Safe Diet For Good Health and Vitality

Good health depends upon proper nutrition. Proper nutrition depends first, upon the availability of the food supply. This takes us right back to the Breeder-Feeder Movement, or balanced farming program, which is the basis for Southwestern economic independence. Secondly, proper nutrition depends upon the proper use of these food products. Whether you are a producer or consumer, both phases of the problem are of vital importance. Good health and vitality are the direct results of proper nutrition.

But, what is proper nutrition? Briefly, the needs of the body are: (1) Calories for heat and energy, (2) Protein to build and repair the body tissue, (3) Minerals to regulate body processes, to build bone, blood, etc., (4) Vitamins to promote growth and protect health, and (5) Bulk to aid in elimination of body waste. Proper nutrition means the selection of a diet which supplies all of the daily needs of the body with a small reserve supply.

The Texas Extension Service working with other scientific specialists, set up a Texas Food Standard as a guide to proper nutrition for rural people. This standard has been broadened for use of urban families and is being suggested as the "Safe Diet" by nutritionists, dietitians, home economists and teaching groups throughout the Southwest. The following standard is a safe guide in evaluating the daily menu, and attaining proper nutrition through an adequate, balanced diet.

The Safe Diet:

- Daily
- 1 quart of milk
 - 1 egg
 - 1 Serving lean meat
 - 1 serving potatoes or rice
 - 1 serving green or yellow vegetables
 - 1 serving other vegetables
 - 1 serving citrus fruit or tomatoes
 - 1 serving other fruit—dried, canned or fresh
 - 1 serving whole grain products
 - Bread and butter at every meal
 - Some sweets
 - Cheese three times per week
 - Dried peas and beans three times per week
 - Liver once a week
 - Water daily—six to eight glasses

This "Safe Diet" has meat once a day and specifies liver once a week. More meat could be used with more safety because, of all the foods, meat offers the most in food elements, satisfying qualities, and in palatability.

In our urge or need to economize, we have skimmed too much on meat. Had this not been the case, perhaps the results might have been different. We are told that the diets of the Southwest are dangerously inadequate, that only twenty-five per cent of our people are today enjoying diets supplying a small reserve strength over and above the daily needs. Rural people can grow their own and need not lack for all the elements of a good diet—meat included.

Better dietary habits improve health; better health raises economic and social standards; the route to security and economic independence lies through both producing and consuming a "Safe Diet" on the farm as far as possible.

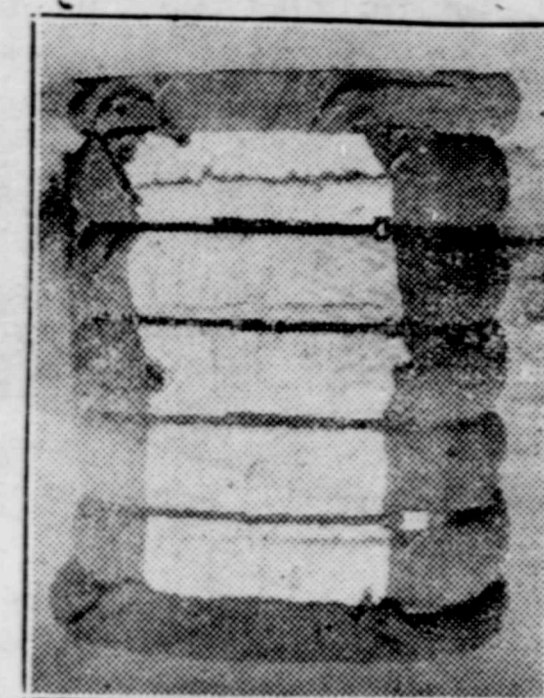

CZECH STUDENT TELLS OF UNSETTLED CONDITIONS

DENTON, May 1. — When questioned about her home in Czechoslovakia by her classmates at Texas State College for Women, Gertrude Blodigova, foreign exchange student in the United States, answered, "I can tell you how it was when I left, but not how it is now. Over there, everything is changing so quickly that one cannot tell what will happen the next day. Our young people had dances like yours—the fox trot, tango, polka, and waltz—but I do not know if they have them now." Learning to speak English in four months, Miss Blodigova spent a month in New York before coming to Texas, and plans to remain over here another year.

T. B. EASILY HANDLED

AUSTIN, Texas, May 1. — "Tuberculosis no longer ranks first among the major killing diseases—a position it formerly occupied not only in Texas but in the entire country. However, despite its now being seventh on the list in 1938, it continues to kill more persons between fifteen and forty-five years of age than does any other single disease. And this is in the face of definite evidence that the majority of tuberculosis patients can be cured if the condition is detected early and proper treatment and living rules maintained," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"While the treatment of the individual early case is of great importance, it is of equal moment from a public health point of view that the spread of infection to others be prevented. Such prevention is possible. A more concerted attack on this front would mean the saving of thousands of lives.

"In every case, when a diagnosis of active tuberculosis has been made, an investigation of the physical condition of the other members of the family should follow. It cannot be too emphatically stated that tuberculosis runs in families solely because it is communicable, the disease being usually transmitted through intimate and prolonged exposure to the 'open' case.

"It has been estimated that forty per cent of the tuberculosis cases that will develop within the next decade will be the result of close contact with others already infected.

"Routine examination of all high school children, isolation or hospitalization of the active case, discovery of the source of infection, application of hygienic living principles, periodic examination for all adults, and a careful check-up by physicians and trained workers of all known active cases and contacts represent an invaluable defense against the spread of tuberculosis."

TREASURER ONE OF SEVEN OF COLLEGE PAPERS

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 1. — The Treador, Texas Tech semi-weekly newspaper, is one of seven college newspapers in the United States receiving "All-American Pacemaker" rating in the 1939 contest, sponsored by the Associated Collegiate Press. The score was 760 of a possible 1,000. Reeves Henly is Treador editor. Other newspapers selected from the 55 All-American group for superior rating are The Daily Northwestern, Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.; Daily Texan, University of Texas, Austin; Echo Weekly, Milwaukee State Teachers college, Milwaukee, Wis.; Emory Wheel, Emory university, Atlanta; Michigan Daily, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; Minnesota Daily, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Four hundred one dailies, weeklies, bi-weeklies, monthlies, and two-three time weeklies were entered in the 1939 contest, which is sponsored by the University of Minnesota department of journalism.

MINUTES OF ROTARY CLUB MEETING, APRIL 28, 1939

Meeting was opened by the singing of several songs led by Martin Baze, the music being furnished at the piano by our club sweetheart, Miss Gertrude Rasco.

The invocation was given by John W. Hendrix.

One visiting Rotarian, Frank Cave of the Plainview club was present.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the club, May 5th, 1939 at the Brownfield Hotel Coffee Shop.

A plaque was chosen as the gift to be presented to the Seminole club on their charter presentation night, May 5, 1939. This gift to be limited to $15.00.

An inspiring appeal was made by the president urging all members to be present for at least one day at the Big Spring District Conference, May 7th, 8th and 9th.

J. O. Gillham, the program chairman introduced James Harley Dallas, who gave us a fervent talk on why he likes "his home town."

The secretary notified Mrs. J. E. Shelton that we would not be in attendance at her establishment next Friday.

The secretary was instructed by the president to inform the Lamesa club that we would present a plaque to the Seminole club on their charter night.

Homer Winston told the one in a little different form that has been making the rounds about the man who inebriated decided to fly around the block.

The club was urged by the President, Dr. Parish to actively participate in "clean up week."

LOCAL SCOUTS JOIN IN SEMINOLE CAMP

SEMINOLE — Over two hundred Scouts and Leaders will gather a mile south of Seminole on Friday for the first District Camporee, according to Mr. F. D. Stark of Seminole. Troops from Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Ackery, Ropesville, Meadow, Brownfield, Plains, Gomez, Seagraves and Seminole will be in attendance. Dr. R. B. Paris of Brownfield will be the Camp Marshall.

The Program will consist of opening Camp at 4:00 p. m. followed later with a Campfire. On Saturday the troops will compete against a standard for Camporee honors. The Camporee will end Saturday at 2:00 p. m. with a flag ceremony and announcement of Class winners.

Troop 49, of Brownfield will set up and demonstrate a model troop camp. Visitors are invited to attend the Campfire and inspect the Camporee camp.

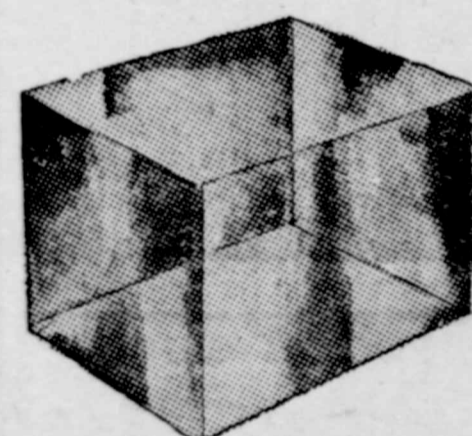

Dr. H. A. Castleberry is here from Ben Wheeler looking after business. Hasn't decided to return to Terry at this time. He owns a good farm just north of the city.

J. H. Martin out on route one, handed us two ones Saturday and remarked that he guessed he could spare me that much now. Thanks, and duly credit, up in advance.

C. Sears and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Sears returned recently from Hot Springs, N. M., where they took baths. Mr. Sears however, has not done well since returning. He had a hurt last fall, and now seems to be bothered with rheumatism. He is now under the treatment of local physicians, but is up and going.

H. D. Leach was in Wednesday and reported that part of his place got a good rain, but the portion some two miles from his residence received only a light rain.

Geo. E. Tiernan and Leslie Green attended the polo games in Abilene, Sunday. They both have polo horses and went to contact some polo buyers.

CITY on the SANTA FE

The Snorting Iron Horse Out-races the Rattling Stage Coach! Town Laid Out in July, 1872, by A. A. Robinson, Chief Engineer of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, and Known in its Wildest and Woolliest days as the Wickedest City in the West, Leaps into Lurid Life in "Dodge City," Spectacular Technicolor Motion Picture!

By HARRY LEE

"BEYOND Chicago, no law — beyond Dodge City, no God!" That is the way they put it back in the seventies, for hardly had the last spike been driven in that division of the Santa Fe — when a roaring cavalcade of bullwhackers, buffalo hunters, cowboys, Indians, covered wagon homeseekers, and desperadoes began to sweep into that crazy collection of tents and dugouts, which had been dignified by the name 'City' — Dodge City — to be exact. Dodge City — the devil's own!

The tellers of tall yarns have had their innings, but those who seek really authentic information can do no better than turn to "Dodge City," the book written by Robert Marr Wright, veteran of Indian fighting days — and published by the Eagle Press of Wichita in 1913.

"Dodge was in the very heart of the buffalo country," says Mr. Wright, "and hardly had the railroad reached it — long before a depot could be built — business began, and such a business! Dozens of cars a day were loaded with hides and meat, and dozens of carloads of grain, flour and provisions, arrived each day. The streets were lined with wagons from early morning to late at night!"

Mr. Wright, who owned a ranch near the site of the future Dodge City, relates that in the Spring of 1864, while he was away from home, it was attacked by a band of three hundred Indians. His sons, who were supplied with arms and ammunition, prepared to stand siege. After they had killed one Indian, and wounded a number of their ponies, the savages became more careful. They tried by every means within their power to get the boys to venture outside.

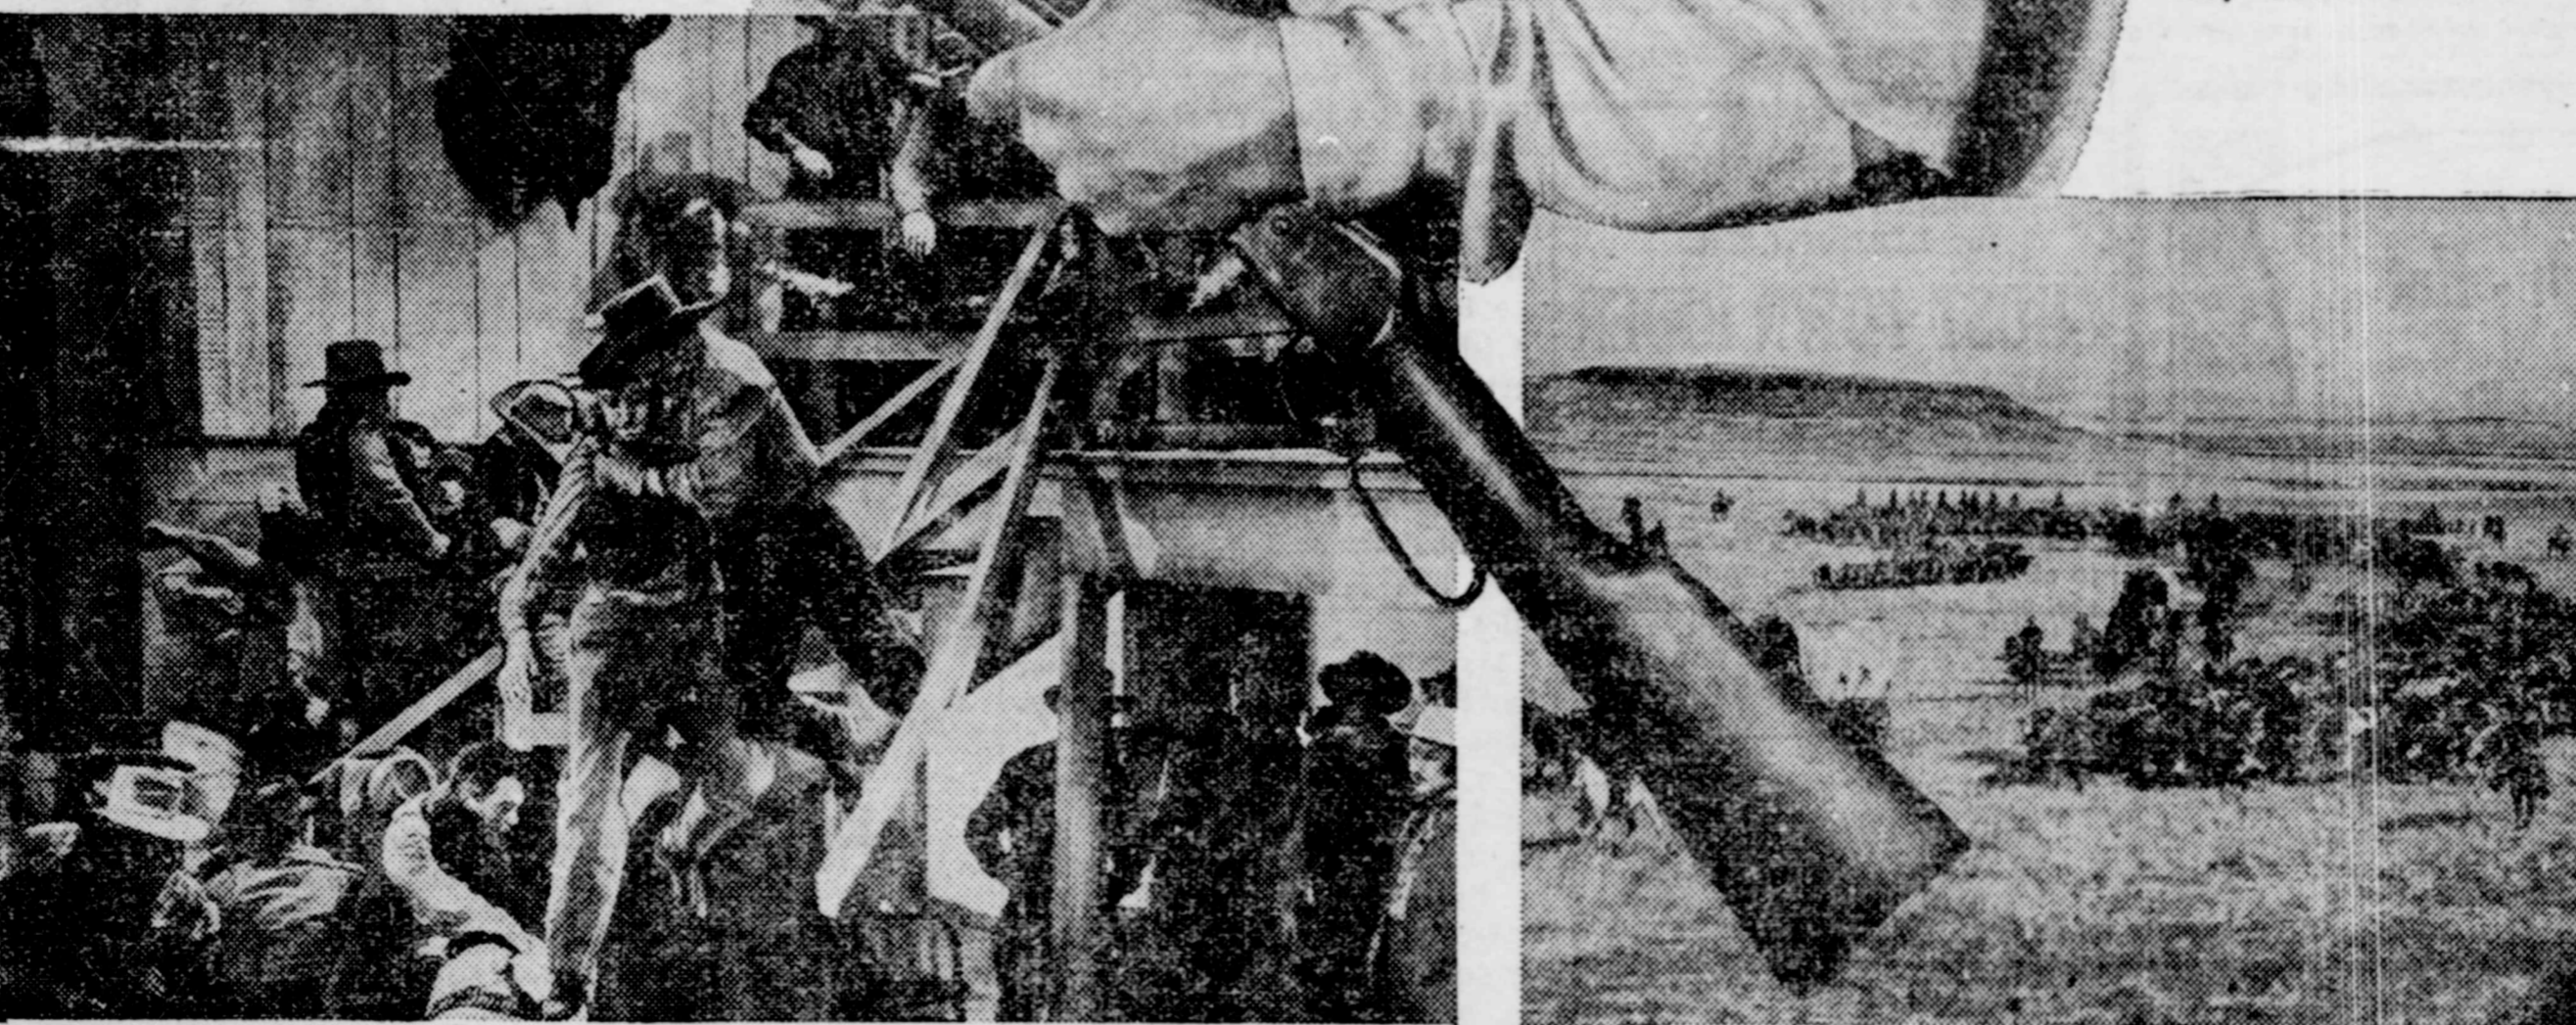

Mrs. Wright, at the beginning of the fight, had placed her two younger children on the floor and covered them with feather beds. She then knocked bits of chinking from between the logs, kept a sharp lookout on the Indians, and loaded the guns as fast as the boys emptied them. After about seven hours, during which the wily Red Men made it hot for the besieged family, they got together, held a powwow, and rode off up the river.

New Army Posts

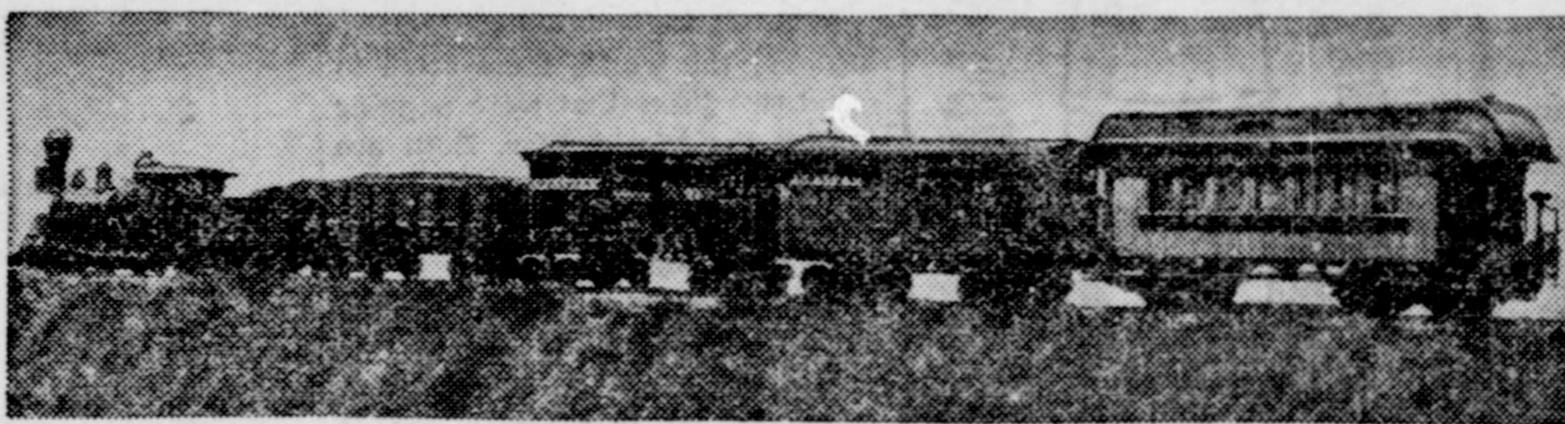

That was the year that the Government established a series of posts — of which Fort Dodge was one — along the trails, for the protection of travelers and covered wagon settlers, and for the quelling of Indian outbreaks. One of the routes that led to Fort Dodge was called the "Hornado de muerte" — meaning the journey of death.

In his chapter on Indian fights, Mr. Wright says: "All the great expeditions against the Indians, horse thieves, and bad men were organized and fitted out at Fort Dodge or Dodge City, because they were at the end of the last, great frontier. Here civilization ended and lawlessness began. This gave rise, says the writer, to the necessity for many notable men to come to Dodge — such as Generals Sherman, Sheridan, Hancock, Miles, Sully, Custer and many others — even including President Rutherford B. Hayes."

Dodge City was located five miles west of Fort Dodge, on the north bank of the Arkansas River, and named for Colonel Richard I. Dodge, commandant of the post, who headed the town company.

"During this period," continues Mr. Wright, "we were entirely without law and order, and the nearest place of justice was Hays City, ninety-five miles to the northwest. There we had to go to settle our differences, but, take it from me, most of these differences were settled on the spot by rifle or six-shooter!"

The absurdity of Hays City justice is illustrated by a murder trial over which the famous Irishman, Justice Joyce, presided. Two Irish section hands got into a fight which ended only when one killed the other with a spike. No one witnessed the deed, but in due time the man who had committed it, came in, gave himself up, told a plausible story, and to all appearances was absently penitent.

Citizens went out and investigated, and concluded that the spike had been used in self defense. When the culprit came up for trial, Justice Joyce asked him the usual question: "Are you guilty or not guilty?" "Guilty, yer honor!" "Shut yer d---d mouth!" shouted the Judge as if horrified at the possibility of a miscarriage of justice. Then, after an impressive silence he added in a matter-of-fact tone: "Discharged for want of evidence!"

Regarding crime and punishment Mr. Wright has this to say, "Our first calaboose in Dodge City was a well fifteen feet deep, into which the drunks were let down and allowed to remain until they were sober. Sometimes there were several in it at once.

"Concerning the City a great deal has been said and written that is not true. Many reckless bad men came to Dodge and many brave men. The desperadoes had to be met by officers equally daring and reckless. The officers gave them the south side of the railroad track, but the north side must be kept respectable — and it was.

"It was the railroad, you might say, that made us," says the author, "Hundreds of its employees made it their home from the very beginning. Dodge was not only the terminus of the road for a time, but it has always been the end of a division."

Critics of Dodge

The following interesting sidelights on Dodge City are gleaned from an article published in the "Topeka Times" in 1878.

"During the year of 1873 we roughed it in the West. Our first stopping place was the famous Dodge City, at the time a perfect paradise for gamblers, cut-throats and girls. On our first visit the buildings in town were not buildings, with one or two exceptions, but tents and dug-outs. Everyone in town, nearly, sold whiskey or kept a restaurant, perhaps both. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad was just then working its way up the low-banked Arkansas, and Dodge was the frontier town.

"Its growth was rapid. In a month from the time the railroad was completed to its borders, the place began to look like a city. Frame houses one story high, sprang up. Dodge became noted as headquarters for the buffalo hunters. These men carried a pair of Colt revolvers in their belts, wore their pants in their boots, and when they died, did so, generally with their boots on.

"We were down there again last week, and were surprised at the change in the city. It was built up wonderfully, has a fine courthouse, church, good schools, large business blocks, a good hall, and two live newspapers."

In 1883 the local paper noted: "For the first time in its existence Dodge had, last Sunday, the semblance of Sabbath . . . All business houses and saloons, dance halls and gambling dens were closed."

Famous Townsmen

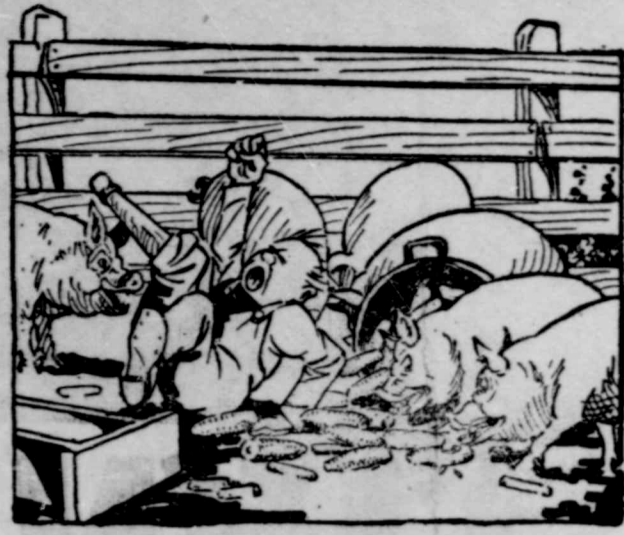

Among the famous citizens of Dodge City was the quiet and unassuming farmer, Bill Tilghman. He was on hand when the site for the town was first surveyed and was marshal for three years. Later, as Sheriff of Ford County — of which Dodge is the largest town — he was instrumental in putting many of the bad men where they belonged. Another celebrated Sheriff was "Bat" Masterson, who later came East and became a sports writer for the old New York Telegram. He died in 1921.

Eddie Foy, later famous all over the world as the father of "the seven little Foyes" — made one of his first vaudeville appearances in Dodge City before an audience that misunderstood one of his jokes and pitched him into the river. He was so good-natured about it that the citizens took him out of the water and into their hearts. Foy was their favorite entertainer forever after.

And now Warner Bros. recreate the spectacular scenes of the making and remaking of Dodge City and the breathtaking melodrama is photographed in Technicolor. Errol Flynn — soldier of fortune on his own — is starred as the daring young adventurer who enters the town as the leader of a cavalcade of covered wagons and cattle from Texas — and runs into bad men and good. He, too, like Bill Tilghman and "Bat" Masterson, becomes Sheriff — with hair-raising results. With Errol Flynn is featured the lovely Olivea de Havilland, as a covered wagon girl. Heading the cast of thousands are Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale, Henry Travers, Victor Jory and William Lundigen. The lavish production was directed by Michael Curtiz.

AUSTIN — Analysis of the House taxation committee's substitute for Senate Joint Resolution No. 12 — the constitutional amendment which would freeze a 2 per cent sales tax into the Constitution of Texas — gives a fairly clear picture of why the House appears so reluctant to take up for consideration that there was a growing possibility at the week end that no tax bill would come out of the regular session. The Senate constitutional amendment proposal would levy a two per cent retail sales tax, similar levy on utility bills to be paid by the customer, and about a 25 per cent increase in present severance taxes on natural resources. It would yield approximately $40,000,000 of revenue, of which the sales levies would yield about $33,000,000. It would allocate $20,000,000 of this for old age pensions, and fixes this as a "ceiling" above which future pension payments could never go. It would also take care of the other social security needs, including aid for dependent children, the blind, and teacher's pensions, at a total cost of about $3,500,000 to $4,000,000. But—and here is joker No. 1—it releases from present pension revenues about $10,000,000 now going to pensions from liquor, cigarette and amusement taxes.

Trade $4 for $1

Thus, in order to provide an additional $10,000,000 for pensions, the taxpayers would be required to pay a new tax bill of $40,000,000 annually. The surplus would go to relieve large special interests of State ad valorem taxes, by extinguishing the general fund overdraft, and otherwise.

Joker No. 2 in the committee amendment provides that the rates provided in the amendment may not be increased above the figures named in the bill for pension purposes. The rates may be reduced ratably, if too much revenue is produced. The rates may be increased above the stipulated amounts if it is desired to tax these same sources for other state purposes. But nothing is said about ratable increases for these other "state purposes." Therefore, in the future, it would be easy for the Legislature to jump the sales tax levy to 3 for 4 per cent, without hiking the natural resources taxes at all, if more money were needed for the general fund, for instance. That, of course, is the purpose of the special interests—to do away entirely with state ad valorem taxes eventually, through remissions and repeal bills, and when such abolition of real property as a source of State revenue is accomplished, they hope to put the entire State tax burden on the small income group by hiking the sales tax rate.

Wouldn't End Agitation

The House anti-sales tax bloc stood fast and refused to set the Senate amendment for special order, either last Saturday or last Tuesday. Many observers questioned the ability of the sales taxers ever to get 100 votes for the scheme in this House, despite the terrific pressure from the sales tax members, the special interest lobby, the Governor, and other sources which are carrying the flag for the special interests.

That the special interest lobby program would never satisfy the old folks, even if it were enacted seems apparent. Liberalization of the pension restrictions to the extent of removing the ability of children to support their parents as a factor in determining need, it is estimated, will add only about 35,000 to the rolls, leaving nearly 100,000 oldsters now off the rolls still off. And the House has clearly indicated twice that it doesn't want to go any further in liberalizing the requirements. So the claims of the sales taxers that they will settle the pensions agitation seems absurd, since the plan would leave 100,000 old folks off the rolls to complain and agitate in the future, just as they have in the past. The net result of the lobby scheme, if the people were to adopt it, would be to raise pension payments from an average of $13 to about $18, for a while at least, until the increasing ranks of the pensioners forced a cut to prororate the $20,000,000—and to add about 35,000 not now on the rolls. The House seems to think $40,000,000 is too big a price to pay for the small benefit indicated.

Garner Candidacy

Indicative of the increasing tension between the New Deal and conservative forces backing Vice President John Garner for the Democratic nomination for next President, is a story brought to Austin by a prominent Texan from the national capitol. Charley Michaelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, compiles periodically a file of reprints of newspaper editorials from all over the country, dividing them into two groups, those "favorable" to the Democrats, and those "unfavorable." According to the story, Garner noticed every editorial referring favorably to his candidacy was grouped by Michaelson with the "unfavorable" clippings. So Garner called up Michaelson.

"Ain't I the Vice President of the United States, Charley?" he asked bluntly. Michaelson agreed. "Ain't I the Vice Chairman of the Democratic National committee—the crowd that pays your $20,000 a year salary?" he continued. "Yes, sir," agreed Michaelson. "Ain't I the Democratic National Committeeman from Texas?" "Yes, Mr. Garner." "Then, why in the blue blazes is every newspaper reference to me as classified as 'unfavorable' to the Democratic party?"

According to the narrator, Michaelson is still trying to think up an answer to Garner.

Oil Front Quiets

The short-lived attempt of Rail Commissioners Lon Smith and Jerry Sadler to "take charge" of oil proration by leaving Commissioner Ernest Thompson, the admitted proration expert of the commission, out of their counsels, came to a quick end. After the salutary lesson Smith and Sadler learned when bankers, oil producers and business interests generally "turned the heat on" and forced them to back down on their discriminatory order hiking allowances in East Texas, and slashing competing fields, reinforced by an injunction from Federal Court, the two commissioners solicited and obtained the counsel of Thompson this week in writing a new 60-day order. The new order calls for continuance of Sunday shutdowns for Saturday shutdowns two days each month, remains below the U. S. Bureau's market demand estimate, and generally follows out the conservation policies originated and practiced for the past four years by Thompson. The oil industry breathed a sigh of relief, and rumors that a strong candidate to oppose Smith's re-election became rife, with the name of County Judge Roy Hoffheinz, of Houston, ex-legislator, most often mentioned as Smith's opponent.

Sidelights

By MARVIN JONES

Chairman, U. S. House Committee on Agriculture

The farm movement will be continued. The law will be improved, mistakes will be corrected, but the movement itself, since it is based on the fundamental principle of equality, must go on. The principle of equality was recognized by the early statesman of every political faith. It was written into the Declaration of Independence. It was carried forward in the Constitution. It was recognized in the first report on manufacturers. It is not a question of whether we shall have a farm program. It is a question of what that program shall be.

What parts of the long-range program should be kept and what parts should be discarded:

(1) We have the lowest farm interest rates that have ever prevailed in this or any other country. The farmers of America are now paying 160 million dollars per year less in interest rates than they were paying in 1932. These advantages should be retained.

(2) The freight rate provision of the present act authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to file applications for correction of the rank discriminations against agriculture in the freight rate structure of the country. This is the first tangible step that has been taken in this regard and should be retained.

(3) The present act provides for the search for new uses, new outlets and new markets for farm commodities.

(4) The provisions of section 32 make available funds for widening distribution of farm commodities and the products thereof. These funds have been used effectively in respect to a great many different farm commodities and the products thereof.

(5) The soil features provide for conserving and rebuilding of the soil. Some of the finest work that has been done in this generation has been done under the soil provision of the act. I do not see how any one can object to continuing this work.

NUMBER OF A RATTLESNAKES RATTLES DON'T MEAN MUCH

AUSTIN, Texas, April 11. — "You can count a rattler's rattles till you're black in the face," Texas Memorial Museum curators contend, "and you still can't tell its exact age"

"For every three rattles, add a year to the reptile's age," argues Texas tradition.

The issue came when the recently-opened museum, on The University of Texas campus, launched its first exhibit in a projected "wild-life" display, placing a live four-foot, diamondback rattlesnake in a museum display case.

"Shortly after the snake's birth, Carl Chelf, anthropology curator, explained, "a horny button appears on the tip of its tail. That's followed by approximately three rattles each year. But the rattles and even the button itself are often knocked off in the tail's violent agitation—which produces the 'rattling.'"

If you find the button missing, as you often do, Chelf contended then you have no gauge of the snake's age at all.
