Farm Workers Organize

Bailey County Judge Glen Williams, called a special meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Court House, between County, City and State Law Enforcement officers; Mayor Alex Williams, City Manager Dave Marr, Administrative Assistant John Milford and County Attorney Corky Green, to discuss with representatives of the Texas Farm Workers Union, the purpose of the union members coming to the City of Muleshoe, and the law as it relates to trespassing, the duty of a person or persons to leave the premises when ordered to do so or to stay off property when given notice to stay off, and the blocking of roadways. "The purpose of the meeting," the Judge said, "was to be certain that the law enforcement, farmers, farm workers and union members who have come to Muleshoe and the farming community to organize, and try to get farm workers to join their cause, understood these laws." It is hoped, the Judge commented, that the meeting would leave those who attended with an understanding of the rights of all concerned and the knowledge of when there has been a violation of those rights or the law. Judge Williams pointed out that awhile back, one of the members of the union came to him and discussed the problems they were facing elsewhere as they tried to organize the farm workers to acquire higher wages and better working conditions. The union spokesman told the Judge that his organization wanted no trouble, but they felt they had the right to come into a community and form such an organization. Following this meeting with the Union member, Judge Williams discussed the matter with the county attorney who briefed him on the laws relating to this matter. The attorney, the judge, and law enforcement agencies met, for the same purpose. When Judge Williams was informed that the union was to

Mahon Says Hospital Loan In Great Shape

United States Congressman George Mahon, had announced that application for a loan from the Farmers Home Administration in the amount of $600,000 for the local hospital, is in excellent shape and that Washington headquarters has concurred in the recommendation for approval of this loan.

The application has been returned to the State FmHA office in Temple for further action. Official approval will be announced from Washington after final details of the loan negotiated with the medical center by the Texas FmHA office.

In a letter received by the Journal from Congressman Mahon, the congressman stated, "prior to leaving Washington for my Lubbock office, I checked with proper government agencies requesting a status report on the Muleshoe Medical Center project. It will be recalled that the $1 million grant from the Economic Development Administration was approved in early July."

Mahon said, "Some time will be required for the completion of details, but there seems to be no obstacle in the way of final approval." He went on to say, "my staff and I have worked closely with appropriate officials on this project for many months and we are pleased that ultimate success seems to be fully assured."

"The project is a credit to Muleshoe and presents a major step forward for the Muleshoe area," commented the congressman. It was announced on July 3 that the Economic Development Administration had approved a one million dollar matching funds grant to the West Plains Medical Center in Muleshoe.

Matching funds have been raised by the local community and will be used to help enlarge and renovate the existing medical facility. A preliminary application was submitted by the Hospital Board to the FmHA just one year ago, for a loan of one million dollars. In September of 1974, preliminary work on establishing an EDA District in Bailey County was started and the South Plains Association of Governments recommended the project to the FmHA on November 12, 1974.

On February 1, 1975, the preliminary application to EDA for matching funds grant was submitted and on February 25, EDA asked that the hospital file an application by March 26, 1975. Also on February 25, a modified FmHA pre-application was filed requesting a loan of $600,000 instead of the $1 million as originally filed.

In May of this year, a drive was completed in the community, to raise the amount needed for matching funds, in the amount of $400,000. The funds will be used to construct a 33 bed wing onto the existing hospital and to

Have they got that spirit? You bet they have. The Muleshoe Varsity Cheerleaders, "have got that spirit," and are "raring to go", cheering their team on to a victorious sports season, whether it be football, basketball, track or any other sporting event the fellows participate in.

Having recently returned from the Camp of Champs, on the campus of S.M.U. in Dallas, the seven varsity cheerleaders learned several new ideas to pass on to the students and fans, to help make the upcoming football season a success. They returned home on August 8, and are anxious to get started. While at camp, the cheerleaders, Cynthia Rogers, Perri Poyner, D'Anne Clark, Helen Balderas, Debbie Purcell, Jana Bruns and Pattie Poyner, were kept busy all through the week. They attended classes where they learned many new cheers during the morning sessions. The afternoon classes were filled with learning new chants, dance steps, and pom-pom routines. The girls also attended lectures on such things as Spirit Raising Ideas and Fund Raising Ideas. Bursting with enthusiasm, each girl returned home with some new ideas for the up and coming year. During the next two weeks, the cheerleaders will be serving Gatorade to the football boys during two-a-day football training. "So okay, all you Mule fans, football season is upon us, come to each and every game and help support the Mules," they unanimously urged.

Changes Proposed In Brucellosis Regulations

LUBBOCK -- Interested Texas cattle producers will have an opportunity to hear and discuss proposed changes in the state's brucellosis eradication program during a series of public meetings on the Texas High Plains in August.

Scheduled by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Texas Animal Health Commission, the meetings will be held in Big Spring, Lubbock, Amarillo, Canadian, and Paducah.

As of July 1, 24 Texas counties had qualified as bovine brucellosis free areas and 23 other counties had no known infection, according to Dr. H. Q. Sibley, TAHC executive director. Current regulations do not contain provisions for protection of these clean areas, Sibley emphasizes.

The TAHC has proposed a number of major changes in the brucellosis program. The Commission voted to propose the regulation changes to bring the Texas program more in line with national brucellosis standards contained in the "Uniform Methods and Rules" for eradication recommended by the United States Animal Health Association.

The following is a list of times and places of those meetings:

August 14 at 8:00 p.m., - Amarillo, Tri-State Fairgrounds, Goude Sales Arena.

August 19 at 8:00 p.m., - Lubbock, Plains Coop Oil Mill.

Changes in brucellosis regulations which will be discussed by TAHC area veterinarians include the following:

(1) Outlining the manner in which cattle may move into, within, and from certified areas to protect the status of these areas. If an adequate number of breeding cattle are being sampled at the time of slaughter from a clean area, the Commission could allow cattle to move from these areas without further tests.

(2) Authorizing testing of all eligible test cattle prior to loan, lease, sale, or any change of ownership except, (a) breeding cattle that are consigned from herd of origin directly to slaughter and

(b) animals originating in certified brucellosis free herds. These changes would give the Commission flexibility in handling the various situations that occur in different parts of the state.

(3) Requiring "S" branding of brucellosis exposed cattle only when going on permit to slaughter or to a quarantined feedlot. This would comply with federal regulations which became effective on April 22, 1975.

(4.) Authorizing and providing for using supplementary tests in certain phases of the program.

(5.) Allowing official brucellosis calfhood vaccination down to two months of age instead of the present three months of age.

(6) Outlining provisions to move breeding cattle from a county which has lost its modified certified free status.

(7.) Providing for methods of handling brucellosis negative cattle at livestock markets by keeping them separate from infected, exposed, or unknown status cattle.

The proposed changes will be posted in every Texas courthouse for at least 30 days prior to the September 4 public hearing, said Sibley.

Questions concerning the brucellosis program should be directed to the Texas Animal Health Commission in Austin (78701) or to TAHC field veterinarians.

Texas No. 1 In '74 Export Of Livestock

AUSTIN--Texas remained a leading state in livestock exportation in 1974, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has reported.

Statistics from the USDA show the state to be the number one exporter of beef-breeding cattle in the U.S., having sold 13,450 head in 1974.

Texas hog producers placed the state second in exports of breeding swine, shipping 3,055, only 168 fewer than the first-ranking state of Illinois. In the sales of dairy breeding cattle, the state was eighth with a total of 2,275.

White attributed the increase in exports from Texas to intensive marketing activities by the livestock industry.

"The Texas Department of Agriculture has stepped up efforts to bring in more foreign buyers," White said. "The Livestock Directory which the Department publishes has stimulated many sales."

Brahmans ranked highest in number exported from Texas with a total of 3,991. Santa Gertrudis, Herefords, and crossbreeds were other major choices of foreign buyers.

Texas supplied almost one third of the Charolais cattle shipped from the U.S.

Principal breeds of swine sold from Texas hog farms were Duroc, Yorkshire, Hampshire, and crossbreeds. Dairy cattle breeds exported from Texas included Holsteins, Jerseys, Brown Swiss, and Guernseys.

arrive in Mulshoe the meeting Monday night was called so that those who attended could come to a meeting of the minds, be well informed as to the rights of all concerned (union members, farm workers, property owners, etc.) and understand the law and violations of same. Also attending Monday night's meeting were Elvon DeVaney of Dimmitt, who is the Chamber manager there, a former resident of Mulshoe and who worked with the Bracero Program (a labor group) while in this city. Rev. Ed Manning, pastor of the Presbyterian Church was also in attendance as was Douglas Keller, representing the Texas Farm Workers Union and about 15 or 20 persons from his organization. The meeting lasted from 7:30 p.m. until approximately 9 p.m.

Mayor Alex Williams, present at Monday's meeting, invited Douglas Keller and Benigno Peni, members of the union to attend the Rotary Club meeting held Tuesday to explain their reasons for being in the city. Following the Rotary meeting, the two gentlemen met with the news editor of the Mulshoe Journal, and explained their cause.

Keller stated that their members would go around to various labor camps in this area, the houses of farm workers. They would try to explain the benefits of the union to the farm workers and "why we think they should have a union and try to get their support."

"We hope to be able to meet with some local growers to see if we can sit down with them and talk over some of the problems of farm workers and see if we can reach a common meeting point and get some communication between the farm workers and the union," said Keller.

Benigno Peni explained, "Farm workers never had any type of representation before the growers in the past and had contractors in between the farm workers and growers, to which these contractors never represented the needs of the farm workers."

"I used to migrate into this area 10 years ago," said Peni, "and the conditions that existed then still exist. Those conditions are housing, sanitary conditions in the fields, and no grievance committee for farm workers. At this point, the farm worker is still unable to negotiate on his wages and must settle for what either the contractor or crew leader offers."

He pointed out that the union will not be working directly under the growers and therefore, would be in a better position to represent the farm workers.

"All activities will be NON-VIOLENT," he said, "However, we are aware that some growers or some supervisors or foremen will react violently against our activities as has happened in Pecos, Galdo County and Presidio, Texas. So we ask that local residents of Mulshoe be informed as to what is happening and not misinterpret our activities and reason for being in this area. It is simply the needs and conditions that exist at this time, that make people stand and ask why. We hope that some of the growers will try to sit down and cooperate with a committee of farm workers in the area to discuss the problems confronting the farm workers."

Peni said, "We are also aware of how dependent farm workers are on crew leaders and contractors. They are constantly being harrassed and intimidated on the grounds that if they are to take sides with the union, they will find themselves without work, transportation, it shouldn't mean he loses his rights of expression, which are rights guaranteed for everyone under the constitution.

"We do have attorneys and plan to take legal action against people who do violate the constitutional rights of the farm workers," Peni stated.

"We hope everyone will support us, and be willing to support us," he said. "We will be willing to sit down with anyone who might not understand the reasons for our being here," commented Peni.

"We do also plan to form a local strike committee to which we hope a lot of community people will participate," he concluded.

When asked how many persons they presently have in their union, the union representative answered, "we cannot accurately estimate how many people are in the union, as people are joining all the time and signing union cards. I do feel several thousand, would be a safe figure to say."

In explaining the laws pertaining to trespassing and blocking of roadways, Judge Williams said that the union workers could go into the fields and talk to farm workers if there was not a fence or sign preventing them from doing so, or unless the property owner forbid them from doing so. He also stated that if the union worker is on the property, not so restricted, conferring with the farm workers, and the property owner asked or ordered the union worker to leave, he must do so without any trouble. He also stated that if a law enforcement officer saw a union worker on property that was fenced to keep trespassers out, or had a sign telling intruders to keep out, then that officer had the right to arrest him. If an officer was not on the scene at the time of the trespass, then the property owner could come into town and file a complaint and issue a warrant for the arrest of the trespasser.

It was also explained that if, as part of the working contract between the farm worker and the farmer, that housing is provided the farm worker, and a union member was visiting that farm worker in the house, the farmer could not legally order the union leader off the property, even though he does own the house and the land it stands upon. While the farm worker is living in the house, it is his home and he has the right to have the union worker visit him in his home.

It is not against the law for a vehicle, or vehicles to park on the side of a roadway, as long as it does not block the roadway, causing a traffic hazard. This holds true for a gathering of people. It is against the law for persons or a vehicle to block the road.

"It is hoped that all concerned can come to a meeting of the minds without any trouble," concluded the judge.

remodel the current facility. Preliminary drawings of the proposed one-story wing were approved and bids could possibly be taken by late summer or early fall. Tentative target date for construction to begin has been set for October of this year. It is expected to take two years to complete the project.

The new wing will include a recovery room and a three bed intensive care unit complete with coronary care facilities.

A new kitchen will be built to serve both the hospital and the Mulshoe Nursing Home. The current hospital will be brought up to Life Safety Code set by the State Department of Health. The operating room, and X-ray room will be modernized as will the lab. Doctors offices will also be relocated and the lobby will be enlarged.

Brochures and information about Mulshoe were given from the Tourist Information Center at the Mule Memorial by Rainbow Girls who also served refreshments to those who stopped. If the highway is completed in that area soon, the center will again be opened before the summer is over, Henry pointed out.

The Chamber president announced that beginning on Friday, August 15, the Chamber will have a 15 minute program on KMUL Radio, beginning at 1:15 p.m. to inform the public of Chamber happenings, community and area progress and activities. This will be a weekly program on Friday.

New members are always welcome to the Chamber of Commerce, an organization made up of members voluntarily giving their time and money in a community development program, working together to improve the economic, civic and cultural well-being of the area.

Any citizen who is interested in helping to develop the area is eligible to be a member. This is a medium through which people can take effective action for the progress of the community.

Programs such as the Teacher Appreciation Banquet, Tourist Program, Membership Breakfast, etc., are all functions of the Chamber that help show appreciation in the community and promote Mulshoe; but, they are extra activities.

with the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service will be keeping a close check within a 100-square mile area that is under state and federal quarantine.

The infected herds have been destroyed along with 23 additional herds that were possibly exposed to the infected animals. Five herds have also been destroyed in Oklahoma due to possible exposure to the diseased herds. Producers are indemnified on the basis of an appraisal.

According to Tankley, hog cholera is a highly infectious disease usually fatal to swine. However, it affects no other livestock and is not transmissible to humans.

Tankley urges swine producers in the county to keep a close check on their herds and to report any suspicious disease signs to a local veterinarian or animal health official.

Signs of hog cholera include high fever and loss of appetite. Other signs may include abnormal death losses among young pigs or possible abortions.

The disease can spread rapidly and deal a severe blow to the swine industry unless producers keep a close check on their herds and report any sick animals, cautions Tankley.

Texas may regain its "hog cholera free" status six months following the last reported infection.

low Bailey County an annual credit of $5,000 per year for each year of the contract. Any indigent care authorized by the Commissioner's Court would first be applied against the $5,000 credit for that year. The Commissioner's Court would reserve the right to determine which patients would be classified as indigents, and whether any, part of, or none of the charges would be approved for application against the credit.

If the $5,000 annual credit is exhausted in any one year, the charges for any approved indigent care shall be paid for, at the above rate, by the Commissioner's Court out of current funds on hand.

5. All of the above terms and conditions would also apply to inmates of the County Jail which are treated at the hospital.

Since Revenue Sharing Funds cannot be used as matching funds to obtain federal funds, the county cannot give the $50,000 pledged to the hospital for the renovation and addition to the hospital, a long term service contract must be entered into by the Hospital Board and the Commissioners Court, so the hospital may receive the funds pledged to them by the Court.

"Once the Hospital Board has had a chance to review the proposed contract and if they agree to the terms therein, then a contract will be formally drawn up and finalized, probably later this month," the Judge said.

In other business conducted by the County Commissioners, discussion was held and action postponed, pending a county tax evaluation before the Court can fix tax-rates for the year 1975. Preparation of the County Budget hinges on the tax rate, so actual work on the budget was also postponed, though there was some discussion held concerning the upcoming budget.

Annual Art Festival Held In Littlefield

Littlefield, Texas --- The 8th Annual Art Festival in Littlefield will be held on August 22, 1975 in the new Lamb County Agricultural and Community Center.

Paintings and drawings, arts and crafts of all kinds may be displayed from 4 until 9 p.m. There are no entrance fees, no commissions, just a warm welcome for you to come, and a genuine appreciation of art in all forms from those who view your work.

This year there will be no official judging or popular vote, but anyone will be able to purchase any picture or artistic work displayed when the artist puts a written price, with his or her name and address on a card attached to the displays. There is no limit on the items or pictures you display . . . but each exhibitor is responsible for the easels, stands, or supports for his own work. In the art exhibits there will be a special section to show the ability of the younger generations, with names and ages of the artist listed . . . so that the public may admire and encourage them.

The building will be open at 1 p.m. and you may bring your art at any time after that. Each item or picture needs to have clear identification on the back, for the purpose of recording ownership.

Serving as coordinator for the art clubs of Littlefield will be Barbara Perrin, who will work with Lela Nicholas, Dorothy Ferguson, Eva McDonald and Gene Fudge, other club presidents in organizing the exhibits.

Sponsoring the Festival, encouraging the appreciation of art in all forms and engineering the sale for those who wish to price their work is WE, THE WOMEN, a branch of the Chamber of Commerce. And there will be DOOR PRIZES. . . many of them given by Anze-line's Art and Frame Shop, The Gallery, Hart Thaxton, Perry Bros., and the Art Association of Littlefield. The art clubs hope that some of our artists will paint miniatures especially for this event so that they may be included in the DOOR PRIZES. Imagine winning a signed painting by a local artist just by attending the Art Festival.

Relate With Your Child

COLLEGE STATION -- Early reading to children is valuable-- the younger they are, the better, Roberta Dix, family life education specialist, contends.

She pointed out that reading a book and talking with the child may provide that one opportunity during the day when parent and child can be together and feel close.

"Talk about the things in the book. This helps him learn about the world around him and about what his parents think and feel--providing a model for his thoughts and feelings," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Parents can learn more about the world as seen through a child's eyes. And of course, the child can observe adult reactions, too.

Sometimes a tool for getting together is necessary when relating to children--and a book is exactly that.

"New ideas presented may lead to discussion about the number of animals with fur, or what is the difference between fur and hair.

"This is a good time for the child to learn the difference between fantasy and fact. It's much easier to talk about that 'scary' monster when sitting securely in the parent's lap."

Calves Provide Top Meat Buy

While there are supply-demand problems in the beef industry at present, research must be looking ahead to the time when production must be expanded.

What are the prospects for beefing up Texas' red meat and animal protein food supplies for consumers around the world?

The prospects are good, and research is already underway by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to help solve future world shortages of meat and animal proteins.

An intensified beef-forage research program is designed to cut costs for both consumers and producers.

A major limitation for cattlemen has been the reproduction rate in their cow herds over the years. Long-range research focuses on management systems for improving reproduction in cattle and is utilizing the talents of some of the nation's most outstanding researchers, points out Director Jarvis E. Miller, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Present research in improved animal reproduction has four major objectives.

They are 1) to obtain and analyze data which will allow more accurate prediction of reproduction rate in cattle; 2) to develop and apply management techniques to cause cows to calve at 10-month intervals; 3) to determine the effect of various management techniques on the rate, efficiency and economy of reproduction performance in cattle and 4) to select for native fertility in cattle.

To achieve the latter objective will mean utilizing cows with a history of outstanding reproduction, either through multiple births or short-interval calving, explains O. D. Butler, Experiment Station researcher and head of the Animal Science Department.

James N. Wiltbank, formerly of Colorado State University, recognized as one of the nation's foremost authorities in animal reproduction efficiency, has come to Texas to head up much of this expanded research.

He is headquartered at Beeville, but he is involved also in beef cattle research at Weslaco, Angleton, College Station, Overton and McGregor.

A "research axis" concept coordinates and integrates programs to focus on the biggest problem of cattle producers - more efficient reproduction. Research in the Coastal, South and East Texas areas includes a combined effort to improve efficiency and mother cow performance.

Duane Kraemer, a well-known physiologist with wide experience in ova transplantation, is joining the Station staff on a joint appointment between the Departments of Veterinary Physiology and Animal Science.

Other researchers in the beef cattle reproduction studies are Paul Marion, at the Hoblitzelle Farm in the Rio Grande Valley; Ron Randel at Overton; Dick Thomas at McGregor; A.M. (Tony) Sorenson, Paul Harms, Tom Cartwright, James Lee Fleeger, Charles Long and others at the Main Station, College Station; and Marvin Riewe, at Angleton, where major emphasis is placed on nutrition studies as they relate to reproduction. Forage and grass production and nutrition studies as they relate to reproduction are essential parts of the total research effort.

The research axis approach increased beef cattle production. It is keyed to finding the most economical way to produce and grow calves out for market. Across much of Texas today, there is about a 70-percent calf crop, and researchers are working toward a goal of a 95-percent calf crop.

At Weslaco, for example, 700 mother cows are included in planned research. They will be divided into three groups in order to check the nutritional aspects of reproduction efficiency. One group will be on dry feed rations, a second on a combined dry feed and pasture situation and a third on 100 percent irrigated pastures.

Besides the nutrition study, researchers also will check serum hormone levels by radio-immuno-assay, particularly in first-calf heifers, which may take longer than mature cows to rebreed after calving. "Hurry Up" calf crops are in prospect - these would be achieved by hormone treatment that would result in cows producing a calf every 10 to 10 1/2 months, with a gestation period of only 8 1/2 months followed by induced calving. Induced twinning and selection for natural inclination toward twinning are other considerations.

To produce red meat more economically on Texas ranches and farms will require improved forages. Research in this area is underway by E. C. Holt, W. C. Ellis and others of College Station; and Bill Conrad of Beeville.

Their goal is to come up with super forages through breeding and selection, and to study beef nutrition and grazing results on these forages. They will then combine the forages to meet the nutritional needs of beef animals of various ages most economically.

Brucellosis Still a Problem Hearing Set for New Rules

AUSTIN--A minimal increase in brucellosis infections was reported during June for Texas, records from the Texas Animal Health Commission reveal.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said the infection rate during June was 2.5 per cent. "This compares to 2.3 per cent during May," White said. From July 1974 through June 1975 the infection rate for the state was 2.5 per cent.

During June, a total of 265,007 cattle were tested for brucellosis infection by the Texas Animal Health Commission. Of that, a total of 6,745 were found to be reactors. A total of 3,131 herds were quarantined, and 2,791 herds are pending tests of investigations.

White urged all interested persons to attend a special hearing of the Texas Animal Health Commission to be held September 4 at a place to be announced later.

The meeting is to determine how the Texas program can be brought into line with national standards. Changes being proposed are part of a stepped-up program to eradicate brucellosis from Texas cattle.

"This will be an important hearing, one which will affect the future of our livestock industry," White said.

Any questions relating to brucellosis eradication or the TAHC hearing should be sent to the Texas Animal Health Commission, Austin, Texas 78711 or to commission field veterinarians.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm gets off on some dangerous ground this week but it's his lookout, not ours.

Dear Editor: I have never given much thought to Women's Liberation except to conclude it's all right with me so long as the meals are on the table on time, but I'm now convinced men ought to be giving more attention to the subject. There's something there to be learned.

For instance, examine Indira Gandhi, the woman Prime Minister of one of the world's most populous countries and frequently pointed to as a prime example of women's ability to become political leaders.

When Mrs. Gandhi was found guilty of violating India's election laws and was faced with being barred from office, what does she do, hem and haw and dodge and hire a battery of lawyers and lie on television like a man would do? Of course not. She just got a law passed saying the law she violated wasn't there anymore, never was in the first place, and anybody who objected was jailed.

I have not had the nerve to ask in the presence of women whether any of the people she jailed were women.

Changing the subject, which I'd better do in a hurry, I notice that some environmentalists, bent on protecting all species except possibly fleas when they're on their dogs in their city apartments, have now come out against the story of Little Red Riding Hood, on the grounds that it "has done great damage to wolves by making them a symbol of evil."

Of course they're right about this. All that wolf did was eat up a grandmother and appropriate her clothes and eye glasses, which obviously she had no further use for. Grandmothers are not an endangered species and these slanders on wolves have got to stop.

It's the same thing with coyotes and sheep. Ranchers are always denouncing coyotes for destroying their flocks, whereas it's the sheep's fault for being so helpless. Why don't they take care of themselves and grow a shell like an armadillo? Nobody's going to pull the wool over an environmentalist's eyes. If they'd been here earlier we'd still have dinosaurs and a lot less oil to squabble over.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

New Profits Possible From Cotton Gin Waste

RALEIGH --- Cotton gin waste can be converted from a problem into a profit, say Cotton Incorporated agricultural researchers.

Two possibilities are selling the waste as a source for industrial raw materials or feeding it to ruminant animals as roughage in ration formulations.

"Chemical companies tell us that gin trash contains potentially valuable products," said Dr. W. F. (Bill) Lalor, manager of systems and cost engineering at the Cotton Incorporated Research Center here.

"The market is there if we can figure out a way to deliver gin trash to a user's plant at the right price," he said.

The biggest problem today, Lalor explained, is handling and transportation. To overcome the problem, Cotton Incorporated researchers are testing a new gin trash cuber.

"Although the technical feasibility of cubing gin trash has already been demonstrated many times, the problem of high cost remains," said Lalor. "The angle we are exploring is to cut cubing costs in half by using more abrasion-resistant dies than those used in traditional cubers."

Lalor said Cotton Incorporated's test cuber, known as a "gear cuber," is now undergoing trials at a gin in Texas.

Another possibility being explored by Cotton Incorporated is packaging gin trash in mounds on pallets, the engineer said. "This is especially promising in areas near feed lots," said Lalor.

While costs of modulating gin trash will vary from one gin to another, he said, the average should be around $5 a ton. A 32-foot pallet will accommodate 13 to 14 tons of striped cotton-gin trash.

Lalor said that Cotton Incorporated researchers, knowing that gin trash has traditionally been used locally as a feed for ruminant animals, conducted a study to examine the supply-and-demand situation for a larger market and to evaluate gin trash both nutritionally and economically.

"We found that gin trash compares favorably with other feedstuffs of similar nature," said Lalor. The Cotton Incorporated research suggested numerous ration formulations based on gin trash as the roughage. Our conclusion is that, where chemical contamination is not a problem, gin trash is most profitable to the gin as an animal feed," said Lalor.

"To safeguard this market, ginners must not offer gin trash for sale if the crop from which it originated was treated with chemicals bearing labels prohibiting use of the crop for feeding to livestock."

New possibilities for profitable disposal of gin waste are discussed in an "Agro-Industrial Report" entitled "Productivity and Profits in Ginning," just published by Cotton Incorporated.

Dr. Lalor is one of the authors, along with J. K. ("Farmer") Jones, associate director of agricultural research for mechanization, and Dr. George A. Slater, vice president of agricultural research, Cotton Incorporated represents U. S. cotton growers as their fiber marketing company.

Research operations are administered at the company's research center in Raleigh, N.C., and marketing operations are centered in New York City. Copies of the "Agro-Industrial Report" are available from Dr. Lalor at the Cotton Incorporated Research Center, 4505 Creedmoor Road, Raleigh, N.C. 27612.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A reader explains: "In 1969 I was treated for cancer and I've been fine since. Why don't people realize that cancer has a hopeful side?"

ANSWERline: Congratulations for being one of the 1.5 million Americans alive today who are cured of cancer. Often fears and ignorance are behind the gloomy reaction you mention. The truth of the matter is that many cancers are curable if treated early. This year 222,000 people in this country will be saved from cancer death, but 111,000 more might be saved by earlier and better treatment.

doesn't it matter at her age?"

ANSWERline: Cancer of the breast is rare among young women although it does occur. It is important for your daughter to make regular breast self-examination a habit while she is young so that she will do it automatically in the years ahead when her risk of breast cancer will increase.

Your local American Cancer Society office has a leaflet of instructions and you would be wise to see that she reads it. And it's important for you to examine your own breasts as well, and set a good example.

A heavy cigarette smoker writes: "I seem to have difficulty in swallowing and I'm hoarse all the time, even though I don't have a cold. It's probably just my cigarettes. Should I be concerned?"

ANSWERline: The symptoms you mention could point to more than "just cigarettes" and you should definitely see your physician right away. He will check your throat and might want to do further tests. Let him make a diagnosis soon. Your smoking might have serious consequences, but if something is the matter you will have been lucky to catch it early.

A businessman asks: "Is there a definitive test for cancer?"

ANSWERline: Microscopic examination of cells from the suspicious area is the definitive test for cancer. This is called a biopsy. The diagnosis is usually made by a pathologist who has been trained to pinpoint abnormal cells.

A senior citizen from El Paso says: "It may be wishful thinking but does cancer ever just disappear?"

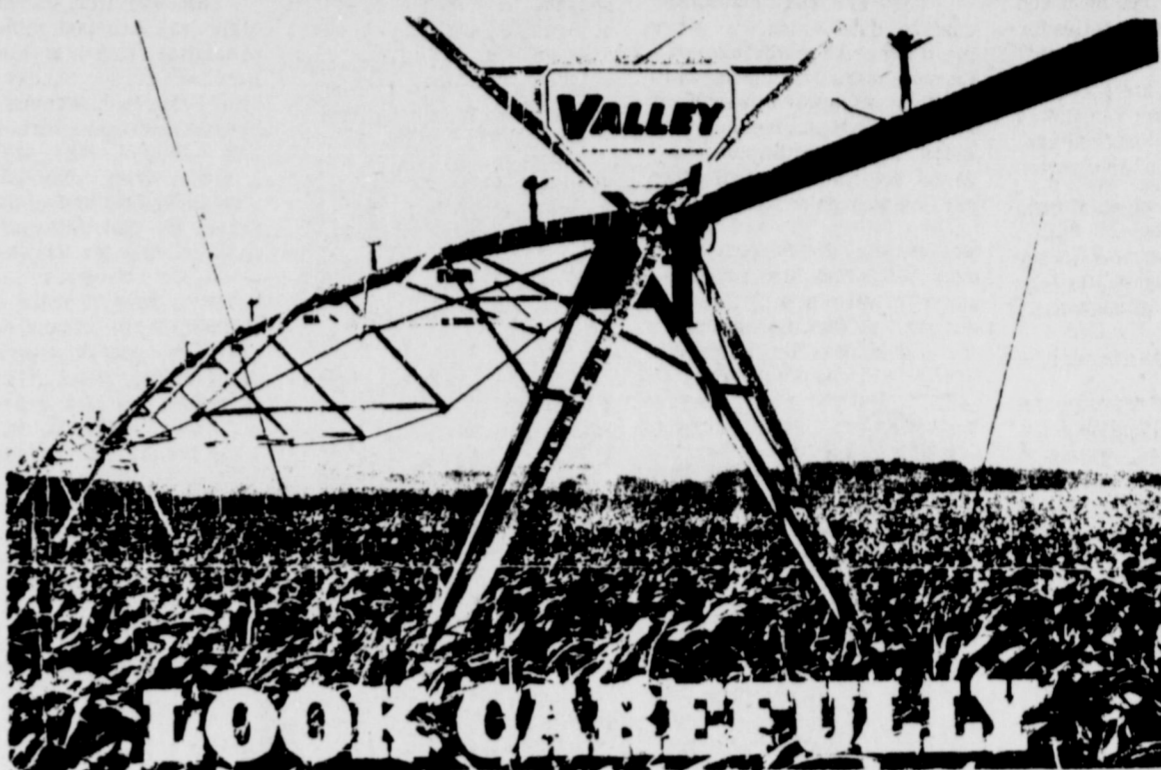

ANSWERline: Medical records occasionally include a case where cancer disappeared. But this is extremely rare and remains unexplained. Cancer must be diagnosed and properly treated as quickly as possible. Don't ever wait for it to disappear because such "wishful thinking" could lead to a disaster.

Question: "What's the best way to avoid skin cancer?"

ANSWERline: Avoid over-exposure to the sun. The ACS estimates that 95% of skin cancer could be cured if sores which do not heal are promptly reported to a physician.

Letters To The Editor

Editors Note: The following letter from Harry Hubbard, president of the Texas AFL-CIO and Jay Naman, president of the Texas Farmers Union concerning the grain sale to Russia was sent today to George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO:

"We are concerned about the chaotic conditions concerning food in this country. Soviet Wheat Sale 2 exemplifies these conditions.

"The proposed sale would again put Labor, Farmers and Consumers at the mercy of grain speculators, the multinational grain traders and the Ford Administration, which seems to be working far too closely with speculators and traders. It is time to stop the manipulation of food for private exploitation.

"We feel that overseas sale of grain is necessary and desirable. It helps create jobs, helps farmers obtain a fair return on their investment and work and helps create a favorable balance of trade.

"However, it is in the best interest of Farmers and Labor that a national food policy be established to protect the interests of the farmer, the consumer and the world's need for food. Under present conditions the nation's food policy has been too often determined by speculators and traders in their own interests and this should be stopped by national legislation.

"If such a national food policy were established, there would be no need for actions such as those threatened by the Longshoremen's Union to refuse to load grain ships headed for Russia, because they would be assured that such an action would not lead to speculator-escalated food prices. They would know that the consumer was paying a fair price in the grocery store.

"A national food policy is just as important as a national energy policy. The nation should not be at the mercy of speculators or multinational cartels. A nation as wealthy in food resources as ours should never ever face shortages because of speculative policies which have forced prices so low that farmers cannot afford to produce. Nor should this nation ever be in position where consumers cannot afford to buy quality food products because of excessively high prices caused by speculator's control over the distribution of food. We have seen what can happen as a result of the Soviet Wheat Sale 1. That may have been but a hint of what's to come unless Legislative action is forthcoming. "Creation of a national food policy by Congress should be a high priority."

Sincerely,
Harry Hubbard (S)

Add definitions: Nonentity—one totally ignorant of his actual position.

Here's a metric measurement from the Texas Department of Agriculture. One inch equals 2.54 centimeters. Twelve inches equal 30.48 centimeters.

The "target price" provisions of current farm law may produce 1975-crop price deficiency payments to cotton producers across the 19-state cotton belt, including over 20,000 farmers on the Texas High Plains, according to calculations made by Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The 1975 target price, after failure of PCG and other producer organizations to secure passage of an emergency farm bill raising it, remains at 38 cents per pound as announced by the Secretary of Agriculture last October. The law authorizes a payment equal to the difference between this target and the weighted average farm level price for all U.S. cotton sold during the calendar year.

According to U.S. Department of Agriculture figures, 4,472,160 bales of U.S. cotton sold in the January through June period this year, at an average price of 35.35 cents per pound. If prices in July through December don't raise this average to at least 38 cents, according to PCG officials, payments will be necessary to make up the short fall.

For example, should the 12-month average come to 36 cents, each producer would be eligible for a payment of 2 cents per pound times his farm's established yield from the smaller of his allotted acres or planted acres.

"Prices for the remaining six months of the year will determine whether payments are due," notes PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, "but as long as the possibility of a payment exists, producers should keep in close touch with county ASCS offices to make certain they meet all eligibility requirements."

The Cotton Division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service reports average prices being paid to farmers as of the middle of each month, and these prices, weighted by the volume of cotton moved each month, make up the "average price paid to farmers."

USDA's most recent report, at mid-June, shows the average price paid at 36.9 cents, up from the March low of 30 cents. The price started the year in January at 42.1 cents, plunged to 32 cents by February 15, went on down to the year's low in March, then recovered to 32.2, 36.3 and 36.9 cents, respectively, in April, May and June.

In assessing chances for a price deficiency payment, PCG officials note, it should be kept in mind that, normally, more cotton moves through the market in the July-December period than during the first six months of the year. Therefore prices for the remainder of the year will have a greater influence on the annual average than the figures recorded to date.

Price deficiency payments that might be made would be separate from and in addition to "disaster payments" due as a result of yield losses brought on by adverse weather or other conditions beyond the producer's control, Johnson explained.
