has 4 1/2-inch casing set on bottom, and it is plugged back to 11,399 feet.

Well site is 1,980 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 29-17s-30e, 1/4 miles southwest of Loco Hills.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Carter's aides are suggesting that he tour the country in mid-March to gain support for his domestic programs, meet with Canadian and Mexican leaders and speak to Congress and the United Nations — all within three months.

The proposals are outlined in a 29-page, suggested agenda for the president-elect drawn up and submitted to Carter by his transition staff. A copy of the agenda was obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press.

Several items on the agenda, such as Cabinet announcements and meetings with congressional leaders on foreign policy, already have been completed. Sources close to Carter say as far as they know the agenda has not been superseded by any other plan.

But there was no indication of Carter's reaction to the suggested three-month agenda of activity.

On the agenda are: —A proposal to ease unemployment among Vietnam veterans, to be announced next week either before or along with Carter's promised pardon of Vietnam-era draft evaders.

"As part of the pardon message, the President might then refer back to the Vietnam veterans

Play bridge often to maintain health

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Everybody should cooperate with the national fitness program, and bridge columnists must do their part. There are times when you should get up from the bridge table and walk about a bit, breaking furniture as you walk.

Opening lead — ♦ Q

You put down the dummy and see your partner ruff the first club, lead a spade to the ace and ruff another club.

It is time to get up from the table and get your exercise.

Without even looking at her hand you know that it must be better to develop the diamonds than to ruff clubs. (Why "her" hand rather than "his" hand? Surely you don't think today's hand was picked at random!)

When you return to the table you discover that you are down one. South ruffed three clubs in dummy and discarded the fourth club on the king of spades. But eventually she lost two diamonds.

SET UP DUMMY

Now you can explain the correct play. It is good exercise for the lungs.

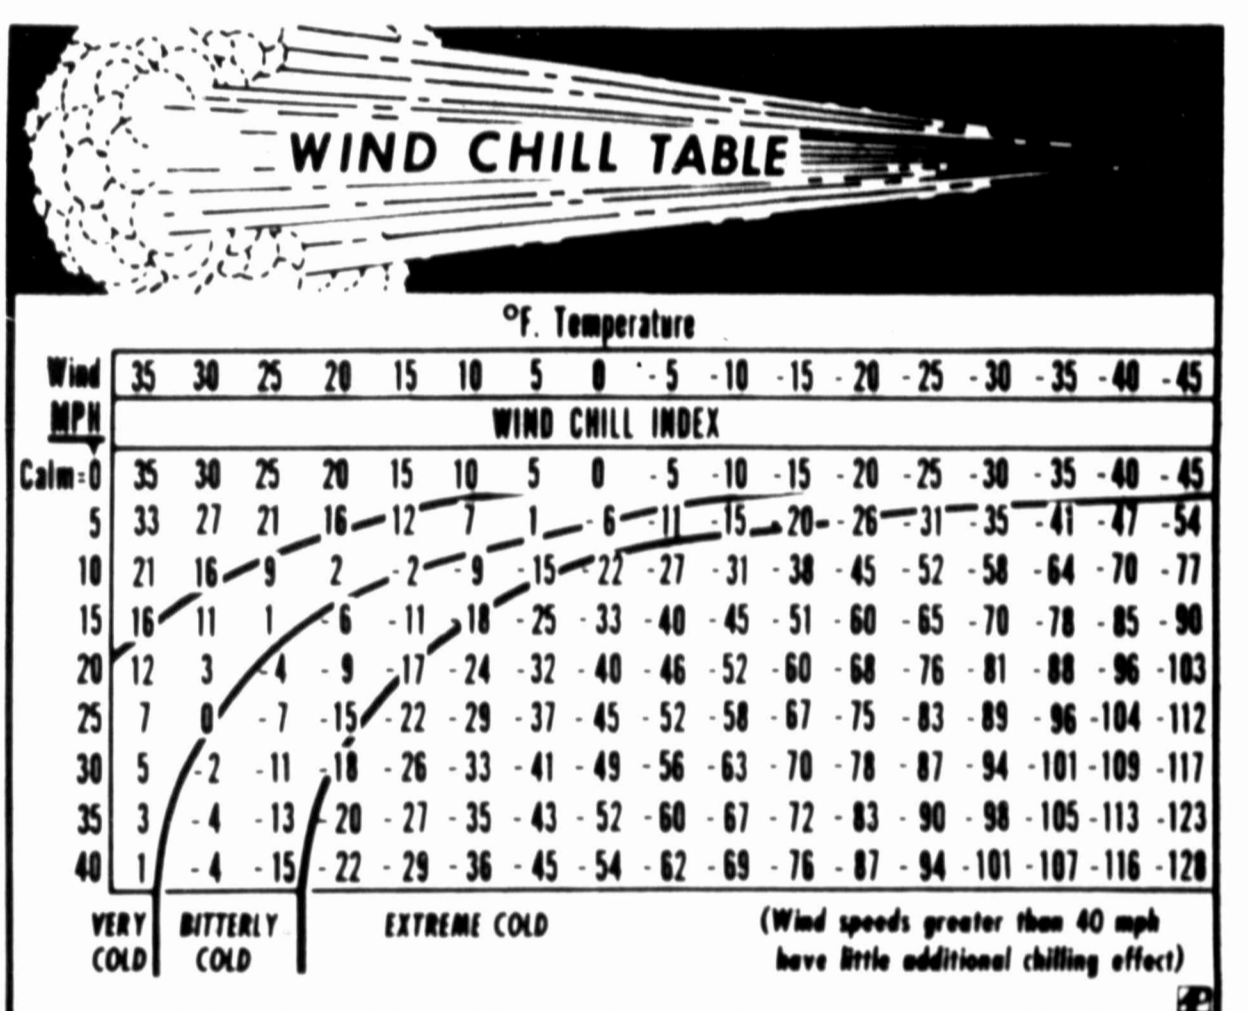

After ruffing the first club, South should draw two trumps, cash the ace of spades and lead a diamond. East takes the ace of diamonds and forces the dummy to ruff a club, but declarer discards a diamond on the king of spades, cashes the king of diamonds and ruffs a diamond. Then the rest of dummy is good.

Be sure to keep a few flimsy chairs in the house so that you have something to work on when hands like this come up.

Sun shines on Hall of Fame

Ernie Banks, voted into Baseball's Hall of Fame Wednesday, is shown in action during his 19-year career with the Chicago Cubs as he collects 2,500th hit and completes a double play.

NEW YORK (AP) — To Ernie Banks, the newest inductee in the Hall of Fame, playing baseball was like waking up every day to a pile of toys underneath a Christmas tree.

It was sunshine, hot dogs, old family friends, dedication, loyalty, a 20th century Camelot. You ought to pay the club owner or letting you play.

"The whole theory of my life is sunshine," the 45-year-old former Chicago Cubs' infielder said after receiving baseball's highest honor. "My total philosophy is to keep a smile on my face and kindness in my heart."

"Happiness is wherever you are." Banks, son of a poor Texas grocery clerk, is an almost unbelievable anachronism in this age of strikes, lockouts, agents with black satchels, law suits and multi-million-dollar contracts.

ASKED IF, in his 19 years with the Cubs he had been offered a chance to go to another club at double the salary, would he take it, Banks responded:

"No, I wouldn't."

Citing his long and warm relationship with Philip K. Wrigley, the chewing gum magnate and owner of the Cubs, Banks added: "I don't think all the money in the world could replace that association."

"A man just can't say, 'I'm for me.' If he can't work it out with one club, he probably can't work it out with another."

Banks, slim, clean-cut and dapper in a business suit, dazzled Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, other baseball executives and the press with his boyish enthusiasm, lightning quick recall and articulation for more than an hour.

"It's amazing," said Kuhn. "You could sit and listen to him for hours."

Banks acknowledged that he was sitting by the telephone when it rang with the Hall of Fame news from Jack

Lang, secretary-treasurer of the baseball writers.

"I CALLED the airline and they said they would hold a plane for me," he related. "Then I told Lang, 'Give my regards to Broadway, remember me to Herald Square.'"

Answering staccato questions with spontaneity and warmth, he paid tribute to all who had assisted him in his career—Buck O'Neill of the old Negro leagues, teammate Gene Baker, Monte Irwin, Lou Boudreau, Charlie Grimm, Bob Feller, Jackie

LOIS GERACI Ernst, commissioner of the Women's Basketball Association, announces new 12 team league that will open play in October.

Robinson, Ralph Kiner and others.

He said he appreciated the privilege of being with a team which played all of its games in daylight.

"When I was 15, I remember seeing my dad go to work while it was dark and come back while it was still dark," he recalled, "and I said I wanted a daytime job. So I landed with the Cubs."

HE APPRECIATED the time that, as a raw kid in the Negro League, Jackie Robinson gave him a chance to tour with an all-star team.

"Keep at it, kid, some day you will be in the majors," Jackie told him.

"I had no idea it would come true," Banks added.

Ernie was able to recall almost to the second—"2:15 on a sunny Tuesday in July, 2:37 on Wednesday afternoon"—the momentous home runs among the 512 he struck.

"As I rounded third base I would say, 'Thank God, for making it all possible,'" he related.

Called "Mr. Sunshine" because of his blithe spirit, the former Cub shortstop was asked if he ever got angry on the field.

"Once Jack Sanford of the Giants hit me in the back twice. You might say I got excited."

He also remembered the sorrows—1969 when the Cubs led the National League East for 100 days before being beaten out by the Mets.

"The disappointment was terrible," he said. "After the clinching game, I went by the lake and cried."

Gal cage czar okays betting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle would choke on his football if he knew that a fellow commissioner approved and supported sports gambling.

"I think it will make our sport more interesting," said Lois Geraci Ernst, commissioner of the new Women's Basketball Association. "With off-track betting and the like, we know that gambling happens."

"I have no problems with it. If it brings people into our arenas, that's fine. A lot of men will bet on anything they can make money on."

A lot of people are betting that women's basketball will bounce as high as an airless ball. Mrs. Ernst is not one of them.

"I THINK it will work because we're going to attract a new kind of fan," she said. "We won't be in competition with the (New York) Knicks. We're going to get the young woman, and she's going to bring her husband."

The 12-team league, which announced Wednesday that it will begin play in October, is in the process of selling its franchises. League officials said New York and Dallas have found buyers, with sales close in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Des Moines, Iowa, and Milwaukee. The other league cities will be Philadelphia, Greensboro, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Indianapolis; Salt Lake City, and Portland, Ore.

"The WBA," said Mrs. Ernst, "is a chance for women basketball players to play out their dreams."

One of those dreamers is Karen Logan, who said she was frequently urged to throw away her basketball and pick up a tennis racket.

"They said I was out of my mind to play basketball," said Miss Logan. "They said the only sports careers for a woman were in golf and tennis."

"BUT NOW I can finally get a chance to do what I care about. I love basketball. It's my sport. And I want to play it."

Before the WBA came along, Miss Logan's only professional basketball came in exhibitions. She once beat former Los Angeles Lakers star Jerry West in a shooting contest.

"I'm not an amateur, but I couldn't be a professional, either," she said. "I would have given my right arm—I shoot left-handed—to go to the Olympics. But they said I had made money from other sports."

Miss Logan won some money in the women's Superstar competition, but she said it wasn't especially satisfying.

"I want to make a professional career out of something I'm good at," said Miss Logan, now a coach at Utah State. "I competed in Superstars and won some events, but I was competing out of my element."

Whether the WBA will survive and prosper—and league officials expect start-up attendance figures to average 3,500—there will be those who think professional basketball is out of the female element.

BATTLE SCENE

And suddenly it's whole new world

BY TED BATTLES

A few days ago, Mike Umfleet, the University of Oklahoma product who has played third base for the Midland Texas League Cubs for the last year and a half, really didn't see much of a future with the Chicago Cubs.

There was, of course, Wichita, but then the spectre of Bill Madlock loomed on the big club. Sure, there are always obstacles to advancement to the major league club, but do they have to include a young, healthy two-time National League batting champion?

THEN MIKE got engaged, well, that really didn't have anything to do with it, but what happened next was a nice engagement present. Madlock's salary demands raised the ire of Chicago owner Phil Wrigley, who announced last week he planned a trade for the third baseman.

That was nice news if you were in Umfleet's shoes, but sometimes these hassles have a habit of evaporating after the shouting stops.

Apparently, that isn't the way it is this time, Mike, working at The Reporter-Telegram during the off season, figured he'd report to Wichita in Scottsdale, Ariz., in mid March with all the rest of the minor leagues.

Wednesday morning Mike received a call from Chicago to report Feb. 28 with the big club.

CHICAGO'S GAIN will be Midland's loss in more ways than one. Ernie Banks, roving batting instructor for the Chicago organization, has been named as a coach by Cubs' Manager Herman Franks. Tall City fans will miss Ernie, but his new job also will give major league fans a chance to congratulate Mr. Cub on his election to the Hall of Fame, which seems only natural.

An interesting sidelight on the drafting of former Midland Lee pitcher Doug Laufer by the Philadelphia Phillies in the recent free agent draft: Last summer Ernie was persuaded to take a look at Doug in the Midland Cubs' bullpen before a Texas League game. Phillies' scout Doug Gassaway, who once played in Midland, wandered down to watch, was impressed by Doug's arm and tried to arrange a college scholarship for Doug.

Instead, on Doug's recommendation, the Phillies decided to draft him.

ANOTHER EX-REBEL, Roger Alexander, will report to spring training with the Atlanta Braves. Roger, who played his last season for Norman, Okla., High, was a first round draft choice of the Milwaukee Brewers and pitched in the Texas League a few years ago, leading the league in home runs surrendered.

Last year, Roger pitched for Savannah in the Southern League. The look by the Braves could give Alexander's career a big boost since he will be working under Johnny Sain, the miracle-working pitching coach who has done wonders for so many other pitchers.

Doc Edwards, who managed the Midland Cubs to a pennant in 1975, was a victim of the recent shakeup in the Cubs system, drawing his pink slip as manager of Wichita.

We can't help feel it was a mistake, but the Cubs wanted to keep Harry Dunlop, a coach at Chicago last year, in the organization and did so by naming him manager at Wichita.

Jim Marshall, dismissed Chicago manager, landed on his feet as manager of Denver of the American Association while former Chicago Cubs vice president Whitey Lockman, another shakeup casualty, will scout for the Montreal Expos.

And did you know that regular season attendance for 20 minor leagues in 1976 was 11,324,947, the sixth consecutive year in which it has gone over 11 million?

Nets' Loughery eyes future

By The Associated Press

New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery already has started looking to the future. Considering the way the present looks, he can't be blamed.

Loughery watched his club keep pace with Portland for better than three periods Wednesday night, only to fade in the stretch and lose 109-94. It was the Nets' 11th consecutive National Basketball Association defeat, a club record, and Loughery has just about run out of answers.

"We may go back to playing a running game," Loughery suggested, even though he realizes he does not have the big center to get the rebounds to start a running game, and that Tiny Archibald, the guard who could make such an attack go, is on the injured list for at least another month.

BUT A running game is the kind Loughery likes best, and obviously the Nets have not done well with the pattern play they have been using this season—their 12-29 record attesting to that. The Nets might not win many games by running, but at least it will give Loughery a line on next season.

"I want to try and determine what players I want back for next year," he said.

Portland Coach Jack Ramsay did not want to hear about Loughery's problems.

"I have no time to have sympathy for Kevin," he said. "We're 23-1 at home and 7-14 on road. I have my own problems."

"I've been in Kevin's boat before, and it's no fun."

Maurice Lucas scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds for Portland, while center Bill Walton played a solid 44 minutes—11 points, 15 rebounds, six assists and three blocked.

Spurs 115, Bulls 107

Larry Kenon's 36 points helped San Antonio raise its home record to 18-4. Chicago guard Norm Van Lier had just one basket in the game, but it was an 84-foot heave that beat the buzzer ending the first quarter.

Celtics 112, Rockets 102

John Havlicek scored eight points in a three-minute stretch midway through the fourth quarter as Boston ended Houston's three-game winning streak. The Rockets had rallied from a 13-point deficit and moved within four before Boston broke it open.

Chaps return home for NMJC

After three straight Western Junior College Conference games on the road, the leg-weary Chaparrals finally return to the cozy confines of the Midland College gym at 7:30 p.m. today against New Mexico Junior College.

Midland College is 4-3 in WJCC play and New Mexico is 2-5, but don't let that fool you. One of Midland's five losses this season came at the hands of the Thunderbirds in the Odessa College Invitational back in November.

At lot of water has passed under the bridge, even in parched West Texas, since then.

For one thing, MC will be playing its first game at home under new coach Delnor Poss. And since that early loss, the Chaps have gone on to compile a 13-5 overall record.

NMJC HAS compiled a 9-8 record and although one of the victories came over Western Texas College, Coach Dale Caton is disappointed in his team's play.

"We have an all-sophomore club and I thought we'd win the close ones. We just haven't won them and that's got us with our backs against the wall. We're not out of the running for the regional tournament yet, but we've got to find a way to end this three-game skid."

The Thunderbirds are coming off a 72-70 loss at Clarendon Monday night and probably figure they couldn't have caught MC at a better time.

In addition to the turmoil over last week's resignation of Coach Chester

Story and assistant J.D. Menasco, the team was riddled by injuries when it played at Levelland Monday. The result was a 109-93 loss and Poss hopes the Chaps can turn it around tonight with the sight of familiar surroundings.

POSS IS hopeful that all of his ailing players will be available for action tonight.

Going into the game, sophomore Tommy Parks and 6-5 sophomore Jackson Pace are the point leaders with 21.5 and 17.8 points per WJCC game, respectively.

With 6-1 Willie Henry, 6-0 Curtis Moore, 6-2 Eddie Daniel, 6-4 Allen Fluellen, 6-4 Ron Doyle, 6-4 Steve Smith and 6-3 Richard Pettigrew back from last year's squad, NMJC holds an edge under the boards. Freshmen David Ploudre and Ben Hill, from Camden, N.J., are the Thunderbirds' big men at 6-6.

Hill's 17.0 average per game leads the T-birds in scoring while Doyle is scoring at a 16.07 clip and Daniel is averaging 11.86.

Swendig better than old mark

Brad Swendig, Midland College sophomore, swam a 53.20 seconds to set a National Junior College Athletic Association record in the 100-yard backstroke and qualify for the AAU National Swim meet.

Swendig's effort came in the University of Texas Invitational at Austin last week. Swendig took two weeks ago set an NJCAA record in the Sun Bowl Carnival at El Paso and his time at Texas was .03 from that mark.

Swendig, who already has been selected as a member of the U.S. team which will participate in the World Student Games in Russia in March. Swendig also holds the Southwest Conference 100-backstroke record, which he set last year while competing at Texas A&M.

"Since Brad hadn't really pointed at this meet, and hadn't shaved his body hair, we think he can go still faster," noted Midland College swim coach Steve Montgomery.

Black rookie sparks Caps to 1st win over Buffalo

The Washington Capitals may see that Bill Riley never eats a meal.

Riley, a 26-year-old right winger, signed a pro contract Wednesday after a 10-game trial with the Caps. Then, he celebrated by picking up two key assists, helping Washington upset the Buffalo Sabres 4-2.

In signing, Riley became one of the few blacks ever to play in the National Hockey League. He began the season with the Dayton Gems of the International Hockey League and joined the Capitals on Dec. 30, but did not sign a contract since NHL rules allow a player to participate in 10 games before signing.

"I didn't get to Buffalo until late in the afternoon," said Riley, a native of Amherst, Nova Scotia. "I didn't get a chance to eat anything before the game. I've been so nervous the last five games wondering whether I'd be signed that I couldn't sleep before or after the games. I feel a lot better tonight."

The victory was the first for the Capitals over Buffalo in their history. The Sabres had won 12 and tied one in the previous 13 games between the teams.

In the process, Washington made certain this would be the best season in the team's three-year history. The victory gave the Caps a record of 13-27-7 and 33 points—two more victories and one more point than it achieved last season and five more victories than it produced in its first season.

In other NHL games, Cleveland and the New York Rangers started a 3-3 tie. St. Louis defeated Chicago 5-3 and Pittsburgh blanked Vancouver 3-0.

Riley picked up his first assist on Blair Stewart's goal which tied the score 1-1 at 12:21 of the opening period. Less than two minutes later, he got his second assist as former Sabres player Gerry Meehan recorded a power play goal, putting the Caps ahead for good.

Broncs 3, Rangers 3
Cleveland overcame a 3-1 deficit in the last period as Dennis Maruk and Frank Spring scored within a two-minute span.

Goals by Phil Esposito, Ron Greschner and Steve Vickers had given the Rangers their lead.

Blues 5, Black Hawks 3
"I want the whole league to know we're in first place (in the Smythe Division) to stay," said Blues' defenseman Gilles Marotte after his 55th goal in 10 NHL seasons broke a 3-3 deadlock.

St. Louis had jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first period, with Claude Larose scoring twice. But Dick Redmond and Stan Mikita scored within 13 seconds of each other in the final period, tying the score.

The victory gave the Blues a six-point advantage over the Black Hawks in their race for the division championship.

Penguins 3, Canucks 0
First-period goals by Pierre Larouche, Rick Kehoe and Stan Gilbertson, plus strong goaltending by Dunc Wilson against his former team gave Pittsburgh its triumph over Vancouver.

American expanded its home streak to 19 games.

Ken Williams, 6-7 NTSU center, collected 20 rebounds, but Pan Am got 13 from Randy Woods and controlled the boards 54-50.

Permian women pick Billie Uzzell

ODESSA—Billie Uzzell, Sunset CC, was elected president of the Permian Basin Women's Golf Association at the first meeting of the year at Sunset CC.

Other officers elected were La Nell Guelker, Andrews CC, vice-president; Buff Cooke, Ranchland Hills CC, secretary; Helen McMahon, Odessa CC, treasurer; and Betty Sappington, Midland CC, reporter-historian.

Cincy coach blames loss on TV

By The Associated Press

Gate Catlett is among the first to admit that television has helped college basketball.

But Wednesday night, he says, it hurt his Cincinnati Bearcats.

The nation's second-ranked team was short-circuited by a TV timeout, according to Catlett, and thus lost an 83-77 decision to No. 12 Louisville.

"I wish they'd eliminate the timeouts for TV or call them at a set time," said Catlett. "We were making a run at them and had them on the ropes, so to speak."

It was Catlett's contention that the critical timeout slowed the Bearcats after they had picked up momentum and forged a 31-31 tie in the first half. The Cincinnati coach also accused Louisville Coach Denny Crum of conspiracy in the incident.

"What bothered me," said Catlett, "was that Coach Crum called for that timeout from the bench."

CRUM'S ALLEGED directorial talent was not the only thing within Catlett's range of fire. He also took verbal shots at the officials.

"It was the poorest officiated game since I've been head coach," said Catlett, pointing among other things to a 2-1 ratio in fouls called against his team. Cincinnati was charged with 32 personal fouls, compared to 16 for Louisville.

Pan Am snaps streak

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP)—Pan American center Henry Taylor and Billy Bolts combined for 44 points to break North Texas State's nine-game winning streak with a 86-74 college basketball victory Wednesday night.

The Mean Green was stymied by a tight zone defense as Pan Am Coach Bill White went with his five starters almost all the game.

North Texas State dropped to 11-2 and Pan Am raised its record to 10-3 before 5,300 spectators. Pan American expanded its home streak to 19 games.

Ken Williams, 6-7 NTSU center, collected 20 rebounds, but Pan Am got 13 from Randy Woods and controlled the boards 54-50.

Broyles denies rumor, but not absolutely

Frank Broyles, Arkansas athletic director, admitted that he had talked with Rankin Smith, chairman of the Atlanta (NFL) Falcons board, has denied that he will accept a position as Falcons' GM. Still, the door was left open a crack when Broyles added, "It is possible, but not yet probable. It seems premature and ridiculous for me to be commenting about a position I'm not seeking and haven't been offered."

An agreement between the Montreal Expos and the Olympic installations board for use of the Olympic Stadium during the 1977 National League baseball season "is very possible in the near future," the board's chief negotiator said Wednesday.

LISE-MARIE MOREROD, Switzerland, won the World Cup Slalom race Wednesday at Schruns, Austria, completing a two-day shutout by the Swiss women of Anemarie Moser-Proell, five time world champion. John Walker outdueled Dick Quax in the stretch to win the 1,500 meter race at Auckland, N.Z., in 3:42.3.

Tim Wilkinson upset Chris Kachel 1-6, 7-6, 6-3 in the Tasmanian Open Tennis Tournament at Hobart, Australia.

St. Albert's Hall of Boerne, Texas, wasn't much competition for Blessed Sacrament of San Antonio, but then sports writers are always cruel. Blessed Sacrament raced to a 57-2 halftime lead Tuesday and then went on to a 103-2 triumph.

BILLIE JEAN King, tennis star of the New York Apples, hams it up while disclosing that she may make a try for her seventh Wimbledon title, if knee surgery recovery is complete.

Even Marv Miller is shocked

TORONTO (AP) — Agents representing baseball's first group of free agents have been guilty of "gouging of the worst type," Marv Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association, said Wednesday.

Miller, in a telephone interview from New York, said the agents were involved in "some of the worst examples of exploitation I've ever seen" during the free-agent bidding war.

"The contribution of most agents was almost negligible," Miller said.

Stabler, Dorsett honored

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tony Dorsett and Ken Stabler discussed the National Football League draft and peanuts.

The Maxwell Club feted Dorsett as the top college football player of the year, and Stabler as the best pro at the club's 40th dinner Wednesday night.

Before the two football stars received their awards, they talked on a variety of subjects. Both expressed satisfaction with the National Football League draft, even though the system has been ruled illegal by the courts.

STABLER CONFIRMED that he would be on a float representing the state of Alabama in today's presidential inauguration parade.

"Are you a Democrat?" Stabler was asked.

"Just say I like peanuts," replied the quarterback, who directed the Oakland Raiders to a 32-14 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl 11 days ago.

Dorsett was asked if he would play football in Canada if he could not reach an agreement with an NFL team. "I would play for peanuts in the NFL before going to Canada," Dorsett answered.

Stabler said he still was not sure he could describe his feelings about the Raiders finally becoming the No. 1 team in the NFL.

"I guess you might say that when you get so close to it year after year after year and don't do it, it's like getting a piano off your back."

ring and getting one shot at knocking them out," Stabler said. "I think the season is too long now."

As for the draft, Stabler recalled that he had the same choice as Dorsett—play with the NFL team that picked him or go to Canada.

"I can't gripe about the draft," Stabler said. "It worked out for me."

Dorsett's said he thought the draft was fair, but could see the financial advantage of a free agent bidding war to him and other first-round picks.

NORTH TEXAS State's athletic council voted unanimously in favor of a resolution to seek admission into the Southeastern Conference. Former Cleveland and Detroit infielder, Steve Demeter will manage the Pittsburgh Pirates' farm club at Salem, Va., in the A.C. League. Washington has protested to the Pac-8 over the finish of its basketball game against Oregon, won 72-68 by the Ducks in overtime last week. Huskies center James Edwards tied the game with two seconds left and Oregon's Mike Drummond called for a time out, but the Ducks had used all of their timeouts. The penalty normally is a technical foul, but referee Mel Ross said after the game he did not see or hear Drummond request a time out.

Asian etiquette important for Far East visitors

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) — "Social Etiquette or What Not To Do in Singapore and How Not To Do It" has been written for those who don't want to come on like ugly Americans.

More than 6,000 U.S. citizens live in this Chicago-size island republic and thousands of others visit each year as tourists. The new booklet is filled with tips on local customs to help wary Americans avoid social pitfalls.

More than 75 per cent of the 2.2-million population is ethnic Chinese. There are Malay and Indian minorities.

The customs and taboos compiled by author Jo Ann Craig are based on religious practices and local habits. Mrs. Craig's 20-page booklet was sponsored by the Singapore American School. Her husband is assigned here on business.

In a chapter on cultural and personality differences between East and West, she advises curbing "the good old American temper." The "American virtues of outspokenness, boldness and aggressiveness" are not regarded as admirable traits by most Asians.

"The average American is giant-sized compared to the average Asian. He is very hairy. He smells differently probably because of the vast amounts of meat that he consumes. Add to this picture what appears to be a loud and booming voice, an aggressive attitude, a clever, snappy answer to everything and compare this to the quiet, reserved and modest attitude of the Asian. If we take a look at ourselves the way others might look at us, maybe we can tone ourselves down a bit so we won't seem to be so overwhelming."

Other suggestions from Mrs. Craig to those who would remain faux pas free:

—Avoid the quick use of first names or nicknames upon meeting a Singaporean for the first time

—Avoid casual touching of the opposite sex

—Avoid unwitting use of offensive gestures. These include pointing with the forefinger at a person - try a thumb instead. Beckoning for someone or a taxi with a wagging forefinger is very offensive. Calling someone with the first two fingers of the hand is also considered rude. A fist made with the right hand and slapped against the open left palm is extremely obscene. Hands on the hip are a sign of anger.

Three chapters of the booklet explain some of the social graces in the Chinese, Malay and Indian communities, including the proper uses of surnames, introductions, visits to homes, gifts, meals, weddings and religious customs.

Some of the things not to do and how not to do them:

Don't arrive on time at a Chinese wedding "as this may be taken as a sign of greed. It is best to arrive about 20 to 30 minutes late."

Never bring simple gifts to a person's home in odd numbers; rather offer six pieces of fruit, two boxes of candy, etc. "Odd numbers are a sign of death and may cause a feeling of unease."

Don't leave a cup of tea untouched when one is served with a Chinese meal. At least two sips should be taken to avoid seeming rude.

Never forget to take off your shoes before entering an Indian or a Malay home.

Don't pat an Indian's head, not even a child's. "The head has special significance and honor." Never offer a gift to an Indian with the left hand. "The left hand is used for hygienic purposes and it is considered to be disrespectful to touch anything with it: to handle or receive anything with it or to eat with it."

Don't wear shorts, plunging necklines or backless dresses to an Indian affair.

Never serve pork to a Malay. Never refuse to eat or drink a little of any refreshments offered to you in a traditional Malay home. "To refuse would be insulting."

Woman sees nothing alarming about job in fire alarm room

By CHARLOTTE BLACK
Albuquerque Tribune

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The boys in blue have a girl in their midst.

Rose Fair is the only woman working in the alarm room at Fire Station No. 1, Albuquerque Fire Department.

In a gentle voice she repeats an address. Seconds later a 10-ton fire truck, sirens howling, rolls out of the station on its emergency mission.

"You could say I'm treated as an equal, but yet as a woman," she says of her unique status.

"I've worked with so many guys. They've always treated me nice. I learned that in the Marine Corps. It's the way you carry yourself."

Associating with males is nothing new to Mrs. Fair. She grew up with nine brothers, joined the Marine Corps at 19. She says she spent a year deciding about the latter.

"The services have a bad reputation. Kind of like when you work in a lounge. You're labeled.

"But I started looking around. I finally decided it doesn't matter where you're at, that it was my own attitude that would make the difference."

Mrs. Fair trained at Parris Island boot camp, then spent two years at El Toro base in California. She married and became the mother of three children: Frankie, 11; Roseanne, 9; and Matthew, 5.

Later, back home and divorced, she joined the Albuquerque Fire Department. After working with the fire prevention unit she was assigned to the alarm room at the central station.

Until the advent of Mrs. Fair and another young woman, Therese Crockett — now Mrs. Robert Cook — alarm room work was thought to be too unnerveing for women.

Mrs. Cook's career was shot down by Cupid's arrow, however; the young man she met while both attended the Fire Academy married her, then took over her job.

"I receive calls from the Police Department, from 911, the county or directly from the public. We dispatch both rescue and fire equipment," Mrs. Fair explains of her work.

"When we get a call we have all the cards with the street names and phantom boxes' numbers assigned to intersections throughout the city listed.

"I know which engine company is going to go and I alert them. I give it to them vocally and then I repeat it on the radio. They tell us we're the heart of the fire department."

Obviously Joe Targhetta, head Fire Department electrician, is very proud of Mrs. Fair. "She helped us pull cable underground," he said. "She pulled them with a pickup truck. But to do that you gotta be alert.

"She fits in with the crew just like one of the family. There's been no conflict at all. We think nothing of asking Rose to do anything that we ask other dispatchers," he said.

Lt. Al Villescas remembers the time she averted a false alarm.

"It was a little boy. There was just something in his voice. I explained to him how serious it was and he seemed to understand. He wound up saying 'Will you forgive me?'" said Mrs. Fair.

Once or twice, she said, callers have been unpleasant to her.

"You have to kind of mellow them down. I've been working with the public for a long time now. It takes a good bit of tact. If you let yourself get mad at people, forget it.

"On the other hand we have a lot of people calling in for street addresses, things like that. They tell us we're really nice."

She spends a lot of her time listening to people. "Maybe I should work for the suicide prevention center. I like to listen to people, to let them tell me their problems. I feel so sorry for them."

THE MOTHER of an alleged killer, Mrs. Verna Smith tells newsmen at her Los Angeles home Wednesday that she wants her son executed. The son, Jimmie Lee Gray, 28, is facing the gas chamber in Mississippi for the murder of a 3-year-old girl. She's told the Mississippi governor of her feelings.

Wadley-Barron area draws most interest at Midland hearing

The need for street paving and storm drainage in the southeast section of Midland and Better street around Wadley-Barron Park were some of the requests made by 22 city residents at a Tuesday public hearing in Midland City Council chambers.

The hearing was called to get citizen input on how fiscal year 1978 Housing and Community Development Act funds should be spent. Approximately $950,000 of the federal funds are expected to be spent during the next fiscal year, part of a $4.7 million funding by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the city through a five-year period that began July, 1975.

HUD wants moderate and low-income areas of the city given priority for funding projects, and the testimony at the hearing reflected this federal concern.

Most of the 15 written comments presented called for physical improvements in the area of Wadley Park and from there to the south and east. At least one request was for rental assistance to all of the city's poor.

William T. Shaner, representing Midland Senior Citizens Inc., said his group wants some of the money for a new senior citizens center.

Mike Butler, community development administrator for the city, said he will supplement the public hearings with written questionnaires to be presented when residents pay their water bills at city hall. Questionnaires may also be available at banks if possible, Butler said.

During the first year of funding, street paving and historical preservation was carried out. This year's funds have been allocated for housing rehabilitation, more street paving and acquisition of property for the downtown exhibition center project.

Although there is no matching funds requirement, it has not been entirely satisfactory. Councilman Carroll Thomas feels there is too much delay in getting the funds released for use during the fiscal year.

"It's amazing how long it takes to get these funds released," he said. Only recently have funds for 1977 become available, he added.

Uninvited Carter cousin may not even watch TV

HOUSTON (AP) — One of Jimmy Carter's two Houston cousins was to attend the Presidential inauguration today but the other—who was not invited—said he was not sure he will even watch it on television.

Carol Gordy White said Wednesday she planned to attend the inauguration and the ball.

However, her brother, Tom Gordy, received no invitation.

"I'm not sure I'll even watch it (on television)," Gordy said. "Don't get me wrong. I believe he will make our best president, and I wish him all the luck in the world."

Gordy, who has been ailing because of a neck operation, said news stories and pictures in connection with the inauguration proved to be a blessing. He found a brother.

Newspapers carried an Associated Press picture Wednesday of Gordy's brother, Jim Gordy, who is a chef in a motel in Brisbane, Australia.

Gordy said he had not heard from his brother in eight years and did not know of his whereabouts until he saw the picture. He said he planned to write him and tell him about their father's death more than a year ago and other family events. Their father, Tom Gordy Sr., was Miss Lillian's brother.

Mrs. White, whose husband Francis is a machinist at a valve company, said she last saw Carter during his campaign visit to Houston.

"He came up and hugged me around the neck and said, 'Hey, Carol Ann, what are you doing here?'" Mrs. White said. "Then he hugged my 5-year-old daughter and said, 'Paula Jean, you're beautiful.'"

Mrs. White grew up in Richland, Ga., about 18 miles from Plains. Her brother Tom, also was born in Richland, but moved to California with his mother when his parents divorced. Mrs. White and Jim remained with their father.

When their father died in December 1975, Carter attended his uncle's funeral.

"Aunt Lillian was amazed that I didn't attend the funeral," Tom Gordy said. "But I didn't even know until two weeks afterward because I had an operation scheduled."

Gordy said at first his feelings were not hurt by not being invited to the inauguration but when he saw that even prison inmates were being invited he began to wonder.

"At first I figured he was just too busy, but then I began to read articles about people who didn't even know him were being invited," Gordy said. "Here, I've even got his home phone number."

White has high livestock bid

Tommy White Supply Co. was high bidder in a floor auction of calves, sheep and hogs not sold individually Tuesday night at the Midland County Livestock Show.

White ended up with approximately 15 calves at 40 cents per pound, 60 lambs at 56 cents per pound, and about the same number of swine at 40 cents per pound.

White, of Midland, is a supplier of oilfield equipment and materials.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS
January 20, 1977
Midland County, Midland County
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS
On or about February 1, 1977, the above named County will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-387) for the following project: Construction of a Polydrug Rehabilitation and Counseling Center in the amount of $60,000.00.
An Environmental Review Record respecting the within project has been made by the above named county which documents the environmental review of the project. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying upon request.
Midland County will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Midland County is certifying to HUD that Midland County and Barbara G. Culver in her capacity as County Judge, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce the obligations in relation to environmental review, decisionmaking and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon approval of Midland County may use the Block Grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is one of the following basis: (a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or (b) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to HUD, 2001 Bryan Tower, Dallas, Texas 75201. Objections to the release of funds on basis other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after January 30, 1977, will be considered by HUD.

Carter requests spirit of unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — In soft Georgia accent, Jimmy Carter today uttered the simple presidential oath decreed in the Constitution and pledged a government "both competent and compassionate."

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are," said the President who leads the nation into its third century.

"Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right."

Carter's first words in a remarkably short speech were words of thanks to the man he succeeds, Gerald R. Ford, "for all he has done to heal our land."

The inauguration, said Carter, "marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all." While a president may sense and proclaim that new spirit, he said, "only a people can provide it."

It was a promise to govern with compassion in partnership with the American people.

With the oath to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States," James Earl Carter of Plains, Ga., became America's 39th President.

Carter said he had no new dream to put before the American people but urged "a fresh faith in the old dream."

Though little more than 1,000 words long, the speech had a ringing quality and made these points:

"We are a strong nation and we will maintain strength so sufficient that is need not be proved in combat — a quiet strength based not merely on the size of an arsenal, but on the nobility of ideas."

"We will be ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice, for those are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshaled."

As he repeated the oath, Carter's hand rested on an ancient family Bible open to the admonition from the prophet Micah "to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

When his time as president is done, Carter said, he hopes people will say the nation remembered the words of Micah "and renewed our search for humility, mercy and justice."

He hoped, too, for a legacy of finding work for the unemployed, strengthening the American family, ensuring respect for the law and equal treatment under it.

"I would hope," said Carter, "that the nations of the world might say that we had built a lasting peace. These are not just my goals, but our common hopes."

For Carter, it was the beginning of what once seemed an impossible dream. He began as an outsider, a man virtually unknown outside his home state, challenging the political establishment.

For Ford, it was a leave-taking from the government he had served nearly half his 63 years, the last 2½ as a president elected by no one. He had sought today's swearing-in ceremony for himself, but, failing to win election, directed full cooperation to smooth the new administration's way.

In that spirit, the departing 38th president and the incoming 39th paused for coffee in the White House before riding together to the Capitol in a display of unity and continuity.

With them were their wives, each a partner in her husband's success: Rosalynn Carter, who campaigned day after day in Carter's dogged rise from obscurity, and Betty Ford, a first lady of dignity and grace whose popularity rating in polls often rivaled or surpassed her husband's.

And there was another transition as the vice presidency passed from Nelson A. Rockefeller to Walter F. Mondale.

Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew, who assumed responsibility

D.C., for his inauguration. The passengers, who left Wednesday evening, were to have arrived in time for the special ceremony.

'We can be stronger ...'

For myself and our nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land.

In this outward and physical ceremony we attest once again to the inner and spiritual strength of our nation.

As my high school teacher, Miss Julia Coleman, used to say: "We must adjust to changing times and still hold to unchanging principles."

Here before me is the Bible used in the inauguration of our first President in 1789, and I have just taken my own oath of office on the Bible my mother gave me a few years ago, opened to a timeless admonition from the ancient prophet Micah:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Micah 6:8)

This inauguration ceremony marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all. A President may sense and proclaim that new spirit, but only a people can provide it.

Two centuries ago our nation's birth was a milestone in the long quest for freedom, but the bold and brilliant dream which excited the founders of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.

Ours was the first society openly to define itself in terms of both spirituality and of human liberty. It is that unique self-definition which has given us an exceptional appeal — but it also imposes on us a special obligation — to take on those moral duties which, when assumed, seem invariably to be in our own best interests.

You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are. Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Your strength can compensate for my

Energy agency forecast grim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration is greeting incoming President Carter with a grim forecast of tight energy supplies and rising prices for years to come.

In a report issued Wednesday, the energy agency predicted a near doubling of residential fuel costs by 1985 as a result of inflation and real energy cost increases.

The outlook beyond that may be even worse, the report warned.

The FEA says the world's demand for oil will bump up against the limits of its production capacity in the mid or late 1980s. That supply-demand collision is likely to spark even steeper price increases.

The report's relatively good news was that U.S. energy demand was expected to increase more slowly than previously predicted, a trend that will make it easier to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

Compared with a historic growth rate of about 3.3 per cent a year before the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, U.S. energy consumption was predicted to rise at about 2.5 per cent a year, slightly lower than last year's 2.8 per cent forecast.

The FEA said the slower growth is due to the combination of energy conservation measures and fuel price increases.

John Christie, assistant administrator for energy information and analysis, said in an interview that the FEA is assuming continued inflation ranging from last year's 5.6 per cent down to 4 per cent by 1985, forcing energy prices up a total of 58.4 per cent by then.

Regardless of inflation, the FEA estimated, residential energy prices will reflect annual real cost increases of about 3 per cent if imported oil prices rise by 2 per cent. That alone would cause the 1976 residential energy bill to grow more than 30 per cent by 1985.

Taken together, inflation and real cost increases may add nearly 89 per cent by 1985 to the size of the residential energy bill — including purchase of natural gas, fuel oil, electricity and motor gasoline.

If Congress ends regulation of interstate natural gas prices, the FEA said, the cost of residential gas may reach some 37.5 per cent higher by 1985 than if regulation at present rates continued.

More realistically, even regulated rates would probably increase. The Federal Power Commission has a policy of reviewing them every two years and adopted substantial increases just last year.

Either way, said Christie, householders using natural gas for heating, hot water, cooking, or air conditioning will take the brunt of natural gas price hikes.

Looking further into the future, the FEA said that "by the mid-to-late-1980s projected world demand for oil could approximately equal the world's production capacity, and produce pressures for increases in world oil prices."

Weather strangling energy use

By The Associated Press

Despite a lull in subzero temperatures, the current cold spell is putting mounting strain on generating plants, gas pipelines and water traffic in the eastern two-thirds of the nation.

Hundreds of thousands of workers and school children were staying home as factories and schools remained closed to conserve fuel.

Oranges froze on trees in Florida and fishermen were kept off the frozen Chesapeake Bay. A 160-mile stretch of the frozen northern Mississippi River was officially closed, stranding hundreds of barges and towboats — many of them carrying fuel supplies.

Temperatures were still cold throughout the region, with little change expected today.

In Miami, snow flurries fell Wednesday for the first time since the National Weather Service began keeping records in the 1890s. The afternoon high was a chilly 47 degrees

Missing pen brings tear to eye

"Super, man, super!" candidly declared Charlie Welch, as if he were riding high in the saddle and ahead of a dust storm.

He seemed mightily pleased with all the goings-on around him. "Now, that's the best," he said. Super.

"The livestock show is excellent. The quality of the livestock is extra good," Welch opined, as youngsters were showing their know-how in judging the beef cattle, swine and lamb at the Midland County Livestock Show this week.

Things never looked better or brighter — to hear Welch talk. But all too soon, he was sort of moaning and groaning.

The world suddenly looked dismal in the exhibit barn that was filled with dust, carpeted with a livestock litter called sand, and almost echoing with baas, moos, squeals, and honks.

Welch, the county commissioner, livestock hound and water-well

digger, had "lost" his fancy writing pen. Some youngster borrowed it for another, who needed to make his marks in the livestock judging contest.

Time passed on by, and the gold-tinted ballpoint pen had not been returned to the man's shirt pocket.

Quite understandably, Welch was concerned. More than just a fine writing instrument, the pen was a gift from a friend, namely, Bud Lea, president of the Midland County

Livestock Association.

Only recently, Welch, because he prized the pen, had his name, "C. R. Welch," inscribed in italic lettering on the writing tool.

He didn't want to lose it. Hope strode up in the form of Jim Crowder, a Midland banker, who was chairman of the show's livestock judging contest.

Angelo airman asks how he's outstanding

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Craig Johnson is the recipient of an award as the outstanding Chinese language student in his class as the Army's Defense Language Institute.

The 26 men and women recruits said in the suit they were encouraged to enlist because of the opportunity to become an "interpreter-translator."

Johnson, 26, who held four Cabinet posts and was ambassador to Great Britain during the past seven years, said he was going home to clean out his basement.

What they learned in class was not what they were promised, they allege. "We were forbidden to speak the foreign language in class," said Andrew Tolier of Richmond, Va., who completed the Defense Language Institute course in Russian with honors.

Simon, 49, reportedly is considering returning to the Wall Street bond brokerage firm he left in 1972 when he joined the government.

Tolier could not reply to the question "How are you?" in Russian, although he said he could construct a sentence "with the aid of a dictionary."

Atty Gen. Edward Levi took almost no notice that Wednesday was his final full day in office. Levi, 65, who is taking a trip down Egypt's Nile River and expects to return to the University of Chicago next fall, had several routine appointments and received a 30-minute security debriefing, which is routine for all departing government workers who had access to classified documents.

"I love the Army — the Spartan life appeals to me," he said. "I like serving my country."

Fox trapper gathers pelts for fur coats

By MARY MACDONALD

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — He marked in his mind the deepened stream channel to find it later in the snow — five feet from that tree trunk where a moose scraped antlers, between the hornbeam tree and a cove of pines.

Doug Ingraham, in green baseball cap, red plaid jacket, hip-high boots, was prospecting — checking out animal signs so he would know where to set his traps during the season, when the channel, home for beaver, would be hidden by ice.

THE FALL AND WINTER trapping season in Maine opens with fox, not beaver. But Ingraham, a construct on worker when he isn't trapping, does his prospecting early.

At 34, he's been a trapper since his teens, an oldtimer with new competition. The sharp rises in the price of most furs have swelled the ranks of trappers all over the country.

Trapping is a more than $100 million industry in North America. Louisiana, where alligators and nutria abound, is the biggest trapping state, the take worth $11 million in 1973-74, according to the latest figures available. Maine's trapper take was worth about $2 million the same year. Its licensed trappers have doubled in the past four years, to 3,400, perhaps a third of them fulltime.

Foxes are the bread-and-butter catch here, worth $40 a pelt, up from 50 cents 10 years ago. In the five-week fox season, a good trapper can make $1,000. And a full-time trapper going for fox, beaver and other animals, might make a total of $7,500 in a year, Maine's fish and game officials say.

ON THE FOURTH DAY of fox trapping, at it since 7:30 a.m., Ingraham was after his eleventh fox of the season.

He was driving around in a pickup truck looking for a trap, one of nearly 50 he had set in areas where Maine's red foxes come to look for small rodents. By law, he must check every trap every day.

"I think I got one," he said suddenly and jumped from the truck. His green boots slid through the stubby corn stalks as he approached the trap, several hundred yards from the road.

Ingraham said he has never been hurt by a trapped fox, although the animals bite at him occasionally. "Some of the big ones, the males, act really ugly sometimes," he said.

BUT THIS FOX was small, about eight pounds, easily subdued. The animal struggled as the trapper approached, then crouched as Ingraham circled slowly.

He stunned it with a blow to the snout from his trowel. Then he killed it, putting one knee on its side to press its lungs and heart and tugging with his hand at the structures which support the heart.

The process, which he called "pulling the heart strings," was over in less than a minute.

"It seems a shame to kill an animal as pretty as that. Some things there's no answer for," Ingraham said. "But when you see them with mange and rabies

Overpopulation weakens them and makes them susceptible to diseases, he said.

INGRAHAM RESET the trap in the same spot. He worked in gloves. The trap and tools he used had been boiled in bark and buried under leaves weeks before the season — to remove human odor.

By the end of the day, Ingraham had three more foxes and two skunks.

Although trapping for bobcat or beaver could take him 20 miles to camp out overnight, he does his fox hunting generally within about 15 miles of his house on the edge of Portland, Maine's largest city.

ADDED COMPETITION from other trappers means he has to hustle to be first to ask a farmer for permission to trap on his land, and must walk farther from the road to find spots not covered by other trappers.

John Hunt, who does research for the state on fur bearing animals, said the tight job market has pressed new trappers into the industry, and that some of the newcomers are part of a current "resurgence to the land" that brings young people to Maine farms and woodlands from urban areas outside the state.

But the biggest reason for the swelling ranks of trappers is the soaring prices of fur pelts. The most valuable Maine furbearer, a bobcat, will bring a trapper about $140, up about 130 per cent in five years.

AT THE OTHER END of the industry, consumers are paying more for fur coats. Irwin R. Ware of Chicago's Bonwit Teller Fur Salon reports prices are up 50 per cent or more this year.

Fur is often bought on speculation without regard to fashion, says Sidney Schipper, a fur industry expert who is dean of fashion technology at George Brown University, Toronto, Canada.

Thus, it is almost impossible to trace prices directly from the trapper to the fashion industry to the consumer.

"Fur is transportable at little or no duty between most countries. It is an international medium of exchange," Schipper says.

MAINE'S TRAPPERS are resentful and wary because of the criticism of those who see trapping as unjustified cruelty. They contend that the harvesting actually improves the lot of the animals.

They consider themselves part of the scheme of nature. As Ingraham sees it, "The animals you're out after, most of them are predators. They're traveling too, having a great time, looking for places to catch their prey. Some of them are super-intelligent."

"I like animals. I know that sounds strange," he says. "Maybe I've inherited some of the traits of the basic man — the hunter, the predator."

Wind erosion total ahead of last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been about 8.5 per cent more land damaged by wind erosion in the Great Plains so far this season than during the same period last year, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Last year during the so-called wind erosion season which runs from Nov. 1 through the following May 31, a total of nearly 6.2 million acres of land was damaged, the most in 20 years. The department's Soil Conservation Service, in its first report of the new season, said that as of Dec. 31 some 1,122,517 acres were damaged by wind in selected counties in 10 states. Officials said the heaviest damage occurred in the Dakotas where farmers were hit severely by drought last year and had poor vegetative cover to protect land.

Invasion from Mexico fails to materialize

By DIANNE ROWLAND

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Teletypes buzzed with alarm earlier this month in every Arizona law enforcement agency.

The state was about to be invaded by a group of Mexican terrorists armed with machine guns and on the march to several military installations.

The alert went out from the Yuma Border Patrol through sheriff's offices and police departments in southern Arizona.

Some officials are still waiting for the munitions raid, but most have filed it away as an "unverified rumor."

The report Jan. 7 that a band of about 25 Mexican guerrillas armed with M16 rifles, rocket and grenade launchers left Tijuana, Baja California, for Arizona originated with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).

THE REPORT quoted a usually reliable source as saying the terrorists had crossed the border at Yuma and planned munitions raids on military posts. The Army's Yuma Proving Grounds, Ft. Huachuca, the Marine's Yuma Air Station, Davis-Monthan Air Force Base and other installations issued alerts.

Two or three days later, most officials had relaxed and looked at the incident as just another rumor.

"I have no doubt of the authenticity of the report," said Tom Mataya, assistant chief of the INS Border Patrol in Tucson. "The information came from a law enforcement agency in Arizona and it still may happen. I can't hang my hat on anything definite, but you can't ignore it. Because of the publicity, they may be lying low for a while."

Mataya said border agents remain on alert for any sign of guerrillas, but that no extra manpower has been added.

HE DECLINED TO name the source of the report.

However, a spokesman in the Border Patrol office in Yuma said the alert there had been cancelled and all was "back to normal."

"We were never notified, so we didn't do anything," said Maj. Raul Parada of the Nogales sheriff's office. "We read about it in the newspapers, so we're keeping our eyes open. We had a similar rumor and alert last summer."

The military installations apparently were notified to tighten security by headquarters in Washington, D.C., and most officials said the word came through "channels."

"The only thing I know is that the alert is off," said Maj. Terry Breen, Staff Judge Advocate at the Marine Corps Air Station in Yuma. "My only connection with it was in one of those hush-hush meetings when they asked me what the rules of law were for using deadly force if it came to that."

"OF COURSE, my initial reaction was that if they shoot at you, you shoot back. But we basically would have followed state law."

Yuma County Sheriff Travis Yancey said his office continued the alert for four days "but I never really did buy it."

"The federal government started the whole mess," he said. "INS put out a teletype on it, but I don't know why it got so blown out of proportion. I'd suspect something like this would come more from U.S. militant groups, not Mexicans. But the information was given to us in good faith, it's unusual as far as assaulting one of our bases, and we couldn't ignore it."

The "alert" was not a true one in military language, said Paul Stoll, public information officer at Ft. Huachuca.

"It wasn't like we had all sorts of troops standing by and recalled personnel to the post. We just beefed up security for a while."

STOLL ALSO said it was the second such report in four months. The military coordinated plans with local law enforcement agencies. Stoll said, but it would "remain a civilian problem until they reached the military installation."

"The last I heard was that the powers that be decided it was a rumor from an unreliable source. The kind of a thing I heard from a friend of a friend of a friend," he said.

The Department of Public Safety and FBI also were notified, but participated in no investigations, officials said. A spokesman for the Border County Narcotics Strike Force said his agency was not involved.

However, Gene Wood of the INS said the Tucson Border Partol also said the information was checked out and came from a reliable source.

"And when we disseminated the report, we received other reports from various agencies that coincided with our information," Wood said.

HE WOULD'NT elaborate on the reports or sources.

"It's just one of those things that can't be proven or disproven," said FBI agent Roger Young. "We weren't told where the report came from, but basically it's now thought to be spurious. Still, it was unusual that so many guerrillas were said to be coming to hit specific targets. Sometimes it's better to spread the word with that kind of rumor than ignore it."

Meanwhile, military officials reported no weapons missing or any unusual disruptions at Arizona bases.

'Weekend' stirs Canadian's ire

OTTAWA — A member of the Canadian federal government has criticized a U.S. television program on racial problems in Toronto as "irresponsible," subjective journalism.

The program, carried Saturday, Jan. 1, on NBC's "Weekend" series, suggested that Toronto was a city simmering with racial conflict.

But Cullen, federal minister for manpower and immigration, said he hoped to obtain a transcript of the program and planned to contact NBC. He said Canada had become known as a country of immigrants. Occasional disputes over minor differences were sometimes exaggerated.

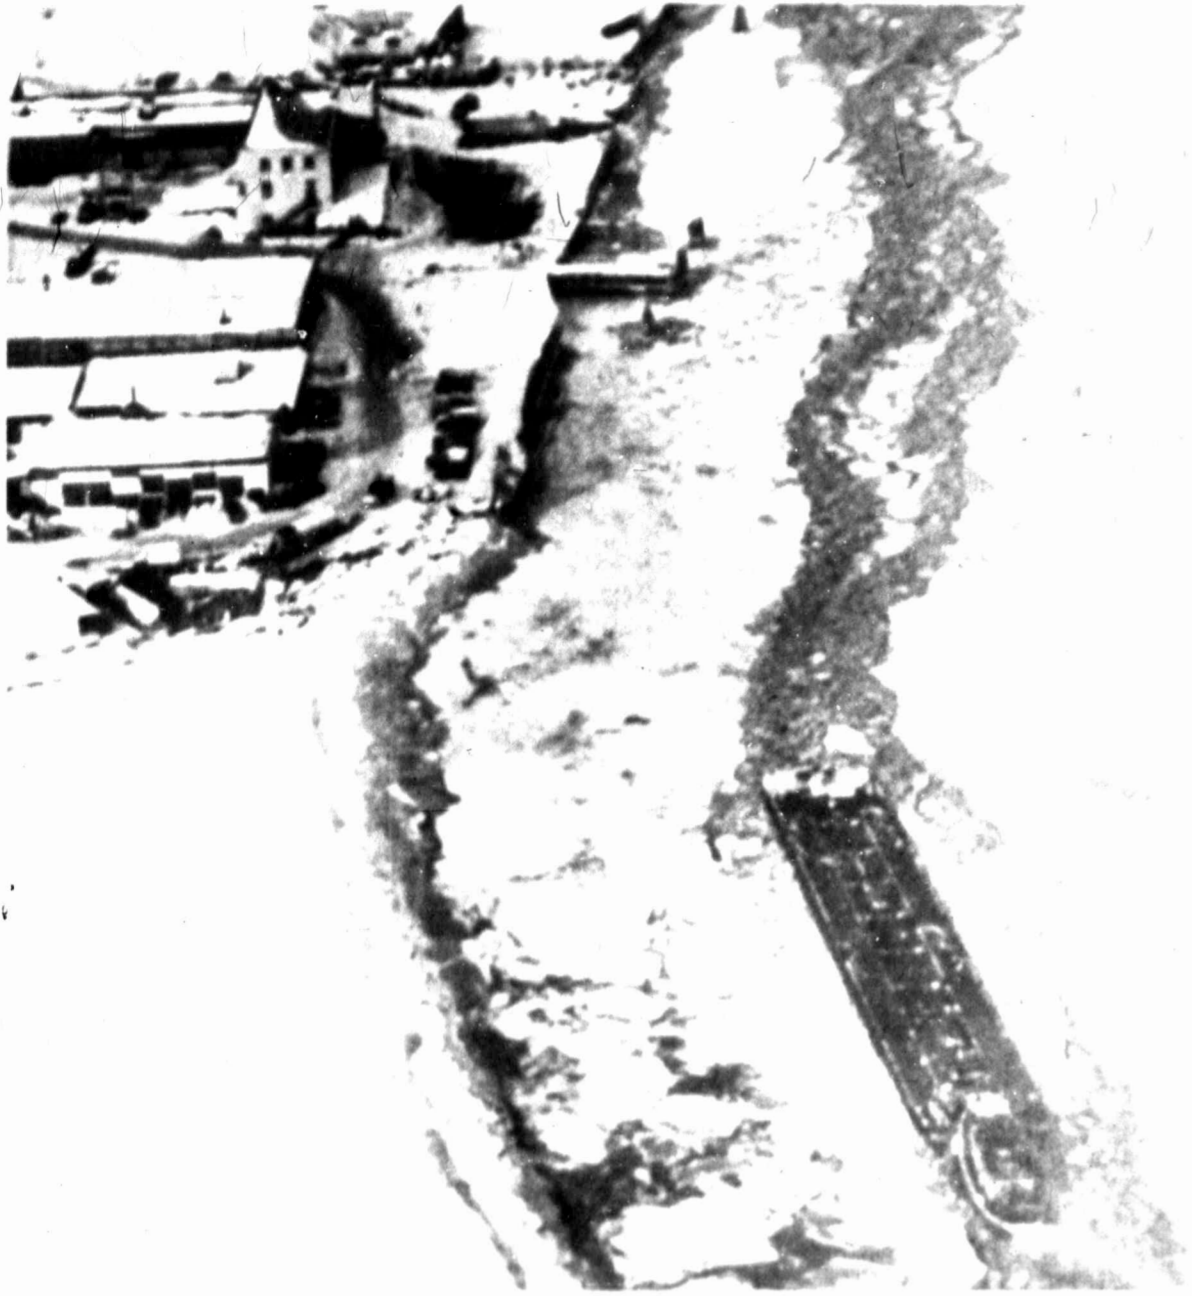

He charged that the NBC program was based on "a preconceived idea." The interviewers had spoken only with people who held similar views, he said.

Toronto Mayor David Crombie also has objected to the program.

Nixon fan plans site for visitors

LA HABRA, Calif. (AP) — A Southern California fan of former President Richard M. Nixon says he and two friends bought Nixon's former law office and will restore it so people can visit the site.

Don Bendetti, a developer who is an alumnus of Nixon's undergraduate school, Whittier College, said he met with Nixon several months ago after he and his friends bought the office.

'Arithmetic' big reason why many tankers fly Liberia, Panama flags

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Federal law says U.S. merchant ships have to have U.S. crews, and the cost of a typical U.S. crew of 32 aboard a modern oil tanker is about $1.7 million a year, one New York tanker owners' association has calculated.

An Italian tanker crew of the same size costs only $600,000 a year, Italian wages are lower, benefits fewer. A Greek crew can be assembled for an even lower amount, perhaps $325,000, and a Chinese crew for under $300,000.

A tanker owner can thus save more than $1 million a year by registering his vessel in some country other than the United States.

That compelling bit of international arithmetic is the major explanation for a strange maritime phenomenon that has been frequently in the news in recent weeks — the vast merchant fleet of the tiny nation of Liberia in Equatorial West Africa.

It is one of the major reasons why so many of the tankers carrying oil to this country fly the Liberian, Panamanian or other foreign flags.

There has been a spate of accidents and oil spills from these foreign-flag tankers in or near U.S. waters, beginning Dec. 15 when the Liberian-registered Argo Merchant ran aground 27 miles off Nantucket and eventually spilled 7.6 million gallons of oil into the ocean.

Two days later another Liberian tanker blew up in Los Angeles harbor, leaving nine dead and 50 injured.

Since then, two Liberian tankers have run aground in the Delaware River near Philadelphia, one spilling 133,000 gallons of oil; another Liberian tanker has run aground off Puerto Rico, still another has spilled 2,000 gallons of oil in the Thames River near Grotton, Conn., and a Panamanian tanker, the Grand Zenith, has disappeared with a crew of 38 and 8.2 million gallons of oil in heavy seas off Nova Scotia.

And the accidents continue. At 1 a. m. Friday the loaded Liberian tanker Barcola ran aground off Port Arthur, Tex., and at midnight on Friday an explosion injured several crewmen and knocked out the navigational equipment of the empty Liberian tanker Mary Ann 300 miles east of Norfolk.

It is easy to conclude from all this that the problem lies with Liberia, that the Liberian merchant marine must be the bilge of the world's tankers and seamen. But the problem is more complicated.

Ships flying the Liberian flag are seldom owned or manned by Liberians. Their money and men come from every seafaring nation on the globe.

What Liberia's "flag of convenience" represents is a stable government with a stable currency and mortgage and tax laws that are favorable to the industry — a combination not all that common.

Thus, the fleet is almost impossible to categorize. Although it includes its share of aging rust-buckets, it also includes some of the world's most modern tankers — many of the tankers owned by the major oil companies, for example.

The Liberian fleet as a whole is nowhere near the world's worst accident and spill rates. Almost all maritime experts agree, for example, that Liberia's tankers as a group are far safer than Panama's. A study by the U.S. Coast Guard suggests that Liberian tankers also spill a smaller percentage of the oil they carry than do Italian, Greek and even U.S. tankers.

The basic oil-spill problem is simply that more oil is being moved today by sea. World tanker tonnage has increased four fold in 12 years. The more oil being moved, the greater the chance that some will spill.

One expert, Arthur McKenzie, director of the Tanker Advisory Center in New York, a ship-buyers' information service, says 604 tanker accidents occurred worldwide in the first nine months of 1976, of which 21 resulted in substantial spills. The total spilled was more than 60 million gallons. The number of accidents has been higher in previous years. It was over 900 in 1973, for example. But the amount of oil spilled in 1976 was a record, McKenzie said, partly because tankers are being built bigger year by year, so a single accident can produce a larger spill.

At the start of last year, the Commerce Department says, there were 5,311 tankers in the world, with a total bulk of 302.3 million tons.

Nearly a fifth of these tankers — 1,014 of them, representing almost a third of the tonnage, because they include so many of the newer, larger vessels — were registered in Liberia. This nominally Liberian tanker fleet was the world's largest by far followed by the fleets of Japan (531 tankers), Russia (462), Britain (459), Greece (345), Norway (332), the United States (250), Panama (238) and Italy (236).

The 250 U.S.-registered ships are almost all involved in coastal trade. U.S. companies or individuals owned about a fourth of the Liberian tankers; Greek and Japanese interests also owned substantial numbers.

There is nothing new about using flags of convenience in ocean commerce. American history is dotted with examples.

Philip Loree, chairman of the Federation of American Controlled Shipping, an organization of major U.S. companies with ships registered in Liberia and Panama, says flags of convenience were used in the 1920s to escape the dry hand of Prohibition. Liquor could not lawfully be served on U.S. soil nor on U.S. ships — so entrepreneurs re-registered ships under foreign flags, took customers out beyond the three-mile limit and sold them all they could hold.

Flags of convenience were also used just before World War II by President Roosevelt to circumvent the Neutrality Act, which forbade

First it prohibited Panamanian-owned American ships.

Second, they imposed various restrictions on U.S. crews — a restriction imposed on U.S. crews of the merchant marine.

Third, they imposed various restrictions on U.S. crews — a restriction imposed on U.S. crews of the merchant marine.

Economist believes U.S. has weakness

Some economists believe that it would be in the U.S. interest to have a more flexible exchange rate. The U.S. dollar is overvalued, they say, and this is a weakness. They believe that a more flexible exchange rate would allow the U.S. to compete more effectively in the world market.

As get tests, gas wells

As the industry gets tests, gas wells are being drilled in various areas. The tests are expected to provide valuable information about the potential of these wells.

Extension completes

The extension project has been completed. The new facility will improve the efficiency of the existing system and reduce operating costs.

Canyon oil well finals

The Canyon oil well is now in its final stages. The project has been a success, and the well is expected to produce a significant amount of oil.

Gulf finals tender

The Gulf tender is now in its final stages. The project has been a success, and the tender is expected to be completed soon.

Oil spill spreads

The oil spill has spread to a larger area. The spill is causing significant damage to the environment, and efforts are being made to contain it.

NE Terrell well finals

The NE Terrell well is now in its final stages. The project has been a success, and the well is expected to produce a significant amount of oil.

Penn well potentials

The Pennsylvania well has significant potential. The discovery of oil in this area is a major breakthrough for the industry.

Operators stake 84 Permian Basin oil, gas tests

Operators have filed a total of 84 drilling applications, in the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

Two weeks ago 112 projects were planned, making this a decrease of 28.

Railroad Commission District 7-C at San Angelo reported three wildcat projects, while District 8 offices in Midland and District 8-A offices in Lubbock, each had two.

Thirty-one field tests have been scheduled in District 8, District 7-C recorded 21, while District 8-A reported 19.

Sun shines on Hall of Fame

Ernie Banks, voted into Baseball's Hall of Fame Wednesday, is shown in action during his 19-year career with the Chicago Cubs as he collects 2,500th hit and completes a double play.

NEW YORK (AP) — To Ernie Banks, the newest inductee in the Hall of Fame, playing baseball was like waking up every day to a pile of toys underneath a Christmas tree.

It was sunshine, hot dogs, old family friends, dedication, loyalty, a 20th century Camelot. You ought to pay the club owner or letting you play. "The whole theory of my life is sunshine," the 45-year-old former Chicago Cubs' infielder said after receiving baseball's highest honor. "My total philosophy is to keep a smile on my face and kindness in my heart."

"Happiness is wherever you are." Banks, son of a poor Texas grocery clerk, is an almost unbelievable anachronism in this age of strikes, lockouts, agents with black satchels, law suits and multi-million-dollar contracts.

ASKED IF, in his 19 years with the Cubs he had been offered a chance to go to another club at double the salary, would he take it, Banks responded:

"No, I wouldn't." Citing his long and warm relationship with Philip K. Wrigley, the chewing gum magnate and owner of the Cubs, Banks added: "I don't think all the money in the world could replace that association."

"A man just can't say, 'I'm for me.' If he can't work it out with one club, he probably can't work it out with another."

Banks, slim, clean-cut and dapper in a business suit, dazzled Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, other baseball executives and the press with his boyish enthusiasm, lightning quick recall and articulation for more than an hour.

"It's amazing," said Kuhn. "You could sit and listen to him for hours."

Banks acknowledged that he was sitting by the telephone when it rang with the Hall of Fame news from Jack

Lang, secretary-treasurer of the baseball writers.

"I CALLED the airline and they said they would hold a plane for me," he related. "Then I told Lang, 'Give my regards to Broadway, remember me to Herald Square.'"

Answering staccato questions with spontaneity and warmth, he paid tribute to all who had assisted him in his career—Buck O'Neil of the old Negro leagues, teammate Gene Baker, Monte Irwin, Lou Boudreau, Charlie Grimm, Bob Feller, Jackie

Robinson, Ralph Kiner and others.

He said he appreciated the privilege of being with a team which played all of its games in daylight.

"When I was 15, I remember seeing my dad go to work while it was dark and come back while it was still dark," he recalled, "and I said I wanted a daytime job. So I landed with the Cubs."

HE APPRECIATED the time that, as a raw kid in the Negro League, Jackie Robinson gave him a chance to tour with an all-star team.

"Keep at it, kid, some day you will be in the majors," Jackie told him.

"I had no idea it would come true," Banks added.

Ernie was able to recall almost to the second—"2:15 on a sunny Tuesday in July, 2:37 on Wednesday afternoon"—the momentous home runs among the 512 he struck.

"As I rounded third base I would say, 'Thank God, for making it all possible,'" he related.

Called "Mr. Sunshine" because of his blithe spirit, the former Cub shortstop was asked if he ever got angry on the field.

"Once Jack Sanford of the Giants hit me in the back twice. You might say I got excited."

He also remembered the sorrows—1969 when the Cubs led the National League East for 100 days before being beaten out by the Mets.

"The disappointment was terrible," he said. "After the clinching game, I went by the lake and cried."

Gal cage czar okays betting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle would choke on his football if he knew that a fellow commissioner approved and supported sports gambling.

"I think it will make our sport more interesting," said Lois Geraci Ernst, commissioner of the new Women's Basketball Association. "With off-track betting and the like, we know that gambling happens."

"I have no problems with it. It brings people into our arenas, that's fine. A lot of men will bet on anything they can make money on."

A lot of people are betting that women's basketball will bounce as high as an air-less ball. Mrs. Ernst is not one of them.

"I THINK it will work because we're going to attract a new kind of fan," she said. "We won't be in competition with the (New York) Knicks. We're going to get the young woman, and she's going to bring her husband."

The 12-team league, which announced Wednesday that it will begin play in October, is in the process of selling its franchises. League officials said New York and Dallas have found buyers, with sales close in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Des Moines, Iowa, and Milwaukee. The other league cities will be Philadelphia; Greensboro, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.;

Indianapolis; Salt Lake City, and Portland, Ore.

"The WBA," said Mrs. Ernst, "is a chance for women basketball players to play out their dreams."

One of those dreamers is Karen Logan, who said she was frequently urged to throw away her basketball and pick up a tennis racket.

"They said I was out of my mind to play basketball," said Miss Logan. "They said the only sports careers for a woman were in golf and tennis."

"BUT NOW I can finally get a chance to do what I care about. I love basketball. It's my sport. And I want to play it."

Before the WBA came along, Miss Logan's only professional basketball came in exhibitions. She once beat former Los Angeles Lakers star Jerry West in a shooting contest.

"I'm not an amateur, but I couldn't be a professional, either," she said. "I would have given my right arm—I shoot left-handed—to go to the Olympics. But they said I had made money from other sports."

Miss Logan won some money in the women's Superstar competition, but she said it wasn't especially satisfying.

"I want to make a professional career out of something I'm good at," said Miss Logan, now a coach at Utah State. "I competed in Superstars and won some events, but I was competing out of my element."

Whether the WBA will survive and prosper—and league officials expect start-up attendance figures to average 3,500—there will be those who think professional basketball is out of the female element.

LOIS GERACI Ernst, commissioner of the Women's Basketball Association, announces new 12 team league that will open play in October.

BATTLE SCENE

BY TED BATTLES

A few days ago, Mike Umfleet, the University of Oklahoma product who has played third base for the Midland Texas League Cubs for the last year and a half, really didn't see much of a future with the Chicago Cubs.

There was, of course, Wichita, but then the spectre of Bill Madlock loomed on the big club. Sure, there are always obstacles to advancement to the major league club, but do they have to include a young, healthy two-time National League batting champion?

THEN MIKE got engaged, well, that really didn't have anything to do with it, but what happened next was a nice engagement present. Madlock's salary demands raised the ire of Chicago owner Phil Wrigley, who announced last week he planned a trade for the third baseman.

That was nice news if you were in Umfleet's shoes, but sometimes these hassles have a habit of evaporating after the shouting stops.

Apparently, that isn't the way it is this time. Mike, working at The Reporter-Telegram during the off season, figured he'd report to Wichita in Scottsdale, Ariz., in mid March with all the rest of the minor leagues. Wednesday morning Mike received a call from Chicago to report Feb. 28 with the big club.

CHICAGO'S GAIN will be Midland's loss in more ways than one. Ernie Banks, roving batting instructor for the Chicago organization, has been named as a coach by Cubs' Manager Herman Franks. Tall City fans will miss Ernie, but his new job also will give major league fans a chance to congratulate Mr. Cub on his election to the Hall of Fame, which seems only natural.

An interesting sidelight on the drafting of former Midland Lee pitcher Doug Laufer by the Philadelphia Phillies in the recent free agent draft:

Last summer Ernie was persuaded to take a look at Doug in the Midland Cubs' bullpen before a Texas League game. Phillies' scout Doug Gassaway, who once played in Midland, wandered down to watch, was impressed by Doug's arm and tried to arrange a college scholarship for Doug.

Instead, on Doug's recommendation, the Phillies decided to draft him.

ANOTHER EX-REBEL, Roger Alexander, will report to spring training with the Atlanta Braves. Roger, who played his last season for Norman, Okla., High, was a first round draft choice of the Milwaukee Brewers and pitched in the Texas League a few years ago, leading the league in home runs surrendered.

Last year, Roger pitched for Savannah in the Southern League. The look by the Braves could give Alexander's career a big boost since he will be working under Johnny Sain, the miracle-working pitching coach who has done wonders for so many other pitchers.

Doc Edwards, who managed the Midland Cubs to a pennant in 1975, was a victim of the recent shakeup in the Cubs system, drawing his pink slip as manager of Wichita.

We can't help feel it was a mistake, but the Cubs wanted to keep Harry Dunlop, a coach at Chicago last year, in the organization and did so by naming him manager at Wichita.

Jim Marshall, dismissed Chicago manager, landed on his feet as manager of Denver of the American Association while former Chicago Cubs vice president Whitey Lockman, another shakeup casualty, will scout for the Montreal Expos.

And did you know that regular season attendance for 20 minor leagues in 1976 was 11,324,947, the sixth consecutive year in which it has gone over 11 million?

By The Associated Press

New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery already has started looking to the future. Considering the way the present looks, he can't be blamed.

Loughery watched his club keep pace with Portland for better than three periods Wednesday night, only to fade in the stretch and lose 109-94. It was the Nets' 11th consecutive National Basketball Association defeat, a club record, and Loughery has just about run out of answers.

"We may go back to playing a running game," Loughery suggested, even though he realizes he does not have the big center to get the rebounds to start a running game, and that Tiny Archibald, the guard who could make such an attack go, is on the injured list for at least another month.

BUT A running game is the kind Loughery likes best, and obviously the Nets have not done well with the pattern play they have been using this season—their 12-29 record attesting to that. The Nets might not win many games by running, but at least it will give Loughery a line on next season.

Chaps return home for NMJC

After three straight Western Junior College Conference games on the road, the leg-weary Chaparrals finally return to the cozy confines of the Midland College gym at 7:30 p.m. today against New Mexico Junior College.

Midland College is 4-3 in WJCC play and New Mexico is 2-5, but don't let that fool you. One of Midland's five losses this season came at the hands of the Thunderbirds in the Odessa College Invitational back in November.

At lot of water has passed under the bridge, even in parched West Texas, since then.

For one thing, MC will be playing its first game at home under new coach Delnor Poss. And since that early loss, the Chaps have gone on to compile a 13-5 overall record.

NMJC HAS compiled a 9-8 record and although one of the victories came over Western Texas College, Coach Dale Caton is disappointed in his team's play.

"We have an all-sophomore club and I thought we'd win the close ones. We just haven't won them and that's got us with our backs against the wall. We're not out of the running for the regional tournament yet, but we've got to find a way to end this three-game skid."

The Thunderbirds are coming off a 72-70 loss at Clarendon Monday night and probably figure they couldn't have caught MC at a better time.

In addition to the turmoil over last week's resignation of Coach Chester

Story and assistant J.D. Menasco, the team was riddled by injuries when it played at Levelland Monday. The result was a 109-93 loss and Poss hopes the Chaps can turn it around tonight with the sight of familiar surroundings.

POSS IS hopeful that all of his ailing players will be available for action tonight.

Going into the game, sophomore Tommy Parks and 6-5 sophomore Jackson Pace are the point leaders with 21.5 and 17.8 points per WJCC game, respectively.

With 6-1 Willie Henry, 6-0 Curtis Moore, 6-2 Eddie Daniel, 6-4 Allen Fluellen, 6-4 Ron Doyle, 6-4 Steve Smith and 6-3 Richard Pettigrew back from last year's squad, NMJC holds and edge in experience. However, MC has an edge under the boards. Freshmen David Ploudre and Ben Hill, from Camden, N.J., are the Thunderbirds' big men at 6-6.

Hill's 17.0 average per game leads the T-birds in scoring while Doyle is scoring at a 16.07 clip and Daniel is averaging 11.86.

On home remodeling, never forget profit motive

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Unless a businessman makes a profit, he won't be in business very long. We all know that. But think how many times some of us forget it. Every year, thousands of homeowners are bilked by home repair and remodeling contractors; that is, the so-called contractors who really are fly-by-night operators. Some of the homeowners are honest persons who are fleeced simply because they are not knowledgeable. Some are both honest and knowledgeable, but get caught in a squeeze or situation not of their own making. Yet there always are some people who are fraud victims for another reason — an attempt to get something for almost nothing.

How many fast-buck contractors could continue to be successful with their exaggerated sales pitches if the public never forgot that the basis of the free enterprise system is profit? Sure, everybody wants a bargain, especially in these days of high prices for materials and labor. That's no reason to be gullible when a quoted price for a remodeling job, for instance, is drastically lower than other estimates for the same project. Consumer advocate groups say that it happens again and again. A homeowner gets three estimates for a major home improvement, finds that one of them is very much lower than the others and accepts it without further checking. In time, for one reason or another, he comes to regret his decision and complains to the authorities or a consumer bureau — too late. The "contractor" has either gone into bankruptcy or, more likely, disappeared. There has to be a reason for an estimate far lower than others given, especially if it comes from someone you don't know or who hasn't been recommended. Therefore, before proceeding, find out what the reason is. Are you going to get inferior materials? Does the remodeler lack insurance should one of his employees be hurt while on your property? Is there some question about his reliability? Is there a misunderstanding about what is to be done? Will you get a written guarantee?

If one of the higher estimates has come from a man or company in business in your community for years, be frank with him.

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) — "Social Etiquette or What Not To Do in Singapore and How Not To Do It" has been written for those who don't want to come on like ugly Americans.

More than 6,000 U.S. citizens live in this Chicago-size island republic and thousands of others visit each year as tourists. The new booklet is filled with tips on local customs to help wary Americans avoid social pitfalls.

More than 75 per cent of the 2.2-million population is ethnic Chinese. There are Malay and Indian minorities.

The customs and taboos compiled by author Jo Ann Craig are based on religious practices and local habits. Mrs. Craig's 20-page booklet was sponsored by the Singapore American School. Her husband is assigned here on business.

In a chapter on cultural and personality differences between East and West, she advises curbing "the good old American temper." The "American virtues of outspokenness, boldness and aggressiveness" are not regarded as admirable traits by most Asians.

"The average American is giant-sized compared to the average Asian. He is very hairy. He smells differently probably because of the vast amounts of meat that he consumes. Add to this picture what appears to be a loud and booming voice, an aggressive attitude, a clever, snappy answer to everything and compare this to the quiet, reserved and modest attitude of the Asian. If we take a look at ourselves the way others might look at us, maybe we can tone ourselves down a bit so we won't seem to be so overwhelming."

Other suggestions from Mrs. Craig to those who would remain faux pas free:

—Avoid the quick use of first names or nicknames upon meeting a Singaporean for the first time.

—Avoid casual touching of the opposite sex.

—Avoid unwitting use of offensive gestures. These include pointing with the forefinger at a person; try a thumb instead. Beckoning for someone or a taxi with a wagging forefinger is very offensive. Calling someone with the first two fingers of the hand is also considered rude. A fist made with the right hand and slapped against the open left palm is extremely obscene. Hands on the hip are a sign of anger.

Three chapters of the booklet explain some of the social graces in the Chinese, Malay and Indian communities, including the proper uses of surnames, introductions, visits to homes, gifts, meals, weddings and religious customs.

Some of the things not to do and how not to do them:

Don't arrive on time at a Chinese wedding "as this may be taken as a sign of greed. It is best to arrive about 20 to 30 minutes late."

Never bring simple gifts to a person's home in odd numbers, rather offer six pieces of fruit, two boxes of candy, etc. "Odd numbers are a sign of death and may cause a feeling of unease."

Don't leave a cup of tea untouched when one is served with a Chinese meal. At least two sips should be taken to avoid seeming rude.

Never forget to take off your shoes before entering an Indian or a Malay home.

Don't pat an Indian's head, not even a child's. "The head has special significance and honor." Never offer a gift to an Indian with the left hand. "The left hand is used for hygienic purposes and it is considered to be disrespectful to touch anything with it or to eat with it."

Don't wear shorts, plunging necklines or backless dresses to an Indian affair.

Never serve pork to a Malay. Never refuse to eat or drink a little of any refreshments offered to you in a traditional Malay home. "To refuse would be insulting."

Don't hug or kiss in public around Malays. "Displays of affection and physical touching between the sexes are considered to be in bad taste."
