Winter's icy hands grip nation tighter

By The Associated Press

The Winter of '77 hit the East. Midwest and parts of the South with a new arctic cold blast today as already critical natural gas shortages forced more closings of schools and factories.

The entire school system of Pennsylvania was shut down by Gov. Milton Shapp so that natural gas could be shifted to industries. State officials said the state's 2.6 million public and parochial students may be out for longer than the three days already scheduled.

Pennsylvania and Ohio got a taste of the renewed cold front as the new arctic storm moved down from Canada Wednesday night and dropped temperatures by as much as 20 degrees in three hours.

Snow squalls hit sections of Ohio and Indiana Wednesday night, blocking roads and causing scores of traffic accidents, officials said.

Major north-south roads were blocked in Indiana, with hundreds of motorists stranded.

Some 150 school districts in 20 northeastern Indiana counties, including the 40,000-pupil Fort Wayne system, the state's second largest, canceled classes today.

The area south of Toledo, Ohio, was hit heavily by the storm, with most roads, including some main highways, closed.

Power failures blamed indirectly on the winter weather left about 26,000 Greater Cleveland residents without electricity for several hours Wednesday night and knocked out power to Cleveland Hopkins International Airport and Southwest General Hospital. Both reported that operations continued on auxiliary

Temperatures plunged elsewhere in the Midwest and East Coast freeze belt as winds gusting up to 60 miles per hour pushed the frigid air mass into the nation.

And the National Weather Service reported Wednesday that there appears to be no long-term warming trend in sight. The service forecast lower than normal temperatures over much of the East for at least the next two weeks

Earlier Wednesday, President Carter asked Congress for emergency authority to transfer natural gas to areas with the worst shortages.

Carter told a news conference that natural gas shortages due to the cold have closed some 4,000 plants and forced layoffs of an estimated 400,000 people and are now threatening those who use natural gas to heat their

Carter also renewed his appeal for Americans to lower their thermostats to 65 degrees by day and lower at night, although an aide said later that the President did not want people to break any local or state laws that mandate higher temperatures. And, there were indications last week's freeze in Florida was forcing up prices of groceries in many areas of the nation.

Parts of Maryland and Virginia around the Chesapeake Bay were declared federal disaster areas because the frozen bay has put many boatmen and fishermen out of work. The ice has blocked shipments of fuel oil and grain.

Outside Pennsylvania, school closures were scattered.

Six small districts in five Ohio counties were closed for a lack of natural gas. State Supt. Martin W.

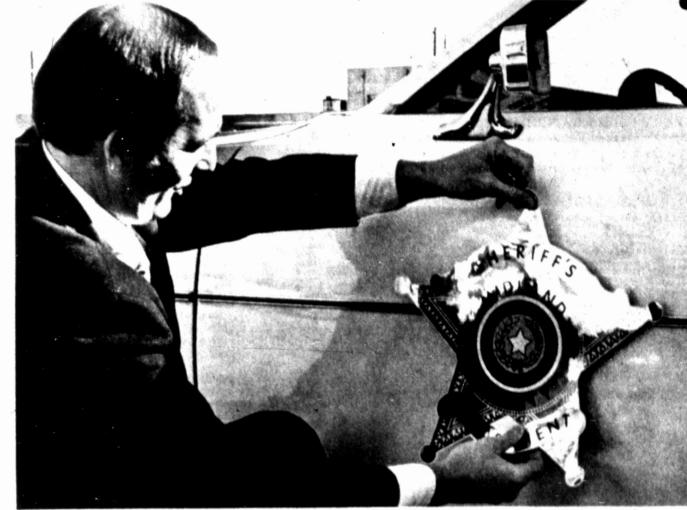

Essex said the worst was yet to come. A spokesman for his office said at least 80 districts have given notice of definite closing dates, with a few saying they hope to reopen toward the end of next month.

Columbia Gas Co. said it will send notices next week to many Ohio schools and other large commercial users telling them they have exceeded their winter allotments of gas and will get no more of the fuel until April. Equitable Gas Co., a Pittsburghbased company, asked schools in eight West Virginia counties to close until further notice. It extended that request to taverns, nightclubs and

In Georgia, most schools were open but with orders to keep thermostats at 65 degrees. Temperatures there had moderated somewhat by midweek but were predicted to plunge back into the teens by this weekend.

Police in LaGrange, Ga., which had many factories closed due to gas shortages, patrolled the empty plants.

of explosions rocked an Exxon tanker, sank a tugboat and left at least 17 persons injured and four missing early this morning in the Houston Ship Channel just outside this coastal

A Coast Guard spokesman said three of the persons missing were crew members of the tugboat. He said the explosions aboard the Exxon San Francisco apparently were caused by sparks from the engine of the tugboat that ignited fumes from fuels being loaded aboard the tanker at the Exxon refinery here.

Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Dennis Sande said

'They were loading heating oil through a loading arm when the arm broke spraying heating oil over the dock. According to reports, the commercial tugboat Nathan B. which was docked on the other side of the pier from the San Francisco, started her engines and it was shortly after that that the explosions occurred.

Coast Guard officials and Civil Defense spokesmen said earlier that about 15 to 20 crewmen were unaccounted for. But Lt. Sande said at midmorning that all the San Francisco crewmen were accounted for and those missing were three tugboat crewmen and a crewman from the CYS Brilliance, a Liberian tanker tied at the same dock.

The Coast Guard spokesman said at least three persons were aboard the tugboat Nathan B when "it went down." Eyewitnesses said the bottom of the tugboat could be seen just above the water. The dock area was sealed by the Coast Guard, and at Complusive desire. Smoking's a pretty easy thing to do. once you get the hang of it. And you can get accustomed to it so quickly. But getting the habit purged from your life may not be quite so simple. Misery.

However, one heavy ex-smoker of the old regular cigarettes says it was a simple matter to kick the habit.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Congressional leaders are rushing to approve President Carter's natural gas program and may have the emergency legislation on his desk by early next week.

The program Carter sent to Capitol Hill on Wednesday as his first legislative initiative seemed assured of quick passage. Members of Congress who once fought bitterly over the natural gas issue were joining forces to help push the measure through Congress.

The emergency legislation would give the President power to divert natural gas to cold-stricken parts of the country.

It would also allow emergency sales at unregulated prices by intrastate pipelines - located within gasproducing Gulf Coast states - to interstate pipelines until July 31. "This bill will not not end the shortages, will not improve the weather and will not solve the unemployment problems," Carter warned. But he said it would bring temporary relief to hard-pressed states by shifting gas from areas without acute shortages. Carter told reporters that quick action is needed because the gas shortage precipitated by unusually cold weather east of the Rocky Mountains has already closed some 4,000 plants, forced layoffs of an estimated 400,000 persons and is now threatening those who use natural gas to heat their homes.

The move could raise the monthly gas bills of natural gas consumers, but administration officials said the increases probably would be small. Carter also renewed his appeal for Americans to lower their thermostats to 65 degrees by day and lower at night, although an aide said later that the President did not want people to break any local or state laws that mandate higher temperatures.

The energy legislation was drafted in consultation with key members of Congress. White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger said it was carefully tailored to maximize congressional support and minimize controversy.

Senate leaders decided to bypass normal committee hearings and bring the legislation directly to the floor for debate on Friday. A Senate vote could come Monday.

Testimony continues in Midland rape case

District Attorney Vern Martin was to continue presentation of the prosecution's case today during the second day of testimony in the rape trial of Gary Wayne Childs.

Childs, 23, of 1304 S. Mineola St., is accused of the Sept. 26 rape of a 77-year-old Midland woman in her southeast Midland home.

Wednesday, Martin called three persons - including the victim - to testify before the jury in Midland's 142nd District Court

Then defense attorney Thomas Hirsch of Odessa filed a motion, challenging the admissibility of evidence by the state, and forced dismissal of the jury late Wednesday

During a hearing before Judge Perry Pickett, Hirsch challenged the admission of a confession the prosecution claims Childs gave police during the day of his arrest. Also in contention was the admission of a red sweat shirt which Hirsch claims was gained by police in an illegal search of Childs' girl friend's house.

During questioning of police investigators, Hirsch repeatedly made the point that Childs was brought into the police station Sept. 27 and detained several hours as a suspect in a case not related to the incident that led to his arrest.

In a tense confrontation with Midland police Det. Lt. Earl Luckey. Hirsch questioned whether the statement the state wished to submit as evidence was worded by Childs or

The top line, Luckey conceded, was not the language used by Childs. That line was an introductory identification to a statement commonly used in this area. Luckey explained.

Judge Pickett was expected to rule on the motions early today.

Looking up and seeing down: The elevators at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa are "adorned" with cab-top mirrors.

You can look up and clearly see the tops of people's heads and other topside parts of the anatomy - or the outline thereof.

Strange. "My supervisor said not to wear low-cut uniforms anymore," said a young nurse, obviously amused by the attention the mirrors were getting. "I see why now."

Getting out, if you can: "It'll take me an hour to figure out how to get out of here," said a woman, who was studying the hospital's fire exit plan while waiting for an elevator to come down. Your quickest way out is to head for the exit signs - if you can find them.

Priceless: "That's my $1,000 horse," said the seasoned fellow, who was holding a miniature iron horse given to him by a young lass when he was 6 years old in 1900.

"Hell," he said, "I wouldn't take a $1,000 for that horse. . . . I wouldn't take anything for that horse."

Probation office gets new man

Midland's U.S. probation office received a shot in the arm Wednesday with the swearing-in of a second probation officer presiding federal district Judge D. W. Suttle.

Hal Frank Felty Jr. joined Jack Swan as probation officer for the office which serves both the Midland and Pecos federal courts.

An increase in caseload since the office opened here in July 1974 was cited as the reason for the appointment by chief West Texas federal district Judge Adrian A. Spears with the approval of chief probation officer Chester McLaugin.

For the last two years, Felty has been district parole officer for the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles in Midland. Prior to that he was a correctional officer at the Texas Department of Corrections in Hunt-

Felty is a graduate of Stephen F Austin University and has done work towards his master's degree in corrections and criminology at Sam Houston State University in Hunt-

Swan said the Midland probation office did 30 pre-sentencing reports and supervised 93 persons either on probation or on parole during the 1976 fiscal year. That compares with 25 pre-sentencing investigations and a caseload of 68 persons during the first year the Midland probation office opened.

The pre-sentence report takes about 16 hours to prepare, Swan said, and studies the character and personality of the defendant, and analyzes factors of the offense to suggest alternatives in the rehabilitation process, Swan

The Human Relations Advisory Committee to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Wednesday voted to recommend approval of the $33,000 administration grant sought by the Midland Community Action Agency.

The PBRPC is scheduled to consider the request Feb. 9.

Several questions from committee members centered around the $6,000 annual salary included in the grant for the executive director. MCAA board chairman Charlie Welch, who is a Midland County commissioner, said it may be possible to supplement the salary with funds from other grants.

The grant under consideration is for administration of the program. It includes $27.040 for salaries of an executive director, three center directors and a half-time bookkeeper and secretary, Welch said.

The agency now has no executive director but one will be hired "in the next few days," Welch said.

Funds for the agency's programs

come from other grants, he said. Several committee members said they would prefer to vote conditional support for the grant proposal but unconditional support was approved by a 9-3 vote.

Sikes ousting interpreted as victory for reformers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes says he is a victim of "anti-defense" liberals, but some of the congressmen who voted to strip him of his key subcommittee chairmanship say their victory indicates the House of Representatives will adopt a tough new reform program.

Opponents of Sikes were ecstatic following Wednesday's Democratic caucus which, by a stunning margin of more than 2 to 1, removed the 70year-old Floridian as chairman of the subcommittee on military construction.

Sikes was reprimanded by his colleagues last year for misusing his influence in business deals and some members of a House reform group had voiced private fears that if Sikes retained his chairmanship it could end efforts to write a strict code of ethics for legislators.

But Sikes, who was re-elected last year after the reprimand, said he was

"I'm a senior conservative. I vote for defense. And there is a growing intolerance for some people who do not support the straight liberal line of the Democratic party," Sikes said.

After Wednesday's 189-93 vote, members of the House reform group said the removal of Sikes gave their cause a powerful boost.

"It shows the House is deadly

Rep. Michael J. Harrington, D-Mass., said that in contrast to "the gentle treatment afforded official misconduct in the past," it "signals a skeptical American people that the ...call for ethical reform is more than a mere echo in an empty House."

He stabilized nation

Gerald R. Ford left his record to restore credibility and strength to history when he turned the White House over to a new President. The historians may have less to say about the Ford presidency than about most others, but our conviction is that what they say will be good.

When we speak of the Kennedy years, the Johnson years and the Nixon years, a host of images come to mind -- some good, some bad, but mileposts marking the eras of our national life.

The images we retain from the Ford years may be less distinct. less colored with dramatic highlights or memorable phrases. Gerald Ford is leaving behind no sweeping legislative programs bearing either a catchy slogan or his name. There is no "Ford doctrine" that would associate him with a new turn in foreign policy. It is hard to single out a characteristic of the Ford administration that would aptly describe its style or tone.

Yet none of this changes the fact that a man of impressive stature and political sensitivity has left the White House. His legacy best can be measured in the intangibles of dignity and respect which once again can be associated with that seat of American political power and international influence known as the Oval Office.

Mr. Ford wanted to contribute more. We think he could have. He had never sought the presidency before the extraordinary series of events that handed it to him, but he rose keenly to the opportunity to fill that office by election and bring to it the stamp of leadership and initiative that go with an electoral mandate. the possibilities of a Ford administration more fully his own will remain conjectural. His presidency of less than 30 months will be judged on what the times demanded of him, and what he was able to give. And that judgment certainly president could face. Mr. Ford has conceded that his preoccupation during much of his term was to rebuild the shattered trust of the American people in

But that was denied him, and recognize achievement of the first order under some of the most difficult circumstances a the United States as a world power. He did this by approaching the office of president with the respect it deserves, by giving steady, sober attention to the issues that crossed his desk and by speaking candidly about them to the American people and Congress. And he showed the rest of the world that the Watergate scandals and the setback of Vietnam had not shaken the resolve of the United States to fill its mission as a force defending freedom and seeking peaceful resolution of international issues.

But to a majority of voters last November, this was not enough. The shortcomings and mistakes that are blamed for Mr. Ford's failure in his first nationwide test at the polls cannot be denied.

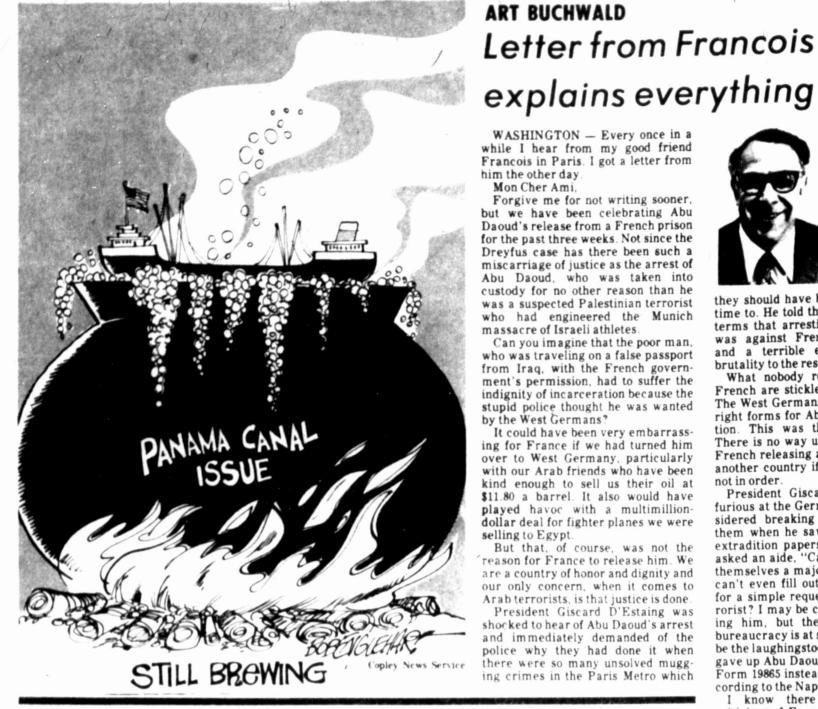

But it is fair to ask whether a president more activist in his approach to economic problems. more pliable in his disputes with Congress, and less wedded to the direction of the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy could at the same time have been the stabilizing figure at the head of the government which the country so sorely needed.

Much is said these days about the presidential "image." The image of President Ford may be the dominant feature in our memory of this brief period now ended - for the simple reason that it was never the product of campaign advisers and political dramatics. It is the genuine image of a conscientious, hardworking man, "square" in the old and the new meaning of the word, giving all he had to the toughest job in the world and, above all, turning the Oval Office over to a new tenant in much better condition than he found it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

A-Plant built near quake fault

BY JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — It started in the quiet darkness before dawn. Two small leaks, seemingly insignificant. trickled down the canyon wall near the north end of the great earth-filled

But three minutes before noon on the fearful Sunday, June 5, 1976, the 30-story dam split open, and a massive wall of water roared over the peaceful Idaho countryside. Miraculously, only 14 people died from the flood's ravages. But over a billion dollars worth of Idaho real estate was washed away. Thousands were left homeless.

Subsequent investigations indicated that the dam should not have been built at all. For the Bureau of Reclamation knew, long before a billion gallons of water backed up behind the dam, that it was a risky project. The geology was tricky, the engineering dubious. But unfortunately. Washington was more sensitive to the lobbying for the dam than to the scientific warnings against it. And so the government built a monster called Teton. Now a worse disaster may be in the making on the California coast. A nuclear power plant is nearing completion near Diablo Canyon, just three miles from an earthquake line called Hosgri Fault. The Hosgri Fault hadn't been discovered when the government issued the construction permit in 1968. But several eminent geologists warned that more care should be taken to locate possible faults in that earthquake-prone area In 1971, Shell Oil geologists announced the discovery of the Hosgri Fault. They found it by using a method, ironically, that the nuclear facility's critics had unsuccessfully urged the government to try.

Yet despite the earthquake danger. the government went ahead with the Diablo Canyon plant. It doesn't take a geologist to figure out that an earthquake could rupture the nuclear power plant. This could cause a radiation spill, with catastrophic consequences.

The construction of the plant could have been stopped in 1971, of course, before the full $1.2 billion it cost to build it was spent. Now it is too late to recover the enormous construction cost; the plant will soon be ready to open. However, it still requires an operating license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which is supposed to protect the public safety.

The NRC is toughening its standards to make the Diablo Canyon plant more earthquake resistant. But no human engineering could guarantee the safety of a plant on the edge of an earthquake fault.

The NRC's project manager for the plant, Dennis Allison, told us that the commission's proposed safety regulations give some comfort "but not much." He acknowledged that the site "turned out to be not such a great place.

Yet so much money and effort have been invested in the plant, and so many powerful politicians have backed it, that there is tremendous pressure to open it. Allison said the operating license "probably" would be granted

It was also the site, according to congressional findings, that doomed the Teton Dam. But the politicians who promoted the dam and the bureaucrats who planned it have not been held accountable for the billiondollar disaster. The Bureau of Reclamation, whose mismanagement helped to produce the catastrophe, has been left unscathed.

Congress, of course, conducted its usual investigations, but these didn't perturb Reclamation Commissioner Gil Stamm

Now we have discovered additional evidence of his apparent nonchalance over the dam disaster. At obscure House hearings, Stamm pooh-poohed the casualty count, which had then reached only 11. "The total number of deaths is 11, three of which were gunshot wounds, two were suicides, one is a couple of days after the loss of the dam, the other two weeks after the he reported blandly to the Water and Power Subcommittee. "There have been a number of heart attacks. I think the drownings were a total of five, two of whom were a couple of 76 and 78 years of age who were warned by relatives in ample time but refused to leave their home. Some time later, when they saw the water rising, they did choose to leave. but it was too late. They were drowned."

KOREAN DRUG RING - Intelligence reports indicate that North Korea is so desperately short of hard currency that it is directing a worldwide drug ring to raise money.

North Korean diplomats in the Scandanavian countries have been ousted for their drug and blackmarket dealings. But the intelligence reports suggest they were merely part of a worldwide operation directed by the North Korean government itself. The disgraced diplomats were hastily hustled off to Moscow. But intelligence reports say they have now been shipped back to Pyongyang. There were reports, in fact, that the North Koreans were smuggling drugs to their Communist comrades behind

they should have been devoting their time to. He told them in no uncertain terms that arresting Arab terrorists was against French foreign policy and a terrible example of police brutality to the rest of the world.

What nobody realizes is that we French are sticklers for paper work. The West Germans did not fill out the right forms for Abu Daoud's extradition. This was the main problem. There is no way under the sun of the French releasing an Arab terrorist to another country if the paper work is not in order.

President Giscard D'Estaing was furious at the Germans and even considered breaking off relations with them when he saw how sloppy their extradition papers were. "How," he asked an aide, "Can these people call themselves a major power when they can't even fill out the correct forms for a simple request for an Arab terrorist? I may be criticized for releasing him, but the honor of French bureaucracy is at stake, and we would be the laughingstock of the world if we gave up Abu Daoud when they sent us Form 19865 instead of Form 17896 according to the Napoleonic Code.

I know there has been some criticism of France and particularly our beloved president for releasing Abu Daoud, but we feel Abu has suffered enough. Not only did he have to spend several nights in jail, but he was made to fly home on Air Algeria which is considered by many as "cruel and unusual punishment.

The president is very angry at the reaction to his decision to free Abu Daoud. But he believes any head of state would have done the same thing. After all, if you start arresting terrorists for no reason, can any hijacker be safe from the knock on the door?

NICK THIMMESCH

Executions, no; more punishment, yes, writer says

WASHINGTON - Supreme Court justices read the papers, and that's one reason Gary Gilmore took bullets through the heart and his body was dissected by doctors afterwards, ostensibly for the good of mankind. The justices know of the clamor for resumption of capital punishment State legislatures vote it. Politicians demand it. Otherwise reasonable citizens claim that the death penalty is the only way that the crime wave will be checked. But I argue here that capital punishment is wrong and will not deter the kind of crime which rightly disturbs Americans, and that the way to reduce crime is to put policemen, prosecutors and judges back in their traditional roles, which means an end to the permissive nonsense.

Capital punishment is wrong because it takes a life to pay for a life. As a Jesuit professor of theology pointed out here this week, authority for such executions can be found in the Old Testament, but that authority also holds that women should be stoned for adultery. Who among you advocates of capital punishment, citing the Bible or antiquity, wants to throw the first stone at the legions of those guilty of adultery, men or women? Besides, there's nothing in the New Testament, which most Americans nominally live by, which authorizes capital punishment

But Old or New Testament, capital punishment is wrong because it is a coldly calculated government-sanctioned act, not performed in the hot anarchy of war, which brutalizes a supposedly civilized society. The vignetic of a human being, in catatonic rigidity, while high voltage stops his organs, or a human figure hung from a rope or slumped in death after high-powered bullets have killed - all by government authority - is as barbaric to me as those photos of blacks being dragged through streets after a lynching or Dachau's gaunt victims piled up like cordwood.

Let those who stump for capital punishment stand close by to see, smell and hear when the next Gary Gilmore takes his bullets, or some other condemned soul is electrocuted or gassed by cyanide pellets. Oldtimers in the news business tell how they would vomit after witnessing executions, how the human flesh cooking in electrocutions stunk up the death chamber.

"They're going to fry Ruby!" a reporter screamed in delight as he came aboard one of the campaign planes in 1964. He was informing us of the death sentence given to Jack Ruby, the poor bum who killed Lee Harvey Oswald

But our friend, back in 1964, exalted in the frying aspect, and grim humor was expressed, followed by sick humor. Same thing with the Gilmore execution last week, and from there it's not far to selling fetal material to school labs (it's been done) or making lampshades out of human skin (it's also been done)

Any jargon can justify the brutality of taking a human life. One woman wrote that Gilmore's execution was

.the euthanasia of a sick animal.' The current rage to execute criminals is the wrong answer to a legitimate concern. There is great frustration over the fact that for every thousand crimes committed, only a handful of culprits is ever punished. The explanation is that the courts, particularly the U.S. Supreme Court, went soft on criminals in the Sixties and consequently the lower courts and cops have also gone soft on

"Enlightened" judges dismiss cases, as though they were clipping their fingernails, or, in effect, demand that the cops bring in culprits bearing smoking guns. Pecksniff editorialists for liberal journals crackle away about civil liberties, and meanwhile half the populace gets robbed, mugged, beaten or maybe even killed. The cops get discouraged by the courts and find it easier to goof

The foregoing is not rhetoric. A brand-new study of crime in the District of Columbia shows that a criminal committing a serious crime here only ran a 5 in 100 chance of being convicted, and only 2 in 100 of doing jail time.

The study, by the Institute for Law and Social Research, documents what many of us have long suspected that courts and police departments can regularly trot out figures showing that the crime wave is subsiding. while at the same time we are being held up, robbed and knocked about as never before. A separate analysis of crime in Los Angeles County showed the same kind of result - much crime and very few convictions. More complete studies might well show a national trend.

I am in that school of thought, which also numbers California Gov. Jerry Brown, which holds that if the courts send first-time adult offenders, convicted of serious crimes, to jail and keep them there for a while, the cops will do better. When permissiveness on criminality is shown to be the fake it is, the pecksniffs will be ignored, there will be more arrests and con-for all this gore, too.

victions and, eventually, less crime. When there is less crime, that means fewer people will be robbed. mugged, raped, beaten or otherwise ripped off by criminals, and there will be less clamor for capital punishment. It could even mean that the rich TV networks might find less audience

To kill a human being, as punishment for a crime, no matter how heinous, is wrong and unhealthy. To punish criminals for serious crimes is not only right, it is good for the criminal and certainly good for society. We need none of the former

'Roots' author feels book 'touched pulse'

By ROBERT HEARD

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The author of "Roots" feels his book "touched a public pulse. It shows what we all

All of us are immigrants, Alex Haley told a crowded House chamber Wednesday.

"We tend to fear the unknown," he said. And when we don't know the history of a people, "whole groups are labeled-spics, wops, niggers. That's patently a lie. Human beings are not like that.'

Haley said he got his start as a writer by penning love letters for fellow sailors in World War II.

He struggled for eight years after that before he sold a short article to a magazine. Later, he originated the Playboy interview.

Now, his book publisher tells him "Roots" has sold 900,000 hard cover copies in four months, ranking it second only to "Gone With the Wind," which sold 1 million copies in five

Black caucus members presented Haley with a certificate from Gov. Dolph Briscoe naming him an honorary Texan, with a Texas flag that has flown from the roof of the Capitol, and with a House congratulatory resolution signed by Speaker Billy Clayton. Briscoe attended a brief reception for Haley in a lounge off the House floor.

The author was here to speak at The University of Texas.

Haley said he worked as a cook on an ammunition ship in the southwest Pacific in World War II. To fight boredom, he wrote "lots and lots of Demand for his talent increased after the letters increased the sailors' success, he said.

That ended his career as a cook. "All I did was write love letters the rest of World War II," he said.

Years later, he worked on assignment for Reader's Digest for a time before Playboy asked him to do a piece on trumpeter Miles Davis, who "hated interviewers."

Haley had to get in the ring with Davis, an accomplished boxer as well as musician, before Davis opened up. They became friends, and Davis would sometimes telephone, say one word, "Chili," and hang up. That meant Haley was to get over to Davis' house for chili.

Haley used a question-and-answer format for his article on Davis for Playboy. "That was how the Playboy interview was born," he said. For the next three years, he wrote nearly all of the Playboy interviews, he said.

Remembering stories his grandmother and her sisters told when he was young got him interested in tracing his family, he said. He checked census rolls in North Carolina for the 1870s and began to think of the human stories behind the

"If you turn the rolls slowly, they seemed to walk in slow, stately tread. If you turned fast, they seemed to walk briskly," he said.

It took him nine years of researching and three years of writing to piece together the family story going back to "The African"-Kunta Kinte, the man whose story was preserved in the family oral history. A slave ship brought Kinte to this country in 1767. He was Haley's great-great-greatgreat grandfather.

The reaction to his book, Haley said, left him bewildered and it exceeded anything he could have imagined, he said. "It would have been insane to fantasize about things going on now.

His mail the past two weeks has begun to come in canvas bags, and nine out of 10 letters are from whites. Like blacks, they had little idea of the cultures blacks came from, he

Mary Richards ending; enterprise continuing

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Grant Tinker, husband of Mary Tyler Moore, didn't get coy when asked if he ever thought their creation of MTM Enterprises in 1970 to make CBS "Mary Tyler Moore Show" would lead to so much.

"I don't want to have seemed too clairvoyant, but the idea certainly was to start a viable production company, and to do that you need to have several projects going at one time." he said.

"So the answer is yes."

Since MTM's first series, it's made seven others, two of them spinoffs, "Rhoda" and "Phyllis," and the rest originals. "The Bob Newhart "Doc," "The Tony Randall Show," the Paul Sand and Bob Crane shows and "Texas Wheelers."

The last three flopped and CBS axed "Doc" late last year. But the success of the others leaves MTM Enterprises still one of Hollywood's hottest situation comedy concerns.

Come Feb. 4. Miss Moore whose show started it all, films the 168th and last episode of her Emmy-winning series. After seven successful seasons, she wants to move on to other things in TV

Alhough what Tinker calls "our flagship show" will end, their company won't, despite the loss of four of ts writer-producers to ABC and Newhart's recent decision to quit after this season.

In addition to MTM's returning series, there'll be an hour long CBS series with Ed Asner, Mary's newsroom boss, as a Washington, D.C., newspaper editor. Plus work on a comedy pilot for Betty White, another regular on the "Mary Tyler Amorous Count Almaviva whispers sweet nothings in the ear of the maidservant Susanna Mozart's comic opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," in a scene to be presented at 8:15 p.m. today in Midland High auditorium. The Texas Opera Theater production, sung in English, has Warren Ellsworth as the Count and Maryanne Telese as Susanna.

'Marriage of Figaro' performance tonight

As operas go, Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" is relatively short — about three hours in length. Midland Community Concerts Association, which is sponsoring a performance of Texas Opera Theater's new production of "Figaro" here tonight, has sounded a warning to its members that the show will run somewhat longer than the usual Community Concerts attraction. Besides that, the opera is in four acts, each with a different setting, and it takes time to make scene changes.

"Figaro," one of the best-known and most-often-performed operatic works in the world today, will have a complete and traditional staging in its presentation at 8:15 p.m. today in Midland High auditorium. However, it will be sung in English.

Following the performance, MCCA will be host to the Texas Opera Theater cast and crew at a reception and the audience is invited to attend and meet the company.

Texas Opera Theater is the touring subsidiary of the Houston Grand Opera. The touring ensemble, organized in the early 1970s, is made up of still relatively-unknown but fastraising young operatic performers. The group takes opera "to the people" throughout the state and neighboring states. Currently the ensemble is on an 11-city tour in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The company will follow tonight's performance of "Figaro" here with a presentation of the opera Friday night in the Abilene Civic Auditorium

Admission to tonight's performance will be by Community Concerts Association season membership card only, with no single tickets available. Members of concert organizations in Big Spring, Lubbock, Odessa, Roswell, Carlsbad and Hobbs, N. M. also may attend the event through a reciprocal attendance arrangement with the Midland entertainment

MCT Theatre School classes starting again

The Theatre School of Midland Community Theatre, inactive during the fall months, will resume classes

In addition, the Pickwick Players, the young people's performing company at MCT, will resume a regular schedule following several months' inactivity. Tryouts to fill vacancies in the company will take place at Theatre Centre Saturday

At the helm of both the school and the Pickwick company will be MCT's newly-appointed children's theater director, Debbie Waddell.

Miss Waddell, a native Californian and a graduate of the University of California at Davis, comes to Midland from Dallas where for the last three years she has been associated with the Dallas Theater Center. She recently completed work on a master of fine arts degree in children's theater at DTC, through Trinity University at San Antonio.

In addition to general theater work

at Dallas Theater Center, she directed children's productions and taught children's theater classes. She also taught in several Dallas schools. She has written several plays for young people

The Pickwick Players tryouts will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. Students between the ages of 13 and 18 are invited to audition for the company. Additional information on requirements for membership may be obtained from Miss Waddell at Theatre Centre, 682-2544.

Theatre School classes will be of fered for children of various age groups, including pre-school to kindergarten children, first through third graders, fourth through sixth graders, seventh through ninth graders, and high achool age students. Full information on tuition by semester or by the school year, the weekly class schedules, and available scholarships may be obtained from the Midland Community Theatre

Meyerbeer opera next Metropolitan broadcast

NEW YORK - "Le Prophete," the Giacomo Meyerbeer masterwork which recently had its first performance at the Metropolitan Opera since 1928, will be Saturday's broadcast over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network. Starting time will be 1 p.m. CST.

The broadcast performance of "Prophete" will, of course, be the first performance over the Texaco-Metropolitan Network. Permian Basin opera fans may hear the presentation on Station KCRS in Midland, Tex.

Operatic superstar Marilyn Horne will head a stellar cast in the Saturday performance. The acclaimed mezzo-soprano will sing the role of Fides. Joining her in the presentation will be soprano Renata Scotto as Berthe, tenor James McCracken as Jean de Leyde, bass Jerome Hines as Zacharie, tenor Frank Little as Jonas, baritone Morley Meredith as the Comte d'Oberthal and baritone Raimund Herincx as Mathiesen. Henry Lexis will conduct the per-

During the first intermission Saturday afternoon, the radio audience will be treated to a special discussion of "Le Prophete" by noted musicologist Boria Goldovsky.

The Meyerbeer work was first performed in Paris in 1849. The 1928 production of "Prophete" at the Met featured Karin Branzell, Giovanni Martinelli, Ezio Pinza and Leon Rothier in the cast. The most recent revivals of the opera were in 1962 at La Scala in Milan, Zurich June Festival in Switzerland and at the Deutsche Opera in Berlin.

Artist exhibits marble sculpture

By KATHRYN TOLBERT

TOKYO (AP) - Sculptor Minoru Niizuma's largest one-man show has opened in his native Japan, 18 years after he left to live and work in New York.

The heavy and yet delicate abstract forms in marble, a total of 35 pieces. were brought here from the United States in a 40-ton and a 20-ton container for the three-week exhibition.

Niizuma has exhibited internationally and some of his sculptures are owned by the Guggenheim Museum, the Museum of Modern Art and Rockefeller University, and the largest, weighing 14 tons, will go to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

But until he was invited recently by Tokyo's Seibu Museum, he had not visited Japan for 14 years.

"For a long time I didn't return to this country and Japanese critics didn't care about me," said the 46year-old Niizuma, a heavyset man who looks entirely capable of wresting precise and sensitive forms from two-ton blocks of marble.

"The critics like artists who return often and go drinking with them. Now people are very warm to me, but I think it is because I am going to return to the United States. I am not

"I think Japan is still a small country, with people thinking about relationships, competition,

His work is often said to be very Japanese. Thomas Messer, director of the Guggenheim Museum, wrote for the Seibu catalogue, "the artist's confident reliance upon the communicative power of his materials and surfaces is, of course, in the best Oriental tradition - one so easily admired yet wholly beyond emulation in Western traditions of modern art."

"If something is really Japanese," Niizuma said, "then it can be in-ternational. If Japanese artists imitate Western artists, it may look international but is not.

The nationally circulated Asahi Shimbun commented, "He is very conscious of Japanese beauty and because of his strong personality, he can hold his own in the international

Niizuma said he felt most Japanese had never seen such kinds of colored marble and didn't know it could be made into such shapes. "Japan has a granite tradition, but not marble," he said. "When I

AUSTIN — A week-long residency of the Dallas Theater Center and public performances of DTC director Paul Baker's production of "Hamlet E.S.P." is being offered Texas schools and communities through the artist-in-schools program of the National Endowment for the Arts, implemented by the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

The total residency is available during March at a cost equal the expected income from the public performance, said Mary Lee Jones, coordinator for the education division of the Texas Commission of the Arts and Humanities.

The number of stone sculptors is increasing, he said.

"People are getting tired of plastic and stainless steel. They want to return to something more natural.

"But the problem is that stone has so many limitations. You cannot glue

"My sculptures before had many smooth parts along with the rough, but now I want to keep the marble more natural. It has its own life. Without carving, I want just to mount the stone.

Carter nuclear test plan bends

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Carter's weekend call for halting all nuclear testing "instantly and completely," began to bend Wednesday to the realities of hard bargaining in the nuclear age.

The Carter Administration declared its support Wednesday for two pending U.S.-Soviet treaties that would permit the continuance of limited underground nuclear blasts. In the presidential campaign. however, Carter criticized one of the treaties as "wholly inadequate," and labeled the other "dangerous."

Wednesday, State Department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown described the two disputed treaties as "way-stations" for "movement toward the ultimate objectives" held out by the President.

What the President said in his Sunday interview on seeking an early end to all nuclear testing. Brown said was an objective. What is before the Congress, Brown said, are two treaties "which are a step in the direction in which the President has clearly indicated he wants to go.

Critics are divided, however, on whether the two treaties are steps in the right direction, or worse than no agreement at all. President Carter appeared to share the latter viewpoint. They would ban nuclear blasts bigger during the campaign.

A special study has now been ordered by the White House, through the National Security Council, to work out U.S. strategy on a total underground test ban, to be negotiated with the Soviet Union. The Carter Administration has now decided to attempt, simultaneously, to get the Senate to ratify the two pending treaties. 150,000 tons of TNT. In order to distinguish between weapons tests and "peaceful" tests, the second of the new treaties permits inspectors to visit the site of the non-weapons blasts, under certain limitations. This procedure, which required two years to negotiate, was hailed by the Ford Administration as a major breakthrough in Soviet secrecy. Critics in the American arms control community raised two basic criticisms, which Carter also raised in his election campaign. They criticized the 150 kiloton limit as too high, and charged that formalizing "peaceful nuclear explosions" was a step backward in the arms race, because non-nuclear nations could acquire a weapons capability under the guise of a peaceful program.

India entered the world's select nuclear club through the "peaceful explosion" route.

Nevertheless, the State Department said Wednesday, "The (Carter) Administration wants Congress to consider and approve the two test treaties currently before it as steps to an overall ban on nuclear tests.

Officials said that despite the misgivings raised by Carter in the presidential campaign, the Carter Administration decided it would be more advantageous to have in place what already has been negotiated with the Russians, while attempting to negotiate a total ban on tests. Some critics have argued in the past that this could make it more difficult, not easier, to get a complete ban, and induce the Soviet Union to forego its "peaceful" nuclear blasts.

> Noting in an article in the Columbia Journalism Review that there were only 734 independent newspapers left in 1972, he predicted - tongue in cheeck, of course - that "at this rate (allowing for leap years) the last independent will disappear at 10:48 p.m. on June 7th, 11 years hence — appropriately, a Thursday, a fat advertising day, and also appropriately the year 1984.' Bagdikian still appears to be right on target; in fact, if the current pace keeps up, the fateful day might come even sooner.

In the year just completed, 72 daily newspapers changed hands, up from 52 in 1975, but slightly less than the 79 papers that changed ownership in 1974.

And while the merger and acquisition trend in the newspaper industry continues briskly, a new twist has arisen of late. Whereas, just a couple of years ago, independent newspapers were being bought by other independents and chains, today there's a shortage of good single properties. As a result, chains are starting to swallow up entire chains. Of these 72 newspapers that changed hands this last year, 61 involved chains.

"There is a finite population of newspapers in this country," says Benjamin M. Compaine, a professor at Community College of Philadelphia who wrote a book on the newspaper industry in 1973 which he is currently updating. "It is too expensive to start up a newspaper today so anyone who wants one has to buy from an existing pool. And there's fierce competition for that right now.

And it is primarily this ing prices for newspapers sky high.

In the biggest transaction of last year - indeed. it was the largest in terms of dollars in the history of the industry newspaper mogul Samuel Newhouse outdid Times Mirror Co. and others and paid approximately $300 million in cash for the Booth newspapers. Booth's assets include Parade Magazine as well as eight dailies in Michigan.

When Newhouse made his takeover bid, he already owned more than 15 per cent of the Booth

To observers of the newspaper scene, the Newhouse-Booth situation had a counterpart one very much similar in its major characteristics. They immediately speculated that there would be a similar takeover attempt of Speidel Newspapers by Gannett Co. Gannett, a large newspaper chain, already owned a chunk of Speidel — a Reno-based publisher of 13 daily and six Sunday newspapers in 11 cities across the coun-

According to newspaper analyst J. Kendrick Noble Jr., associate director of research at Paine. Webber, Jackson and Crtis. there was heavy buying of Speidel stock in his firm's Michigan offices. Speidel stock quickly rose from 18 to 22.

"A good deal of money that has been received from the Booth sale was reinvested in Speidel," he recalled. "The buyers of Speidel were using the proceeds from the sale of their Booth stock and they knew they had made good money in a situation in which one newspaper chain owned a piece of another. They asked if there were any situations like that and the Gannett-Speidel case was it. Institutions came to a similar conclusion."

Gannett shortly thereafter announced it was acquiring Speidel.

Black Marine lawyers seek change of venue

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Volunteer civilian attorneys for black marines accused of assault in a Nov. 13 case involving alleged Ku Klux Klan activity at Camp Pendleton Marine Base said Wednesday they had filed a change of venue motion with the Secretary of the Navy.

The attorneys said they were petitioning the secretary to have the pending trial transferred to another area or to the jurisdiction of another branch of the armed forces.

Attorney Leonard Weinglass, who leads a team of five other lawyers, told a Greater Los Angeles Press Club news conference that the secretary had been asked to disqualify Camp Pendleton authorities and to have a new "convening authority" named.

Officials at Camp Pendleton said no decision had been made yet on whether the prosecution would oppose the defense motion.

The six attorneys at the news conference represented 10 of the 14 black marines who face charges stemming from the beating and stabbing of six enlisted white men mistakenly suspected of being KKK

Weinglass said he is seeking the change of venue - because there is a potential conflict involving officers at the base who may have to serve on the courts-martial panel.

Weinglass and the other attorneys accused Marine authorities of trying to sweep under the rug allegations that racism was pervasive at the

"Accordingly, all decisions by the convening authority ... are infected by the interests which the command, and indeed the Marine Corps, has in avoiding a revelation of this failure."

Weinglass said the beatings of the white marines were preceded by a series of anti-black incidents including a cross burning, the slashing of tires on black-owned autos and mess hall scenes in which some white enlisted men openly displayed knives which they referred to as "nigger

This, said Weinglass, was another example of provocations perpetrated against blacks by the KKK and other white supremacist groups.

Attempts by the defense to introduce statements about previous Klan activity into evidence have been barred by the presiding judge at pretrial hearings.

Manson movie maker killed

The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD - Producer-director Laurence Merrick, maker of the film "Manson," was shot to death Wednesday at his Hollywood film school, police said. His unidentified slayer, described as a young man in his 20s, escaped after the noontime

Stunned students at first thought he was acting when he called out, "I've been shot." But he collapsed in his office and died an hour later in a Hollywood hospital. Merrick, who operated on the fringes of the Hollywood movie-making establishment, was the producer of the 1972 film "Manson," about the hippie clan accused of the 1968 Tate-LaBianca murders. The documentary included an interview with three rifle-carrying "Manson family" female members.

Nominated for an Academy Award in 1972, the film was plagued by legal problems which delayed its release for more than a year.

Just before the 1975 trial of Manson follower

Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme for the attempted assassination of then-President Gerald R. Ford, the film was banned in the Sacramento area to prevent prejudicing prospective jurors.

Merrick, who was not related to noted New York stage producer David Merrick, also wrote, produced, directed and released two low-budget films in 1970. They were "Guess What Happened to Count Dracula?" and "Black Angels," about a motorcycle gang.

Police said there were no witnesses to Wednesday's shooting, although several persons claimed to have seen the assailant before and after

Hong Kong flu plagues schools

HOUSTON (AP) - Five private elementary schools have been closed here by an outbreak of type-B Hong Kong flu but city health officials say they are not ready to use the word epidemic.

"I would personally shy away from using the term epidemic but we definitely have a sizeable outbreak of type-B Hong Kong flu," said Dr. Robert A. MacLean, chief of the City Health Department's communicable disease section.

St. Thomas More Catholic School closed classes until next week when 25 per cent of the 500 students went home sick. Corpus Christi School classes were suspended Wednesday after 32 per cent of the students were out sick.

Other schools closing are St. Francis De Sales Church School, St. Vincent de Paul School and Holy Ghost School.

The Southwest section of the city appeared to be hardest hit by the outbreak. Dr. Robert B. Couch, director of the Baylor College of Medicine Influenza Research Center, said his staff has isolated 107 cases of type-B influenza in the past

CINCINNATI (AP) — Four of the hundreds of sites listed on the National Register of Historic Places are moving vehicles.

Two are in Louisville, Ky., including the "Belle of Louisville," a harbor excursion paddlewheeler which is America's oldest operating steamboat, and locomotive No. 152, the oldest known surviving example of a high speed passenger "Pacific" type steam locomotive.

Long Range Prediction Group, said Wednesday that Arctic air is moving farther south than usual because of a sustained distortion in upper atmosphere wind Gilman said earlier that such upper wind distortions, with winds circulating hundreds of miles farther south than normal, are not uncommon but that this distortion is different. 'What is uncommon is that this distortion set in entember and locked in place for four months," he said. Such a pattern allows cold fronts from the Arctic Circle to swing as far south as Texas and Florida This locked wind pattern not only brings the United States cold weather, but also gives similar conditions to western Europe, Siberia and areas of the northern Pacific, Gilman said. Paradoxically, other areas of the world are benefiting from the unusual flow of frigid air into normally warmer climes. Gilman said that as cold northern air flows down, warm southern air moves to some northern areas.

"Alaska, northwest Canada, Iceland, Greenland, Scandinavia and parts of Russia are having a milder winter than normal so far," he said. He said some parts of Alaska have had record high temperatures in the 40s instead of their usual sub-zero freeze.

Gilman said the next 30-day forecast, due out Friday, probably would not show a great change in these patterns.

"There probably isn't any simple underlying reason for all of this," Gilman said. "It's just the very complicated result of a lot of factors acting together in a subtle way. We don't know why and just don't have the means of finding out.

During peacetime, the backup units maintain ties with their parent regular divisions, which help improve the readiness of the guard and reserve elements. From time to time, entire divisions - regulars and backup components - are supposed to train together.

A major attraction of the affiliation concept is that it enables the Army to maintain more regular divisions than it otherwise could within tight manpower limits. Although the regular Army has cooperated in the affiliation of guard and reserve units with its divisions, Army generals oppose any further loss of regular manpower. They are expected to argue strongly against any broadened affiliation program that would reduce regular Army strength below the currently projected 790,000 men and women.

Spanish violence flares

Spanish government banned public demonstrations, suspended some civil rights and ordered police to round up foreign extremists in a crackdown on political violence that has claimed seven lives in Madrid this week.

Trying to cope with Spain's worst crisis since dictator Francisco Franco died 14 months ago, Premier Adolfo Suarez's cabinet late Wednesday night invoked a Franco antiterrorism law to allow police to hold suspects more than 72 hours without charges and give them the right to search without warrants.

The declaration followed a day of strikes Wednesday by 1.5 million workers across the nation protesting an estimated 100,000 persons in Madrid for the funeral of three of the five Communist lawyers slain Monday night by rightwing ex-

Workers returned to their jobs today and no serious street violence was reported.

Dark brown carpeting coupled with rust colored walls can be very dramatic when used with natural or indirect lighting and contemporary room furnishings.

Rust walls, brown carpet combine for dramatic effect

By BARBARA HARTUNG Copley News Service

Q. I have deep brown carpeting in the living room of our apartment. I would like to paint the walls a deep, dark color but I am rather afraid. I need new draperies at the two windows which are 24 inches wide and floor to ceiling.

I have selected a rust, brown, white and gray sofa and would like to carry out a natural color scheme. Please suggest a dark wall color you think might be nice and any ideas for windows and accessories that would fit with baskets and stoneware. - R.R.E.

A. With deep brown carpeting I would think that a rust shade on your walls might be very attractive if you want a deep shade. Deep walls can be very dramatic and show off accessories hung against them. One point to remember is that dark walls absorb a lot of light so if you do not have lots of natural light, you may have to supplement with lamps and indirect lighting.

I would imagine a simple tailored window treatment would be preferable to a standard drapery. You might think in terms of tortoiseshell shades or matchstick shades in beige. Or for a very contemporary slick look you might like chrome Venetian blinds (the very slim ones). Accessorize with lots of heavy textures materials like wood, leather, slate and brick. Cactus instead of lacey ferns might be an interesting addition if you are a plant buff.

Q. I can find no way to attractively group the furniture I have in my living room. The furniture includes four swing rocker chairs and a couch. The couch can be replaced but the chairs are quite new. The living room is about 16x20 feet and has a fireplace in one corner. However, I cannot arrange furniture in front of the fireplace because the front door opens into the room right by the fireplace. Could you make some suggestions? - L.P.

A. Unfortunately house designers sometimes place fireplaces in odd places, at least in places where it is impossible to furnish logically. A fireplace is an important part of a room and often demands a furniture arrangement around it. However, in your case, you will probably have to ignore the fireplace from a decorating viewpoint.

Also I would imagine that it would be difficult to decorate with four rockers because they probably take up considerable space. Why not relegate one to another room - perhaps a bedroom or den. Then you might use a pair together in one corner of the room and the other with your couch.

Remember that furniture does not have to be placed against the wall. Sometimes a sofa can make an interesting room arrangement when placed out in the room with a long, slender sofa table behind it. Also a pair of chairs could be used to create a walkway and establish traffic patterns in a manner different from what you have been accustomed to.

In small rooms people will often opt for dark paneling or dark colors but that can be depressing. One couple had a small house that was rentable until they could retire to it. They kept everything "easy maintenance" as they called it, but the house was a real turnoff. Walls were unattractive brown, furnishings were brown with a busy pattern in upholstery and even a lounge in the living room was covered in a dull tan color. Two bedrooms were finished in rough brown wood and were furnished in the same deadly brown.

A decorator suggested bright white would pull the house out of the red.

Purse resembling post office stays organized... hopefully

By ERMA BOMBECK

I've never carried what you would call your basic organized handbag.

To put it another way . . . if Monty Hall had offered a million dollars to anyone having a 1958 baby tooth, a set of keys to a car sold three years ago, a fuzzy breath mint, and a half pair of footlets in their purse, I'd be a millionaire today.

As with most vices, the only people this bothers are the reformers ... the do-gooders who won't rest until you put your car keys on a clip, with a flashlight, at the top of your bag, in a spot marked

One of the more zealous members of the Organized Handbag movement is my mother. She cannot comprehend why I carry around a pack of gum with no gum in it, or what possible use I will have for two batteries. She couldn't wait to give me one of those handbags for my birthday that has a place for everything. It looked like a Post Office.

"The first thing we're going to do is to sit down and get it all organized," she said, "and you'll never have to rum mage through your purse again. Give me your

Once-thriving Colorado marble town now has-been

By C.C. MINICLIER

MARBLE, Colo. (AP) — Abraham Lincoln would have felt at home here. It's the sort of little American town the Unknown Soldier and other servicemen died for.

They probably never knew of Marble during their lifetimes, but they are commemorated in death by stone from the town's Rocky Mountain quarries, as are thousands of other American dead across the land.

The town itself nearly died. For 32 years its municipal books were closed. no elections were held and the population dwindled to three.

The hard world of finance, a world war, the declining use of marble for construction and repeated snow slides, floods and fires chipped away at Marble's fortunes until the decision was taken in 1941 to close its books and go out of business as a town.

It was quite a comedown for the once-booming mining town that went on the map in the latter years of the 19th century.

The town, nestled in a valley between Gallows Bluff and White House Mountain, once boasted a 15-member uniformed band. It had three newspapers and three hotels, half a dozen general stores, a bakery, post office, jewelry store — and the vital railroad. Unlike most frontier towns in the West it had no saloons, but that didn't deter residents from making their own liquor. Before the tracks were taken up in the early 1940s, 600 freight cars carried the stone from which Marble got its name to Washington, D.C., for the Lincoln Memorial. For the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, it took three days to bring down a 56-ton slab of marble from the quarries 2,000 feet above reopened the municipal books. Today the acting mayor is a retired employe of the Central Intelligence Agency who moved here a year ago from Virginia. The municipal judge returned to his home town four years ago after a 26- year absence. The constable is a former salesman from California who moved to Marble 19 months ago.

The quarries, 9,950 feet above sea level, produced marble for buildings in 21 states and untold numbers of tombstones. In 1911 its 1,465-foot-long mill was producing 40,000 cubic feet of marble a month.

"I like the quiet valley, clean air and low humidity. The high altitude makes me feel good, and the people are friendly, and the history is fresh such a contrast to Arlington." observed the acting mayor, Oscar McCollum. McCollum, now 55, came to Marble for the first time in 1941 on a geology field trip. He built a vacation cabin here 21 years ago.

Today the pavement of a spur off Colorado 133, the only access to Marble, ends six miles from town. There are no street lights, school or post office. The 16 telephones are hooked to two eight-party lines. To shop, residents make an 80- mile round trip to Glenwood Springs.

Colorado Yule Marble Co., Inc., was formed in 1905. By 1916 a local newspaper said the company, with assets of $13.7 million, was second only to Italy's famed Carrara Marble Works as the marble supplier to the world

But in 1929, during the Depression. the Vermont Marble Co. purchased the quarries' mill and rails, which were closed in 1941. The Vermont firm sold the town's vital rail lines, those linking Marble with its quarries and also the Crystal River and San Juan railroad that had carried so many tons of marble out of the valley. The tracks were torn out in 1943 leaving Vermont and Georgia as the nation's major marble producers.

The bridge to the quarries is unsafe today. The quarries, which produced marble for the municipal buildings in both New York and San Francisco, are silent. Marble dots the valley, in pieces large and small, looking something like ancient Greek or Roman ruins.

Most of the company-built homes, which once housed 1,400 people, are

WASHINGTON - When Richard Welch arrived in Athens in June 1975 to become the CIA station chief, his superiors at the Agency's Langley, Va., headquarters were concerned about his safety. Their anxiety did not stem from the fact that some months earlier an American publication called Counter-Spy had identified him as former station chief in Peru. Rather, the concern was based on Welch's choice of residence.

The house in an Athens suburb had been the residence of a succession of all, but instructed Welch to find station chiefs over many years and was widely known in the Greek capital as such. The officials at CIA headquarters, aware of these facts, also knew that anti-Americanism was at a fever pitch in Greece, with much of the antagonism directed at the CIA.

It was decided to warn Welch. In keeping with the deference traditionally accorded a field representative by CIA headquarters, Welch was given no clear. unequivocal order not to move into the old residence. However, sources who have seen the pertinent CIA cable - it has never been released but was referred to briefly in the Senate Intelligence Committee report - say it another home.

The combined judgment of the people at headquarters, the cable said, was that it would be wisest for him to live elsewhere. Welch was advised in the strongest possible terms that there would be concern for his safety should he move into the traditional residence. Reportedly, there was specific reference to the danger of assassination.

Welch was unpersuaded. Back to Langley went a cable saying that, for administrative convenience and other reasons. Welch would take the headquarters when news arrived that Welch had been shot to death as he and his wife returned home from a Christmas party at the American ambassador's home. But none of this pertinent information was made public at the time. Instead, the CIA swung into action with a classic "disinformation" campaign directed not at some hostile intelligence agency or enemy nation but at the American public.

All of this was well known at CIA

The CIA's then press spokesman, Angus Thuermer, began calling the reporters who normally cover the intelligence agencies. Thuermer, as was his habit, spoke on "deep background;" the newsmen could use the information but not attribute it to

What Thuermer said was that Welch had been identified as a CIA agent in Counter-Spy, the magazine published by an anti-CIA group called the Fifth Estate. He did not tell the reporters that the CIA had warned Welch not to live in the house in front of which he was killed or that the house was known in Athens as the home of the CIA station chief.

The point here is not whether the assassins learned of Welch's identity because of the Counter-Spy article or his choice of residence - it is well known that in most capitals, particularly in Western countries, anyone who really wants to learn the CIA station chief's name can do so. The point is rather that the CIA campaign" was a success. The stories filed out of Washington that night on Welch's death all noted that he had been listed in Counter-Spy. None mentioned the CIA warnings to Welch as to his place of residence.

The message was underlined when a CIA official, permitting himself to be identified as a "U.S. intelligence source," told the Associated Press that "we've had an American gunned down by other Americans fingering him - right or wrong - as a CIA agent." A few days later the White House press spokesman said Welch's death had come at least in part as a result of publication of his name.

Event to cite Colwell

ODESSA - A convocation honoring Dr. James L. Colwell, first dean of the College of Arts and Education, will be held at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin at 2 p.m. Feb. 3.

The event will be in the university gymnasium. University President

Dr. V. R. Cardozier said the convocation is an opportunity to express appreciation to Colwell for his five years of service as head of the university's largest college. Colwell resigned the deanship and returned to full time teaching this semester for health reasons.

Featured at the convocation will be an address by Dr. Joseph Royall Smiley of The University of Texas at El Paso on the topic "The Liberal Arts in Today's University.

Three receive awards

BIG SPRING - Dearl Pittman, Mrs. Floyd "Polly" Mays and Dr Charles Hays won top three awards in the annual Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Banquet held recently.

Pittman was named the chamber's "Man of the Year." Mrs. Mays was selected as "Woman of the Year" while Dr. Hays, president of Howard College, was chosen as winner of the Jaycee award.

Pittman, district manager for a natural gas firm here, was cited for his work within the chamber, the role he played in Little League baseball here and for guiding the Howard County United Way campaign. Hays, who served as emcee of the program. automatically qualified as an entry in the Five Outstanding Texans contest, works to improve the curriculum and physical property at Howard College, and on ways to improve relations between the community and Webb Air Force Base.

Hospital helpers honored

BIG SPRING - Mrs. Theo Ferguson was honored for having donated the highest number of volunteer hours at the Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Council annual awards luncheon Jan. 20. Dr. Wallace C. Hunter BSSH superintendent presented a gold bar to Mrs. Ferguson for her 11,000 hours of service.

Other Midlanders receiving awards were: Ila Khory, 100 hours; O. H. Crews, Afton Fondren, Polly Turpen, 500 hours; Mari Tidmore, 1,000 hours; May Tidwell, 1,500 hours: Ada Hedrick 2,000 hours and Faye Drew. 2,500 hours. All are members of the Midland Auxiliary to Big Spring State Hospital, with the exception of Crews, who serves on the hospital's public responsibility committee.

Where bus will stop

The bus service operated by Midland College for senior citizens will stop at the following locations during next Monday, the bus will stop at laundromats and grocery stores; Tuesday. public library and downtown area; / Wednesday and Thursday, personal choice of shopping centers; Friday, banks, utilities and post office.

They were unable to recall events during their Such notions, whether early childhood. A few were unable to recall anything that had happened to them before the age of 9

On the other hand. Coulter has received letters from persons claiming to remember events that happened to them at ages as young as 6 months. Some of the letters are quite specific, but Coulter remains skeptical about them. "The people insist that they have never been given any reminders," she said recently, "but you can never be sure." The only way to test it for sure, she said, would be to train infants to learn certain tasks and then follow them for a period of years to see how long and how well they remember them. Of its very nature, such an experiment would be difficult to control for outside influences recall events that hapand unwanted reminders.

"You have to understand the movement of the water, the flow of currents, to understand where the wood is found," Zachary said.

Zachary has been interested in cypress for nearly 16 years. He reveres cypress trees, never cutting a single piece. He collects only the fallen portions. The worn, smooth pieces he brings out of the swamp are from trees that fell more than 500 years "Intricate designs are created throughout the wood by a fungus which begins eating in the tree when it is 200 years old," said Zachary. "When the cypress tree is destroyed by lightning, dredging of canals or raping of cypress crops, the fungus is washed away, leaving unusual pieces of wood.

"Each piece is unique. There are no duplicates. Everyone who sees the wood likes it.

One problem a cypress driftwood hunter faces is cleaning. The swamp wood is coated with mud and it may contain insects.

Gains in market sparse

NEW YORK (AP) Buying in recently depressed blue chips and glamors produced some scattered gains in the stock market today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell to an early-1977 low on Wednesday, was up 2.66 at 961.19 at noontime today. But the over-all tally of

New York Stock Exchange issues showed losers ahead of gainers by about a 6-5 margin. Analysts said some

IBM: No split yet

NEW YORK (AP) - When International Business Machines failed to split its stock this week as some speculators had anticipated, there was no mad dash to dump shares. Instead, the price held fairly steady.

The increase of the IBM quarterly dividend to $2.50 a share from $2.25 was in part the reason why relatively few shareholders abandoned the stock But there was another reason, the anticipation re-

A good many of that ubiquitous breed called Wall Street observers remain convinced that the big electronic products company will after all split its stock perhaps in April, in time for the annual meeting.

Sound like old times? A bit. There seems to be some slight evidence developing that investors once again are looking upon the market as a place of action, if not a place where fortunes are made over-

It could be a mirage. It could be transitory. It wouldn't be the first time the market had given the appearance of vitality and then slumped and remained inert for months and months. It could happen There are, in fact, a good many reasons offered to back a bearish outlook. The economies of Europe and Japan are suspect. There exists the threat of higher interests rates and prices. There is uncertainty about the new president.

But some analysts are looking at the same set of facts and wondering if there isn't more hope than is

Europe and Japan might spur their economies to more activity. Prices are surprisingly stable. Interest rates haven't yet shot up. The new President is more interested in good business relations than had

There are some tantalizing indicators of more spirit. Individual participation seems to be increasing. Those "second tier" stocks, the often solid companies that get over-shadowed by the giants, are beginning to get a play. Is the long-lost small in-

But just when you think you see the pattern emerging something shakes the dream. Why in the world are people buying into those staid old utilities? Is it because they're suspicious of a trap? Maybe

Angelo clears up misconceptions

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. held a news conference this morning to clear up what he said, "has been some misunderstanding" about the city council's action Tuesday on possible charter amendments.

"At this time no election has been called for any amendments" to the charter, said Angelo.

Four proposed charter amendments — having four councilmen elected by single-member district, deleting council authority on assessment appeals, council and mayor terms, and changing vacancy filling on the council - were discussed at the Tuesday council meeting.

City Attorney Joe Nuessle was directed by the council to draft an ordinance for presentation at the next council meeting that would authorize an election on the charter amendments.

Some broadcast news accounts had indicated that the council had already formally approved having the charter amendments on the ballot

Although not true, the mayor admitted "it is highlyprobable that a charter amendment election will be called (at the Feb. 8 meeting) coincidental with the (city council) election on April 2. Angelo said he will vote to have an election on all four charter proposals, but will personally only urge voters to approve three of the four.

The mayor opposes the single-member district proposal, and said Dallas was one city where it has not worked as well as citizens had planned. Dallas has a combination at-large and single-member

The mayor strongly supports the amendment to require calling a special election if a councilman leaves office with more than nine months remaining in his term, or there are two or more vacancies at

Angelo also favors the other two amendments and re-

Teaming wine and cheese has been described as a "marriage made in heaven" - or, more earthily, by the old-time French gourmet who said dinner without wine and cheese was like a woman with only one eye.

Indeed wine and cheese belong together, and like all good partners have a lot in common. Both owe their transformation from grape juice and from milk to the enzymes or yeasts which nature plants in them.

Wine and cheese are also alike in their dependence on only one basic ingredient.

Wine can be made from any fruit that ferments, but for the present discussion we are considering only wine made from grapes. Yet there are hundreds of different grape wines, varying in color, taste, sweetness, body and aroma.

Cheese is made from milk, yet the different cheeses of the world add up to well over 100 varieties. That great multiplicity of tastes is one more reason why wine and cheese are applauded together so heartily.

Even great wine and cheese connoisseurs can be startled with new tastes — like a David Bruce 1975 Late Harvest Chardonnay, or the unique soft-ripened Liederkranz cheese.

The exploration of the tastes of wine and cheese is doubly enjoyable with friends. Which brings us to the wine and cheese tasting party.

Gourmandise, Fontina, Gruyere, Brie and Appenzeller will offer a variety, but are mentioned only as suggestions. Don't be limited by them. To involve your guests (and cut the expense of a tasting) suggest each couple bring a bottle of wine to complement one of the cheeses.

Have your guests write a brief of the cheeses.

After roses come red wines and with these the more-assertive cheeses. All this can get confusing since many roses are on the sweet side and can spoil the taste for dry red wines to follow. Better to forget roses at all, or limit them to dry ones.

Generally, dry white wines will go

Young help old

DETROIT (AP) - "We want to show that young people do care about old people," says 14- year-old Jill Daniels.

So about a dozen Pierson School ninth-graders have been spending their afternoons fixing up and painting the home of Alma Ruehle, an 85-yearold widow. Mrs. Ruehle admits, "This is a blessing to me." The youngsters decided to fix up the aging, tiny frame house as a project for their sociology class. "They wanted to do something right in the neighborhood," explain-

Actress writes serious cookbook

B y A R T H U R SCHWARTZ Newsday

NEW YORK - "Uta Hagen's written another book," an aspiring actor said to a friend the other day, "Another acting book?" the friend asked "No, this one is serious. It's a cookbook," the actor replied.

You see, Uta Hagen, whose renown as an actress (her most famous role is probably that of Martha in the original Broadway production of Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf") and as acting teacher at the Herbert Berghof Studio has made her something of a cult figure in theater circles, would rather cook than do almost anything else. And her new book, "Love for Cooking" is indeed serious - if, like Hagen, you consider good eating and good conversation with friends among the great pleasures in life.

"The acting book ("Respect for Acting," now in its seventh printing) was 18 years of torture before it got done.' recipe or that recipe bit of it was fun."

"potluck" in most peo-ple's sense of leftovers and beer, Hagen's lunch started with a cocktail of homemade cranberry juice spiked with vodka, served with an array of appetizers she had stowed away in the freezer. As each morsel was heated through, the oven timer dinged. "A friend once said, 'I feel like Pavlov's dog when I come to your house. Every time the oven rings I begin to salivate." Hagen quip-ped as she got up to retrieve the last of the appetizers, a delicate yet rich mushroom strudel.

That oven timer is an example of what Hagen says is the key to smooth entertaining: organization. She even starts the book with an essay on the subject. "I make lists for everything. There are lists all over the house. Sometimes they even make me laugh. They're subject to change and I try not to be pedantic about them, but I get enormous satisfaction from crossing out what's accomplished," she says.

Because the book is a highly personal account of what Hagen actually cooks for her own guests and not just a collection of recipes gleaned from secondary sources, using it in the kitchen is very much like having her looking over your shoulder with motherly reassurance.

"I hate cookbooks that assume people already know things like 'prove the yeast.' If you've never baked bread, how are you supposed to know what that means? When you're a beginner, you think you're an idiot for not knowing things like that. And if something is supposed to be runny, I think a cookbook should tell you 'It's going to look runny, but don't worry, it'll be just fine.

Because of space limitations, however, the following recipes are not in Hagen's style. They have been adapted into Newsday's format.

Smoked Roulade 1 8-ounce package cream cheese teaspoon lemon

12 paper thin slices of smoked beef or ham (see

5 small sweet pickles

1. Place cream cheese and lemon juice in a bowl. Place in a preheated 200degree oven, then immediately turn off the heat. Let the cheese soften in the oven for about 15 minutes or until it has almost the consistency of whipped cream

2. Meanwhile, place the beef or ham slices on a counter, slightly overlapping each other in the shape of a rectangle, 3 rows of 4 slices.

3. Spread the softened cream cheese over the slices in a thin layer. Slice the pickles into 1-8th-inch strips and lay them horizontally, evenly spaced, on top of the cheese. 4. Starting at the bottom of the rectangle, roll it carefully upward to shape a long sausage about 1 1-2 inches thick. Then roll up the sausage in foil, seal the edges and refrigerate for at least 2 hours. To serve, slice into 1 1-2-inch pieces. Makes 4 to 6 servings. Note: Buy prepackaged thin-sliced smoked beef. The kind the butcher carries has too pungent a flavor for the other ingredients.

Peanut Pie 1 unbaked pie crust 1-2 cup smooth peanut butter 11-2 cup maple syrup 1-2 cup superfine sugar 6 tablespoons melted butter

1-4 teaspoon salt 3 lightly beaten eggs 2-3 cup unsalted

peanuts, chopped coarse 1. In a bowl, stir together the peanut butter, maple syrup, sugar, melted butter and salt. Whisk in the eggs, then fold in the peanuts. (If you're too lazy to husk and peel the skins from fresh peanuts before chopping, already shelled, skinned and unsalted ones are available in iars.)

2. Pour the filling into the unbaked pastry shell and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 50 to 55 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean. Cool the pie and serve with whipped

By NANCY HUDSON, LONI JONS, and LIZ RUWWE

Want to buy a magazine? or renew a subscription? Tuesday the Student Council met with all interested people to promote the magazine sales. Remember this money goes towards sending the AFS foreign ex-change student to another country right Paivi and Karl? This year there are some great prizes to give away including an electronic TV game, a stereo with AM-FM and 8-track tape player, or a cash prize towards the cost of Catoico expenses (up to $80.00). Something new will be the drawings for cash depending on the amount of subscriptions that you have sold. There will be two drawings a day and your chances are 1 in 169. So everybody please support this worthwhile project and order lots of magazines!

CONGRATULATIONS!! goes to our fantastic basketball team Tuesday night our MHS Dogs dribbied down our big crosstown rivals. You know who-Lee! The team came out on top 65-63. If you see John Magness, Craig Dunn, Brentley Jackson, Walter Briceson, James Hicks, Terry Rogers, Kiffy Hickey and Micheal Jobe in the halls be sure to congratulate them on a job very well done. Good work Coach Humphrey-the team is looking good! Coach Shirley's JV team also pulled it out against the Rebs-way to go go go! The teams were spurred on by the cheering of our MHS cheerleaders Diane, Janet, Holly, Steve, Byron, and Ken. Some people whose help the team can not do without are the trainers Dustin Calaway and Bob Young-keep up the good work!

NO MORE MOJO! Tomorrow noght we meet the Permian Panthers. It's going to be an exciting game so see y'all there. After we pound the panthers there is going to be an after game dance at Youth Center. JJ and his Music Machine will be there to play all of your favorite tunes. The dance is from 9:30 p.m.-12. The cost is just 50 cents for members and $1.50 for non-members. Some of you may have noticed large metal vents in the Youth Center. Well it's going to e a cool spring and summer because the center is getting NEW air conditioning. They should start installation in the near future so stay tuned for further details.

Feb. 19 isn't far away. That's Catoico!! The theme that was decided upon is going to be Bitanical Garden. Mr. Gilbert and his art classes will construct the set and sure to be an attraction. All the girls are busy getting ready for the big night.

Every spring the Senior Class puts on a taltent show. Anyone wanting to do an act, just contact one of the Senior Class officers Johnny, Jim, Martha, or Michelle. The theme will be "Thursday Night Live," so start thinking about an act to do! If you need any help in deciding on a skit, just ask a Bunnie!

This Saturday, Midland will host an invitational swim meet. The diving begins at 8 a.m. with the swimming competition to follow. This is an event not to be missed so come on out to the City of Midland Pool and see some great action

Abilene Cooper in a dual meet. Play was postponed from last Saturday because of rain. Saturday morning the team will meet San Angelo here at the courts. Show your support and come see some good tennis!

Tomorrow at 1 p.m. the MHS netters will play

Susan Bash and Amy Grimes were named to the All State Team in volleyball action. Those are two very deserving titles, we are so proud of you!!

DR. NEIL SOLOMON About steroids

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm a sports fan, and have been hearing a lot about steroids ever since the Olympics in Montreal. But no one seems to know much about them. Can you fill me in? - Jim T.

Dear Jim: What you've been hearing about are socalled anabolic steroids, which are artificially produced chemicals whose action resembles the male hormone testosterone. It has become fashionable for athletes to use them as a training aid, because they supposedly help increase muscle size and strength.

These steroids are available on prescription for people suffering from weakness and fatigue, and there are probably two reasons why you've had trouble getting information about them.

First of all, the use of anabolic steroids is illegal at Olympic games, and athletes who use them during training must stop taking them far in advance of the games, because they'd be disqualified if any of the stuff showed up in the urine test required of all participants. Secondly, doctors are pretty well divided in their opinions about steroids. Some feel their use might create a hormonal imbalance; others think they're harmless but also useless, except for their possible psychological effect. And finally, no one knows what the effects (if any) are of going off steroids once one has been on them. In short, forget

Dear Dr. Solomon: My teen-age son plays electric guitar in a rock band and also attends many concerts of this nature. I have been reading that too much exposure to this type of loud, blaring music can cause a serious hearing loss. He says I just don't appreciate his kind of music. I must admit that it sounds like a bunch of loud junk to me, but aside from that, can it hurt him?—Maggie

Dear Maggie: You are right to be concerned. Recent studies, including one by F.L. Dey and others, indicate that one should not be exposed to electronically amplified rock music reaching 95 dBA (decibels on the A level scale of measurement) for more than 30 seconds. They found that after listening to two hours of tape recordings at a 100 decibel sound level, 2 percent of individuals would recover normal hearing more slowly, and at 110 decibels, 16 percent would be adversely and probably permanently af-

Hunger for land brews peasants' revolt in Mexico

By CHARLES GREEN

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico (AP) — A group of men huddled around a cooking fire on a roadside in northwestern Mexico trying to explain why they wanted to invade and take over another man's private pro-

They were trying to put into words a frustration which has plagued Mexico's stoic "campesino" peasants for centuries.

"Land and Liberty' was the battle cry of Emiliano Zapata when he left the fields of Morelos to become one of the largest figures in the 1910 Mexican revolution. Peasants throughout Latin America have used that same cry to push right-wing governments toward land reform.

PEASANTS WHO INVADED thousands of acres of private farm lands in northwestern Mexico last November had the same battle cry and voiced the same frustrations. But they were not protesting against a conservative government that supported rich land barons or absentee landlords. They were protesting in a country often used as a prime example of land reform, a country whose agrarian revolution preceeded the Russian Revolution. Census figures show almost 40 per cent of Mexico's 60 million people still work the land.

Mexico has a territory one-fourth the size of the continental United States. Yet figures from the Agriculture Ministry show that the nation has under cultivation an area smaller than the State of Florida.

That means that less than half an acre of land per person is targeted for cultivation in the nation's 10 major crops.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED to Mexican land reform? Did the 1910 revolution go astray? Can the country

Everyone who studies land reform in Mexico agrees there is a serious problem. President Jose Lopez Portillo says it must be solved or the country could starve.

Zapata was killed by the army after falling for a trick. Millions of Mexican peasants think they are still being tricked.

Frank Brandenburg, whose book "The Making of Modern Mexico" is a textbook classic, says that not until Lazaro Cardenas became president in 1934 did Mexico really seriously begin land redistribution after the revolution ended in 1917. Cardenas broke up large baronial land holdings to be converted into communal farms, called "ejidos" and based on the farm concept of pre-Columbian Indian civilizations. But Brandenburg says Cardenas made a mistake.

"THE ECONOMIC SIN of Cardenas was not taking ands away from unproductive land barons, but distributing lands into small unproductive parcels; not favoring 'ejidos' over private farms but making the communal units uneconomically small, Brandenburg wrote.

Carlos Loret de Mola, a member of the party that has governed Mexico for half a century and former governor of Yucatan, made a similar criticism in a recent magazine article.

'There has not been a single communal farm society to be organized without demogogery or with a basis in economic reality," he said.

RODOLFO STAVENHAGEN, an investigator at the College of Mexico, is a recognized land

'What has happened in Mexican land reform is that a new social class has been produced, a class holding very small plots of land within the private holding very small plots of land within the private sector or in communal farms. In some cases production has been increased and the peasants have bettered their standard of living. But in the majority of cases this has not happened ...," Stavenhagen said.

From 1971 to 1975, according to figures from the private banking system of the Banco Nacional de Mexico, agriculture production increased only an average of 1.8 per cent a year. In order to keep pace with population growth, farm production should increase at least 4.8 per cent a year, the bank said, adding that land under cultivation must increase 2.5 per cent a year.

Law permits an individual to own only 247 acres of irrigated land. Larger plots may be owned in less productive areas. The average farm in the United States is 393 acres. Most communal farm plots in Mexico are 24.7 acres and many are in unproductive areas, deserts or on the sides of mountains.

There are fewer than 80 million acres of cultivable and in Mexico.

CONFLICTS BETWEEN landless peasants and private land owners are based on the peasants' constitutional right to have land and on the constitutional right to private ownership. Mexican law does not take into account a man who owns one 247-acre plot and buys another adjoining 247 acre plot in the name of his infant son. Some have built huge, highly profitable farming operations this way. Peasants feel these people violate the spirit, if not the letter, of the law and form long lines at the Agrarian Reform Ministry in Mexico City demanding the land be ex-

Ministry in Mexico City demanding the land be expropriated and redistributed.

Both sides blame political corruption for part of the problem. Jose Rodriguez recently led a 1,000-mile peasants march from here to Mexico City to protest government land reform policies.

"Land reform leaders are as bad as the worst large land owners," he said. "They are corrupt. The leaders of the peasant organizations are corrupt. They control the peasants through the Rural Development Bank or the Credit Bank for Ejidos or through the National Campesino Federation. Sometimes the politicians expropriate land and give it to their friends instead of to real peasants.

it to their friends instead of to real peasants.

"Some of the people I know have been waiting 20 years for a piece of land. They never get it," he said.

THE GOVERNMENT retains title when land is redistributed for communal farms. The grant can be redistributed for communal farms. The grant can be taken away if the peasant does not work the land or if he rents it to someone else. Several thousand land grants are revoked each year and the land distributed to peasants once again.

Mexico's 486 million acres make it one of the largest countries in Latin America. But the terrain and climate are such that only 16 per cent of that territory can be farmed. Expensive irrigation schemes are in progress to open desert areas or make arid mountains produtive. In the past five years the government built 149 water storage dams and has 31 more on the drawing board. The Banco Nacional says the government spent $3.3 billion in six years on irrigation projects affecting 2.7 million acres.

The Agriculture Ministry said only 24 million acres were under cultivation in the 10 most important crops last Aug. 15. Another five million acres were were under cultivation in the 10 most important crops last Aug. 15. Another five million acres were targeted for cultivation in the winter crop cycle. As long ago as 1959 Mexico had 32 million acres under cultivation. But some areas of Mexico are so fertile, the climate so benign and irrigation so good that farmers produce two or even three crops a year.

FOR MANY PEASANTS isolated high in the Sierra Madre Mountains of western Mexico their economic

Medical study claims Austrians drinkers

VIENNA (AP) - Austrians last barracks and the barring of alcoholic year spent about 20 billion Schillings ($1.17 billion) on alcohol, about twice as much as the armed forces received from the annual budget allocation, a renowned internal medical specialist

Austrians have developed an unfavorable drinking habit, Anton Rot told reporters. Instead of sticking to their traditional drinks such as beer and wine, they have taken a liking to hard liquor.

To slow down this development, Rot suggested introduction of an additional tax of "at least 10 per cent" on hard liquor. Part of this tax should be used to treat alcoholics, for preventive medicine and for an antialcohol campaign, he said.

Rot also proposed the introduction of alcohol-free canteens in army beverages from sports stadiums.

The price of soft drinks - they are considerably more expensive than wine and beer - should be lowered and additional advertising for them should be paid out of the higher alcohol tax. Rot suggested.

Although the proposal to increase taxes on hard drinks has not yet been taken up by the government, doctors of the Public Accident Insurance Institute recently reported that onefifth of all persons injured in accidents were under the influence of alcohol. The count dealt only with accidents during work and leisure time, but not in traffic.

Statistics giving an exact count of how many traffic mishaps were caused by drunken drivers were unavailable

Ecuador cases still unsolved

By CAROLE AGUS Newsday

NEW YORK - Jane Bissell, the Northport, Long Island, woman who disappeared in Ecuador last October, is one of at least four American tourists who have disappeared or died mysteriously in the same area of Ecuador within a year.

Although the State Department was notified of each of the four cases, it has refused to investigate the disappearances, saying it has no power to do so. Frustrated by the lack of government attention. William Bissell, 72, set out alone for Ecuador to search for his missing daughter. The family of Delilah Yoder, another victim, says it has spent $50,000 and has sent private detectives to the area twice to search for her and her traveling companion.

James Herschberger. "It's just tragic what they have not done." said Anna Herschberger of Philadelphia, James' mother, describing their experience with the State Department. "We put such hope and faith in them in the first place, and they made a clean mess of the thing. They let us know that Jim and Delilah had been beheaded. Later they said it was just a rumor. Then after that they said they were being held hostage by the Indians and that helicopters were going in - and we had such hopes and we waited up all night, and that was just a rumor and our hopes were dashed to

The families' search focuses on the town of Banos and Azuay Province, nestled high in the Andes Moutnains with dense jungles tucked below. It is an area in which five missionaries were killed by Indians a few years ago, in which jungle narcotics are sold to strangers for pennies and in which real human shrunken heads sell for up to $300 apiece, according to officials and tourists who have visited the area

Information compiled by Rep. Jerome A. Ambro (D-N.Y.) who has extensive dossiers on the four cases, and reports from private investigators and witnesses indicate that at least three of the victims had substantial amounts of cash with them and that their last known contacts were with the same man. identified as Marcelo Carrion of Cuenca. A spokesman for the State Department, who has been in touch with Ecuadorian officials, said last week, "I personally believe that he (Carrion) does know something about it.

Carrion is a bearded man in his 40s who frequents a popular tourist site in Quito called the Gran Casino Hotel. Jane Bissell stayed there days before she disappeared. Other tourists were approached there by Carrion and were invited back to one of several ranches he owns in Cuenca, where he likes to play host to Americans. Several young Americans who visited the ranch say that he offered them hallucinogenic mushrooms there. Others say he sold a drug called Auahuasca, which is used by Indian witch doctors to induce visions.

Among those who visited his ranches were Yoder, 28, an Arlington, Va., social worker, and Herschberger, 27, a computer systems engineer and experienced outdoorsman. Carrion was the last person known to have seen them.

Western Junior College Conference basketball race as the first half of play ended Tuesday and could climb into a tie for second when the Chaparrals host Amarillo College at 7:30 p.m. today in the Cgym.

Coach Gary Cardinal's Badgers are tied with Western Texas College for first place with 7-2 records and Midland College follows at 6-3. In the first meeting between the teams, AC won 81-79 at Amarillo.

Cardinal last year coached New Mexico Military Institute into the regional playoffs and seems on the verge of putting Amarillo back into the post-season skirmishing. The Badgers are a gaudy 17-3 for the FRESHMAN MAURICE Robertson is averaging 18.3 in conference games to lead the Badgers in scoring while sophomore Carl Walton has a 15.4 per game average. Walton's 23 points and a 15-3 edge at the free throw line were the difference in the first game.

Tommy Parks leads Midland College scorers in league play with a 19.8 average while Jackson Pace, 16.9, and Ricky Hudgins, 12.5, have been consistent point producers for

Baylor's Bears end loss skein

By The Associated Press

New Baylor Coach Jim Haller's brand of discipline paid off for his first collegiate basketball victory Wednesday night.

Haller, who replaced resigned Carroll Dawson, decided to bench high-scoring Larry Spicer for a poor effort Monday night against Houston.

What it did was turn the talented Spicer, a 6-foot-8 sophomore from Memphis, Tenn. into a scoringrebouding machine against Rice. Spicer was benched for the first 12 minutes of the game against Rice then came on like a fireworks display.

Spicer scored 31 points and corralled 13 rebounds in an 8976 victory over the Owls. In the only other Southwest Conference game of the night, the Texas Aggies whipped winless Texas Christian 79-60.

SWC action swings into highgear tonight with Arkansas (70) trying to protect its unblemished record against Southern Methodist in Dallas while Houston (5-1) tries to keep pace in Lubbock against tough Texas Tech.

'Ever since I took this job I wanted to inspire concentration, intensity, and aggressiveness, " said Haller. "I

Houston Baptist coach resigns

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Baptist University basketball coach Bobby McKinley resigned Wednesday, saying the school needs to improve its program if it intends to remain in Division I of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

"The school has to make some strong decisions if it wants to stay in Division I." said McKinley, whose team currently is 14-4 after a 5-21 finish last year.

'They either have to give the new man an assistant coach and a recruiting budget or step down from Division I. It's an impossible fight

McKinley has operated without an assistant coach on a small recruiting budget and has had to teach an average of three courses per quarter.

"I'm not embarrassed by my record, noone could have done any better," McKinley said. "I don' have any ill feelings toward anyone. I just did everything I could do.'

McKinley, a former captain of the Texas Christian basketball team, said he hopes to remain in coaching.

Wake Forest surprises No. 4 Tar Heels, 67-66

By The Associated Press

"The best way for a visiting team to win," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said Wednesday night, "is to let the home team get out to a big lead, then creep back and surprise them."

Smith really wasn't letting anyone in on some deep, dark secret because he had just seen Wake Forest, No. 10

SPORTS

in The Associated Press ratings, do precisely that to his fourth-ranked Tar Heels Wake Forest's Jerry Shellenberg sank two foul shots with 14 seconds remaining and a desperation 25-foot shot by North Carolina's Walter Davis rolled off the rim as the winners took over the Atlantic Coast Conference lead with a 67-66 triumph.

SHELLENBERG WAS fouled on a driving attempt as the Tar Heels tried to protect a onepoint lead. Phil Ford fouled out on the play after pacing the losers with 19 points. Wake Forest's Rod Griffin led all scorers with 21 points while Shellenberg added 12, Frank Johnson and Larry Harrison had 11 and Skip Brown scored 10. The Deacons raised their over-all record to 15-2 while North Carolina, which won at Wake Forest 77-75 earlier in the year, fell to 13-3. Five other members of the Top Twenty were in action, headed by No. 1-ranked San Francisco, which boosted its record to 20-0, best in major college basketball, by rallying in the second half behind the shooting of Marlon Redmond and Winford Boynes to defeat Santa Clara 74-68.

Twelfth-ranked Cincinnati, which had dropped two games in a row after being No. 2 in the country, survived a scare before pulling out a 68-60 triumph over Wichita State and stretching the nation's longest home winning streak to 54 games.

MEANWHILE, Syracuse, No. 17 boosted its road record to 10-2 and won its eighth in a row over-all, holding off Temple 76- 67 after piling up a 24-point bulge. No. 19 Clemson turned back Furman 94-86 while No. 20 Memphis State nipped New Orleans 88-86

Wake Forest made a dramatic turnaround in the second half after shooting just 25.8 per cent from the floor in the opening period and trailing North Carolina 36-25 at halftime. The Deacons trailed by 15 points early in the second half but outscored the Tar Heels 16-5 to grab a 61-60 lead on Shellenberg's followup shot.

North Carolina went into its famed four-corner offense with a 55-51 lead and 9:32 remaining.

"We never thought we were really out of it," said Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy. "We fought back real well and that's been the trademark of Wake Forest all season. We've had other comebacks this season, but not any to compare with this one.

SMITH TOOK the blame for going to the four-corners offense with so much time remaining. "It's a wrong decision when we lose and a good decision when we win and it's my fault when we lose," he said. 'We were very much impressed with Wake Forest. Wake really has to be considered the favorite to win the ACC now. They played a marvelous second half. I have to be impressed because we weren't that bad. We still have an excellent basketball team that will bounce back.'

San Francisco's Redmond totaled 26 points and Boynes 21 but the victory which was anything but easy. Santa Clara trailed 18-8 but led 38-32 in the second half. The score was tied twice after that before Boynes and Redmond scored two baskets apiece to send USF into a 60-52 lead.

"It flashed through my mind in the second half that we might get our first loss," said USF coach Bob Gaillard. "But what was more important than the loss was that we'd both be 4-1 in the conference (West Coast A.C.) and playing at their place Saturday

WICHITA STATE came from 15 points back and pulled to within 62-60 against Cincinnati but Robert Miller, who scored 17 points, stuffed a shot to give the Bearcats some breathing

"I'm confident we can always win if we can keep Bob in the game for 40 minutes," said coach Gale Catlett. Miller fouled out with 10 minutes to play in both of Cincinnati's losses.

Marty Byrnes paced Syracuse over Temple with 16 points but Lewis Orr and Larry Kelley sparked a secondhalf surge that turned a six-point lead into a runaway.

Clemson's Colon Abraham and Stan Rome went on a late scoring spree and finished with 22 points apiece as the Tigers held off stubborn Furman.

MEMPHIS STATE'S Dexter Reed. who failed to score in the first half, hit a short jumper with four seconds left in overtime for the last of his 13 points, providing the victory over New Orleans. Reed's clutch basket climaxed a second-half rally which saw Memphis fight back from a ninepoint second-half deficit.

Elsewhere, Duck Williams scored 30 points to lead Notre Dame over Pitt 88-68, Kim Anderson scored 15 of his 17 points in the second half as Missouri beat Kansas State 66-60 and took over the Big Eight lead and Bucky Walden's 25 points helped Ohio niversity upset Mid-American Conference leader Western Michigan 80-74. Miami shaded Bowling Green 65-61 to tie for the lead.

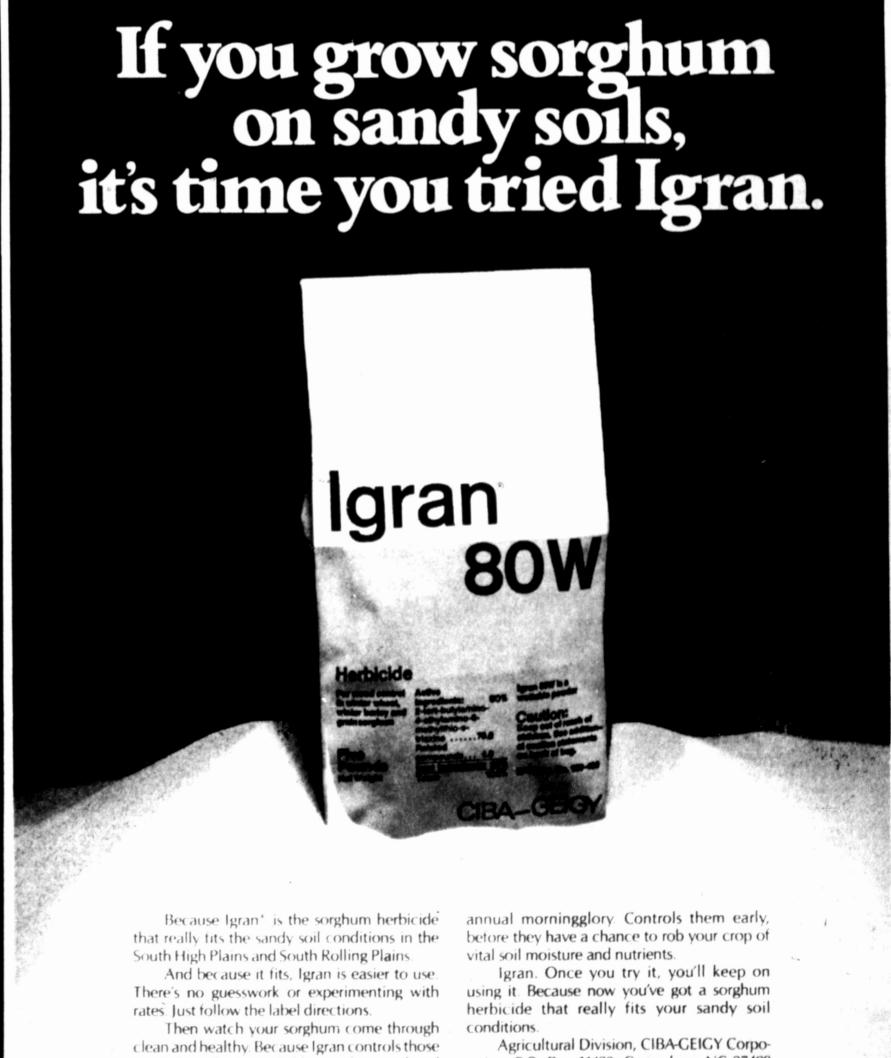

In the Madison Square Garden Classic, Seton Hall topped defending champion Rutgers 89- 75 and Holy Cross whipped Manhattan 82-64.

Fans, coach spark Bulls' victory

By The Associated Press

The restless Chicago fans came down hard on the hometown Bulls at halftime Wednesday night...but not nearly as hard as the embarrassed Bulls came down on the Cleveland Cavaliers in the second half.

Down by 18 points in the second period and trailing by 16 at halftime, the Bulls came alive following a chewing-out by coach Ed Badger and rallied for a 106-93 triumph that dropped the Cavaliers from first place to third in the National Basketball Association's tightly packed Central Division.

The Washington Bullets ended a jinx at the hands of Golden State by downing the Warriors 106-95 and moved into first place by one-half game over both Cleveland and the idle Houston Rockets. However, the Cavaliers trail Houston by two per-

"A halftime tongue-lashing against a team that just stood around in the first half proved very effective," Badger said. "When they heard the boos as they walked off the floor into the dressing room they decided that something was not right. I told them they were embarrassing me as well as themselves."

Properly chastised, the Bulls outscored Cleveland 20-6 during a 71/2minute third-quarter spurt and put the Cavs away in the fourth quarter. "The coaches had every right to chew us out," said Artis Gilmore, who scored 24 of his season-high 32 points in the second half, "but I'll say thisif we had not heard those boos I think we might have played the same kind of game in the second half."

Gilmore had help from Mickey Johnson, who scored 23 points, and Wilbur Holland, with 20. Campy Russell topped Cleveland with 21.

Bullets 106, Warriors 95 The streaking Bullets, who have won six in a row and 12 of their last 14 games, posted their first home victory over Golden State in six tries dating back to the 1975 NBA championship series which the Warriors won in four straight. Phil Chenier paced a balanced attack with 22 points while Elvin Hayes had 18. Rick Barry scored 16 of the Warriors' first 18 points, hitting eight of 10 shots. He then missed 10 of his next 12 and wound up with 28 points.

Blazers 107, Nuggets 102 Portland battled back from a 19point second-period deficit behind Maurice Lucas and climbed past Los Angeles into first place in the Pacific Division while snapping Denver's eight-game home winning streak. Lucas scored 22 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and triggered a late surge that wiped out a 97-92 Denver lead. SuperSonics 118, Lakers 103

Tom Burleson survived a punch from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and scored 17 of his gamehigh 26 points in the final period. Burleson, who was decked by Abdul-Jabbar with about seven minutes left in the game, connected on eight of his 10 shots from the field in the fourth period and his three straight baskets put Seattle ahead for good 86-85.

Abdul-Jabbar, who was held to 14 points, threw either an elbow or a fist, striking Burleson in the head and sent the Sonics' center crashing to the floor. Burleson was called for a holding foul and the Lakers' center was whistled for a technical foul for punching.

Pacers 121, Celtics 101

Billy Knight scored 35 points as Indiana ended a five-game losing streak. John Havlicek had 25 for the Celtics, who suffered their fourth straight loss and played without center Dave Cowens, sidelined with an ankle injury

Braves 114, Bucks 109 Adrian Dantley scored 29 points and Randy Smith 28 as the Braves ended a five-game losing streak in their first game under MacKinnon, who replaced Tates Locke Tuesday.

Kings 101, Jazz 95

Ron Boone scored 25 points as Kansas City survived a fourthquarter rally. The Jazz scored 15 points in a row and tied the game at 85 with 5:26 remaining, but Boone hit a 15footer and Brian Taylor followed with a steal and stuff. Pete Maravich played all 48 minutes for New Orleans and scored 35 points on 13-for 34 shooting.

Pistons 103, Nets 101

Ralph Simpson and Marvin Barnes came off the bench and rallied Detroit from a 15-point deficit with just under five minutes to go in the third period. After each team made a basket in overtime, Simpson hit a free throw and Barnes a basket, putting the Pistons in front for good. Simpson led the Pistons with 23 points and Barnes

Obscure small college is unbeatable at home

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The last squeezed out a three-point victory time Marymount College, an obscure little private school on the empty Kansas prairie, lost a home basketball game was never. The Spartans have won every college home game in the school's history "Isn't that unbelievable?" asks Ken Cochran, who coached them all. "It's been a phenomenal thing.' Marymount, a Roman Catholic school with an enrollment of 750. initiated its basketball program in 1970. Since then, it has played 77 home college games and won 77. Athletes in Action nipped the Spartans two years ago in overtime and last year's touring Russian squad

"I don't really know what the reason has been," Cochran says. "A big part of it has to be luck. Plus, we've had some good teams. We take pride in the win streak. Our players always have it in the back of their mind. I try to keep it implanted there.

The 3,000 or so fans who pack Smoot Gynmasium each home game have seen some nail-biters

"We were down 50-32 against St. Ambrose one night, but we came back and won. Another time we were down by 18 at the half, and won. Once we were down 16. We've won a couple of games with shots at the buzzer.

Meet the Chaps

RICKY HUDGINS, a freshman out of Fort Worth Trimble Tech, has been a big factor for the Midland College Chaparrals' basketball team this season.

Hudgins, 6-foot-5, 246-pounds, is a natural rebounder. averaging 11 per outing.

Ricky packs a scoring punch to go with it, averaging 12.5 points per game in Western Junior College Conference play. His size and agility make him a feared player in the WJCC.

Hudgins played for John Gales in high school and was alldistrict in track. He won the district shot put title. In basketball, he made second team all-district.

Ricky will see action tonight in the Midland College gym when the Chaps host Amarillo College, the WJCC co-leader. The Chaps can move into a tie for second place with a victory. Hudgins hopes to aid the cause

NEW YORK (AP) - The leading returnee from the 1976 Heisman Trophy race-Terry Miller of Oklahoma State, who finished fourth-has been ruled out of this summer's annual nationwide NCAA-ABC promotion tour because his school is expected to be on probation.

Probation, of course, means that Miller and Oklahoma State's defending Big Eight trichampions will not be seen on television next season, and the tour, of course, is not only to promote college football but also to plug ABC's TV schedule.

Oklahoma State, in fact, might be invisible for a number of seasons since the NCAA reportedly has 96 pages of violations at last count, and is expected to come down hard on the Cowboys. Which is too bad for Miller, one of the nation's best runners.

The NCAA TV package is up for grabs after the 1977 season and CBS is expected to make a big pitch to take it away from ABC. CBS recently lured former ABC publicist Beano Cook back into doing PR work and to New York. Meanwhile, ABC must present a list of its planned

September TV games to the NCAA Television Committee in late March and rarely have there been as many attractive early-season pairings to consider. For example, on Sept. 10, Southern Cal visits

Missouri in a rematch of last year's opener, which was the only game the Trojans lost and cost them the national championship On Sept. 17, Alabama visits Nebraska and the Cornhuskers are eager to "welcome" Bear Bryant to Big Eight country. The following week, Oklahoma is

Michigan is a possibility

On Oct. 8, ABC has a dilemma. That Saturday finds Oklahoma-Texas in Dallas, Alabama at Southern Cal and Notre Dame at Pitt. Don't be surprised if ABC drops the Oklahoma-Texas shootout to air the Sooners against Ohio State and Nebraska. ABC also must make a decision which weekday night to reserve for an early season national telecast and which game to try juggling around to fill the Best line at the recent American Football Coaches Association convention in Hollywood, Fla., came from ex-Army Coach Tom Cahill, now at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.

The AFCA brass asked Cahill, of all people, if he would mind driving to the airport and pick up Gen. James A. Van Fleet, who was receiving an award from the association. Cahill agreed, but could not resist a dig at the folks with stars on their shoulders who overlooked his 1966 Coach of the Year Award and canned him at West Point three years ago. "Just what I need," Cahill quipped, "another Asked whom she considered to be her toughest competition, Miss Wade characterized Sue Barker of England as "really the tough one to beat. But Martina (Navratilova) and Margaret Court are playing very well and they could win it.

In a second-round match, Miss Navratilova, of Mission Hills, Calif., whipped Czechoslovakian Regina Marsikova 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Navratilova, the tournament's No. 2 seed, attributed her recent success to weight loss.

"I lost 25 pounds," she said. "I got fed up with being overweight and now I feel much better. I'm quicker and playing better because of that."

Other second-round victors were Olga Morozova and Natasha Chmyreva of the Soviet Union. Miss Morozova defeated England's Linda Mottram 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, Miss Chmyreva conquered Kerry Reid of Greenville, S.C., 6-2, 6-4

Misses Morozova and Chmyreva also teamed up for a firstround doubles victory over Elly Vessies of Holland and Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia in identical 7-6 tiebreaker sets. Many of the younger players on the pro golf tour no longer hold him in awe. But the tournament sponsors do. He is the one man who can make or break a tournament.

counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association, was talking about "some outrageous examples of quick-buck artists," namely some player agents.

The scene was a hotel, where Marvin Miller, the union's executive director, had held a news conference to warn the players they were being ripped off by some agents and that "the potential for future abuses is grave. TO ILLUSTRATE Miller's point, Moss pulled out a copy of a legal docu-ment, written by a Chicago firm, The Entertainers, Athletes Management Group Inc., which one player was obtained by The Associated Press, said, in part:

-The Player irrevocably appoints T.E.A.M. "for the term of this Agreement and any extensions thereof, as his true and lawful attorney-in-fact to sign, make execute and deliver any and all contracts in the name of the Player.

-T.E.A.M. will "perform any other act, deed or thing whatsoever that reasonably ought to be done, executed or performed' without the permission of the player.

-"The Player further agrees to in-demnify and hold T.E.A.M. harmless" from any claim and from any and all loss, damage, liability or representation or warranty made by T.E.A.M..."

- IN RETURN for these services. T.E,A.M will receive 10 per cent of the player's gross income, which includes salaries, earnings, fees, royalties, bonuses, stocks, bonds and any inheritance.

-"In addition ... the Player will reimburse T.E.A.M. for all reasonable and prudent expenses incurred by T.E.A.M. directly and in connection with the performance of its services as the Player's agent ...

The player asked Moss if he should sign the contract. Moss said no. "I've been an attorney for over 20 years," of the breach of any agreement, broadest power of attorney I've ever

David Polan, an agent for T.E.A.M. whose name and David Schneider's were on the document, said from Chicago that this contract was not standard. "All our contracts are geared to the individual personalities. as to his specific desires or interests,"

HE SAID he did not consider the contract extreme. "It's all open to negotiation. We're not ramming it down anyone's throat. We tell the player to talk to other attorneys, and if the player doesn't like it, he won't sign it.

Polan said T.E.A.M. represented said. "We're here to do a service and be paid for those services," said Polan. 'Our role is to do our best and make our clients happy." Miller admitted he has heard very little unhappiness on the part of the players, who have employed agents to earn them million-dollar packages. He said the union has been fighting for the right for players to be represented by agents—a right won in 1970.

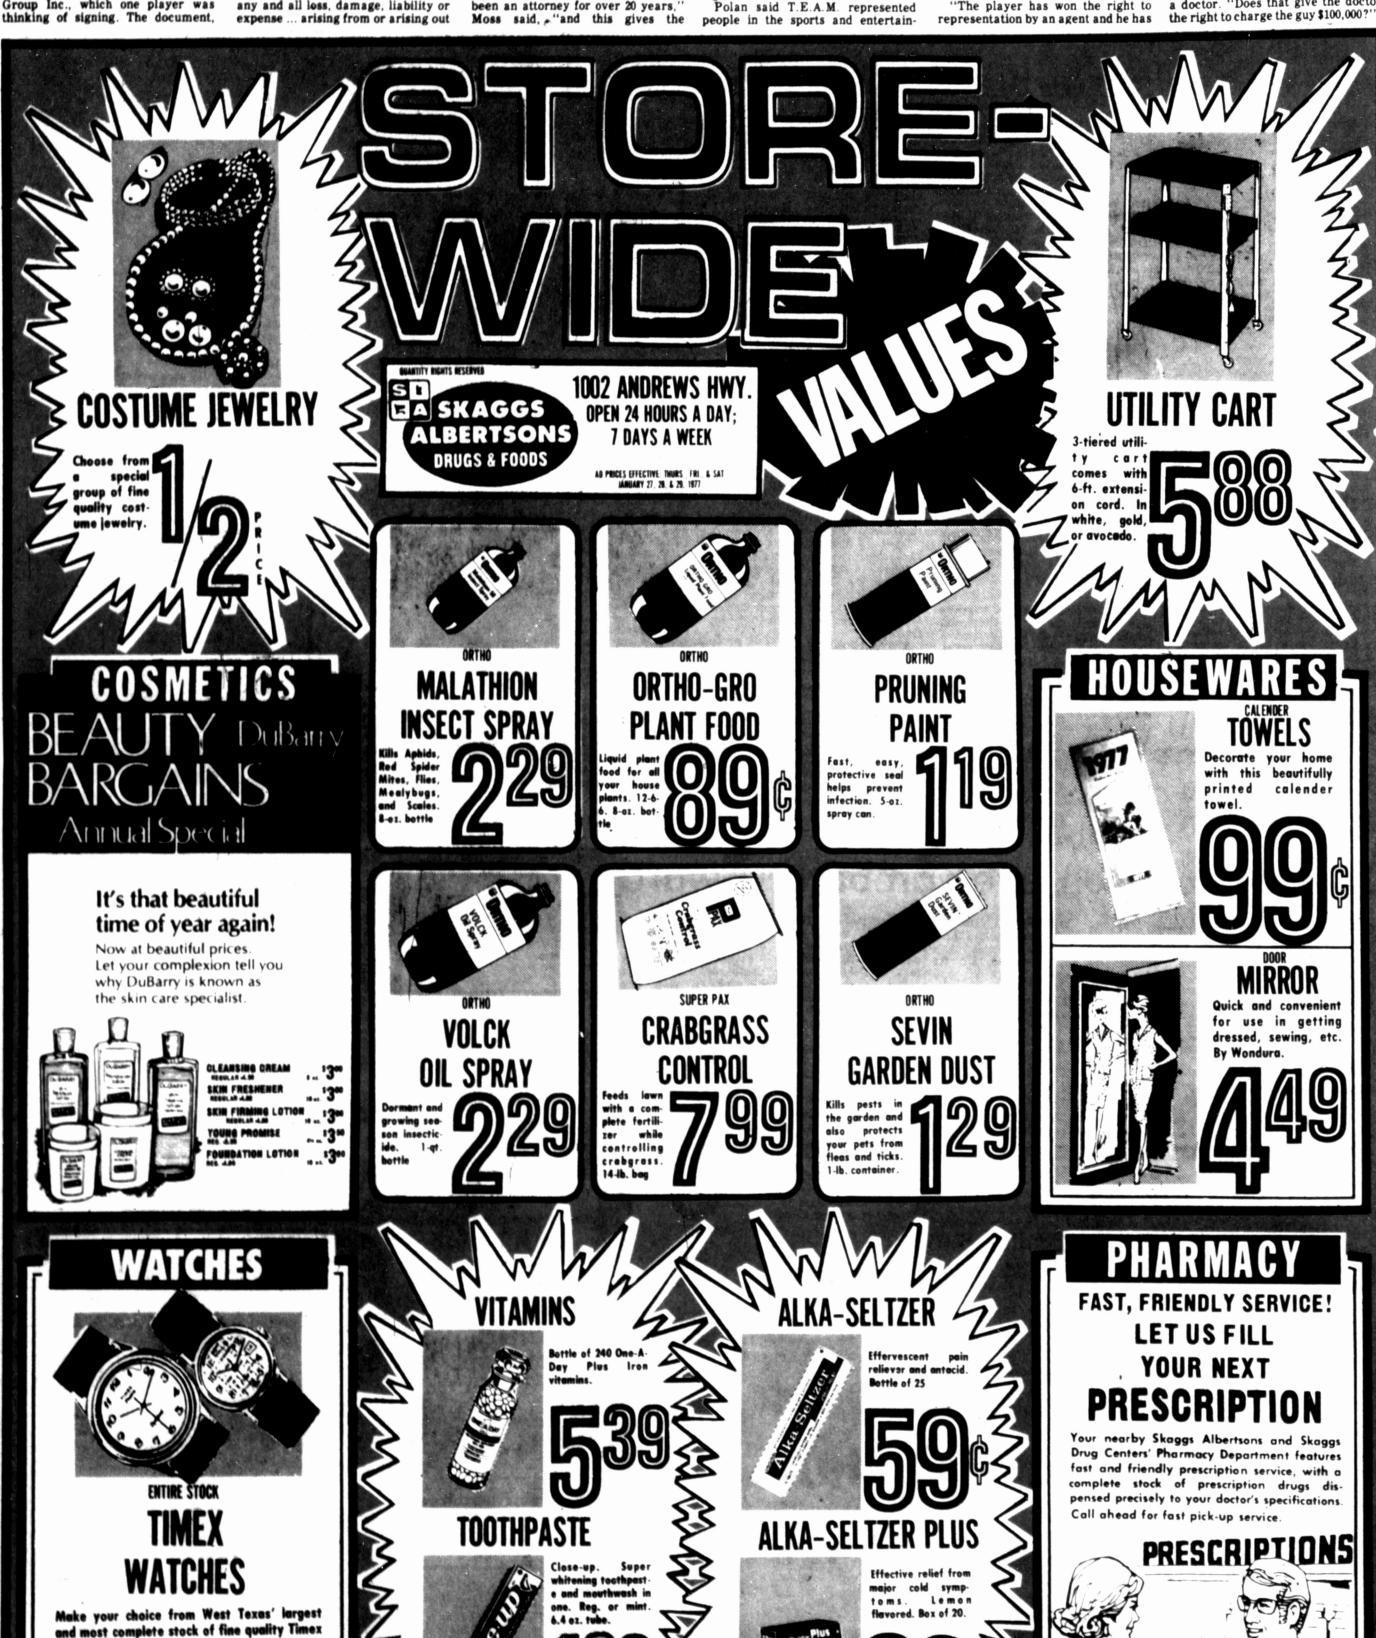

But he said his concern now was to educate his players against what he considers monumental abuses.

"The player has won the right to ment fields, but he refused to divulge its clients. "It's confidential,!" he won the right to pay him anything he pleases," Miller said. "But I also have a right and responsibility to speak out when I see a ripoff."

MILLER CONSIDERS the large payments agents receive disproportionate for the amount of time they put in and the job they do for the players. "Such agents represent nothing less than gouging," he said. "If the individual agents increase the player's bargaining power, why didn't they get big multi-year contracts before the players association changed the reserve rules?"

Public gets chance to testify about Postal Service

By WILLIAM H. JONES The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The year is 1990 and the setting is a small town in Kan-

Inside the local post office, a computer-linked electronic terminal is activated. There's an incoming message from Boston and a postal worker gets a printout, which is sealed in an envelope and handed to a letter carrier for special delivery. Within an hour, a local resident has complete details of a complex business deal.

Is it possible that this is the U.S. Postal Service of tomorrow?

Some people say that the new technology of electronic transfer either will become part of the postal business and thus its salvation, or that electonic transfers will be ignored and the nation will be left with an expensive and outdated postal system that serves fewer and fewer people at constantly escalating deficits.

Although there may be choices other than the either-or scenario outlined above, the decision on what kind of postal service is wanted probably will be made this year. And the American people are being given an unprecedented opportunity to take part in the planning

Starting in eight cities last week and continuing for two weeks in about a dozen other cities, public hearings are being held on post office problems and suggestions for the future.

The Commission on Postal Service is conducting the hearings as part of its mandate from Congress last year to report by March 15 on recommendations for the future.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, declaring that "a book should not be charged the same rate for mailing as a brick, called for a national policy that would keep postage rates low and deliveries frequent also asked for abolition of the independent Postal Rate Commission and return of its rate-setting powers to Congress.

Testifying in Washington at the

Goldwater told the commission that the Constitution does not require the post office to make a profit; in denouncing some critics of the postal service and a recent Court of Appeals decision here, seeking to fully allocate all costs to various classifications of postal users.

"Ever since the patriots began their own mail system, postal service has been just that - a public service.' Goldwater asserted.

Stating that the role of the printed word has not been diminished by the modern telecommunications, the Arizona Republican said government should promote dissemination of printed matter which treats subjects

Specifically, Goldwater asserted

-First-class mail delivery be provided as a public service at rates "the public can easily afford. -Mail service should be designed for public convenience and not just bare necessity. -A suggested reduction to three-times-a-week residential delivery is contrary to the public's wishes. -A separate class of mail for newspapers and magazines and a separate class for books must be retained as a public service. Although the semi-independent U.S.

Postal Service corporation was established to replace the old Post Office Department less than six years ago, after another commission's study, Congress ordered the new report in the wake of soaring losses and gloomy forecasts about declining mail volume

Congress also authorized an additional $1 billion of subsidy to the Postal Service to help cover previous debts. Half of that amount went into the postal treasury during the July-September quarter and the balance is able to report a surplus of $15 million in the quarter ended Sept. 30, and may have another surplus for the final quarter of 1976 (due to added business when United Parcel Service was struck in the Northeast), the longterm outlook is for rising losses.

In his budget message to Congress last week, former President Ford predicted a postal deficit of nearly $1 billion in the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30. Ford predicted a loss of $1.7 billion the following year, which he said would force an increase in

With that prediction coming on the heels of a federal court decision that has cast doubt on the current rate structure, and which is being appealed by the Postal Service, prospects disturb even postal officials.

"It is incontestable that rates have moved up higher than expected since postal reorganization. But the increases took place in a period of surging inflation that dramatically boosted the costs of running a nationwide service organization that employs one of the nation's largest work forces and provides a level of personal service, such as door-to-door delivery six days a week, that is unique in this country today,' Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said in his organization's recent annual report

Cost-cutting won't by itself produce an economically sound postal service. and there is little doubt that future viability of the post offices will be 'closely tied' to new technologies, Bailar added.

The key problem is money to finance wages for 680,000 postal workers and the far-flung network of small and large mail facilities.

Washington Post WASHINGTON - Here is a list of cities and dates for hearings by the Commission on Postal Service

Jan. 31: Charleston, W. Va. Feb. 1: Nashville, Los Angeles.

Feb. 2: San Francisco, Little Rock, Oklahoma City. Feb. 3: Seattle, Albuquerque, Dallas. Feb. 4: Portland, Ore.

Feb. 9: Atchison, Kan. Feb. 10 Toms River, N.J.

Persons who wish to testify at the hearings may write to the commission at 1750 K St. NW, Washington, D.C., 20006.

Overall expenses in fiscal 1976 rose by 10.7 per cent to $14 billion. Revenues from postal rates totaled only $10.2 billion. Federal tax payers contributed $920 million of "public service" money to subsidize moneylosing operations such as rural mail and $724.5 million to subsidize reduced mail rates

Still, the Postal Service ended up with a deficit of $1.18 billion for the 12month period. In the five fiscal years 1972-1976, the Postal Service had losses of about $2.8 billion and that doesn't count nearly $8 billion of federal subsidies counted as part of revenues

More alarming than actual losses however, are warnings about what may happen.

A major element in Postal Service operations is called "transaction covers many overhead costs and helps to subsidize loss operations. This category of mail includes bills and payments for businesses and residences. It is an endangered

A Postal Service staff study said direct deposit of Social Security payments and paychecks in banks or savings institutions, automatic payment of mortgages and insurance, and electronic transfers of funds from an individual's checking account to that of a company in bill payment add up to smaller mail volume. Higher rates could induce even more use of such technology, the staff reported.

Large mailers also are trying out personal delivery systems, less frequent billing and consolidated firstclass mail. In addition, people are writing fewer letters each year as the telephone continues to supplant personal correspondence.

These are the projections that led to establishment of still another commission. A sense of urgency was evident in the relatively short period provided for a final report. The 1976 postal aid act was signed by Ford on Sept. 24, giving the new commission about six months to reach its conclu-

In an interview, commission executive director David Minton said he expects the March 15 deadline to be

A major decision by the commission will be whether to recommend a role for the Postal Service in electronic transfers, which would be costly to establish. It would be a radical departure and would require extensive training programs, the commission director noted

President Carter, who spoke out in favor of a better postal system during last year's presidential election campaign, will have a lot of influence on what happens next. Insiders expect him to wait for the commission's report before taking any action. Because Carter is not connected with the joint White House-congressional effort that set up the commission, he easily could dismiss any proposals and go his own way.

As outlined by the Postal Service itself, there appear to be three

-Continue current policy, letting postal rates float higher to cover some of growing costs. Under this scenario, first-class rates could rise to 22 cents in 1981 from 13 cents today. Total mail volume would dip slightly but the "mix" will be less favorable. with more subsidized classes of mail and less profitable first-class mail.

-Operation as a true "public service," heavily subsidized by the taxpayers. Under this plan, the Postal Service would give everyone door delivery service, add residential collection boxes and pick up mail more frequently, keep all postal facilities open and keep prices down. Such an operation could cost a cumulative subsidy of $22 billion by 1981.

-Transformation into a real business enterprise, tailoring services to meet demands. Under this proposal, the Postal Service probably would overhaul the current delivery system (alternate-day delivery to residences), eliminate many post offices and revise pricing to encourage mail use. This "Postal Service, Inc., would have no deficits.

Colorado gas supply sufficient

DENVER (AP) - Colorado Interstate Gas Co. (CIG) has a supply of natural gas that would last 10 years at present consumption rates, but it doesn't have enough to share with cold-ravaged Eastern and Midwestern states, the firm's president

Peter King, the newly appointed president of the state's largest gas supplier, said Wednesday that wholesale pipelines serving most of Colorado are now at full capacity and residents will be served even if the weather turns bitterly cold

Referring to speculation that the Carter administration may seek emergency legislation to allocate natural gas to areas suffering from the cold wave, King said CIG could prove that what gas it has is fully needed to heat homes, hospitals and schools in the state-all first priority

'We don't have excess gas above the needs of customers in this area."

If any emergency allocation programs are enacted, he said, it would require a temporary lifting of price ceilings on natural gas, now regulated at a maximum of $1.42 cents per thousand cubic feet

'If we start gambling and ship gas away, we would have to take it from our interruptible customers who would have to use alternate fuels at higher prices." he said "If that happens, the interruptible customer is paying for gas to go somewhere

King said he didn't know if allocation would be forthcoming, but said, "It's not beyond the realm of possibility that the sheriff could knock on our door." He added that "we can't live in an oasis of plenty if hospitals and households (somewhere else) are going short

ready soon

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A bill repealing the sales tax on household utilities should be ready for floor action shortly after Valentine's Day, says the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee

The tax package he has in mind also would bring inheritance tax relief.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington, said Wednesday he wants to "handle right away" House Bill 1, a package containing both utility and inheritance tax relief.

Quick House passage, however, would not necessarily bring similarly rapid action in the Senate, which might decide to wait until the general appropriation bill has been passed before cutting taxes that might be needed to balance it.

Repeal of the state sales tax on residential gas and electricity would cut state revenue by $344.1 million over the next two years, according to the comptroller's department. Wyatt announced at the committee's first meeting that it will hold a hearing Feb. 3 on repealing the utility sales tax, which adds 5 per cent to most Texans' bills. On Feb. 7, the committee will hear inheritance tax proposals, most likely an increase in the $25,000 exemption that has been in force since the 1920s the buying power of the dollar. Other proposals to cut taxes, such as general sales rate reductions, will be heard Feb. 9, Wyatt said. Then on Feb. 14, "I hope we can kick out a bill." he said.

Wyatt said this is a good time to cut taxes because of the anticipated $950 million surplus at the end of this fiscal year and an extraordinary $2 billion projected growth in revenue over the next two years.

'The best way to hold down spending is to reduce the temptation by eliminating some taxes," Wyatt said.

Walt Lilie, the comptroller's planning and research director, said it would take an addition of $400 million to present spending levels to maintain state programs as they are and keep pace with inflation.

and H.C. "Dulie" Bell of Austin as a Texas A&M director

On Wednesday, the 15th day of the 140-day session, the Senate passed the first bill-a measure by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, that would allow state undercover agents to disguise their identity by carrying fictitious driver's licenses. The Senate also sent to the House a bill setting up a group life, accident and health insurance program for all employes of state-financed colleges and universities and a resolution commending broadcasters who have decided not to broadcast executions. The resolution states that nearly all Texas broadcasters have decided to follow their national code, which says, in part: "Good taste should prevail in the selection and handling of news. Morbid, sensational alarming details, not essential to the factual report, especially in connection with stories of crime or sex, should be avoided.'

"It is the sense of the Texas Legislature," the resolution states, 'that these broadcasters electing not to broadcast films of executions into the homes of private citizens have made a laudable decision exhibiting good taste and responsibility in their duty under the First Amendment to the United States in balancing the public's right to know with the dictates of common sense.

The Senate refused to debate Mengden's proposal to permit a poll watcher who serves in a precinct other than his residence to vote ab-

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It's been more than 38 years miles southwest of Ozona, from west lines of section since Lloyd McBride won his first union presidency. 36-15s-26e, 10 miles south. It was a pushover really. His 380-member local elected him by acclamation.

> in his bid to become president of the 1.4 million member United Steelworkers of America. McBride, 60, director of the union's St. Louis district, is supported by incumbent president I. W Abel. He is running on his 33-year record as a union

Bucking the establishment is Edward Sadlowski, 38. director of the Chicago-Gary district. He promises more internal democracy and a tougher fight against the steel companies. Jobs and ideology have also become major issues.

No love is lost between the two. McBride calls Sadlowski "a nut" who would bring chaos to the union, if he's elected. Sadlowski replies in kind. McBride went to work at age 14 in 1930 when the same St. Louis plant that laid off his father hired young McBride to assemble metal beds and fur-

Wage cuts and plant conditions spurred him to join the Steel Workers Organizing Committee in 1936. In February 1937 his plant got its first contract without a strike. In March 1938 it became clear that the contract would not be renewed. So the men occupied the plant for a week before police chased Seven more weeks of picketing gave the union its second contract, though the president - who led the sit-down — was fired.

Seven or eight men declined the president's job. before the 22-year-old McBride accepted. In 1940 he quit his job to become a staff representative for the union. Except for three years in the Navy, he has worked for the union ever since.

Returning from the war, McBride bought a $24,000 brick house in north St. Louis County, where he still lives, and serviced locals in southern Illinois. In 1958 he became subdistrict director in charge of downstate Illinois and in 1965 was elected district director without opposition. His 35,000 member district comprises downstate Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska. As president he promises to abolish inequities in dues, and to establish a union-company health laboratory and a new members department.

Sadlowski went to work at age 18, and at age 25 became president of his 10,000 member local in basic Like McBride he soon got a staff job. But unlike McBride he soon became a vocal critic of some union Sadlowski backed George McGovern in 1972, while the union leadership stayed neutral. McBride, a lifelong Democrat, voted for no presidential candidate in 1972.

Bingo vote measure okayed by committee

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The little old ladies who play church bingo got a thrill Wednesday.

By a resounding voice vote the Senate State Affairs Committee approved a proposal that would let Texans vote on legalizing bingo or raffles conducted for the benefit of a nonprofit charitable organizations. Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, put his first supporting witness on the stand but before he was finished the committee approved the proposed constitutional amendment. Only Sens. Peyton McKnight. D-

Tyler, and Kent Hance, D-Lubbock. asked to be shown as voting "no.

Lombardino said that if his measure was approved by the legislature and then by voters in November, 1978, "it would authorize the legislature to pass laws legalizing what a lot of people have been doing already," he said.

Present legal interpretations hold that bingo games and raffles are a form of lottery, which is prohibited by the constitution

The senator then introduced Jodie E. Balcar, an American Legion spokesman from San Antonio.

"The funds from our bingo games are used for Boys State and for our baseball teams and we use them to pay for our childrens progams at Christmas," he said. Balcar added that bingo games give persons seeking recreation something to do besides "drinking, smoking and dancing."

Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg. interrupted to suggest that he thought the committee was ready to vote. even though Lombardino had another four witnesses lined up to testify.

"Then let's vote," said Sen Bill Moore, D-Bryan, committee chairman. "Is there objection?" And he slammed down the gavel.

Lombardino put back in his pocket a petition with 1,112 signatures that he had planned to present the commit-

In other action Wednesday the com-

-Approved for floor debate a bill that would require the state to pay any damages assessed any state employe as the result of a civil suit while on duty

-Approved a bill that would let the Texas Aeronautics Commission set limits of liability for airlines in intrastate service for lost baggage and other shipments.

-Postponed until next week a vote on a subcommittee report that would let voters say whether the state's 'right-to-work" law should be written into the state constitution.

Committee members Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler asked that their votes be recorded as being against the bingo proposal.

Their requests, however, came after the motion was passed without objection and, according to Senate rules, the measure will be reported out of comittee officially showing no opposition.

"I feel like once you start legalizing bingo," Hance said, "Then pretty soon you're going to have some other people coming in with other definitions of bingo. Gambling is gambling," he said.

Marshall to push for public service jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's labor secretary, F. Ray Marshall, says he will push for an integrated system of emergency public service jobs linked with training programs for the hard-core unemployed.

Marshall told reporters Wednesday after the Senate confirmed him, 74-20, he is already at work tracking down valid slots for public service jobs, within the government and out.

Marshall was to be sworn in at the White House today.

He said he expects that the existing 310,000 public service jobs can be expanded to 600,000 by Oct. 1 and to ,035,000 jobs by a year later. Currently, the Labor Department says nearly eight million people, or about 7.9 per cent of the work force, are unemployed.

Marshall said he is also working on ways to establish apprenticeships within union ranks and on-the-job training slots within private industry for permanent jobs after the shortterm public service jobs end.

His nomination was debated nearly with conservatives saying he was too close to organized labor. One of the senators from his home state, Republican John G. Tower, said organized labor already exerts a near stranglehold grip on Congress and on the economic and social affairs of the country. He said it was ominous to consider how much labor's power would be increased by having a close ally as Labor secretary.

Other senators criticized Marshall's willingness to repeal Section 1A-B of the Taft-Hartley Act, which allows states to ban union shops; his advocacy of expanded picketing rights of construction workers, and his refusal to say flatly he did not favor any kind of bargaining rights for the military.

In a brief meeting at the Capitol after the vote, Marshall met with Senate Labor Chairman Harrison appointments may be Williams, D-N.J. Both told reporters they did not think repeal of 14-B was a top priority for the 95th Congress.

Carter's tax plan outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration said today it plans to send $50 to nearly every American, beginning in April, if Congress approves the President's $31 billion economic stimulus program.

Administration officials said 96 per cent of all Americans would receive the payments, which would be in the form of a tax rebate for taxpayers and special payments for Social Security recipients and the nontaxpaying poor.

About four million poor Americans who do not have children or do not earn any income or receive Social Security would be excluded from the program, officials said. They said the cost of reaching this group of Americans is too high and would create administrative problems.

Details of the administration's program were outlined to the House Budget Committee by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Budget Director Bert Lance and Chairman Charles L. Schultze of the Council of Economic Advisers.

In addition to the $50 rebates and payments to most Americans, the administration also proposed permanent tax reductions for low-and middle-income families totaling $1.5 billion this year and $5.5 billion The total financial help for a family of four with a

$10,000 income would be $333 in 1977, with $200 from rebates on 1976 taxes and $133 from the reduced 1977

For a family of four with a $15,000 income, the total benefit would be $288, with $200 from tax rebates and $88 from reduced taxes. A family of four with a $20,000 income would receive only the tax rebates, a total of $200. The lower taxes would be reflected in lower withholding taxes from workers' paychecks beginning in May, at the earliest, Blumenthal told

A taxpayer may claim a $50 rebate for every exemption claimed on his tax return, so he needs MRECREATIONAL VEHICLES only to multiply $50 by the number of exemptions to determine the total rebate he will receive, if Congress approves the plan.

Rebates would be paid to taxpayers regardless of

The tax reductions would be accomplished by providing a flat standard deduction of $2,400 for single taxpayers and $2,800 for married taxpayers filing jointly. The current standard deduction ranges between $1,700 and $2,400 for single taxpayers and $2,100 to $2,800 for married couples.

The change would reduce taxes for single persons with incomes of $15,00 or less and married taxpayers with incomes of $17,500 or less.

Blumenthal said the administration plans to start the rebate payments in April and complete them during May and June

In addition to the tax help for Americans, the administration also proposed to Congress a plan to reduce business taxes and to create new jobs through public works projects and public service em-

The administration proposes spending $4 billion in 1977 and 1978 to add 290,000 public service jobs this year and another 125,000 in 1978, bringing total public service employment in the country to 725,000.

Another $2 billion would be spent to create 346,000 training and employment positions under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. The administration also is asking authorization of $4 billion for emergency public works programs.

It also wants $1.2 billion in so-called countercyclical revenue-sharing funds to help state and local governments with their job needs.

MCT Theatre School classes starting again

The Theatre School of Midland Community Theatre, inactive during the fall months, will resume classes

In addition, the Pickwick Players, the young people's performing company at MCT, will resume a regular schedule following several months' inactivity. Tryouts to fill vacancies in the company will take place at Theatre Centre Saturday

At the helm of both the school and the Pickwick company will be MCT's newly-appointed children's theater director, Debbie Waddell.

Miss Waddell, a native Californian and a graduate of the University of California at Davis, comes to Midland from Dallas where for the last three years she has been associated with the Dallas Theater Center. She recently completed work on a master of fine arts degree in children's theater at DTC, through Trinity University at San Antonio.

In addition to general theater work

at Dallas Theater Center, she directed children's productions and taught children's theater classes. She also taught in several Dallas schools. She has written several plays for young people. The Pickwick Players tryouts will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. Students between the ages of 13 and 18 are invited to audition for the company. Additional information on requirements for membership may be obtained from Miss Waddell at Theatre Centre, 682-2544.

Theatre School classes will be offered for children of various age groups, including pre-school to kindergarten children, first through third graders, fourth through sixth graders, seventh through ninth graders, and high achool age students. Full information on tuition by semester or by the school year, the weekly class schedules, and available scholarships may be obtained from the Midland Community Theatre

Meyerbeer opera next Metropolitan broadcast

During the first intermission Saturday afternoon, the radio audience will be treated to a special discussion of "Le Prophete" by noted musicologist Boria Goldovsky.

The Meyerbeer work was first performed in Paris in 1849. The 1928 production of "Prophete" at the Met featured Karin Branzell, Giovanni Martinelli, Ezio Pinza and Leon Rothier in the cast. The most recent revivals of the opera were in 1962 at La Scala in Milan, Zurich June Festival in Switzerland and at the Deutsche Opera in Berlin

Artist exhibits marble sculpture

By KATHRYN TOLBERT

TOKYO (AP) - Sculptor Minoru Niizuma's largest one-man show has opened in his native Japan, 18 years after he left to live and work in New

The heavy and yet delicate abstract forms in marble, a total of 35 pieces, were brought here from the United States in a 40-ton and a 20-ton container for the three-week exhibition.

Niizuma has exhibited internationally and some of his sculptures are owned by the Guggenheim Museum, the Museum of Modern Art and Rockefeller University, and the largest, weighing 14 tons, will go to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

But until he was invited recently by Tokyo's Seibu Museum, he had not visited Japan for 14 years.

"For a long time I didn't return to this country and Japanese critics didn't care about me," said the 46year-old Niizuma, a heavyset man who looks entirely capable of wresting precise and sensitive forms from two-ton blocks of marble.

"The critics like artists who return often and go drinking with them. Now people are very warm to me, but I think it is because I am going to return to the United States. I am not

"I think Japan is still a small country, with people thinking about such relationships, competition,

His work is often said to be very Japanese. Thomas Messer, director of the Guggenheim Museum, wrote for the Seibu catalogue, "the artist's confident reliance upon the communicative power of his materials and surfaces is, of course, in the best Oriental tradition - one so easily admired yet wholly beyond emulation in Western traditions of modern art."

"If something is really Japanese," Niizuma said, "then it can be in-ternational. If Japanese artists imitate Western artists, it may look international but is not.

The nationally circulated Asahi Shimbun commented, "He is very conscious of Japanese beauty and because of his strong personality, he can hold his own in the international

Niizuma said he felt most Japanese had never seen such kinds of colored marble and didn't know it could be made into such shapes.

"Japan has a granite tradition, but not marble," he said. "When I graduated from the Tokyo University of Art, no one was doing this kind of work. He said stone offered more resistance, and that he felt close to it because of his love of mountain climbing. He buys almost all of his marble in Italy, traveling there two or three times a year.

During the past year he bought 17 tons. He pointed out that the amount was not great considering one cubic meter weighs three tons.

The number of stone sculptors is increasing, he said.

"People are getting tired of plastic and stainless steel. They want to

"But the problem is that stone has so many limitations. You cannot glue

"My sculptures before had many smooth parts along with the rough, but now I want to keep the marble more natural. It has its own life. Without carving, I want just to mount the stone."

Residency is offered

AUSTIN — A week-long residency of the Dallas Theater Center and public performances of DTC director Paul Baker's production of "Hamlet E.S.P." is being offered Texas schools and communities through the artist-in-schools program of the National Endowment for the Arts, implemented by the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

The total residency is available during March at a cost equal the expected income from the public performance, said Mary Lee Jones, coordinator for the education division of the Texas Commission of the Arts and Humanities.

The grant will include student participation in the show's production in workshops and lecture demonstrations. Additional information on the project is available from the education division of the TCAH, 512-475-6637

Carter nuclear test plan bends

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter's weekend call for halting all nuclear testing "instantly and completely," began to bend Wednesday to the realities of hard bargaining in the nuclear age.

The Carter Administration declared its support Wednesday for two pending U.S.-Soviet treaties that would permit the continuance of limited underground nuclear blasts. In the presidential campaign, however, Carter criticized one of the treaties as "wholly inadequate," and labeled the other "dangerous."

Wednesday, State Department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown described the two disputed treaties as "way-stations" for "movement toward the ultimate objectives" held out by the President.

What the President said in his Sunday interview on seeking an early end to all nuclear testing, Brown said, was an objective. What is before the Congress, Brown said, are two treaties "which are a step in the direction in which the President has clearly indicated he wants to go."

Critics are divided, however, on whether the two treaties are steps in the right direction, or worse than no agreement at all. President Carter appeared to share the latter viewpoint during the campaign.

They would ban nuclear blasts bigger than 150 kilotons, or the equivalent of

A special study has now been ordered by the White House, through the National Security Council, to work out U.S. strategy on a total underground test ban, to be negotiated with the Soviet Union. The Carter Administration has now decided to attempt, simultaneously, to get the Senate to ratify the two pending treaties. The new study on nuclear testing is the 16th special study, now described as Presidential Review Memoranda, ordered by the Carter Administration on major international issues.

The treaties, which have languished in the Senate for months surrounded by controversy, limit underground nuclear weapons tests and so-called peaceful explosions of nuclear devices for civilian purposes.

In 1963, a breakthrough agreement banned the testing of nuclear devices everywhere but underground. China, which continues to test in the atmosphere, is one of the non-signers of this international accord.

The pending U.S.-Soviet treaties are an attempt at further limitation.

than 150 kilotons, or the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT. In order to distinguish between weapons tests and "peaceful" tests, the second of the new treaties permits inspectors to visit the site of the non-weapons blasts under cortain limitations. This the new treaties permits inspectors to visit the site of the non-weapons blasts, under certain limitations. This procedure, which required two years to negotiate, was hailed by the Ford Administration as a major breakthrough in Soviet secrecy.

Critics in the American arms control community raised two basic criticisms, which Carter also raised in his election campaign. They criticized the 150 kiloton limit as too high, and charged that formalizing "peaceful nuclear explosions" was a step backward in the arms race, because non-nuclear nations could acquire a weapons capability under the guise of a peaceful program."

India entered the world's select nuclear club through the "peaceful explosion" route.

Carter said, in the campaign:

"The so-called THRESHOLD (weapons) Test Ban Treaty represents a wholly inadequate step beyond the limited test ban of 13 years ago.

"The so-called 'on site' inspection provisions of the Peaceful Nuclear Explosions (PNE) agreement signed recently may be a concession in Soviet eyes, but contrary to (Ford) Administration claims, they are no compensation for the PNE agreement's dangerous legitimizing of peaceful nuclear explosions, which are indistinguishable from bombs."

Nevertheless, the State Department said Wednesday, "The (Carter) Administration wants Congress to consider and approve the two test treaties currently before it as steps to an overall ban on nuclear tests."

Officials said that despite the misgivings raised by Carter in the presidential campaign, the Carter Administration decided it would be more advantageous to have in place what already has been negotiated with the Russians, while attempting to negotiate a total ban on tests. Some critics have argued in the past that this could make it more difficult, not easier, to get a complete ban, and induce the Soviet Union to forego its "peaceful" nuclear blasts.

Global problems confront Carter

series, an Associated Press correspondent looks first remove the mistrust. at the world political issues facing President Carter. then at the economic problems.

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter confronts a host of global political problems that demand urgent attention with kibitzing diplomats cau- tical or strategic use. tioning that "when Washington sneezes the whole world catches cold.

Adversaries and allies alike are awaiting the Carter performance to assess what manner of man he is and where his policies may lead the nation. Issues before him are a mix of strategy and politics of power. He is honor-bound by campaign pledges to work for the lost rights and dignity of millions of little people around the world. This does not foreshadow interfering in the affairs of oppressor-countries of the extreme left or right. It does mean using America's considerable political and even trading leverage to achieve a fairer, juster, safer and freer world. Topping Carter's political agenda are five matters of immediate global importance. They involve U.S. dealings across-the-board with Russia; meetings to promote the search for peace between feuding Arab and Israeli leaders; talks to normalize relations with China; completion of a new Panama Canal Treaty; trade and other ties. and ending the disarray within the North Atlantic (NATO) Alliance. A pileup of pressing economic and political questions will crowd Carter's calendar through the year with a parade of visiting rulers passing through Europe and Asia

2. ACTION TO SPEED the search for a Mideast peace. First Secretary of State Cyrus D. Vance will visit the region early in February as a sort of frontline Arab states and Israel will be asked to

The Chinese already have sent signals suggesting Carter may not have to face the painful decision on how and whether to disengage from U.S. commitments to support and defend the 16,000,000 Taiwanese. But Peking would want Washington to break its formal diplomatic relationship with Taiwan without necessarily cutting off

The problem is not easily attacked. Studies with humans are rare and often based strictly on anecdotal comments. One study involving 125 are too distressing. He college students found that most of those questioned did, indeed, seem to have 'infantile amnesia," as it is called. They were unable to recall events during their early childhood. A few were unable to recall anything that had happened to them before the age of 9.

On the other hand, Coulter has received letters from persons claiming to remember events that happened to them at ages as young as 6 months. Some of the letters are quite specific, but Coulter remains skeptical about them. "The people insist that they have never been given any reminders." she said recently, "but you can never be sure." The only way to test it for sure, she said, would be to train infants to learn certain tasks and then follow them for a period of years to see how long and how well they remember them. Of its very nature, such an experiment would be difficult to control for outside influences recall events that hapand unwanted reminders.

There have been a variety of theories put forth to explain Infantile amnesia. Sigmund Freud, who first used the term, said that we cannot recall events from early childhood because they said that the selfish and destructive impulses of infancy are repressed. along with the sexual attraction infants feel toward their parents. Such notions, whether valid or not, cannot be tested scientifically, Coulter said.

There have been a variety of alternative theories proposed, she said, including the follow-

-The infant is unable to speak a language and, thus, is unable to store memories in a way that can be later communicated.

-There is too much "interference" in early childhood to allow proper storage of memory. The developing infant's brain, assaulted by a barrage of new experiences, is simply unable to sort out and store specific memories over the long term.

-The content of early life is so different from that of adulthood that memories cannot be recalled. The differences in the size of the environment make it impossible for the grown adult to pened in a different frame of reference.

IBM: No split yet

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — When International Business Machines failed to split its stock this week as some speculators had anticipated, there was no mad dash to dump shares. Instead, the price held fairly steady

The increase of the IBM quarterly dividend to $2.50 a share from $2.25 was in part the reason why relatively few shareholders abandoned the stock But there was another reason, the anticipation re-

Everybody in on taxing act

Copley News Service

At the same time the Surgeon General's Office is requiring every cigarette packet to warn that its contents are "dangerous to your health," the U.S. Department of Agriculture financed a study of Oriental tobacco for "improving the quality of American cigarettes. Before you try to figure out the rationale of such a move, forget it. It's been queried by congressional leaders on both sides of the aisles with no satisfactory reply, except as another example of duplication. In the House and Senate, there are 40 major committees and almost 300 subcommittees. It is this type of "bigness" that invites waste and duplication. 'There is a tendency for each of several committees to develop its own program to solve the same problem, each plunging ahead without coordinating with the others," said Rep. Sam Steiger of Take, for example, welfare and the interest it commands from committees. Housing committees are in it through housing aid; Ways and Means Committee is involved through Social Security; Interstate and Foreign Commerce through health programs: Agriculture Committee has food stamps:

and Education and Labor have their programs. THIS INTENSE INTEREST from all sectors of government does not aid the problem, it inhibits it. according to congressional leaders, who must explain such functions to the constituents back home. Other examples of duplication, charted in the Congressional Record, include seven separate programs providing funds for outpatient health centers; 11 separate programs providing funds for child care: 14 separate units of the Department of Health. Education and Welfare administering programs for education of the handicapped.

And, at least 25 bureaus, services or offices in a dozen departments or agencies support research into water pollution.

Republican Steiger, chastising his Democratic colleagues for their spending ways, reminded advocates of the often-proposed Agency for Consumer Protection that no less than 50 federal agencies and bureaus already were engaged in consumer protection.

With all this confusion and duplication it is little wonder that more and more experts in the fields involved are concluding that the widespread federal social programs are not doing the job for which they were intended," Steiger said.

"THEY ARE NOT helping the needy effectively What these programs do very well is provide highly paid jobs for more and more bureaucrats and lackevs. "It is no accident that the two richest counties per capita in the United States are the Washington, D.C., 'bedroom' counties of Montgomery and Fairfax, which are heavily populated by high-salaried government officials," Steiger said.

He cites the cost of paperwork generated by big government at $40 billion a year, caused, in large part, by "hyperactive" members who want more and more laws passed.

WASHINGTON - The year is 1990 and the setting is a small town in Kan-

Inside the local post office, a computer-linked electronic terminal is activated. There's an incoming message from Boston and a postal worker gets a printout, which is sealed in an envelope and handed to a letter carrier for special delivery. Within an hour, a local resident has complete details of a complex business deal.

Is it possible that this is the U.S. Postal Service of tomorrow?

Some people say that the new technology of electronic transfer either will become part of the postal business and thus its salvation, or that electonic transfers will be ignored and the nation will be left with an expensive and outdated postal system that serves fewer and fewer people at constantly escalating deficits.

Although there may be choices other than the either-or scenario outlined above, the decision on what kind of postal service is wanted probably will be made this year. And the American people are being given an unprecedented opportunity to take part in the planning.

Starting in eight cities last week and continuing for two weeks in about a dozen other cities, public hearings are being held on post office problems

The Commission on Postal Service is conducting the hearings as part of its mandate from Congress last year to report by March 15 on recommen-

also asked for abolition of the independent Postal Rate Commission and return of its rate-setting powers

Goldwater told the commission that the Constitution does not require the post office to make a profit, in denouncing some critics of the postal service and a recent Court of Appeals decision here, seeking to fully allocate all costs to various classifications of postal users.

"Ever since the patriots began their own mail system, postal service has been just that — a public service.' Goldwater asserted.

Stating that the role of the printed word has not been diminished by the modern telecommunications, the Arizona Republican said government should promote dissemination of printed matter which treats subjects

Specifically, Goldwater asserted

-First-class mail delivery be provided as a public service at rates "the public can easily afford.

-Mail service should be designed for public convenience and not just bare necessity

-A suggested reduction to threetimes-a-week residential delivery is contrary to the public's wishes. -A separate class of mail for newspapers and magazines and a separate class for books must be retained as a public service.

Although the semi-independent U.S. Postal Service corporation was established to replace the old Post Office Department less than six years ago, after another commission's study, Congress ordered the new report in the wake of soaring losses and gloomy forecasts about declining mail volume

Congress also authorized an additional $1 billion of subsidy to the Postal Service to help cover previous debts. Half of that amount went into the postal treasury during the July-September quarter and the balance is due in the current fiscal year.

Although the Postal Service was able to report a surplus of $15 million in the quarter ended Sept. 30, and may have another surplus for the final quarter of 1976 (due to added business when United Parcel Service was struck in the Northeast), the longterm outlook is for rising losses.

In his budget message to Congress last week, former President Ford predicted a postal deficit of nearly $1 billion in the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30. Ford predicted a loss of $1.7 billion the following year, which he said would force an increase in

With that prediction coming on the heels of a federal court decision that has cast doubt on the current rate structure, and which is being appealed by the Postal Service, prospects disturb even postal officials.

"It is incontestable that rates have moved up higher than expected since postal reorganization. But the increases took place in a period of surging inflation that dramatically boosted the costs of running a nationwide service organization that employs one of the nation's largest work forces and provides a level of personal service, such as door-to-door delivery six days a week, that is unique in this country today, Postmaster General Benjamin F Bailar said in his organization's recent annual report.

Cost-cutting won't by itself produce an economically sound postal service. and there is little doubt that future viability of the post offices will be 'closely tied' to new technologies, Bailar added

The key problem is money to finance wages for 680,000 postal workers and the far-flung network of small and large mail facilities.

Overall expenses in fiscal 1976 rose by 10.7 per cent to $14 billion. Revenues from postal rates totaled only $10.2 billion. Federal tax payers contributed $920 million of "public service" money to subsidize moneylosing operations such as rural mail and $724.5 million to subsidize reduced mail rates.

Still, the Postal Service ended up with a deficit of $1.18 billion for the 12month period. In the five fiscal years 1972-1976, the Postal Service had losses of about $2.8 billion and that doesn't count nearly $8 billion of federal subsidies counted as part of

More alarming than actual losses. however, are warnings about what

covers many overhead costs and helps to subsidize loss operations. This category of mail includes bills and payments for businesses and residences. It is an endangered species.

A Postal Service staff study said direct deposit of Social Security payments and paychecks in banks or savings institutions, automatic payment of mortgages and insurance, and electronic transfers of funds from an individual's checking account to that of a company in bill payment add up to smaller mail volume. Higher rates could induce even more use of such technology, the staff reported.

In an interview, commission executive director David Minton said he expects the March 15 deadline to be

A major decision by the commission will be whether to recommend a role for the Postal Service in electronic transfers, which would be costly to establish. It would be a radical departure and would require extensive training programs, the commis-

President Carter, who spoke out in favor of a better postal system during last year's presidential election campaign, will have a lot of influence on what happens next. Insiders expect him to wait for the commission's report before taking any action. Because Carter is not connected with the joint White House-congressional effort that set up the commission, he easily could dismiss any proposals and go his own way.

As outlined by the Postal Service itself, there appear to be three choices:

-Continue current policy, letting postal rates float higher to cover some of growing costs. Under this scenario, first-class rates could rise to 22 cents in 1981 from 13 cents today. Total mail volume would dip slightly but the "mix" will be less favorable. with more subsidized classes of mail and less profitable first-class mail.

Colorado gas supply sufficient

DENVER (AP) - Colorado Interstate Gas Co. (CIG) has a supply of natural gas that would last 10 years at present consumption rates, but it doesn't have enough to share with cold-ravaged Eastern and Midwestern states, the firm's president

Peter King, the newly appointed president of the state's largest gas supplier, said Wednesday that wholesale pipelines serving most of Colorado are now at full capacity and residents will be served even if the weather turns bitterly cold.

Referring to speculation that the Carter administration may seek emergency legislation to allocate natural gas to areas suffering from the cold wave, King said CIG could prove that what gas it has is fully needed to heat homes, hospitals and schools in the state-all first priority

"We don't have excess gas above the needs of customers in this area." he said.

'If any emergency allocation programs are enacted, he said, it would require a temporary lifting of price ceilings on natural gas, now regulated at a maximum of $1.42 cents per thousand cubic feet.

"If we start gambling and ship gas away, we would have to take it from our interruptible customers who would have to use alternate fuels at higher prices," he said. "If that happens, the interruptible customer is paying for gas to go somewhere

King said he didn't know if allocation would be forthcoming, but said, "It's not beyond the realm of possibility that the sheriff could knock on our door." He added that "we can't live in an oasis of plenty if hospitals and households (somewhere else) are going short.

Stonewall gains well

The Crackerjack (Cisco sand) pool of Stonewall County gained a fourth well and location southeast extension with recompletion of Texland-Rector & Schumacher, Fort Worth, No. 4 Leon Anderson, a former Canyon reef

It pumped 32 barrels of 39-gravity oil and 60 barrels of water on 24-hour potential test, through perforations at 4.542-4.615 feet, after acidizing with 2,000 gallons and fracturing with 27,000 gallons and 55,000 pounds of sand. Gas-oil ratio was 469-1

Net income decreases

Elcor Corp. of Midland had a net income, before extraordinary items of $476,000 or 12 cents per share for the second quarter ended Dec. 31, Roy E. Campbell, president, reports. The net income was 39 per cent lower than the $776,000 or 19 cents per share in the prior year quarter, Campbell said. "Short-term industry conditions reduced earnings in the second fiscal quarter and are expected to further reduce third quarter results, however, it is anticipated that results for the fourth quarter will return to satisfactory levels," he explained.

Net income of $944,000 or 23 cents per share was down 43 per cent from $1.643,000 or 40 cents per share on sales of $19.9 million, an 11 per cent decrease from $22.4 million in the second guarter last year. Sales in the first half ended Dec. 31 of $46 million increased 13 per cent from $40.6 million; net income before extraordinary items of $1,572,000 or 39 cents per share decreased 13 per cent from $1,812,000 or 44 cents per share and net income of $3,050,000 or 75 cents per share was 21 per cent lower than $3,856,000 or 93 cents per share in the prior year period, Campbell

Senate schedules vote on Texas' first three utility commissioners

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Senate scheduled a confirmation vote today on Texas' first three public utilities commissioners, who were endorsed by liberals and conservatives at a public subcommittee hearing.

Other appointees by Gov. Dolph Briscoe who were to be considered were Harry McAdams as director of Texas' office of state-federal relations

Utility bill ready soon

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A bill repealing the sales tax on household utilities should be ready for floor action shortly after Valentine's Day, says the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The tax package he has in mind also would bring inheritance tax relief.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington, said Wednesday he wants to "handle right away" House Bill 1, a package containing both utility and inheritance tax relief.

Quick House passage, however, would not necessarily bring similarly rapid action in the Senate, which might decide to wait until the general appropriation bill has been passed before cutting taxes that might be needed to balance it.

Repeal of the state sales tax on residential gas and electricity would cut state revenue by $344.1 million over the next two years, according to the comptroller's department.

Wyatt announced at the committee's first meeting that it will hold a hearing Feb. 3 on repealing the utility sales tax, which adds 5 per cent to most Texans' bills. On Feb. 7, the committee will hear an increase in the $25,000 exemption that has been in force since the 1920s with no increase to reflect changes in the buying power of the dollar. Other proposals to cut taxes, such inheritance tax proposals, most likely as general sales rate reductions, will be heard Feb. 9, Wyatt said. Then on Feb. 14, "I hope we can Rick out a bill," he said Wyatt said this is a good time to cut taxes because of the anticipated $950 million surplus at the end of this fiscal year and an extraordinary $2 billion projected growth in revenue over the

"The best way to hold down spending is to reduce the temptation by eliminating some taxes," Wyatt said.

Walt Lilie, the comptroller's planning and research director, said it would take an addition of $400 million to present spending levels to maintain state programs as they are and keep pace with inflation.

and H.C. "Dulie" Bell of Austin as a Texas A&M director.

On Wednesday, the 15th day of the 140-day session, the Senate passed the first bill-a measure by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, that would allow state undercover agents to disguise their identity by carrying fictitious driver's licenses.

The Senate also sent to the House a bill setting up a group life, accident and health insurance program for all employes of state-financed colleges and universities and a resolution commending broadcasters who have decided not to broadcast executions.

The resolution states that nearly all Texas broadcasters have decided to follow their national code, which says, in part: "Good taste should prevail in the selection and handling of news. Morbid, sensational alarming details, not essential to the factual report, especially in connection with stories of crime or sex, should be avoided."

"It is the sense of the Texas Legislature," the resolution states, "that these broadcasters electing not to broadcast films of executions into the homes of private citizens have made a laudable decision exhibiting good taste and responsibility in their duty under the First Amendment to the United States in balancing the public's right to know with the dictates of common sense. The Senate refused to debate Mengden's proposal to permit a poll watcher who serves in a precinct other than his residence to vote ab-

Winter's icy hands grip nation tighter

By The Associated Press

The Winter of '77 hit the East, Midwest and parts of the South with a new arctic cold blast today as already critical natural gas shortages forced more closings of schools and fac-

METRO EDITION

The entire school system of Pennsylvania was shut down by Gov. Milton Shapp so that natural gas could be shifted to industries. State officials said the state's 2.6 million public and parochial students may be out for longer than the three days already scheduled.

Pennsylvania and Ohio got a taste of the renewed cold front as the new arctic storm moved down from Canada Wednesday night and dropped temperatures by as much as 20 degrees in three hours.

Snow squalls hit sections of Ohio and Indiana Wednesday night, blocking roads and causing scores of traffic accidents, officials said.

Major north-south roads were blocked in Indiana, with hundreds of motorists stranded

Some 150 school districts in 20 northeastern Indiana counties, including the 40,000-pupil Fort Wayne system, the state's second largest, canceled classes today.

The area south of Toledo, Ohio, was hit heavily by the storm, with most roads, including some main high-

Power failures blamed indirectly on the winter weather left about 26,000 Greater Cleveland residents without electricity for several hours Wednesday night and knocked out power to Cleveland Hopkins International Airport and Southwest General Hospital. Both reported that operations continued on auxiliary

Temperatures plunged elsewhere in the Midwest and East Coast freeze belt as winds gusting up to 60 miles per hour pushed the frigid air mass into the nation.

And the National Weather Service reported Wednesday that there appears to be no long-term warming trend in sight. The service forecast lower than normal temperatures over much of the East for at least the next

Earlier Wednesday, President Carter asked Congress for emergency authority to transfer natural gas to areas with the worst shortages.

Carter told a news conference that natural gas shortages due to the cold have closed some 4,000 plants and forced layoffs of an estimated 400,000 people and are now threatening those who use natural gas to heat their

Carter also renewed his appeal for Americans to lower their thermostats to 65 degrees by day and lower at night, although an aide said later that the President did not want people to break any local or state laws that mandate higher temperatures.

And, there were indications last week's freeze in Florida was forcing up prices of groceries in many areas of the nation.

Parts of Maryland and Virginia around the Chesapeake Bay were declared federal disaster areas because the frozen bay has put many boatmen and fishermen out of work. The ice has blocked shipments of fuel oil and grain

Outside Pennsylvania, school closures were scattered.

Six small districts in five Ohio counties were closed for a lack of natural gas. State Supt. Martin W.

Essex said the worst was yet to come. A spokesman for his office said at least 80 districts have given notice of definite closing dates, with a few saying they hope to reopen toward the end of next month

Columbia Gas Co. said it will send notices next week to many Ohio schools and other large commercial users telling them they have exceeded their winter allotments of gas and will get no more of the fuel until April.

Equitable Gas Co., a Pittsburghbased company, asked schools in eight West Virginia counties to close until further notice. It extended that request to taverns, nightclubs and

In Georgia, most schools were open but with orders to keep thermostats at 65 degrees. Temperatures there had moderated somewhat by midweek but were predicted to plunge back into the teens by this weekend. Police in LaGrange, Ga., which had many factories closed due to gas shortages, patrolled the empty plants.

While businessmen waited to see what the government would do to ease gas shortages, President Carter's energy adviser James R. Schlesinger said at least two interstate pipelines Southern Natural Gas and Trunkline — already were cutting off gas supplies to some top priority consumers. He said Carter's proposals were aimed at avoiding those cutoffs, which affect some residences, public services and factories in danger of severe damage without gas.

Schlesinger said he did not have a precise breakdown on unemployment caused by gas shortages but he said the number of unemployed was reported highest in New York.

Blasts jolt Exxon oil tanker

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — A series of explosions rocked an Exxon tanker, sank a tugboat and left at least 17 persons injured and 15 to 20 unaccounted for early this morning in the Houston Ship Channel just outside this coastal

A Coast Guard spokesman said at least three explosions aboard the Exxon San Francisco apparently were caused by sparks from the engine of a tugboat that ignited fumes from fuels being loaded aboard the tanker at the Exxon refinery here.

The Coast Guard spokesman said at least three persons were aboard the tugboat Nathan B when "it went down." Eyewitnesses said the bottom of the tugboat could be seen just above the water. The dock area was sealed by the Coast Guard, and at least 45 persons in nearby homes were evacuated and taken to the Baytown Civic Center. Although the fires were contained, flames could still be seen early in the morning from about 300 yards away.

Baytown Civil Defense spokesman Glenn Walker said 17 persons were injured. The Coast Guard said at least three required hospitalization.

The explosions occurred at 2:04 a.m. as the 800-foot tanker was taking on heating oil and gasoline.

Crewman Raul Deltoa said: "I was asleep when I heard the alarm bell. I did not known what was the matter. I didn't even know there was a fire. I grabbed my lifejacket and jumped over. I swam to the dock and some people pulled me up out of the water. It all happened so fast I didn't even Wayne Torjusen said he was standing watch aboard the San Francisco.

'There was one great big flame. I didn't know what happened at first because it came so fast. There was no warning, nothing. I threw the alarm switch and we began trying to fight the flames. Finally, I had to go over the side and swim to the dock. I can say one other thing. That bay water tastes like hell.'

Mrs. Sarah Bailey, an Exxon employe who lives about two miles from the dock area, said: "The first blast actually blew us out of bed. We ran outside and you could see the flames high over the trees around our house. I counted five explosions. There was a big one and then four smaller ones. It looked as if the entire bay was on fire and the sky was a bright orange."

Light up that cigarette, draw deeply, and smoke, puff, hack, cough, spew and sputter Complusive desire.

Smoking's a pretty easy thing to do, once you get the hang of it. And you can get accustomed to it so quickly. But getting the habit purged from your life may not be quite so simple. Misery.

However, one heavy ex-smoker of the old regular cigarettes says it was a simple matter to kick the habit. "It wasn't hard to quit," he said. "It was easy to quit. It was un-comfortable as hell; it was a pain." He just put that ol' ready-roll down and suffered for a spell. "Certainly it was easy. I recom-

"Getting out was the best part." You'd better know it, doc: "I'm so damn tired of being sick," said the spirited young lady, who's down on her back with some dreadful and annoying ailment.

She, too, but on orders from high, quit smoking. She's a person of high courage and stamina. And this soulful tigress is not one to put up with any

Energy proposals to pass

Congressional leaders are rushing to approve President Carter's natural gas program and may have the emergency legislation on his desk by early next week.

The program Carter sent to Capitol Hill on Wednesday as his first legislative initiative seemed assured of quick passage. Members of Congress who once fought bitterly over the natural gas issue were joining forces to help push the measure through Congress

The emergency legislation would give the President power to divert natural gas to cold-stricken parts of the country.

It would also allow emergency sales at unregulated prices by intrastate pipelines - located within gasproducing Gulf Coast states - to interstate pipelines until July 31. "This bill will not not end the shortages, will not improve the weather and will not solve the unemployment problems," Carter warned. But he said it would bring temporary relief to hard-pressed states by shifting gas from areas without acute shortages.

Carter told reporters that quick action is needed because the gas shortage precipitated by unusually cold weather east of the Rocky Mountains has already closed some 4,000 plants, forced layoffs of an estimated 400,000 persons and is now threatening those who use natural gas to heat their homes.

The move could raise the monthly gas bills of natural gas consumers, but administration officials said the increases probably would be small.

Carter also renewed his appeal for Americans to lower their thermostats to 65 degrees by day and lower at night, although an aide said later that the President did not want people to break any local or state laws that mandate higher temperatures.

The energy legislation was drafted in consultation with key members of Congress. White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger said it was carefully tailored to maximize congressional support and minimize controversy.

Senate leaders decided to bypass normal committee hearings and bring the legislation directly to the floor for debate on Friday. A Senate vote could come Monday.

But how can a campus get to the Riviera?

"Mr. Midland College" may be a very lucky person-he has five lucky numbers and seven chances to win $25,000 cash or a vacation on the French Riviera.

The computerized letter was addressed to Mr. Midland College, Learning Resource Center, 3600 N. Garfield, Midland, Texas.

Last year, a determined computer sent invitations to Mr. Learning Resource Center at the college to buy winter coats for his family and later to purchase mutual funds.

Dr. O. P. Coston, director of the learning resource center, wondered last winter what size winter coat would be needed to properly protect the huge two-story building.

He's doubtful that the learning resource center would really en-joy a vacation on the French Riviera but said the $25,000 cash could be put to good use in pur-chasing books.

After all, the computer offered

Testimony continues in Midland rape case

District Attorney Vern Martin was to continue presentation of the prosecution's case today during the second day of testimony in the rape trial of Gary Wayne Childs. Childs, 23, of 1304 S. Mineola St., is accused of the Sept. 26 rape of a 77-year-old Midland woman in her southeast Midland home.

Wednesday, Martin called three persons - including the victim - to testify before the jury in Midland's 142nd District Court.

Then defense attorney Thomas Hirsch of Odessa filed a motion, challenging the admissibility of evidence by the state, and forced dismissal of the jury late Wednesday afternoon.

During a hearing before Judge Perry Pickett, Hirsch challenged the admission of a confession the prosecution claims Childs gave police during the day of his arrest. Also in contention was the admission of a red sweat shirt which Hirsch claims was gained by police in an illegal search of

Club to sponsor dog show, trial

ODESSA-The West Texas Kennel Club will sponsor a major all-breed dog show and obedience trial from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Ector County Coliseum.

More than 1,000 purebred dogs from across the nation will be shown.

Judging the show will be Mrs. Georgia Buttram, Midwest City, Okla.; Denver Dale Jr., Oxnard, Calif.; Dr. William Fields Jr., New Braunfels; Mrs. Katherine Finch, Corona Del Mar, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gately, Pineville, Pa.; Mrs. Velma Hiser, Grinnel, Iowa; Chester Kazek Jr., Los Alamos, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Norton Moore, Houston; Lyle Rethmeier, Dallas, and Laura Summers, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Touring chorale arrives in city

COMMERCE - The East Texas State University chorale will perform in Midland at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Lee High School auditorium.

The 50-member chorale will be in Midland as part of its spring concert tour series. There is no admission charge to the concert.

During questioning of police investigators, Hirsch repeatedly made the point that Childs was brought into the police station Sept. 27 and detained several hours as a suspect in a case not related to the incident that led to his arrest.

Extended Texas forecast

In a tense confrontation with Midland police Det. Lt. Earl Luckey. Hirsch questioned whether the statement the state wished to submit as evidence was worded by Childs or Luckey.

The top line, Luckey conceded, was not the language used by Childs. That line was an introductory identification to a statement commonly used in this area. Luckey explained.

Judge Pickett was expected to rule on the motions early today.

Getting out, if you can: "It'll take me an hour to figure out how to get out of here," said a woman, who was studying the hospital's fire exit plan while waiting for an elevator to come down. Your quickest way out is to head for the exit signs - if you can find them.

Probation office gets new man

Midland's U.S. probation office received a shot in the arm Wednesday with the swearing-in of a second probation officer presiding federal district Judge D. W. Suttle.

Hal Frank Felty Jr. joined Jack Swan as probation officer for the office which serves both the Midland and Pecos federal courts.

An increase in caseload since the office opened here in July 1974 was cited as the reason for the appointment by chief West Texas federal district Judge Adrian A. Spears with the approval of chief probation officer Chester McLaugin.

For the last two years, Felty has been district parole officer for the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles in Midland. Prior to that he was a correctional officer at the Texas Department of Corrections in Hunt-

Felty is a graduate of Stephen F. Austin University and has done work towards his master's degree in corrections and criminology at Sam Houston State University in Hunt-

Swan said the Midland probation office did 30 pre-sentencing reports and supervised 93 persons either on probation or on parole during the 1976 fiscal year. That compares with 25 pre-sentencing investigations and a caseload of 68 persons during the first year the Midland probation office opened.

The pre-sentence report takes about 16 hours to prepare, Swan said, and studies the character and personality of the defendant, and analyzes factors of the offense to suggest alternatives in the rehabilitation process, Swan

Brown wants the 'Guard' to save defense dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown is proposing that the Army eliminate two regular infantry brigades and prepare National Guard or reserve forces as replacements in a move that could cut about $67 million from next year's Pentagon budget.

asked the services for comment on the economy measures before he makes a final decision on them. The two reserve or guard brigades that would be upgraded under his proposal would substitute for 10,000 regular Army soldiers.

The brigades would be raised to a state of high readiness and earmarked for early call-up in a crisis.

During the election campaign, President Carter said "the readiness of reserve forces is doubtful." Carter also said he was "quite concerned about the absence of a proper role for the reserve forces."

But since the election, his Pentagon transition team apparently found that the regular Army has achieved good results by affiliating reserve and guard brigades and battalions closely with regular Army divisions.

Brown has sent the Army a memorandum saying the affiliation concept is successful and its expansion appears feasible.

Under this concept, in effect for more than two years, selected highpriority brigades and battalions from the Army National Guard and Reserve were picked to round out four of the 16 Army divisions and bring them to full wartime strength in a mobilization. During peacetime, the backup units maintain ties with their parent regular divisions, which help improve the readiness of the guard and reserve elements. From time to time, entire divisions - regulars and backup components - are supposed to train together.

A major attraction of the affiliation concept is that it enables the Army to maintain more regular divisions than it otherwise could within tight manpower limits.

Although the regular Army has cooperated in the affiliation of guard and reserve units with its divisions. Army generals oppose any further loss of regular manpower.

They are expected to argue strongly against any broadened affiliation program that would reduce regular Army strength below the currently projected 790,000 men and women.

suggested for MCAA

The Human Relations Advisory Committee to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Wednesday voted to recommend approval of the $33,000 administration grant sought by the Midland Community Action Agency.

The PBRPC is scheduled to consider the request Feb. 9.

Several questions from committee members centered around the $6,000 annual salary included in the grant for the executive director. MCAA board chairman Charlie Welch, who is a Midland County commissioner. said it may be possible to supplement the salary with funds from other grants.

The grant under consideration is for administration of the program. It includes $27,040 for salaries of an executive director, three center directors and a half-time bookkeeper and secretary. Welch said. The agency now has no executive director but one will be hired "in the next few days," Welch said. Funds for the agency's programs come from other grants, he said. Several committee members said they would prefer to vote conditional support for the grant proposal but unconditional support was approved by a 9-3 vote.

Board member Ramsoure lists trustee credentials

School Trustee James Ramsoure. who announced his intention to run for reelection Tuesday, said Wednesday he believes his career as teacher, coach, counselor and administrator is a "valuable asset" in maintaining and developing a sound educational program.

'I have endeavored to discharge the duties of that position (trustee) in a manner which is commensurate with and in harmony with the basic philosophy of our public school system," he said.

Ramsoure said the primary responsibility of the school board "should be to provide an educational program that assures each student. regardless of ability or station in life, an opportunity to participate in a worthwhile educational experience that will prepare him to become a productive member of society.'

He said he shares community concerns about strengthening skill development programs in reading, language and mathematics, "particularly at the elementary level.'

"I feel there is a need to concentrate additional time and effort in the development of teaching strategies and a learning environment that will be conducive to a higher level achievement on the part of all students.'
