

THIS COUPLE IS WRITING NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

No, you're wrong, This farmer and his wife are not writing down their New Year resolutions, but they are, according to Dennis O. Lilly, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor, for the Farm Security Administration in Terry County, taking an inventory for the past year's farm and home operations. "Every farm family which borrows money from the Farm Security Administration," said Mr. Lilly, "agrees to keep business-like records and to follow a sound farm and home-management plan, which is worked out with the FSA rehabilitation supervisor for the county."

"This plan," he continued "usually calls for the production of enough vegetables, milk, eggs, and meat to feed the family and for enough feed for forage crops to take care of livestock. Ordinarily it also provides for at least two cash crops. The county supervisor is glad to advise borrower-families on crop rotations, erosion control, livestock and equipment purchases, marketing and other farm problems."

He said that by keeping accurate records in books furnished by the Farm Security Administration, farm families are able to check their gross incomes and expense month by month. The record books also enable families to determine where they make the most money or to check certain phases of the farm operations which are losing money. "Farm families cooperating with the FSA have learned the value of making plans for the farm and home and keeping accurate records," Mr. Lilly said. "And the first of the New Year finds these people joining successful business men in taking inventory and avoiding mistakes in the future by checking the past year's operations. FSA provides the record books and helps with the plans; the farmers and their wives do the work and keep the record. Business-like methods on the farms is the result."

AIRPLANES NOW SPEED FASTER THAN BULLETS

"An Army airplane has, in a late test, attained a speed of 520 miles an hour—faster than a bullet," relates William F. McDermott in the current Rotarian magazine. "An airplane speed of 600 to 700 miles an hour is in sight."

It is the octaine contest of the gasoline that makes such speeds possible, Mr. McDermott points out, and it is a former Russian exile, now becoming a naturalized American citizen, who has made the discoveries that permit this hope. "The name of 73-year-old Vladimir N. Ipatieff was for years revered in Russia much like Thomas A. Edison's was in America," he writes.

Quitting Russia in protest at what was happening, Prof. Ipatieff came to America to become a lecturer at Northwestern University and chemical research director for an oil company. Here he has worked out a process of condensing the molecules of a gas that formerly wasted in the "cracking" of crude oils to make gasoline, with such results that Mr. McDermott reports "this process represents a saving of 75 million barrels of crude oil a year."

This pepped-up gas promises speeds up to or better than 700 miles an hour. Author McDermott shows and "there are still 4 billion untested ways of trying to make better gasoline, any of which may be an improvement on what is known today!"

THE NEWEST RUBBER

In recent years American laboratories have made rapid strides in developing synthetic rubber, the newest type of which was announced only last week, being the fourth now perfected for commercial production.

This latest type is called "butyl" rubber, and was developed after 10 years of research by a group of chemists at the Esso laboratories in Elizabeth, N. J. It is said to possess almost incredible properties, being superior to natural rubber for many uses.

Butyl is made of oil refinery gas, is white as snow, and is both odorless and tasteless. It stretches better but bounces less than natural rubber, and it becomes stronger with age. In laboratory tests a piece of natural rubber placed in nitric acid dissolved in five minutes, while a similar piece of butyl was not affected by the acid.

The new rubber is especially desirable for tires, as its strength is increased when it gets hot; it does not wear down as fast as real rubber; it holds air in inner tubes 15 to 20 times as long, and sharp objects in the road do not cut it as easily.

Several other superior qualities of butyl also were described by Dr. H. P. Frolich, director of the chemical division of the laboratory in his report to the American Chemical Society. The value of such a product to the nation in case our supply of natural rubber should be cut off can not be overestimated.

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

It is obvious that the purpose of British strategy now is to eliminate Italy as a major belligerent in the war. That thought unquestionably underlay the recent British naval invasion of the Adriatic Sea—a body of water which, on the basis of fighting ships and manpower, Italy should be able to control with ease. England is rapidly liquidating Italian military influence in Africa.

There seems to be little doubt that Mussolini is on the down grade and that the magnificent Fascist empire he envisioned has small chance of being realized. Duce has but two alternatives, both of them unpleasant from his point of view—he must either surrender to England, or ask that Hitler save him. The first alternative is extremely unlikely—Germany could not permit it without risking a tremendous loss of prestige. The second alternative means German domination of Italy. The Italian people, going by the judgment of the best observers, will not like that, but there will be little they can do about it. Unconfirmed reports say that Gestapo agents are already in Rome, and it is known that the German air force is conveying troops to Albania. It looks as if from now on Mussolini will be only Hitler's stooge.

If England does succeed in eliminating or greatly reducing Italian military and naval power, it will be a major victory. At the same time, it will bring with it increased danger of a German attempt at invading England. The British blockade is extremely effective, and the part of Europe the Fuhrer controls is running short of essential supplies. So, when Churchill said the other day in Commons that he expected an all-out German attack within two months, he was not talking through his hat. It is the logical move for Hitler to make. And the fact that the German air force has substantially reduced the intensity of its raids over Britain also leads to the belief that Germany is preparing for a decisive blow against England.

England is superbly prepared to resist invasion, even though she is as yet inadequately prepared to carry the war to Germany on the Continent. Expert opinion generally holds that Hitler's great opportunity was directly after the evacuation of Dunkirk—that England could not have successfully resisted a determined invasion then. At the present time, they think, Britain has all she needs to keep an aggressor from her shores.

Washington is more encouraged concerning British chances of eventually winning the war. Our future policy will probably be to give England almost anything she wants. There is little doubt that the laws preventing loans to England will be repealed when her cash runs out.

The suggestion, recently made by a British cabinet member, that the U. S. turn over to England, German and Italian ships which are tied up in our harbors, has caused a good deal of excitement in Berlin. Nazi officials say that that would be an act of war, and would be regarded as such. So far, our government has made no official comment on the proposal.

England's greatest danger now is destruction of her merchant shipping. The British Isles are consumers, not producers. Without ocean transport, they could sustain themselves for only a limited period of time. The German submarine and surface raider attack has been dangerously effective. It is likely that England will soon tell us that she needs freighters even more than she needs planes and guns and other implements of war.

The production indexes continue to rise. Despite that, the feeling grows that the defense program is moving too slowly. The appointment of Mr. Knudson as head of the defense committee should help to speed matters. But he has not been given sweeping powers. Official Washington is extremely confused, and is not getting results.

Public lethargy is a factor here. The almost unanimous public cooperation that built our army in record time in 1917 does not exist today.

Students of the situation say that we are depending too great an extent on England figuring that she will win this war and keep us secure. No great nation can safely depend on the fighting power of another nation. In the long run it can depend only on itself, as is demonstrated in England today. This country, they argue, can escape war and possible defeat only if it builds its military and naval defense to the point where no other country will dare to attack it.

"Behind The Scenes In American Business"

By John Craddock

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 — Janus was an old Roman god equipped with two faces, one to see where he was going, the other to see "where he'd just been." What's that got to do with business? Nothing except that our month of January is named after him, and along with everyone else, our business and industrial leaders about this time of year do quite a bit of looking, both backward and forward, to review and preview the business scenes. So—

It's No Secret that industrial activity in the U. S. soared to the highest levels in all history during 1940, stimulated by the government's gigantic defense program and by the huge inflow of British war orders. The speed-up was most terrific in the final three months, so far surpassing and previous period that it lifted the average output for the whole year to 10 per cent above the previous best year—1929, of course . . .

Prospects for 1941 are even brighter, in terms of production gains. The general level of predictions by economists is for another 10 per cent gain in the coming year, and with the rearmament factor looming even more importantly as the driving force.

National Income for 1940, according to estimates of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, fell short of the all-time peak of $82,885,000,000 chalked up in that same year of 1929. Lower prices partly accounted for that. But, even so, our '40 income was right around $76,000,000,000 for the second-best year on record . . . and that's six-and-a-half billions higher than for 1939, and 36 billions ahead of the "bottom" depression year of 1932. "National income" embraces the total monies that all of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews gather in during a year—from wages, salaries, commissions, income from investments, rents, insurance annuities, royalties, everything . . . In this statistic, too, the general prediction is for another 10 per cent of rise in 1941. If that comes true we'll really go ahead of good old 1929 by about two billions.

BAROMETER OF AGE

In her newspaper column, Eleanor Clarage discusses women as follows:

"When a girl is 18, her friends tell her: 'My, but you look very grown up and mature!' At 25 they say: 'You still look like a kid to me.' At 30, the graceful thing to say seems to be: 'You don't seem to grow one bit older.' And at 35, she hears, 'It's remarkable the way you keep your youth.'"

But at 40, the tune changes a little. Then her friends begin telling her: "That hat makes you look ten years younger." And she knows she's ready for the discard when they vary that formula by declaring that in her new fall outfit she looks positively twenty years younger!

But possibly the acid test of growing old is this: When you meet an interesting and attractive man who pays you extravagant compliments and asks to see you again . . . and you don't rush right out and buy a new hat.

Mr. and Mrs. John Epperson and Mrs. Sanders of Canyon, were guests of Mrs. A. J. Stricklin and Mr. Stricklin, Friday.

MODERN RETAIL STORES BUILT FOR SERVICE

The consumer looks for two things in the retail stores he patronizes. He wants honest value. And he wants good service.

The patron of the modern store gets those two things. The customer in the little town gets the same kind of goods at the same price as the customer in the big cities. And he gets the same kind of service. Hit-and-miss methods went out of merchandising with the passing of the one-store monopoly in smaller communities. Today the consumer has a choice of stores, products and prices.

Mass merchandising is like mass production—it is one of the ways of providing the people with more goods and better quality goods for less money. Mass merchandising was pioneered by the chains, and they have brought it to a high degree of perfection. But the independent stores have not fallen behind the march of progress. They have followed similar principles, even to the extent of forming central purchasing organizations.

It's no wonder our standard of living in even the most sparsely settled districts is the envy of other nations.

PREDICTS TUBERCULOSIS TO END IN 30 YEARS

SANATORIUM, Texas, Jan 1—Observing his twenty-seventh anniversary as superintendent of Texas' large State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Dr. J. B. McKnight, widely known authority on tuberculosis, today predicted that the disease should be eliminated among human beings in the United States within the next thirty years.

"Our democratic nation as a whole is today enjoying better living conditions and is economically superior to any other country in the world," Dr. McKnight declared. "Tuberculosis does not flourish under such ideal conditions, and we have greatly reduced mortality and morbidity from the disease. A systematic health education campaign, far-reaching in scope, has been largely responsible for the removal of fear and superstition regarding tuberculosis. Today two dozen or more persons speak openly of tuberculosis where one ventured to discuss the disease years ago. The shroud of mystery and secrecy has been removed.

"One of our greatest hopes to continue the reduction of tuberculosis lies in our present national defense program. Medical examiners are carefully checking the chests of all draftees, and many unsuspected and previously unrecognized cases of early and curable tuberculosis will be found. Most of these cases will be discovered before the patients have become infectious and are capable of spreading their disease to others."

CHEVROLET SALES PASS ONE MILLION CARS

DETROIT, Dec. 31—Chevrolet sales of new passenger and commercial cars for the calendar year of 1940 passed the 1,000,000-mark Dec. 20, it was announced here today by William E. Holler, general sales manager. This is the third time in the history of the division that sales in any calendar year have exceeded 1,000,000, he said.

Only in 1929 and 1936 did Chevrolet dealers retail in excess of one million cars and trucks, and 1940, according to his estimates, will surpass 1929, Mr. Holler said.

In 1939, he said, dealers retailed 791,886 new cars and trucks, while each month of 1940 ran well ahead of the comparable month last year, leading to the million-plus total for the year.

"This sales record is due to two factors," Mr. Holler added. "First was the success of our 1940 model, of which we produced and sold 1,000,000 during the final quarter of 1939 and the first eight months of 1940. Second, is the outstanding public approval of our new 1941 models, introduced in September and selling in increasing volume since."

Chevrolet dealers have maintained first place in automotive sales in nine of the past 10 years, Mr. Holler added.

Terrell Fowler, who is a U. S. Marine stationed at San Diego, Calif., spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Fowler. A. T. Fowler, another son, and his wife of Claude were also guests in the Fowler home recently.

CHILDREN HARD TO FOOL
 Some women liked to be fooled, says Russell Swann, sleight-of-hand artist, but they don't like to stay baffled. If a trick is done for a girl, it must be explained, or she gets mad. He says that dentist and doctors often excel as amateur magicians, and children are harder to fool than intellectual grown-ups who attempt to apply logic. Some big-shot racketeers take keen interest in sleight-of-hand, and are as difficult to fool as children. Swann was born in Washington, D. C., so perhaps conjuring came to him easily and naturally.

Woody Guthrie, Okie Minstrel,
Makes Good In The Big City

NEW YORK—There was plenty of song to hearten the migrants from the Dust Bowl, and one of the Okie minstrels has gone to town in the big time radio. His name is Woody Guthrie. He hails from Okemah, Oklahoma, in the Creek Indian Nation.

Woody learned to play the "gitar" and sing as a youngster. He played for chicken feed in boom town joints when oil gushed in Oklahoma. When Woody was dusted out of his home, he piled his family into a Model T truck and joined thousands of other Oklahoma families in the westward migration, immortalized in John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath."

During the months on the road in search of work, Woody and other singers "touched up old songs and made up new ones" around the campfire. Woody wrote down the verses and collected over 200 songs.

In Los Angeles a radio station gave Woody a job at "a buck a day" to do a daily half hour sustaining program. In the evenings he made the rounds of bar-rooms where he put on impromptu concerts. These activities paid Woody a bare living, but he gained a reputation.

John Steinbeck had him engaged for the motion picture, "Grapes of Wrath." Steinbeck said that Woody's voice sounded "like a tire iron hitting a rusty rim" and expressed the Okie spirit. Alan Lomax, folk song authority, became interested in Woody's collection of songs, and the next thing Woody knew "he was a WPA project."

Musicians transcribed songs from his "scribbled book" into a permanent record for the Library of Congress. Victor brought out an album, "Dust Bowl Ballads" by Woody Guthrie, and now the Okie singer is what he calls a "New Y'Okie."

Woody has signed up as a member of the cast of "Pipe Smoking Time" to be heard Monday nights on the CBS network. He is on the program with topflight radio stars, Edward O. Roecker, the baritone, and the team of Arthur Fields and Fred Hall.

AMERICAN RAILROADS
BEYOND COMPARISON

The efficiency of railroad transportation, according to M. J. Gormley of the Association of American Railroads, has increased so greatly during the last two decades that there is no real basis for comparison of the railroads today with those of 1918.

Mr. Gormley summons imposing statistics in support of this thesis. Since 1923 alone, some $9,000,000,000 has been spent for railroad improvements, of which 45 per cent has gone for equipment and 55 per cent for facilities of other kinds. Over 1,800,000 cars and 40,000 locomotives have been destroyed as obsolete since that year. Over 1,146,000 new cars and 16,000 locomotives have been put into service.

Furthermore, a mere comparison of the number of cars and locomotives in use now as against some past period, does not give an accurate picture by any means. For instance, the improvements made since 1923 have resulted in increasing the speed of movement of trains by more than 60 per cent and increasing by more than 100 per cent the tons handled per train-hour. Capacity of cars has been increased 16 per cent, on the average, and locomotive capacity 36 per cent. Car shortages, once a big problem, have been entirely eliminated.

In the last year of heavy traffic, 1929, the railroads handled 8,000,000 more carloads of freight than in the war year of 1918. In October, 1939, the peak loading was 55 per cent larger than in May of the same year. This was the heaviest increase in traffic that ever occurred in so short a period of time—yet it was handled without difficulty or delay.

The railroads, in short, are in better shape to do the nation's main transportation job than ever before. They have perfected plans for cooperating with various government departments to the end that service will function with 100 per cent efficiency as preparedness demands increase. Those who have studied the railroads have no fear of the industry's ability to fully meet the country's needs.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Black of the Gomez community had as their dinner guests Christmas, Messers and Mesdames W. R. Bridges, Geo. Black, W. E. Winn, Tress, Key and children, Charley Moore and children, Walter Black and children, Alton Black and children, Ross Black and children and Billy and Byron Black.

HUMAN MACHINERY

AUSTIN, Dec. 30—At the close of the old year, and looking forward to 1941, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, reminds Texans that this is inventory time and that it is quite as important to "take stock" of one's physical assets and liabilities as it is of one's financial resources.

"We would not think of running our automobiles without having them thoroughly gone over, every now and then. But we neglect to have this very important thing done to the wonderful human mechanism we carry around with us in our bodies. We can buy spare parts for our automobiles—engines, batteries, wires, all the rest of the paraphernalia that goes into the making of a serviceable car, but when the heart, the kidney, the nervous system, or other parts of the human machine show signs of wear and tear, we cannot replace them with new ones. But we can find out how to take care of our human mechanism, so that we can conserve and prolong its usefulness.

"One of the best ways to do this is for each person to go to his or her doctor, at regular intervals, for a thorough medical inspection of the human machine. If a weak spot has developed in some part of the system, very often the doctor can advise as to ways by which the encroaching weakness or disease can be checked. This will help in prolonging life and prolonging it for healthy usefulness.

"The boys and girls who are growing up today are getting accustomed to these periodical examinations through the regular inspections they have in school. And every young mother knows that the best way to keep her baby and her other young children well is by having them under regular medical supervision. So, it is in the grown-ups who need this advice, and I urge each individual who has not had an examination recently to begin the New Year by following the custom of the wide-awake motorist. Have your physician check up on all parts of the machine. Then do as he tells you to do."

Miss Doris Sherman who attends John Tarleton college at Stephenville spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Z. Sherman.

Lamb And Hockley Win In Land Suits

A suit was tried in district court recently involving the west line of Bailey and Cochran counties. The last two named were seeking to set the line a considerable distance east of where it is now recognized.

The court ruled in favor of Hockley and Lamb, for the county lines to remain as at present. At this time neither of the losing counties have appealed to higher courts.

ELDORA A. WHITE District Clerk.

Visiting a great Texas ranch is an adventure—and so, when I was invited to Valdina Farms, as the 18,000-acre establishment is modestly known, it brought a thrill.

There was no difficulty in spotting the place at which one turned off the highway a few miles west of Hondo, down in Southwest Texas, with a house, an old filling station and two gravel pits as guides but the bump-gate I was told to watch for was so long in showing up, that the feeling came that perhaps it had been passed. However, the first man seen in several miles of driving said:

"You've got a long way to go yet—just watch for that high fence."

The fence proved to be of the type that is known as hogtight, horse-high and elephant strong—for it was full eight feet tall. Several miles of this, and then the long-expected bump-gate.

There is an art in driving through a bump-gate—which is a double gate with an axis, the purpose being to make it unnecessary for a driver to alight, also making sure that the gate will not be left open so livestock will escape. You ease up to the gate and give it just enough of a shove with the bumper that it swings clear and, at the same time, not too much of a push or the other half will come swinging around and spank your rear—that is the rear of your car.

Down a smooth gravel road the auto sped for perhaps a mile and a half; then off to one side loomed a rock-strewn river bed crossed by a concrete dam which served also as a bridge. On the other side of the bridge stood a splendid array of buildings—ranch house, barns, sheds.

E. F. Woodward, one of the most successful oil men in the history of the Southwest, now retired, is the owner of the ranch and he came forward to greet me. After a noonday dinner with Mrs. Woodward as the gracious hostess, at which venison, hot whole-wheat buns and apple pie were the features, came a tour of the place, with Mr. Woodward as guide.

He piloted an automobile skillfully through grazing land, with rocks, tree-limbs and thorn-bushes offering no discouragement whatever, to show his visitor some of his fine Herefords. Soon I saw also the first wild turkeys in my

AGRICULTURE IS PREPARED

According to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, agriculture is well prepared to play its part in national defense. There are adequate supplies of foodstuffs and plenty of soil fertility to meet any call that may come to the American farmer.

Much of the credit for that must go to the agricultural marketing cooperatives, which have done more than any other agency over the years to put the farmer on a businesslike production and distribution basis. They have done a fine work in promoting better methods of soil utilization, of harvesting, of shipping, etc. They have attempted not only to obtain a better return for the farmer, but to assure the consumer of a dependable supply of farm crops at a reasonable figure.

Agriculture's role in national defense is vital. The nation is fortunate that its farmers are so well able to do their job.

Mrs. I. M. Bailey, Mrs. L. M. Wingerd, Miss Jane Brownfield and Jim Shelton left Tuesday for Dallas to attend the Cotton Bowl football game Wednesday. Jim will return to Texas A. & M. to resume his studies.

life. As the reader will have guessed by this time, I am hardly a woodsman but not until my host said, "Do you want to see a buck?" did I realize how antlers blend into branches of trees and the dull coat of a deer merges with the brown of faded leaves. Following the pointed finger, I still could see nothing until all at once there was a buck, standing as steady as a statue and staring at us.

Valdina Farms has a wonderful collection of thoroughbred horses—in fact, it is one of the greatest breeding farms in the entire United States, even though racing is no longer permitted in Texas. The barns—all designed by Mr. Woodward—are built of steel D-Hanis tile and concrete. The roofs are of concrete—that's correct). To give you an idea of the size: the training barn (where the horses that are to race on tracks in distant states are trained) is 330 feet long, with a double row of stalls.

Alongside this huge structure is the track—and beyond that is a range of mountains. It would be hard to imagine a finer scene.

There are 600 acres in cultivation—all in a block. The furrows are a mile long. When plowing (which is done by machinery) begins, it goes on night and day till finished. Planting is different; a part of the field will be sown and then there is a wait of 20 days and then another portion is planted—other wise, all the crop would mature at the same time and what a job the harvesting would be.

Did you ever see 4,300 bales of hay in one mound? And corn moulded into heaps of 250 bushels each? You notice a concrete rim two and one-half feet high and that is a silo with 23 1-2 feet underground and there are eight of them, holding 1,500,000 pounds of feed.

What an empire Valdina Farms is! Modern, gravel roads and sturdy bridges, built by the owner, game; Texas thoroughbreds that will win glory on tracks in California, Kentucky, Maryland and the East; a river (dry by name but, during a rainy season, it can become a torrent) and legends—for two of the mountains have their stories. Holy Mountain was so named by the Indians and each traveler who passes over another of the mountains is supposed to leave a rock—a tradition that dates back to Spanish days.

And, above all, a cordiality and a hospitality that make the heart glow. Yes, one leaves Valdina Farms with the realization that he has seen Texas and the West at their best.

6½ TIMES AS MANY PEOPLE OWN POLICIES NOW AS IN 1900

During 1940 owners of life insurance policies in the United States increased to approximately 65,000,000, a new all-time high. Six and a half times as many people own life insurance today as was the case in 1900, one-half of the entire population now owning this form of protection, whereas only between one-seventh and one-eighth of the population had any insurance 40 years ago.

In addition to the fact that more people are protected by life insurance today than ever before, the amount of protection per person has also increased, the average person today owning more than twice the life insurance owned in 1900 and the average family owning more than seven times the total owned 40 years ago.

At the end of 1940 the average the insurance per family was nearly $4,000 compared with only $540 in 1900.

Thus, the growth of life insurance in this country from $8,600,000,000 in 1900 to $117,500,000,000 at the end of 1940 is accounted for by the fact that six and one-half times as many people own policies and the average protection per person has more than doubled.

NOT TOO LATE TO REMIT FOR SEALS

AUSTIN, Dec. 31—Many generous Texans, who know the dangers of tuberculosis, were still pouring contributions into the state headquarters of the Texas Tuberculosis Association here today, determined to give full support to the unceasing battle against the disease.

"It's not too late to send in checks for Christmas Seals," Pansy Nichols, executive secretary of the Association, said. "Our campaign against tuberculosis goes on throughout the year, and we will need funds for the enlarged program planned for 1941."

The State Association, Miss Nichols stated, will organize more county and local units throughout the state. In this way, each community's particular tuberculosis problems may be solved largely by a group of local citizens who will understand local needs.

The Association will also increase its diagnostic and educational work in high schools and colleges. "This is of great importance," said Dr. E. G. Faber of Tyler, president of the Association, "because young people are most often victims of this disease. Tuberculosis kills one out of every five young men and women who die between the ages of 15 and 30."

Miss Gladys McSpadden of Bay City is visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McSpadden.

THOMPSON NAMED COMMISSION HEAD

AUSTIN, Dec. 23 — Ernest O. Thompson became chairman of the Texas railroad commission once more today, issued statements that the oil industry would prosper in 1941 and that Texas would hold down crude yield, and the commission boosted to 10 the number of oil production shutdown days in December.

The state agency also lifted an exemption by which oil wells in the Texas panhandle were permitted to flow daily while those in the rest of the state were closed down nine days each month under the current 60-day poration order expiring Jan. 31.

CONSTANT ADVERTISER

"Ain't it the truth?" every newspaperman will exclaim after reading the following classic discovered by Tom Phillips of the Santa Rosa Signal:

"A constant drop of water Wears away the hardest stone; The constant gnawing Fido Masticates the toughest bone; The constant wooing lover Carries off the blushing maid; And the constant advertiser Is the one who gets the trade."

Tommy (on Christmas morning): "Where does Santa Claus get all his things, Mamma?"

Mamma: "Oh, he buys them, I suppose."

Tommy: "Well, he must be a jay to let any one palm off a tin watch on him."

NO ESCAPE

"If you don't want to marry her, why on earth did you propose?" said one clubman to another.

"That's just it," said the other clubman. "She proposed to me."

"Why didn't you turn 'er down?"

"I couldn't. She worded her proposal so cleverly. She said: 'Will you marry me? Have you any objection?' Thus, whether I said yes or no, she had me."

"Not at all. You should have preserved a discrete silence."

"Just what I did, and she fell into my arms, murmuring that silence gave consent."

WHEN IT DOESN'T COUNT

As to when, and when not, one should stand at attention when the "Star-Spangled Banner" is played over the radio, Col. James Moss, president of the U. S. Flag Association, says: "If one is reading in one's living room, he should stand; if one is playing cards, telephoning, eating, is in bed, or taking a bath, he should not stand."

Red Tudor, accompanied by Bobbie and Sammie Jones and Morgan Copeland, left Tuesday morning for Dallas, where they will attend the Cotton Bowl game.

Mrs. Sam Kirschner left on the bus Thursday night for Muskogee, Okla., where she was called on account of the death of an aunt.
