"WALL-TO-WALL" trucks and cars on Interstate 65 fifteen miles north of Lafayette, Ind., near Remington stand mired in drifts nearly eight feet high following a blizzard. Six storm-related deaths have been reported in the state. Hundreds of motorists, stranded by the inclement weather, took shelter in National Guard armories.

Carter may propose four-day work week

By The Associated Press

Frigid weather and a windwhipped blizzard brought much of the East and Midwest almost to a standstill Saturday, closing roads, factories, businesses and places of entertainment.

President Carter said Saturday he may urge that industries go on a four-day work week because of the shortage of natural gas brought on by heavy demand during the cold spell which gripped much of the nation.

The freezing or subzero weather that hit much of the eastern half of the country during the early morning hours followed a blizzard that dumped as much as 14 inches of snow on the Northeast.

At least 36 weather-related deaths have been recorded in eight states during the recent brutal weather.

Carter's announcement came as a special Cabinet meeting sought to find new sources of fuel to make up for the natural gas shortage.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said the President has been receiving reports "on the worsening situation Friday evening and Saturday morning."

Carter presided at the start of the Cabinet meeting and called for coordination of all of government agencies that have some dealings with energy-related problems.

The President also said he was ordering federal disaster relief for New York and Pennsylvania because of the extreme cold, snow and ice in those states and will sign emergency aid legislation for Florida on Monday because of weather-inflicted crop losses there.

Carter also urged the governors of some 17 states to give him assessments of their current energy problems.

He pointed out that 11 states are in "some degree of crisis" and six states are having problems because of blizzard conditions.

Powell said White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger has found there is "a significant amount of fuel," particularly natural gas that could take care of the immediate emergency if Congress quickly passes legislation Carter has proposed.

He did not explain what kind of fuel was involved or where it was.

The Cabinet meeting was called to discuss what resources are available to help deal with the energy problem now and in the future.

Schlesinger has said that the energy crisis, which has already thrown more than half a million people out of work, could soon cause a shortage of gas to heat homes.

State officials trying to conserve what natural gas is available in areas hit by the shortage have generally given essential services and homes priority access to natural gas. Some have said this could lead to even larger layoffs in coming days.

New gas shutoffs in New York state were expected to more than double the 100,000 layoffs recorded there.

The gas crisis prompted Gov. Hugh Carey to order on Saturday that all schools in the state heated by natural gas close down for the coming week. He also suspended all laws requiring that apartment buildings be kept at temperatures above 65 degrees.

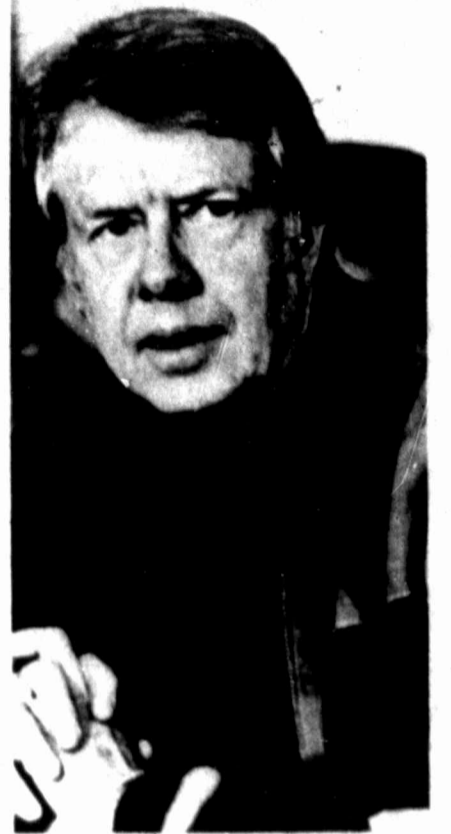

Thus far the natural gas shortage has affected businesses primarily, but New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne has expressed the fear that the low supplies soon will be exhausted. He urged homeowners to keep their thermostats at 65, saying that each one-degree reduction in the setting cuts natural gas use by 4 per cent.

Congress is rapidly moving to enact emergency natural gas legislation proposed by President Carter this past week.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd predicted on Saturday that the legislation would be approved this week.

The measure would allow Carter to reallocate natural gas and would grant temporary authority to interstate pipelines to buy gas that is not subject to price controls from intrastate state pipelines.

Martin County selects Fryar as top farmer

STANTON — Danny Fryar, who farms cotton on 2,000 acres in Martin and Howard counties, Saturday night was named Martin County's Farmer of the Year 1976 at the county's annual Chamber of Commerce banquet.

"I think it's an honor," said Terry Franklin, who presented Fryar with the No. 1 farmer's plaque. "I think our community totally depends on farming."

Named Outstanding Citizens were Bob Haislip, a lumber company manager who doubles as chief of the community's volunteer fire department, and Mrs. P. M. (Mary Kathryn) Bristow, the community's comforter.

"She (Mrs. Bristow) has always been one of the very first to comfort those in sorrow," said Jendo Turner, who presented the honoree with a plaque.

"We admire and respect a fighter," Mrs. Turner said. "She's definitely the best fighter I know. When she was told she had cancer, she didn't say, 'Well, that's it.' Mrs. Bristow is in her fourth year combating the disease.

For what she does in comforting others, Mrs. Bristow expects nothing in return "except the happiness in her heart."

Rodger Burch presented the Outstanding Citizen plaque to Haislip.

"He's been a real asset to the community," Burch said of Haislip.

Recognition-of-service plaques were presented to the Martin County Hospital and to the volunteer fire department.

In other fanfare, Martin County Judge Jimmy Mathis bade his farewells as chamber president and turned the job's duties over to George Hedstrom, manager of the Texas Electric Service Co. in Stanton.

Man takes $1,000 from La Bodega

La Bodega Restaurant, 2700 N. Big Spring St., was robbed of an estimated $1,000 Saturday night by a man who said he had a gun, Midland police said.

Midland police said a man in his early 20s entered the restaurant about 9:30 p.m. and told the manager he had a gun and demanded money. No gun was reportedly shown, however.

The robbery was carried out so quickly and quietly that many restaurant patrons said they were unaware that the restaurant had been robbed.

Midland police were continuing their investigation late Saturday night.

Marriage of athlete, college definitely not made in heaven

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The term "community college" is often used to describe two-year institutions such as Midland College — but most of the better athletes at these colleges are far from their home communities.

Why? And how do they get to these small colleges they probably never heard of before?

Rick Daniel

Harold Wilder, athletic director at Howard College, is among those coaches who believe that many of the better athletes, particularly in basketball, are academically deficient and cannot get into National Collegiate Athletic Association (major four-year) colleges.

Wilder said there are so many junior colleges in this area, "there are not enough quality players to go around," and most of the best high school athletes from surrounding towns will go to four-year schools.

"If you could recruit the best players in District 5-4A, they could compete in our Western Conference. But you can't compete with second-rate players," Wilder said.

Former Midland College athletic director Chester Story said the best athletes are from the big cities and the lower entrance requirements for eligibility at a junior college is "the big selling point" for many basketball players.

Less than half of the Midland College basketball team is comprised of students with academic problems but "maybe that smaller per cent is where the best players are," Story said.

Money like Andrew's Roberts — it talks

Oh, what money cannot buy! And what it can!

"Money can buy many things," noted the all-time great Andrews emcee, James Roberts. His cup runneth over with candor.

The greenback can buy a man's time. (Oh, can a man's talent, skill, knowledge, judgment, toiling be purchased? No, never. Only his time may be borrowed. And, pray, what is the price of a man's or of a woman's productive time?)

Money can buy buildings and a myriad of sundry "things" that might compel a person to sell his time.

But there are some things the payroll cannot fathom. "Money cannot buy a man's enthusiasm, his zeal, his dedication to a cause or his goal. . . ." Roberts said.

Well, Roberts brought up that idea in leading up to Andrews County's Outstanding Man of the Year — J. W. "Jay" Moxley, for 24 years a county commissioner.

Moxley's zest helped the community progress via roadways and airstrips, among other modes.

Obviously, it took a good deal of money to buy materials, equipment and workers' time in making Moxley's causes pay off.

Booting around: "Those are Wellingtons," the fellow commented, on another's pair of boots. "No," the wearer responded, "they're Justins." Heel, heel.

Ho-hum unsettled, for real: The credit manager dropped by his company attorney's office to check on a lawsuit. Routine business.

Suddenly, an older man whipped out a pistol and angrily lashed out at an attorney. No shots were fired. But the attorney kicked his heels and started an in-earnest game of chase down the hallway. He was the front-runner.

A secretary swooned.

And the police, joining in on the chase, swooped in and corralled the seemingly wild man.

"(Heretofore), the most exciting thing that happened to me was getting a cup of coffee" at the law office, the credit guy said.

Carter clan rebuts rebate doubts by recalling 1975

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tax rebate of at least $50 is a virtual certainty for most Americans this year, but what isn't certain in the minds of some is whether the rebate plan will achieve President Carter's goal of stimulating sustained economic growth.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., and other lawmakers last week wondered aloud why the Carter administration thought its stimulus plan would work any better to promote solid economic growth than past programs, such as the 1975 tax rebate plan.

The purpose of the 1975 rebate and of Carter's plan is to put more spending money in the hands of consumers.

Hopefully, this will initiate a self-sustaining cycle of greater production, more employment, more consumption and, eventually, new investment by business and industry to expand production capacity.

Economists blame poor investment activity last year as a reason for the slowdown in economic growth.

Two years ago, Congress and then-President Gerald R. Ford worked out a similar tax rebate, whose purpose also was to get the economy moving.

That rebate provided for a 10 per cent refund on a taxpayer's tax bill, up to a maximum rebate of $200. A total of $8.2 billion was paid out, with an average rebate per taxpayer of $125.

Carter's proposal is for rebate and to start economic recovery.

He said the U.S. Gross National Product increased 7.3 per cent in the 12 months after the rebate while per capita consumption of Americans payments of $50 per dependent for each taxpayer, with additional $50 payments for Social Security recipients and low-income persons who already obtain the earned income credit.

Under the Carter plan, a family of six, for example, would receive a rebate of $300, since each dependent is entitled to $50. The total amount of the Carter rebate would be $11.4 billion.

If Congress goes along with Carter's plan, as expected, rebate checks will be in the mail to most Americans beginning in April, with everybody being paid by June at the latest.

Carter officials claim rebates will reach 96 per cent of Americans, while the 1975 rebate reached 89 per cent of the population. Some four million poor Americans, who don't have children or who don't file a tax return or who don't receive Social Security payments, will be excluded.

Carter administration economists are optimistic the Carter rebate will work to stimulate the economy.

As evidence, they cite the 1975 rebate.

Charles L. Schultz, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisors, said the 1975 rebate "did work" in helping to halt the recession jumped 6 per cent in that period.

"People did spend, not immediately, but over a period of the first, second and third quarters," he said.

"The problem was, it didn't last long enough," Schultz said.

As Schultz sees it, the 1975 rebate wasn't followed up by anything else, so after Americans spent their rebate, everything went flat again.

Carter aims to solve that problem by having other measures ready to take over when the impact of the rebate wears off, Schultz said. These include a permanent tax cut later this year, tax incentives for business, and jobs and public works programs that will extend through 1978.

'Free speech' bills flood Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rights of free expression of citizens, newspapers, lobbyists and broadcasters could be affected by legislation expected to come before Congress this year.

Some bills are designed to expand freedom of speech while others would curtail that freedom. It is too early to predict which proposals have the best chance of enactment.

The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, which monitors First Amendment related legislation, says there were 64 bills affecting the news media in the last Congress.

All but half a dozen of those legislative proposals died in committee. Among those which became law were measures opening federal regulatory agency meetings to the public, allowing attorneys' fees to be awarded to plaintiffs in some lawsuits brought by the media and permitting newspapers to publish lottery information.

A bill requiring lobbyists to meet certain registration and auditing requirements was unsuccessful last year but is expected to come up again in the new Congress. Common Cause, a lobbying group, fought for the bill but the American Civil Liberties Union and consumer advocate Ralph Nader's Congress Watch, often allied with Common Cause on other issues, opposed it.

"General motors could meet these requirements with the flick of an eyelash," said Joan Claybrook of Congress Watch, "but we're afraid many citizens' lobbyist groups might decide to disband" rather than comply with the requirements.

The bill passed the House last year, but did not clear the Senate. A House Judiciary Committee aide indicated a House panel is likely to take it up again soon.

Its opponents will argue that it infringes upon the constitutional right of a citizen to petition the government.

Among the bills already introduced in this session is a renewal by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., of his proposal to repeal the Fairness Doctrine and equal time requirements for broadcasters.

The Fairness Doctrine requires broadcasters to give opportunities for the presentation of contrasting viewpoints on public issues. The equal time rule says that when a political candidate is given or sold broadcast time, his opponents must be provided an equal opportunity.

Although the Supreme Court has declined to strike the provisions down, Proxmire maintains they exclude broadcasters from the full scope of the First Amendment's freedom of the press guarantee.

Meanwhile, the staff of the Senate Intelligence Committee is working on bills to curb practices that the committee has said violate the rights of free speech and assembly.

Those practices were the focus of a congressional report last year that recommended legislation barring the Central Intelligence Agency from infiltrating groups within the United States, prohibiting the Army from spying on Americans as a means of guarding against potential civil disorders, and prohibiting the Internal Revenue Service from gathering information about individuals for any but tax purposes.

Twelve bombs jolt London

LONDON (AP)—Twelve bomb explosions rocked central London early Saturday, and a man claiming to represent the Irish Republican Army later said the Irish guerrilla organization was responsible.

In an anonymous telephone call to the Sunday Mirror newspaper office in Manchester, the man said, "The Provisional IRA claim full responsibility for the bombings in London."

"The campaign will continue throughout England until the British government announces a declaration of withdrawal of its army out of Northern Ireland."

The mostly Roman Catholic IRA has been waging a campaign of violence for seven years to oust the British from Northern Ireland and unite the largely Protestant province with the Irish republic to the south.

The bomb attack in the Oxford Street shopping district was the first London bombing since last June and came between midnight and 5 a.m.

Bombs were left in mail boxes, doorways and inside department stores. The biggest blast was in the basement luggage department of Selfridge's, a shopping mecca for tourists.

Oxford Street, Regent Street, and the entire area from Marble Arch to Piccadilly Circus — one of the world's busiest shopping districts — was blocked off while trained police dogs sniffed for more bombs. Thousands of shoppers were turned away and merchants estimated more than $1.7 million in lost business.

The barriers came down at 10 a.m. and the first wary shoppers clambered over debris and glass in the blitzed areas. Storefronts were charred from blazes started by the bombs.

Scotland Yard warned shoppers everywhere in London to keep their eyes open.

One tourist reported, "I went into Harrods to do some shopping and put my briefcase down for a few seconds, and everyone went berserk."

The biggest blitz to hit London since 14 explosions in three months at the start of 1976, coincided with the trial at the Old Bailey Central Criminal Court of four accused IRA terrorists. They face 25 charges of murder, bombing and of holding a middle-age couple hostage for six days in their London apartment in December 1975.

Their crimes, police allege, include the 1975 murder of Ross McWhirter, copublisher with his twin brother of the Guinness Book of Records.

Black History Month Review (1977): Allensworth, Calif.—Our informed sources report that the old, black pioneer town of Allensworth, located on Central Valley Highway 43 and the Santa Fe Railroad out of Earlimart on Freeway 99, has been officially dedicated.

Oct. 9, 1976, marked the end of a 10-year struggle of black Californians to institute recognition of the California black pioneers in the California Park System.

The California Parks System Commission set a budget of $6 million for initial developments and restoration of the park. A blue-ribbon statewide committee of black folks was appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to wage an unrelenting battle to bring about the restoration and development of Allensworth.

The committee enlisted the endorsement and active support of nearly every major black group in California. The feasibility study was ordered, completed, adopted and signed into law.

New story of 'Mormon will' being checked

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Melvin Dummar, the key figure in the controversy surrounding the validity of the so-called "Mormon will" allegedly authored by the late Howard Hughes, says the truth came out here last week.

Dummar voluntarily came to Las Vegas to testify about what he knows about the purported will. For 3 1/2 days, attorneys for Hughes' relatives and former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich put Dummar on the witness stand during a pre-trial probate hearing before Clark County District Court Judge Keith Hayes.

"I believe part of the truth came out here, most all of the truth, but this is only the beginning," Dummar said Friday before returning to his home in Ogden, Utah. "I'm sure the truth will prevail in this matter and that it will be shown. But I don't know in what manner that proof will come."

"I'm glad I came down here," said Dummar, adding that he doesn't feel any animosity towards the attorneys who grilled him hours at a time.

"I'm gonna go back and see if I can go back to work, if I'm not fired for being down here so long," Dummar told reporters before leaving the courthouse.

Dummar's credibility was at issue. Dummar, 32, stands to inherit more than $100 million if the three-page, handwritten document is declared the legal.

When the will was first discovered last April 27 on the 25th floor of the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City, Dummar expressed surprise that he was named as a beneficiary. He insisted that he had never seen or touched the will, and told a story about picking up a man in the Nevada desert north of here nine years ago this month.

The old man, Dummar said, identified himself as Hughes.

Dummar said he gave the man some change and a ride to a Las Vegas hotel where Hughes was known to have lived at the time.

But when it was revealed in December that Dummar's thumbprint had been found on the outside envelope which contained the purported will, his story began to change.

At first Dummar said that his print might have been transferred to the envelope at the orders of officers of the Summa Corp., the umbrella firm which now oversees Hughes' vast empire.

But Dummar changed his explanation when Hayes ordered that the will be sent to Washington for extensive tests by the FBI.

Dummar then said he delivered the will to the church, and said his prints would be found because he steamed open the envelope and read the will.

But Dummar steadfastly adhered to the claim that he didn't forge the will.

After three admittedly phony versions of what transpired, Dummar told the fourth in court here, and said he will stand by it.

Dummar claimed a mysterious stranger apparently left the will at the service station he used to operate in Willard, Utah. The will was delivered last April 27, 22 days after Hughes died while on a flight from Acapulco to Houston for emergency medical treatment.

Attorneys trying to crack him on the stand were unsuccessful, but they did show many inconsistencies in his story.

"He (Dummar) has not proven himself to be a credible witness. That's as polite as I can get," said Hayes after concluding the hearing.

Congressional study raps lack of health insurance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half of all Americans have inadequate or no insurance protection against the high cost of health care, a new congressional study said Saturday.

The study concludes that low-income families are most likely to have serious health coverage problems, and found that insurance often does not exist for long-term health care and mental health services.

The report from the Congressional Budget Office suggests four possible programs to provide relief, variously costing the federal government from $12 billion to $79 billion if they were in effect for fiscal 1978.

About 101 million persons have no or inadequate protection, while coverage of 127 million ranges from adequate to good, the report said.

An estimated 40 million persons with family incomes projected to be less than $10,000 for fiscal year 1978 are either uninsured for health care, or not eligible for Medicaid, or hold individual health insurance policies whose coverage "is generally very poor," the report said.

It also said that 5.6 million families with projected fiscal 1978 income of less than $10,000 will spend more than 15 per cent of their income on uninsured medical expenses.

Alice M. Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, said in a statement accompanying the report that additional catastrophic protection against high dollar expenses for middle-income families would largely duplicate existing private insurance coverage.

President Carter supports the basic concept of a federal health insurance plan. Administration officials, however, have said Carter won't push for it immediately, preferring instead to wait until the economy picks up.

The congressional report, observing that Congress is likely in the next two years to consider a larger federal role in financing medical care, listed these four possible programs to provide relief:

—Supplement basic private insurance and Medicare to pay only very high expenses, not average expenses of low-income families. This would cost the government between $12 billion and $13 billion in fiscal 1978, and would mainly benefit middle-income families.

—Cover all out-of-pocket expenses that exceed a designated proportion of income. For example, such a plan might pay all medical costs that exceeded 15 per cent of family income, at a cost of $14.9 billion to the government in fiscal 1978. The Budget Office said this proposal still would force low-income families to commit a substantial share of their income to medical care but could leave some middle- and high-income families with such a potential liability for high out-of-pocket expenses that they would keep their private insurance plans.

—Pay total expenses of low-income families and exceptionally high expenses of Medicare beneficiaries, and encourage expanded protection through private insurance for middle-income families. This would cost the government $24 billion.

—Pay catastrophic health expenses of low- and middle-income families under a uniform and universal plan. This would cost the government $79 billion for fiscal 1978. The Budget Office said such a plan would "actually be an extremely expensive comprehensive national health insurance plan..." covering about 95 per cent of family health

Spanish terrorists claim killings

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A mysterious terrorist group known as GRAPO claimed responsibility Saturday for the slaying of three Madrid policemen and threatened to step up its attacks on the Spanish government, already shaken by a week of bloody political violence.

Police rounded up scores of leftist extremists Saturday in the hunt for the killers. Premier Adolfo Suarez prepared to address the nation on radio and television about the growing political crisis, Spain's worst since long-time right-wing dictator Francisco Franco died 14 months ago.

Before the premier spoke, hundreds of military officials and police turned out for funeral services for the slain policemen. Crowding around the coffins, they chanted "Franco! Franco!" and demanded Suarez' resignation.

New violence broke out Saturday in the restive Basque region of northern Spain. Police reported five scattered bombings that caused no injuries, and the news agency Europa Press said an off-duty policeman in the city of Santander shot and killed one of four youths who attacked him in a night club. No motive was given for the attack.

The independent liberal newspaper Informaciones said it received a note, left in a Madrid cafe, in which the GRAPO terrorists said they killed the three officers Friday because "it is the only thing the Fascist regime understands — answering violence with violence."

The obscure group, whose full name is the First of October Anti-Fascist Resistance Group, purports to be a far-left organization and has claimed responsibility for two recent political kidnappings.

The group takes its name from the date Oct. 1, 1975, when four Madrid policemen were shot and killed. GRAPO said it was responsible for those murders.

The note said GRAPO would free kidnapped royal adviser Antonio Maria de Oriol and Lt. Gen. Emilio Villaescusa, a military judge, if the government releases Spain's political prisoners, most of whom are Communists and Basque separatists.

If the political prisoners are not freed, the note added, "we will continue making prisoners of high state officials."

Trudeau berates critics

QUEBEC CITY, Canada (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, waging a federalist campaign in separatist-controlled Quebec, has chastised English-Canadians for fighting the government's language policy.

"Many English say, 'Don't leave us, we need you,'" the Quebec-born Trudeau said Friday night. "But, you English-Canadians, what are you doing about it? Are you going to beef when you see French on a Campbell's soup can or on a box of corn flakes?"

He said those who object to Quebec's Official Language Act, which assures the use of French as well as English in business and schools, should realize Quebec has been more generous to its English minority than other Canadian provinces have been to their French minorities.

Trudeau said the issue of bilingualism was involved in the coming political battle over whether Quebec will remain within the 110-year-old Canadian federation of provinces.

"If we, the federal government, the parliament, do not present a formula acceptable to all, then federalism is finished; the country is finished."

Twenty believed dead in Minnesota fire

BRECKENRIDGE, Minn. (AP) — Searchers were digging Saturday for bodies of an estimated 20 persons believed killed in a fire that destroyed the 80-room Stratford Hotel.

The hotel, built in 1910, had a staff of four and 40 or 50 rooms. Mayor Hugh Mikkelsen said.

The city radio dispatcher Robert Blackwelder, received a telephone call at 4:59 a.m. Friday that the hotel was on fire.

Authorities said they were puzzled why only one person escaped from the three-story brick building in downtown Breckenridge. The fire was reported at 4:59 a.m. Friday but the building was engulfed when firemen arrived minutes later.

Only Douglas Johnson, 41, of Aberdeen, S.D., escaped the building when police put a ladder up to his second-floor window.

The number of possible victims has varied from 20 to 28 as officials checked a list of persons who might have stayed in the hotel.

Fire and snow ravage Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A blizzard that dealt Buffalo a knockout blow was dying slowly Saturday, but thousands of people still were stranded in downtown office buildings, taverns and wherever they could find shelter.

At least seven persons were found dead in stranded cars in the city and its suburbs, the Erie County morgue reported, and officials said they feared even more dead would be found.

Sheriff Kenneth J. Braun of Erie County asked Gov. Hugh Carey to send helicopters to help in the search for people who might still be stranded in cars in the 7-below temperature. "Time is of the essence," he said.

Firemen early Saturday brought under control a five-alarm fire that destroyed eight houses on the city's West Side.

Some fire trucks never reached the scene. One was bogged down behind 30 stalled cars and buses. Another came to a halt behind a dozen abandoned autos.

Officials called in off-duty fire fighters and alerted the Civil Defense when it was feared for a time that the entire neighborhood might go up in flames.

Buffalo Fire Commissioner Karl Kubiak urged snowmobile owners to make their equipment available if needed, and Buffalo police were using snowmobiles.

The storm that struck the Buffalo area shortly before noon Friday closed a 323-mile stretch of the New York State Thruway from Amsterdam, near Albany, to the Pennsylvania state line.

Ben Colker, a National Weather Service meteorologist who has been in Buffalo 38 years, said, "It is the worst storm I have ever seen."

He said the blizzard hit Buffalo with a funnel effect, packing winds of 35 to 40 miles per hour and gusts as high as 75.

Only four inches of fresh snow fell, but the winds whipped snow off Lake Erie.

Walking in a white-out, Clifford Keyser, 80, fights his way to his waterfront apartments during the two-day blizzard which hit Buffalo, N.Y., Friday afternoon.

Ice causes logjam of fuel boats on river

The Washington Post

LOUISVILLE — Workmen in small boats, bobbing among ice floes like Eskimo hunters, braved sub-zero temperatures Friday and Saturday to open the lower Ohio River to commercial vessels.

About 60 towboats and their barges, some carrying millions of gallons of gasoline and heating oil, had been logjammed on the Ohio where it separates Kentucky and Illinois.

The workers, locks tenders for the U.S. Corps of Engineers, struggled to raise more than 800 underwater wickets at three locations on the lower Ohio. The wickets are used to impound navigable pools in parts of the Ohio that would otherwise be too shallow for commercial vessels.

Heavy ice formations had forced the lowering of the wickets, creating an "open river" whose depth ranged down to only two feet. Major tows require a depth of at least nine feet.

Using specially equipped boats, the locks employees raised the wickets by hooking and pulling steel bars at each wicket. Through this laborious process, they triggered the raising of each wicket on its hinges. The wickets, 16 1-2 feet high and four feet wide, had been lowered to rest flat on the river bottom.

Until Wednesday, the wickets' position did not matter. An ice gorge at Carrsville, Ky., had blocked the river with a natural dam as much as 12 feet high. But towboats were able to ram through the ice Wednesday, opening a passage about 100 yards wide. The open channel is being maintained, though ice is floating through it and tows must remain active to keep the ice from reforming.

According to the Corps of Engineers, raising the wickets is risky; they could be damaged or destroyed by heavy chunks of floating ice. A spokesman said the Corps decided to raise them and create a navigable pool, despite the risk, because river cargoes are needed to desperately upriver.

The Corps spokesman said it will take several days for the water to reach its navigable depth. It is hoped that the tows will be able to begin moving upriver — slowly — by Monday.

Colorado eyes cloud-seeding to increase year's snowfall

DENVER (AP) — East of the Rockies, it's been the worst winter in years. But there's been so little snow in ski-oriented Colorado that they're willing to pay for it.

Gov. Richard Lamm's office on Friday unveiled legislation that would authorize $187,000 for a cloud-seeding project, hoping to increase snowfall in the mountains and augment water runoff next spring.

"We've got an emergency out there and we've got to act," Lamm said.

Only 17.2 inches of snow has fallen in Denver this winter. The National Weather Service said that if this were an average year, 36.2 inches would have fallen.

The state's ski resorts have reported losses of nearly $10 million this season because of the scarcity of snow.

In Aspen, resorts are receiving 200 cancellations a day, and the city is expected to contribute to the cloud-seeding program if the state funds are approved by the General Assembly.

"If the remainder of our snow period returns to normal, we would still end up with only 60 to 70 per cent of our average snowfall," Lamm said.

Federal weather officials say that in many parts of the state, the drought is the worst in four decades.

"We started taking measurements in the early '30s and some areas are reporting record low amounts of snow," said Bernie Shafer of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. "This could create extreme water shortage problems this summer, especially for farmers who depend on irrigation."

Officials warned on Friday that if the snow shortage continues, farmers may have no irrigation water this summer in three southeastern counties.

Former UMW boss 'Tony' Boyle claims new trial tends to back his plea of innocence

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former mine workers boss W.A. "Tony" Boyle, granted a new murder trial, says, "It just goes to show that when I said I was innocent, I was."

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court Friday set aside Boyle's conviction on charges he ordered the 1969 assassination of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, who had unsuccessfully challenged him for the presidency of the 200,000-member United Mine Workers Union.

The court said Boyle, 76, deserved a new trial because he was denied his right to present evidence from which the jury might have inferred he was not involved in the Yablonski slayings.

Boyle's attorney, Charles Peruto, said he hoped to have Boyle freed immediately on bail.

Warden James Howard of the Western State Penitentiary in Pittsburgh said that after he told Boyle of the decision "a look of relief came over his face." Boyle suffers from a heart ailment and was in the prison hospital.

Boyle was sentenced in 1973 to three life terms in prison for the deaths of Yablonski, his wife Margaret and their daughter Charlotte.

They were shot on New Year's Eve in 1969 by three hired gunmen as they slept in their rural Clarksville, Pa., home. The bodies were discovered five days later.

At the trial that followed, the prosecution charged that Boyle conspired to kill Yablonski because of the election challenge and Yablonski's threat to have the election invalidated.

William Turnblazer, who admitted the shootings, testified that Boyle gave the orders. Boyle called Turnblazer a liar.

The election was set aside in 1972, and Boyle then lost to Arnold Miller, the current union leader.

During the trial, Boyle's attorneys claimed that officials of UMW District 19, which includes mines in Tennessee and Kentucky, conspired and hired the killers without his knowledge. They contended that the District 19 officials feared Yablonski was planning to publicize irregular financial transactions in the district.

The state supreme court said Friday that Boyle should have been allowed to introduce testimony from a federal auditor who checked on District 19's finances, thus airing before the jury possible motives of Turnblazer and Albert Pass, the District 19 officers who were convicted of the shootings.

DIRT, SQUIRT, QUIRT Pruning trees requires care

By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Farm Agent

If woody ornamentals in your landscape need corrective pruning, the time is at hand. The key to pruning is to have a purpose in mind. If you cannot justify the removal of a limb or branch, you better put up your equipment and go spade the garden for exercise.

Some reasons for pruning include removing dead or winterkilled growth or balancing the top with the root system when setting out new plants. Diseased or insect-injured wood as well as storm or accident-damaged limbs should be removed as soon as possible. Older shrubs can be rejuvenated by removing the older branches at the base.

Pruning can also help develop a desired shape or size as well as aid in producing better flowers and fruit. However, be very careful not to prune too severely. It is better to prune lightly and more often to prevent sunscald to sensitive inner branches.

The most common mistake made is to do no pruning for several years, then topping or "dehorning" large trees. Topping or dehorning should only be done when some serious damage or weakness makes it mandatory. Removal of a large portion of any tree may favor fungus and insect attack and also increases the possibility of bark scalding due to sudden exposure of tender tissue to strong sun's rays.

Topping involves the removal of much potential leaf surface and may seriously affect the food supply and weaken the tree. Of course, if a tree is allowed to get rather large, it may shade itself and sufficient sunlight is necessary for development of good foliage. Thinning, or removal of, many small branches is more desirable than removal of large ones, however. This reduces the amount of sunscald, makes the work less conspicuous and makes it easier to maintain the desired shape. In making cuts never leave stubs that invite the entry of insects and diseases.

Make all cuts flush with an existing branch as much as possible. Paint all wounds and cuts over three-fourths of an inch in diameter with a wound dressing available at any nursery or garden center. In lieu of regular wound dressing, common orange shellac makes a good temporary dressing. Plants which bloom in early spring with the appearance of new leaves should be pruned after they flower. Those that bloom later in the spring or summer should be pruned now while they are dormant. To make pruning easier and for good, smooth cuts, always use sharp tools.

Shade trees seldom require supplemental fertilization in lawn areas where a good lawn maintenance program is followed. Fertilizing trees once every three years is sufficient except in very sandy soils. Over-fertilization of trees can force excessive top growth, making them vulnerable to storm and wind damage. Over-fertilization is especially probable if a tree's root zone is confined to a limited area and this fact is overlooked.

The safest method of computing the amount of fertilizer to use on a tree is this: Figure the number of square feet included in the branch spread of the tree and then use two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

For example, a tree having a 36-foot branch spread would cover about 1,000 square feet. This would require 12 pounds of a fertilizer with an analysis of 16-4-4 to supply the two pounds of actual nitrogen required (12 X .16 = 1.92). A fertilizer analysis of 45-0-0 would require only 4.5 pounds to supply the needed nitrogen. The same complete fertilizers recommended for lawn use will be satisfactory for fertilizing trees in Midland County.

If a tree's zone is confined due to buildings, curbs, walks or streets compute the fertilizer application on the basis of actual root zone. More frequent applications may be needed when root zones are confined. Normally, trees should be fertilized in late winter or early spring. For shade trees requiring nitrogen only, the fertilizer can be broadcast evenly beneath the branch spread of the tree and then watered thoroughly. If phosphorus is needed then this should be placed in holes punched 12 to 18 inches deep in the drip area.

Family facing eviction by HUD

DETROIT (AP) — When Mary Guinnane gave birth to quadruplets 16 years ago, their four tiny faces were pictured in Detroit's newspapers.

Last week, Mrs. Guinnane, her husband Gerard and their seven youngsters — including the quads — face eviction from their home because of a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulation.

The Guinnanes used to own the house. But six years ago they fell behind in their mortgage payments, a finance company foreclosed, HUD paid the mortgage and took over the property. Ever since, the family has been paying $141 a month rent to HUD.

But last September, the department returned the rent check, and told the Guinnanes they could either buy the house — for $17,000 — or move out.

Nobody knows why HUD waited six years to act. But the department's Detroit deputy director, William Harris, said the eviction is necessary because it's the rule.

The Guinnanes say they'd love to buy the house, but not for $17,000. According to Mrs. Guinnane, an appraiser told her the property was worth about $6,000.

"What the Guinnanes are saying is forget the fact we had to go through foreclosure, sell this property to me at a price I say is right," Harris said.

The villain, apparently, is a HUD rule that says anyone who loses a house because of an unpaid mortgage, and later elects to buy the home back, must pay 105 per cent of the mortgage amount plus repair costs.

Ironically, Mrs. Guinnane said, it was another HUD official who told her and her husband to let their mortgage lapse in the first place. When they complained about mounting repair costs, she said, the official told them to let the finance company foreclose and then HUD would rent them the home.

It's hard to predict how much the house would bring on the open market once the Guinnanes are evicted. HUD has owned as many as 17,000 houses and vacant lots in Detroit at one time because it couldn't find buyers.

Some 3,000 of those houses have been torn down after vandals destroyed them.

Southwest wins again

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For the eighth time in three years, federal judges have refused to approve efforts to force Southwest Airlines to move to the new Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport instead of remaining at Love Field.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday upheld U.S. District Court Judge William Taylor, who blocked an effort by other airlines to fight the legal issue all over again—this time in state court.

Taylor issued an injunction to stop state court action, saying the issue was decided in federal court in 1973.

"Once again, we repeat, Southwest Airlines Company has a federally declared right to the continued use and access to Love Field so long as Love Field remains open," the appeals court said Friday.

Airlines using the $600 million Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport contend it won't earn enough in landings and rental fees unless all airlines use it.

Kaserer slalom winner

MEGEVE, France (AP) — Austria's 24-year-old veteran Monika Kaserer plowed through a fog bank Saturday to win the giant slalom of the World Cup ski meet here, a narrow two-hundredths of a second ahead of Switzerland's World Cup leader Lise-Marie Morerod.

The brunette Austrian giant slalom specialist said she used a 3-year-old pair of skis "that proved just ideal for the soft snow on the course." She had not won a race in the current season although her repeated placings in the top 10 have her in sixth place in the unchanged World Cup standings.

"I hope this ends my bad luck streak," she said at the finish. Now in her eighth international racing season, she took first place in the World Cup giant slalom standings in 1973 and won the Alpine combined bronze medal in the 1974 World Championships. Last season she won only two races—both of them giant slaloms.

"I'm delighted with this result," she said. "It gives me that special spurt my morale needed for the rest of the season."

Saturday's 1150-meter race, including a 360-meter drop and 52 gates, had to be postponed for an hour because of fog on the Mont d'Arbois track. Thick patches of fog still lay across the course when officials finally gave the go ahead.

Miss Kaserer finished in 1:34.87, followed by Miss Morerod in 1:34.89, Austrian superchampion Annemarie Moser-Proell in 1:35.06, and 21-year-old Vicki Fleckenstein, of Syracuse, N.Y., fourth in 1:35.40.

The Austrian girls placed five in the top 10, avenging their defeat by the French team in Friday's special slalom won by newcomer Perrine Pelen. Miss Kaserer, in third place, was the only Austrian in the top 11. Fabienne Serrat was the best placed French girl in the giant slalom, in sixth place, while the Italians could do no better than 12th with Claudia Giordani.

The Americans placed three girls in the top eight for what U.S. Coach Hank Tauber described as "our best ever result in any World Cup race."

Tauber said Miss Fleckenstein beat all the other racers over the fog-shrouded lower half of the course. "She made a few errors on turns higher up but then picked up pace and finished the race at a speed that would have given her victory if she could have kept it up all along."

Abbi Fisher of South Conway, N.H., finished seventh in 1:36.28, a mere hundredth of a second in front of Becky Dorsey, from Wenham, Maine. Lea Solkner was ninth in 1:36.63, with Brigitte Totschnig-Habersater of Austria closing out the top 10 in 1:36.78.

Borg inks for meet

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden was confirmed Saturday as an entrant in a $50,000 tennis tournament that begins here Monday and was immediately seeded No. 1.

Borg, ranked No. 2 in the world, will play Henry Bunis of Cincinnati in a first-round match Tuesday night.

Borg's entry into the tournament was confirmed by Doug Tkachik of Dallas, an official of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

"We've known for several weeks that Borg was a possibility, but we wanted to keep things quiet until we were certain," said tournament director Larry Walton.

Borg earned $100,000 last week by defeating Jimmy Connors in three sets in the Grand Slam of Tennis.

Russians in decisive boxing victory over USA

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Russian strongman Igor Vysotski pounded out a decision over American heavyweight Jimmy Clark Saturday afternoon to lead the Soviet Union to decisive 7-4 victory over the U.S. boxing team in the ninth annual competition between the two countries.

The Americans have never beaten the Russians since the competition began in 1969, and Saturday's nationally televised matches marked the second big step for the Soviets toward the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

After a disappointing performance in the Montreal Olympics last summer, the Russians changed coaches and their heavyweight team came back with a victory over the Americans here in November.

Vysotski, a Siberian auto mechanic by trade, ran his record to 117-9. The 23-year-old Vysotski, who once beat world amateur and two-time Olympic champion Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba, sent Clark to the canvas with a hard left hook late in the first round.

Another clean left hook sent Clark, 22, of Coatesville, Pa., to the deck in the second round, but American referee Robert Surkein ruled that Clark slipped.

It was the rubber match between the two fighters. Clark stopped Vysotski on cuts in 1975, but the Russian boxer came back with a victory last year.

There were two controversial decisions during the afternoon and the Russians spotted the American team one point when Valerie Rashkov was unable to leave the Soviet Union and forfeited his match to Erasmos Gonzales of the U.S. Air Force.

The American team got the benefit of a doubt in the early going when Eiichi Jumawan of Hawaii was given the nod over Olympic bronze medalist Viktor Rybakov in the 125-pound division. Rybakov scored at will with a versatile left and combinations, but the two American judges apparently felt that Jumawan's counter-punching was more effective.

The crowd, estimated at 2,500, booed the decision in the 106-pound division when two Russian judges prevailed to give Vasily Plakushchy the decision over American Indian Adrian Dennis.

Dennis, a local favorite from Carson City, Nev., is the 1976 National Indian champion in his weight division, and had won 21 of 27 matches going into the bout.

He staggered the Russian for a standing eight-count in the first round, then scored heavily again in the second. But Plakushchy never stopped moving forward and scored heavily with quick combinations to the body and head throughout the fight, which apparently earned him his 94th victory against 21 losses.

MHS boosters meet Monday

The Midland High Booster Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Featured speaker will be Midland High basketball coach Don Humphrey. Humphrey will present a film on District 5-4A first half action of the Bulldogs.

All Midland High fans are invited to attend.

Connors gains net finals

but the 27-year-old former NCAA champion fought off set point.

Stockton, however, in the next game, held service in a 4-1 game, polishing off the set with a drop shot.

In the second set, they held service until the seventh game when Stockton broke through for a 4-3 advantage. Borowiak hit the score board trying to return a high lob, missed a volley and netted another point.

Stockton put the final game away in the 6-4 set with a forehand placement down the line.

The final set was the toughest for Stockton, who led 5-4 before Borowiak broke service to even the match. Stockton broke right back for a 6-5 lead, but Borowiak evened it again at 6-6 on Stockton's service and sent the match into a 13-point tie breaker.

Stockton won four of the first six points in the tie breaker and went on to win it 7-3 to wrap up the match.

Borowiak, the 1970 NCAA champion, earned a semifinal berth by beating some noted pros in Tom Okker, Vitas Gerulaitis, Harold Solomon and Vijay Amritraj. Gerulaitis and Solomon were among the top 16 seeds.

Wisconsin's Reuss critical of Carter's program

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., suggested today that Congress leave room in President Carter's $31.2 billion economic stimulus program for more jobs programs if needed.

He also proposed that Carter put a "high-level, live-wire jobs expeditor" in charge of all public employment programs.

Reuss, chairman of the House

Banking Committee, said the expeditor could be Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., "who at 65 has the dynamism of an 18-year-old." Other possibilities are Vice President Walter Mondale or former Rep. John Blatnik, D-Minn., veteran of the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps, he said.

Reuss made the suggestions in a speech prepared for the Wall Street

Conference of the New School for Social Research.

He expressed concern that Carter's first-year stimulus program budgets almost $14 billion in tax cuts and only $2 billion in direct public service and public works jobs.

Some of the program seems contradictory, said Reuss, who cited the provision that would give businesses a choice between a 2 per cent increase in the investment credit to reduce the cost of purchasing equipment, and a 4 per cent credit against Social Security taxes.

The payroll tax credit could induce an employer to hire an extra janitor, but he might instead decide to take the investment credit increase, buy an automatic floor-cleaning machine "and fire the janitor he already has," Reuss said.

Reuss proposed that Congress write into the fiscal 1978 budget "an extra unallocated bloc of job creation funds." He suggested no amount, but said the funds could later be spent on whatever job creating programs had proved most effective in the interim.

He also said Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal should mount "a joint exercise in moral suasion" to induce lending institutions to lower mortgage interest rates to help stimulate the housing industry.

"Supplies of mortgage funds are reported to be more than ample," he said. "Interest rates in the secondary mortgage market have edged down. Yet interest rates paid by individual home buyers actually have risen over the past year. There seems to be no good explanation for this distressing phenomenon."

Spring fashion theme--soft and feminine

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

The time has arrived in fashion when a woman can be expressive of herself—when she can show off her femininity, says one fashion store manager in Midland of the new spring styles.

Spring fashions are arriving daily in the Tall City, despite the fact many stores still are having their winter sales. But, when the sales are over, the spring fashions go out on the racks (if they are not there already).

To see what styles will be "in" this spring, one must take a look first at the designer fashions, for it is the designers who set the pace for the rest of the country.

John Ingram, manager of what he describes as a haute couture fashion shop, sees the fashions based around the concepts of femininity and a certain sophistication and culture.

Paris is no longer the fashion center, he says, but New York is with designers such as Bill Blass, Paul Schnel, Oscar de la Renta and Donald Brooks.

Although every designer comes out with a new line of clothes each season, Ingram declares there is nothing "really new" in fashion.

"Fashion is a cyclical thing. Good taste just continues and there are variations," he explains.

No matter what the era or what the season, the designer should always "enhance the woman he is dressing—the dress should be a contributing factor to the woman," Ingram says. Clothing should not be designed for the purpose of having a woman enhance it.

Designers are employing a "very easy, very feminine type of construction," Ingram says. Dresses have fuller sleeves and have non-constructed shoulders, or seams that fall below the shoulder line.

"Halston uses the nonconstructed shoulder a lot: he cuts the fabric on the bias and has several evening gowns with the dropped shoulder," Ingram says.

Keeping in line with the soft, feminine look, designers have brought out the gathered skirt, he adds.

Following this theme of gathers and softness, several Midland stores will be carrying the peasant look in blouses, skirts and dresses. Yvonne Trotter, owner of a woman's high fashion shop, explains the look also carries through in long skirts with one or two tiers of ruffles at the hemline.

Another major dress style will be the sundress. "The sundresses are with and without jackets. Some have an empire waistline, some are in the natural waist and some are gathered," Mrs. Trotter says.

Della Neal, owner of two clothing stores which cater to the younger generation and to women "who have kept their figures," also says the shirtwaist dress with a jacket will be a good style this spring.

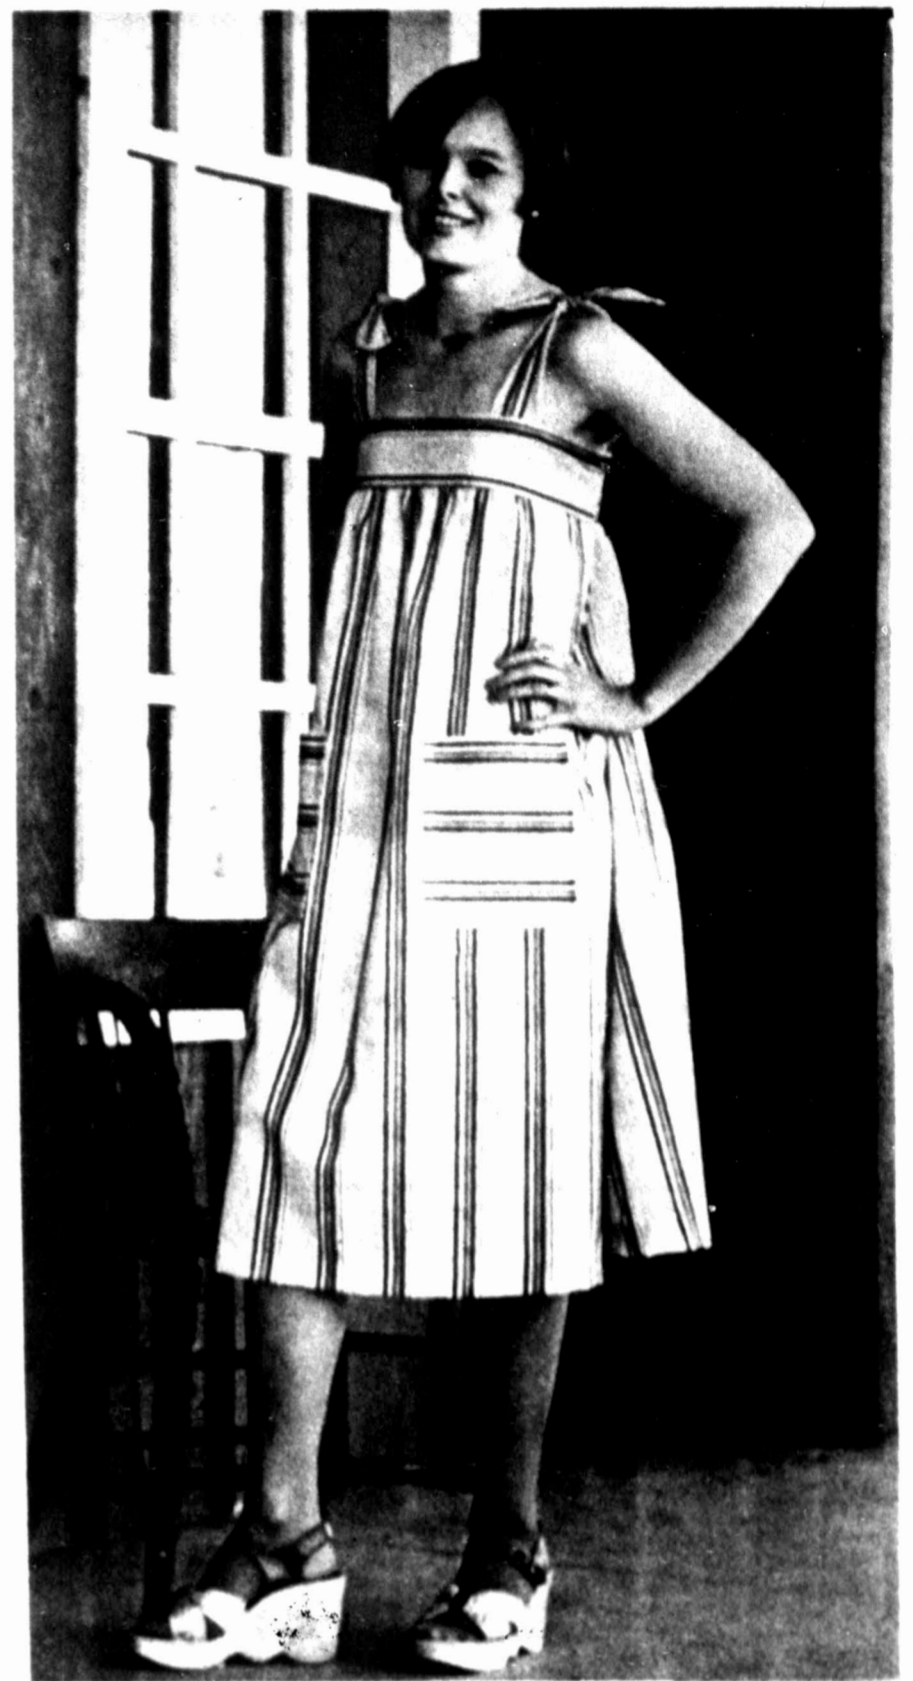

The fashion dealers all see the hemlines staying where they are, even though some Paris designers have re-introduced the mini in their summer shows. They all agree that no one length looks good on all women.

"The hemline should be a matter of good taste and preference," Ingram says. "For one woman a dress at mid-calf would look good while another woman would look good with the hemline at the knee."

One clothing store employee, Polly Mackey, echoes the thought, saying, "Women will wear lengths that look best on them, and not everyone can wear the same length."

Sportswear is the single most important department in any operation today, according to Ingram. There is high style in it with designers such as Bill Blass, Calvin Klein, and Paul Schnel.

Auxiliary keeps residents busy

Residents at Trinity Towers don't have time to just sit around and do nothing—not when the Trinity Towers Auxiliary is there to keep them busy.

The auxiliary started in March 1971 with 23 charter members and has grown to 90 persons. Various services ranging from birthday parties and Bible studies to exercise classes are provided by the auxiliary members.

Games are held once a week and the monthly birthday party is sponsored on the fourth Tuesday of each month. Bible study classes are held on the second Thursday of each month.

For residents who prefer a regular listening program, an hour is set up on the fourth Friday for this purpose.

And for those residents who like to keep in shape, an exercise class meets twice a week.

Second and fifth floor residents see members of the auxiliary every morning when they bring a juice cart to every person on the floors.

Other auxiliary services include a serving group for parties, a visitation program, a decorations committee to change the decor with the changing seasons, a notions counter and a committee who takes charge of the desk.

Members also provide residents with assistance in shopping, transportation to doctors' offices and other places and arrangements for vesper services each Sunday.

Officers for 1977-78 include Mrs. Helen Luff, director; Mrs. Jo McGill, co-director; Mrs. Mildred Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Artamye Watts, recording secretary, and Mrs. Betty Hawkins, corresponding secretary.

Good laundering keeps clothes new

COLLEGE STATION — Good laundering habits will keep clothing looking fresh and new longer, Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, says.

"Clothing too heavily soiled before washing will not wash clean—leaving it dingy," this specialist says with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

"Sorting clothing by colors is also important. During washing, white fabrics may absorb color from other garments and become grayed or yellowed. Light colored fabrics that absorb color from darker ones look dull.

"Using the correct amount of detergent is crucial. Too little detergent prevents complete removal of soil. Amounts recommended by the detergent manufacturers are usually most effective," she said.

Laundrying in small loads works best. Crowding the washer keeps clothes from agitating properly, the specialist explained.

Since most of today's clothing is laundered rather than dry cleaned, improved laundering methods can prolong the appearance of newness.

Sportswear focuses on crayola colors

"Good sportswear is very understated and very comfortable."

Spring sportswear will be focusing on color, he says, with bold bright colors such as tangerine, yellow, blue and green.

Mrs. Neal calls the shades "crayola colors. We had dusty colors before."

Other popular colors will be black, ivories and deep chocolate browns, according to Mrs. Trotter and Mrs. Mackey.

LAYERED LOOK

For women of all ages, the layered look with blazer, vest, shirt and pants will still be popular, according to all persons interviewed.

The vested look is good in both dresses and sportswear, Mrs. Trotter says while Mrs. Neal sees a few minor changes in some of these styles.

Some blazers will be cut a little shorter than in the past and weskits will replace vests for the summer, she says. A weskit, cut higher in the neckline and armholes than a vest, can be worn alone, whereas a vest has to be worn with a shirt, she explains.

FANCY GAUCHO

Gaucha pants, which became popular during the winter, will continue to be dominant on the fashion scene. Becky Jones, manager of a store that specializes in clothes for the younger generation, says gaucha pants will be good for spring and summer. Made of a cotton fabric, they will be worn with espadrilles and sandals, instead of boots, she adds.

Mrs. Neal sees more of a dress-up gaucha this spring, with the split skirts being constructed of a dressier material and worn with a silk blouse.

"They are trying to dress up the gaucha pants and make them attractive to the working girl and the older woman," she explains. The shorter blazer and weskit will be worn with the split skirts to give them a different look.

NEW BLOUSON

One new style is the blouson top, described as a shorter-waisted blouse with a drawstring to make the top "blouse" around or near the waistline. Mrs. Trotter says some of the larger blousons are for "the fairly tall and slender woman."

Pants, according to Ingram, are designed with a looser fit than in the past. Mrs. Judy Germany, county extension agent for home economics, notes a new pants style is the English officer pants which are looser with pleats or

ONE-PIECE SUITS

Swim suits include the bikini which has been around for several years, but the one-piece will be the main thing this year. "A lot of junior styles are unconstructed and soft," Mrs. Neal says. These suits come in the crayola colors and include the bandeau style which can be tied five different ways and a mailot. Short hooded jackets are coming out with the one-piece styles.

RAIN SLICKERS

One piece of sportswear to be seen this spring, according to the Midland dealers, is the rain slicker. Ingram has his own idea as to where this design originated.

Bill Blass visited Midland last year and took a yellow cowboy rain slicker he purchased at a western shop home back to New York with him. According to Ingram, Blass took several design ideas from the slicker and incorporated them into his own styles. The slicker idea grew and is now being copied by several manufacturers.

T-SHIRTS

T-shirts for the young and old alike will be a major part of the sportswear scene. Mrs. Trotter says they will be plain, embroidered or trimmed with ribbons while Mrs. Neal adds they are coming in bright stripes, with hoods and in the blouson styles.

Even though blue jeans may be changing somewhat for spring, Mrs. Mackey says the jeans vests, skirts and jumpers will be popular with the younger set.

Pedal pushers, which were popular back in the 1950s, have returned, only now they are called "boot pants," Mrs. Neal says.

RELATED STORY ON 3F

Jump suits are being shown strapless, with jackets or with tunics.

Pantsuits and blue jeans will be around for a number of years, according to the fashion dealers.

Jones sees the trend in jeans for summer going to white instead of the traditional navy blue. Mrs. Neal sees more "fashion denims." They have the European styling with a little more seaming and stitching and a slimmer cut. "You can't have just a plain denim look now," she adds.

New patterns, fabrics keep up with 1977 fashions

By LANA CUNNINGHAM

Discovering what the new spring fashions are fine for those persons who purchase their clothes ready-made. But, trying to keep up with styles can be a problem for women who prefer to sew their own fashions. This year, home fashions sewers should have no problem staying in style with pattern and fabric manufacturers giving the woman everything she needs to produce the latest fashions. Patterns are following the designers' fashions, using the themes of softer dresses, pantsuits, blazers, jumpsuits and other popular sportswear. Fabrics, which used to be strictly polyester double knits, are becoming more varied. "We are in an excellent era with so many different fabrics today and there are so many techniques we can use," said Becky Culp, clothing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station. Mrs. Culp, speaking at a fashion update here for area women, explained patterns and fabrics and gave some tips on sewing the new spring styles. "We are getting more into woven fabrics with a different look and feel," she said of several new fabric weaves for spring. One popular fabric will be linen or the polyester and cotton linen-look. Judy Germany, county extension agent for home economics, added that a kitchen cloth material is replacing the gauze that was so popular last year. This lightweight material, often woven with a striped design to resemble kitchen dishcloths, is being used even in evening dresses. "You can go straight from the kitchen to a party," laughed Mrs. Germany. Other fabrics that will be used are the striped designs in bold colors, and border and scarf prints, she said. When buying extra material with a striped or plaid design, multiply the number of main pattern

"We are in an excellent era with so many different fabrics today and there are so many techniques we can use."

Becky Culp, clothing specialist

When laying out a pattern on a border-printed material, the pattern should be arranged so the skirt's hemline is on the border. The best type of pattern for this material is one which has a straight, and not curved, hemline, the clothing specialist advised. She suggested using patterns with gathered skirts. Scarf prints can be used for sleeves or on the bodice. Since the scarf squares in the material come in various sizes, the buyer should find a pattern which is designed for that size of print, Mrs. Culp warned.

Clothes made of the open, meshy fabrics, such as the kitchen cloth material, require different seams. Mrs. Culp suggested the French or self-bound seam to keep the seams from raveling.

Rainwear material, with a slick finish, is being carried by more fabric stores and pattern companies are putting out more designs for these fabrics.

Mrs. Culp said the fabrics usually come in the bright colors and some are quilted. When sewing with the fabric, tape—and not pins—should be used when cutting out the pattern pieces.

There is no way to ease this material into a seam, such as on the top of the armhole sleeve. Mrs. Culp suggested folding out ¼ inch in the top of the sleeve pattern to avoid having any ease.

One way to trim a garment is to use "the sawtooth finish," according to Mrs. Culp. This finish can be made by cutting around the edge of the pocket with pinking shears, thus giving it a sawtooth edge. This trim can be used on rainwear material, leather or suede-like material.

To fit a jumpsuit properly, Mrs. Culp said the seamstress should measure the length of the person's crotch and add 1 inch. This gives the wearer more ease to move around, she explained. With the new patterns and fabrics available to everyone, and following every Midland woman should be able to be in style this spring.

Corporations' demands on husbands make wives depressed, frustrated

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a four-part series on corporation executives' wives. COLLEGE STATION—Loss of identity, frequent depression, frustration, loneliness and feelings of inadequacy—these traits typify many wives of executives and corporate managers. Appearances may lead one to believe they are wonderfully happy, gracious, exciting and comfortable with their lavish life style. Unfortunately, it is difficult to enjoy the advantages that the salary and social status offer if one has to do so alone, says Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System. "Through the years, many women have fallen victim to the demands placed on their husbands by the corporation. As noted in the first article in this series, the standards and expectations set for a wife by corporations were unrealistically high. Husbands, friends, families, and businesses made her feel guilty to adapt to these imposed demands. Finally, after turning to alcohol as a distractor and suppressor, or even having a complete mental breakdown, she sought psychological help. It was at this point that the truth about her plight began to surface. Before this, companies were unaware of or insensitive to what they were doing to their executives' wives," Miss Johnson said. In 1972, Dr. Robert Seidenberg, a practicing psychiatrist, published an essay in the "Wall Street Journal" called "Dear Mr. Success: Consider your wife," which dealt directly with the psychological stresses encountered by the wives of executives. "The responsibilities of a move are largely delegated to the wife, as she tries to enroll children in school, find a new doctor, grocery store, unpack, take care of the new house and keep the family running smoothly. Her husband has the advantage of transferring his identity with him, making new friends and achieving automatic status through work, Miss Johnson said. Often the wife, after ten relocations in 15 years, finally "gives out of gas." Her children are grown, she has few outside interests, and little desire to cultivate new friends and activities. In addition, her husband may travel frequently leaving her alone, and when he is at home, he is either too tired to take an interest in her, or too wrapped up in his own problems to be concerned about hers, the specialist said. "She may begin to have feelings of guilt because she isn't happy with her life. She doesn't understand why her husband can adjust when she cannot. Dr. Seidenberg, in counseling executives' wives, noted that many of them turn to alcohol and tranquilizers for relief, which may only compound the problem. She can become so depressed and bitter, that her marital relationship becomes a shambles and finally ends in divorce, the specialist said. "A rolling stone gathers no moss, and a moving family eventually loses its identity and sense of belonging. They have no established roots or solid base on which to grow and develop. The psychological stresses of executives' wives are not conjecture or symptomatic of a sick person—almost any individual who is constantly shuffled around can be affected. Corporations have finally realized this and are taking steps to remedy the situation as are the wives themselves," Miss Johnson said. Stress minimizing will highlight the final of this series on executives' wives.

Boredom with marriage can act as warning signal for divorce

By PATRICIA DIBSIE Copley News Service
 Boredom isn't fatal to a marriage—but it's one of several warning signals that shouldn't be ignored, according to Dr. Sheila Kessler, assistant professor of psychology at Georgia State University. "Boredom—the 'I don't care' attitude—is just about the final stage before a marriage dies, and it's almost impossible to save," Kessler said in an interview. She received her doctorate degree from the University of Washington in Seattle in 1971. She also has written a book on divorce. Kessler works with several "beyond divorce" groups at the university counseling center in Georgia. She said that a couple going through a divorce needs the help of a professional just as much as a couple trying to reconcile. Maybe even more. "Many people see the divorce process as a very destructive thing in a person's life," she said. "The destructive time—the time leading up to the divorce—is more detrimental. Once it has been established that a divorce is to be the course taken by a couple, some positive things need to happen." Kessler said it's up to the professionals—the counselors, psychologists, psychiatrists, clergy and other mental health workers—to help make the experience of a divorce a constructive one. "It's one of the best times in a person's life, or it can be," she said. "The decision has been made to divorce and he has opted for a whole new set of habits, friends and traditions. It's time for the person to think about what kind of life-style he wants. It's a good time for some positive thinking—what does this person want out of life that he didn't have in the marriage?"

Projects up sleeves help drizzly days pass faster

By ERICA WILSON

Stuck inside on a rainy, cold winter day can be pretty disheartening for children and mother alike. But if you both can manage to keep your hands busy, the day can pass smoothly. I've been faced with my share of drizzly days, at various stages of my children's lives, and I'm glad to report that I have quite a repertoire of such projects up my sleeve.

You'll need one-half yard of ticking or striped denim, one packet of binding tape, some small squares of felt in four or five colors and some scraps of wool from your sewing basket.

AR ABBY on due privacy Abigail Van Bure DEAR ABBY: I found the magazine in my 11-year-old son's room. I was fascinated it was anything. I was not in wonder what he had done to him. I was not in wonder what he had done to him. I was not in wonder what he had done to him.

AR ABBY on due r privacy

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I found a lie magazine in my 16-year-old son's room, so I confiscated it without saying anything. Should I mention it to him, or let him wonder what happened to it? I'm sure he won't buy it. It's four months old and looks like it has been passed around a bit.

My reasons for sitting to question him are:

- 1) I wanted to wait until my panicky feelings subsided;
- 2) I wanted to get an outsider's opinion;
- 3) I did not want to make him feel guilty.

I still feel guilty from being lambasted by my mother when I was 9 and caught me discussing my playmates how cows and horses got pregnant (I lived on a farm). And now 50!

How should I handle this with my son?—WARRIED MOM

DEAR MOM: Return the magazine. Even a 16-year-old is entitled to his privacy. And if, after 41 years, you still feel "guilty" for having cussed how cows and horses mate, you should be reminded that most of us that age discuss such things.

Your curiosity was small and natural, and so is your son's. If he comes preoccupied with "girly magazines," talk it in order. If not, let it go. Don't add to his guilt, and don't add to his.

DEAR ABBY: Last Monday my husband and I were at my mother's when my in-laws dropped unexpectedly on their way home from church. (My husband was watching a football game on TV in the living room where everyone gathered to talk. Ed's mother told me to turn down the TV. He turned it down a little and drew his chair closer to it and continued to watch while the rest of us continued to talk. The noise of the TV made it difficult for us to hear, so finally Ed's mother walked over to the set and turned it off. With that, Ed stomped out of the house in a huff and took off in his car. What do you think of a 24-year-old man acting like that?—ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: I could say that in this case, rudeness was an inherited trait.

THE VISIBLE WOMAN

Exhibit showcases photos by women

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

It was the best exhibit of photography I've ever seen. There were no pictures of war, very little of machinery, and only a few landscapes...but to tell the truth, the absence was barely noticeable.

The show, "Women of Photography. An Historical Survey" assembled by the San Francisco Museum of Art, has been traveling the country. Later this year it will return to San Francisco, and the photographs will be returned to their owners. Many of the pictures are fragile, and can be shown under artificial light for only limited hours each day. Other photographs are sensitive to sunlight. The work of Ellen Land-Weber must be protected from natural light at all times.

Margery Mann and Anne Noggle of San Francisco, who conceived the idea of an exhibit of women photographers' work, selected the artists and the actual prints to be shown. They incorporated wit and humor, sadness, anger and fantasy to show us what women photographers are all about.

Some of the images are almost religious, others are mystical. Julia Margaret Cameron's "The Angel at the Sepulcher" (c. 1872) is both. Much of the work, especially that of the early 20th Century, shows a romanticized eroticism. The story quality of some of the pictures is touching, especially when the photograph is revealed in the process.

"Blessed Art Thou Among Women" shows a mother and young daughter hesitating in a doorway...and it thinly disguises with beauty photographer Gertrude Kosebiar's hostility toward the role of women.

The prints also serve to permit an inside glimpse into social history. Frances B. Johnson's "The Hampton School Album" was done to encourage poor people to attend school.

Hopefully, "Women of Photography. An Historical Survey" won't be dismantled in the near future. It's a delightful show, and should be seen again and again.

Woman likes job as riverboat oiler

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mary Kay Ter Haar oils, greases, throttles and wipes for a living.

She's an oiler on the Mississippi River steamboat "Natchez."

"At the Catholic girls' school I attended, we were expected to be either nuns or wives," she said.

Instead, the 20-year-old New Orleans woman is getting ready to study for her third assistant engineer's license. Her boss, Chief Engineer Robert Brewer, said she will be the only woman on the Mississippi with such a license, if she makes it two years from now.

Brewer is Ms. Ter Haar's most vocal fan. "She's exceptionally good, better than average," he said. "I'm going to teach her everything I know. She's really interested in her work and when you get somebody like that, you want to help them."

Ms. Ter Haar came to her unusual job from a much more prosaic calling. She had been a maid aboard the "Mississippi Queen," another riverboat, when it went into dry dock for repairs.

"I like this much better," she said. "That was idle-mind work. There I wore candy-striped dresses and white stockings, which were always black at the knees from kneeling to wash the bathtubs. Here I can't wear anything good because of all the grease."

She grinned. "It's funny. Now I find myself dying to put on a dress after work," she said.

Brewer had wanted to hire a woman as an oiler "because they have an idea of keeping things clean and that spills over to the men. It builds up the morale and creates a better way of doing things."

Ms. Ter Haar is the only woman among the engine crew and the deckhands of the "Natchez."

"They treat her with respect," said Brewer. "That's not just because she's a woman. It's mostly because they know she's good at her job."

Ms. Ter Haar finds working the throttle as the big steel sternwheeler pulls out or docks the toughest part of the job.

"I do get nervous," she said. "But I know there's so much to do, so I just put the nervousness out of my mind until it's done. Then I sit down and shake."

In ancient Greece and Rome wine was stored in decorative pitchers called amphora. They were non-porous, which protected the wine from contact with the air. When the Dark Ages began the secret of making amphora was lost and wines that required aging were no longer available. It was not until the end of the eighteenth century that it was discovered that a bottle with a cork that was kept constantly moist by the wine would serve the same purpose as the amphora. Interestingly, the Portuguese discovered the use of the cork in their efforts to create a wine market to compete with the French. The winner of this contest is well known—French wines still rule the world.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk peau and silk organza. The Empire waistline was outlined in lace as was the high neckline and cuffs of the sleeves, and the full skirt swept into a chapel train. A matching Juliet lace cap held her finger-tip veil of illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white silk peonies, roses and yellow touch-me-nots designed by her mother.

Matron of honor was Mrs. David Chandler of Lomax. Attending as bridesmaids were Mrs. Ed Hoppe Jr. of San Marcos, sister of the bride; Jana Petree of Hobbs, N.M., cousin of the bride; and Shana Briggs and Tami Briggs of Pearsall, both sisters of the bridegroom. # Woman looking through holes of bagels sees bright future ahead

By JOY STILLEY
P Newsfeatures
riter

NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Hope Blau is looking at the future through the hole in a bagel, an ethnic bakery product made out of a water-based dough and leavened with yeast.

But Mrs. Blau's bagels are no longer edible, because she began decorating them and turning them into jewelry, Christmas wreaths, animals and milling faces.

"My bagelmania was inspired by my grandfather, who baked bagels for a living and who told me stories, making his magical bagels spin and roll and leap through each other," says the dark-haired artist and author.

She continued the tradition by telling stories to her own children, Ricky, now 10, and Laurie, now 15, enlivening the tales with the aid of the handpainted "acrobatic" animals she created from bagels.

One day her daughter wore one of the happy-faced bagels to school as a pendant and it attracted so much attention that a new industry was born in the Blau apartment in Eastchester, N.Y.

"When stores started ordering pounds of them for their costume jewelry departments even my housekeeper stopped cleaning and pitched in to sort and string the bagels," Mrs. Blau recalls with a laugh. "She loved it and asked if I would mind if she hired a maid to do the cleaning."

Mrs. Blau took to examining the bagels, which she purchased from a local baker at the rate of 500 to 1,000 a week, looking them over "as though viewing a new litter of puppies." Fat, medium-sized ones translated into pigagels; big, lopsided ones became elephantagels and others emerged as lionagels, fishagels, hippogagels and frogagels.

Mrs. Blau's physicist husband, Dr. Lawrence

Martin Blau, yielded his rights to the bathtub, which became the storage place for the day's output. This unusual workshop was not without its drawbacks, however.

"There was the time I put several large bagels on the bathroom floor to dry and that evening my husband caught his big toe in the hole of one and fell into the shower," she relates.

Once they were dried out the bagels, in minibagel and super-bagel sizes, were painted with acrylic paint, shellacked and, on the advice of a lawyer, tagged with a "Don't Eat Me" sign.

"When he told me I must have a notice on each bagel saying that it was not for eating I raced to the nearest printer and asked how quickly he could print several thousand 'Don't Eat Me' labels. I must have been breathless because he said, 'Lady, is your life in danger?'"

"One day I was asked to custom design a bagel for the president of the European branch of a large U.S. company, who had a passion for bagels and was celebrating his 25th anniversary with the company. The bagel was to be presented at a dinner in Paris.

"I developed the 'Executive Bagel,' an average-sized one that could act as a paper-weight while adorning the bagel-loving executive's desk. What could be more exciting than an American bagel mingling with all that French pastry?"

As the demand for bagel creatures grew, even the efforts of an industrious family weren't enough, so Mrs. Blau formed her own company, which creates bagel necklaces, key chains, toys, T-shirts, socks, pillows, sheets and candleholders.

Though they still resemble the doughnutshaped snacks that once emerged from her neighborhood bakeshop, these days the jewelry is made of synthetic "dough."

"It's hard to believe that we still like to eat bagels," Mrs. Blau reports, "but if I find an unusual one I set it aside to dry and paint it."

Mrs. Blau, 38, has just written and illustrated her first book for children, "The Bagel Baker of Mulliner Lane." It's the story of Mrs.

Blau's grandfather — the man who inspired her trip of painted bagels.

Potato pancakes used for brunch

By C E C I L Y BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

POTATO PANCAKES
 2 eggs
 2 tablespoon flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1 pound 3 medium potatoes, pared and finely grated 1 1/2 cups
 3 to 4 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a medium bowl beat eggs until thick and ivory colored. Beat in flour, salt and pepper. Fold in potatoes.

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, heat 2 tablespoons of the butter. With a tablespoon dip to bottom of the bowl each time and pour mixture well apart into the skillet, allowing each pancake to spread by itself. Turn as necessary and fry until brown on both sides and crispy around the edges, adjusting heat as necessary. Add more butter as needed for each batch of pancakes. Drain on brown paper; keep warm in a slow oven until all pancakes are fried.

Makes about 2 dozen.

Note: Potatoes turn brown quickly after being grated. This discoloration can be largely controlled by adding 1/4 teaspoon ascorbic acid vitamin C crystals to the potatoes as they are being grated and by stirring occasionally.

Two women fit into one seat as job-sharing executives

By MARY FIESS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Pat Rehberg likes the challenge of being in charge. But she hates the headaches that accompany a top executive's job.

Her friend Dolores Brosnan values a high-level position for the power it gives to change things. But a fulltime work schedule cramps her community-oriented lifestyle.

Alone, they were wishful thinkers. Together, they have found the perfect job.

The two women — possessing very different personalities and skills — fit comfortably into one executive seat, the director's chair at the Binghamton YWCA.

Each has the title of director. But each only works part-time, 25 hours a week on the average.

They share the salary, responsibilities, problems, recognition and — to Mrs. Rehberg's delight — the headaches that come with the job.

It's a concept known as "job-sharing" or "job-pairing." Two people are hired to fill one slot. And they get to perform the kind of work that is usually not available on a part-time basis.

'For job-pairing to work, there has to be confidence and respect in each partner. It also takes a certain lack of ego.'

The idea has been tried on a limited basis across the country and it is regarded as a work alternative especially geared to women's needs.

At a conference on alternative work schedules here recently, Mrs. Rehberg and Mrs. Brosnan, both of Binghamton, talked about how they have managed their unusual work arrangement.

Each woman works three 9-to-5 days during the regular work week and takes turns attending night meetings and other job-related events. On the one day a week that their office schedules overlap, they thrash out any problems that need their joint attention.

Though they try to share the decision-making process as much as possible, each woman makes decisions on her own as they are required.

Both women say they have not experienced any of the problems usually associated with having two bosses in one office.

"For job-pairing to work, there has to be confidence and respect in each partner," said Mrs. Rehberg. "It also takes a certain lack of ego."

Both quickly tick off the advantages of having two brains under one hat.

"We have more courage to try new things. We avoid a lot of executive tension because we can hash things out together," said Mrs. Brosnan.

"Dolores is a visionary. I'm better at planning how to get there. Now how often do you have both things in one person?" said Mrs. Rehberg.

Together the women have tried to change the Binghamton Y from a "craft program for women" to a "social movement" center, serving the needs of all women, working, single, divorced and married.

Mrs. Rehberg, 38, the mother of two young children, finds the job "perfect for this time of my life." Mrs. Brosnan, 40, a mother of three, who had held a fulltime supervisory position before going to the Y, doubts she will go back to fulltime work.

In the meantime, the YWCA director's hat sits easily on both heads.
