All-Time Record Set In Canning

College Station—Texas home-makers canned 199 million containers of food in 1943. The average conserved per family is well above the national average reported in the Gallup poll, Miss Mildred Horton, vice director of Texas A. and M.'s Extension Service revealed at a state-wide food preservation conference here last week.

The average Texas family added 181 containers of home-preserved food to the pantry, while the national average was 165 last year. Miss Horton, who is chairman of the state nutritional council, said reports received by the Extension Service indicate rural families conserved about eight times as much food in 1943 as in any previous year on record.

Sponsor of the two-day conference was the Texas State Nutrition Council. Approximately 100 leaders in the field of food preservation were in attendance.

Dr. Mina W. Lamb, nutritionist from Texas Tech, urged families to can more fruit juice and make less jelly, can more vegetables and fewer pickles. She emphasized that families should eat within one year what they add to the pantry.

"You may be proud of peaches you canned in 1935, but you won't be nourished by them," she warned. She also put in a good word for Texas' vitamin-rich "pot licker."

Mrs. Emma Bond, Dallas Farm Security home economist, estimated that home-produced and home conserved foods stored by rural families in the state may be valued at 140 million dollars. The value of a well-rounded family food supply produced at home was estimated at $200.

Experts also discussed the danger of unsound canning methods. One described botulinus toxin, which sometimes develops in canned food improperly prepared, as 300 times more deadly than cobra venom.

Charley Green, formerly a grocery clerk at Kyle Grocery, but now from Roswell, was a visitor last week.

HERALD: 51 yr. in Terry county!

A Good $10 Bill
 In these days when money is talked about in astronomical figures, a $10 bill still looks pretty good to most of us. It means something at once in terms of food or clothing or other things we want to buy. But billions are beyond most people; just something super-big that the government deals in.

Did you ever wonder how much larger a billion dollars is than a million? It takes just as many millions to make a billion as it does pennies to make a $10 bill. Or figure it this way:
 When our government debt becomes 358 billion dollars, as Senator Byrd says it will, we can divide the amount by America's 135 million population and find that the debt exceeds $2,500 for every person living in the United States; $10,000 per family of four. Then we begin to see what this war means in money; why we should work to finish it.

Not Impossible
 But, big as this debt will be, we can pay it if we can keep business and industry going full blast in peacetime as well as in war time. And this leads us into post-war planning.

If war does not last too long, there will be a short time, right after it closes when we Americans will have more money saved from full employment than there will be things to buy. But this will only make for a post-war boom; an inflation to be followed by depression unless we get ready now to keep factories going and payrolls alive.

But keeping factories running and the country prosperous calls for a lot of things. First of all, the government should do its part. Government has to give private business its chance.

No Simple Recipe
 Sound post-war prosperity does not depend on any one thing, but on a combination of many things. Some of these are easy to understand and can be controlled, which is good. For instance, the quick change-back of industrial machinery to civilian use, so it can serve as a part of our free economy—that's an aim we will all approve, I am sure. It means jobs. It means income for workers, goods to buy and markets for what farmers grow.

How fast this change-back can be made, and how well, depends almost wholly on the government, on the policy it adopts in terminating war contracts, what it does with government-owned tools and equipment now covering many acres of factory floor-space; how it gets rid of huge stock-piles of war materials, and how it uses the billions of dollars worth of government-owned factory buildings.

There is a common-sense way to solve all these problems and still not gum-up the workings of open competition. After the war the government should not (1) hold back money due on war contracts until the last rivet is checked, (2) leave government-owned tools and equipment in the plants to hinder immediate reconversion, (3) glut markets with cast-off goods nor start "projects" to plague legitimate business.

Freedom From Fear
 Simple and vital as all these matters sound, they still can get bogged down in the marshes of bureaucracy. There should be a fixed policy to prevent it. Only Congress can make certain that the first necessary steps are taken to give America victory in peace as in war.

Will American workers be jobless when peace comes? Must American farmers expect their selling to cease when firing ceases? Neither is necessary. I think Congress ought to take action now, before a crisis arises, so that an unmistakable policy may exist to be enforced. . . . Most of us will be glad when we don't have to hear so much about billions but I, for one, hope to remain on hand-shaking terms with an occasional $10 bill. If the right things are done now, we all may.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of thanking our many friends for the acts of kindness and so many nice gifts given to us when our home was destroyed by fire. Especially do we want to thank the committees who worked soliciting funds and everyone who helped us in any way.

May God richly bless each one is our prayer.

Box Gardens For Young Folks

If Texas meets its goal of a million Victory gardens this year, it's going to require the help of everybody, especially boys and girls. Most 4-H Club members, of course, have had some experience with gardening, and they have proved that boys and girls can be highly successful gardeners.

Almost any boy or girl can have or help with a box garden or a small open garden. Even though your space is limited, you can produce a good quantity of vegetables if you'll prepare your little garden carefully and tend it patiently. You might try putting vegetables into a folwer bed. Or even planting them in a window box.

Here's the way to make a box garden . . . say, one 30 inches long and 18 inches wide. In a garden like this, your rows should be four and six inches apart, according to J. F. Rosborough. He's the horticulturist for the Texas A. and M. college extension service . . . and authority on gardening.

Your box should be wooden . . . the dimensions 40 inches by 18 inches . . . and you should put plenty of holes in the bottom, so the soil will drain well. Then prepare the soil by mixing equal parts of good loam soil and compost or manure. Tamp the soil lightly so you'll get a firm seed bed. Mark off the rows with your fingers and plant the seed one-fourth to one-half inches deep . . . one-fourth to one-half inches deep, remember . . . no deeper. Then sprinkle the garden with warm water.

You'll find the weeds will grow quickly and you'll have to pick them out once or twice a week.

Box gardens make a good lettuce bed . . . and with the leaf lettuce you might plant radishes or parsley seed. That way you might make the seed mixture three-fourths lettuce and one-fourth radishes or parsley.

BIGGERS IN TEXAS

(Reprinted from Mr. Pettengill's January 25, 1944 Syndicated column, "Inside Your Congress.")

This is about the Biggers of Texas, pamphleteer extraordinary, printer for plain people, our modern Tom Paine. He got completely fed up one day on bureaucrats, politicians and alphabetrocrats. He made a list of some of them and sent a few copies to his friends with the suggestion that it be filed away as "an index of the goofiest period of American history."

When the responses began to roll in, Mr. Biggers was surprised, astonished, amazed, overwhelmed. That was last April. Mr. Biggers is more surprised today, nine months later. His gentle little snowflake became a pellet, a snowball, a snowdrift, an avalanche. His homely stuff struck home "The common people heard him gladly." He told them what they wanted to hear.

His first print of 1,000 copies has now gone to four million, with another million rolling off the presses. He is getting eight hundred letters a day and averages 40,000 copies in his out-going mail between dawn and dark. Last Saturday his postage bill was $256.

The public relations experts in New York and Washington who never undertake a job for less than a ten or fifty thousand dollar fee might say "pooh-pooh" to all this. Biggers may seem small to them. But when better and bigger Biggers are built, I want to order one. Biggers, Wham! He sent copies of this out to his friends also, and did they eat it up? They did. They wolfed it down and howled for more. And so not only his Index of the Alphabets but millions of his Fuller letter are going into every county in the U. S., including the Congressman's counties! The Fuller district is full of them. It's a rare reading, folks—"a bunch of fan-tailed

"Behind the Scenes In American Business

By John Craddock

New York, March 20—While the job of war production goes on undiminished, post-war planning has broadened. But the planners are running into a number of difficulties, which serve to point up the need for doing the planning now and getting the 'bugs' straightened out.

Random developments in this connection during the week were these:

Housewives interviewed by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois think they'll be willing to pay $100 to $150 for gas ranges after the war. But they want easy-to-clean oven and cooking top, window in oven door, automatic electric light in oven and broiler, oven regulator, chime control and minute minder, simmer burner, electric clock and condiment set to match, cover for top burners, deep-well cooker—in addition to a stove.

The national association of real estate boards found that farm land prices have risen three per cent more since December, and sales are running above the peak of the 1919-1920 boom. What this is going to mean to the post-war farm market is anybody's guess.

Output per worker has shown some big gains, chiefly because the manpower shortage has emphasized the need for getting as much work as possible done. What this might mean to the employment situation after the war is another problem.

Simpler Taxes

America's federal income taxing machine is hopeless. We need a new one, a simpler model and heavier. I would favor taxing the average salaried person and wage earner more, in the hope of finishing this war with less national debt. I believe most working people will gladly pay more than they're paying, and I know they want less red tape about it.

Most people who will vote in the 1944 elections can remember when paying income tax was a distinction. The man who paid one had a good car or his wife had a fur coat or both. The small brown envelope from Uncle Sam arriving early in March brought, I am told, a swell of pride to each addressee, a lift to offset the weak feeling that comes when paying for intangibles; but no more.

Gone the Glory

Absent from this year's pill is the sugar coating that used to feed the taxpayer's pride. About 50 million people will file returns this March—more than one person from every house; no distinction there, nor does this finish the bad news. This year's tax form is a masterpiece of mystifying muddles. I doubt if a certified public accountant could complete his own income tax return accurately in a day.

The most obvious drawback to 1944's revenue raising rumpus is its waste of time. Few of America's 50 million income tax payers are handy with figures like a C. P. A. but even if they all were, the needless figuring scheduled for March would total 50 million days. That's more than a year's work for men enough to form nine army divisions; too much to waste in times like these.

A Waste of Time

Whoever cooked up the formula for computing this year's taxes is pretty unpopular just now. So far he has managed to keep his name out of print but he may be a benefactor in disguise. His headaches already have begun to reconcile the American people to their almost inevitable sales tax. And if it's coming, the sooner it comes the better. At the least it is simple to handle.

Nation-wide filing of forms is not all the time wasted by 1944's levy on small incomes. Government people must audit the forms; an endless chore. Back in 1913 when the income tax was born, one of the chief arguments for it and against sales tax was this: It is simpler to tax a few overpaid people than a huge number of retailers. That argument works backwards now.

There are about three million retailers in the United States. If auditing three million returns was too expensive of manpower in World War I, how can we afford to audit 50 million now? Besides being open and aboveboard, simple and easy to handle, a sales tax would release a small army of people from the Income Tax Bureau to do useful things for their country in a time of need.

Tax Big Incomes

I favor a sales tax. I oppose income taxes for all except the very well-paid class. I am aware that the term "well-paid" means one thing to a ribbon clerk earning $25 a week and something else to an expert welder drawing $250 a month but, with the help of statisticians, an arbitrary annual income figure could be named which at least would work no injustice on the nation's war effort.

We should not eliminate taxation of incomes entirely. But in general, the sales tax conserves manpower, it is honest and easy to handle, it encourages people to save money and thus helps fight off inflation. Nothing could be fairer to people of moderate income than to tax them in exact proportion to their willingness to spend.

104 MAIN BUREAUS AND STILL GOING

Of late some one has been trying to find out just how many alphabetical bureaus there are in Washington and scattered over the country. No one seems to know just how many there are, as new ones are popping up every day. Then there are the offsprings of the main ones—too numerous to mention.

As best investigators who have volunteered to try to find out the number of bureaus that are telling the people what to do and not to do, where you can work or not work. In fact guiding your waking and sleeping hours. These investigators to date have dug up just 104 main ones, and still they grow.

What a change from what Franklin D. Roosevelt said in an address at Sioux City, Iowa, in September 1932, just two months before his first election. Here 'tis: 'I accuse the present (Hoover) administration of being the greatest spending administration . . . in our history. One which has piled bureau on bureau, commission on commission. Bureaus and Bureaucrats have been retained at the expense of the taxpayers.'

While he never liked Hoover or his administration, he was a small time piker when it came to making bureaus and commissions.

Said plaintiff's petition was filed on the 26th day of February,

Joe Eudy Here In All His Glory

People that don't really know him, think Joe Eudy, formerly of Terry, but now residing at Portales, N. M., goes about with a chip on his shoulder. But it just a "front" that he puts on.

He came in to renew last week, and we spoke rather sharp to Joe just for meanness, when he remarked "that he got more cussings here at Brownfield than any place he ever lived."

That might be right, we told him, but have you ever lived at any place where your friends would come to your assistance quicker, if you needed help? "You have got it down about right, Jack," he stated.

Speaking of an early Spring—maybe we ought to have an excess prophet tax.

No cheerfulness is spread by folks who go around looking as if they had been raised on lemon juice instead of milk.

O'DANIEL OF TEXAS

By Samuel B. Pettengill

"I never saw so many people who want to be taxed." With the galleries jammed and hundreds outside unable to get in, this was the humorous way W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas summed up the over-riding of the tax veto by congress.

As the country gets to know O'Daniel it will find that it has been looking at him through the wrong end of the telescope. He knows that people like hill-billy music, but he is not a country clown. He knows how to pass the biscuits but they are well baked. He is as smart as Huey Long, but is not a political con man.

Two terms in a gorenor's chair ruin most men, but O'Daniel went on from there to win two elections to the United States senate in a Democratic state over New Deal opposition. Everybody was "agin" him except the people. They chipped in to his campaign with "two-bits" and dimes. You can't write off a record like that.

After selling flour by radio for years, his customers demanded that he run for governor. "If I had refused, I'd have lost my customers," is the way he excuses his entry into Big Time.

A boy in Ohio, a youth in Kansas, and a man in Texas, he says, when denounced as a Yankee, "What, a man named Lee?"

In his race for the senate, he was attacked on the ground that he would exercise remote control over Texas politics. So he wrote himself a little song. "I'll be under your bed, I'll hear what you said—you politicians!" When he hummed this on the platform or over the radio, the folks were happy. They were fed up with the mangy run of flunkies and fixers who wear shoestring neckties and assert they are satesmen. At his meetings, he passed out little barrels marked: "Flour not Pork." He found there were more citizens than hogs.

Yes, Lee O'Daniel knows how to win friends and influence people. He was a success in business and a success in politics, and by the same methods. He has not confused himself with God at any time, even in Washington.

A big chunk of a man, he thrives on campaigns. He enjoys the thrust and parry of politics, as a healthy full-back loves to hit the line. He can take it, and dish it.

He says that after senators and congressmen have served six years they ought to be made to go back home and try to earn a living under the laws they have written! He is against life tenure in any office, including the presidency. He is against the 4th term. I predict the country will hear more of him.

Of the spenders, he says they work in two shifts. The day shift: taxes you and the night shift borrows you into debt. All told, the two shifts spent $76,462,449,828 before Pearl Harbor, which he says should be charged against the "social gains."

He thinks an administration which does not protect the right to work of every citizen, against violence or forced tribute for freedom to exercise that right, cannot be trusted with the Constitution of the United States.

As he says, "I was fortunate enough to have been born in poverty, and most of my life I have trod a rocky road, but thank God, that road was always open."

Whatever his faults may be, O'Daniel really believes in free enterprise and is against a totalitarian state and all its evil works; he would keep America the land of opportunity, of work, thrift and sober living. In short, he is a Democrat and an American. There was a time when these were both honorable titles beyond the boundaries of Texas, and that time may return.

"I was just tellin' my brother Fred this morning, Judge...there's never been a time in our lives when we got to live up to that old sayin' 'United we stand, divided we fall' more than we have to today."

"How true that is, Herb. And for the life of me, I can't figure out why, at a time like this, some folks insist on raising a question like prohibition. I can't imagine anything that would tickle our enemies more than to get us folks over here taking sides against each other, arguing about an issue like that. We've got a he-man's job on our hands to win this war and we can't be wasting our minds, our money and our strength fighting about something we tried for nearly 14 years and found couldn't work.

"I say there's a time and a place for everything, and this is no time or place to be doing any fightin' except the kind that's going to win the war."

Hats off to the People who Produce your Electric Light and Power

The Charles A. Coffin Foundation confers a special citation for distinguished wartime achievement on the
ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER INDUSTRY

"Faced with unprecedented demands, the Electric Light and Power Industry has met every war-production requirement without delay and without impairment of its peacetime services to the public. This achievement merits the appreciation not only of American industry but of the entire nation."

—FROM THE CITATION

THIS CITATION is richly merited—for here is a branch of industry that has done a remarkable war job that has not been generally recognized.

If electric power should fail, or if it be too little or too late, the disastrous effects would startle all America. Vital machines would be motionless. Millions of homes would be cold—and an eerie blackout would descend over the land.

But, electricity has not failed. Rather, in 1943 twice as much power was produced as in the year before the war—with the minimum of new facilities—and despite large losses of skilled employees to the Armed Services.

In the words of J. A. Krug, Director, Office of War Utilities of W.P.B., "Power men—public and private—should be proud of the job that has been done in providing power supply. Power has never been too little or too late."

We of General Electric, who have built a large part of the electric equipment which generates, distributes, and uses the electric power of America, take pride in the way this equipment is standing up under the strain of "forced draft" wartime operation.

Many of the men and women responsible for this remarkable record are your neighbors—the manager or meter reader who lives across the street, the girl in the accounting department who is in your bridge club, the lineman with whom you bowled last night. A word of appreciation from you to them will lend added significance to this well deserved citation. General Electric Company, Schenectady, New York.

What is the Charles A. Coffin Foundation?

THE PURPOSE of the Charles A. Coffin Foundation is to encourage and reward distinguished achievement in the electrical field by "prizes to employees; by recognition to lighting, power, and railway companies for improvement in service to the public; by fellowships to deserving graduate students; and by the grant of funds for research work at technical schools and colleges."

Establishment of the awards was announced twenty-two years ago in a statement issued by President Swope and dated December 2, 1922:

"On May 16, 1922, Charles A. Coffin in his 78th year retired from the active leadership of the General Electric Company. Mr. Coffin has been identified with the development of the electrical industry since 1882. He was the founder and creator of the General Electric Company, of which he has been the inspiration and leader for thirty years."

"As an expression of appreciation of Mr. Coffin's great work not only for the General Electric Company but also for the entire electrical industry and with the desire to make this appreciation enduring and constructive as Mr. Coffin's life and work have been, the Board of Directors of the General Electric Company, created on his retirement and now desires to announce the 'Charles A. Coffin Foundation.'"

Watermelons For Terry County

It is well-known Terry county's soil and climate is adapted to growing melons of the best flavor and uniform size, commercially, and proven to be a fairly profitable crop. For the information of those interested, Moury Lewis, one of our most successful producers and marketers, with many years study and experience, make the following suggestions:

"This county, in the past five years, has built up a good reputation for quality and size of our melons. We have been praised for superior quality. This county should produce at least 500 acres. To do so, 1,000 acres should be planted to take care of the loss by elements, and by keeping the market posted as to our progress, should have no difficulty in disposing of that many. We desire to maintain our reputation as to quality."

Plant on new land, if possible, medium type is best. Never plant on land that has at anytime produced any kind of citrus, or sweet potatoes. If old land, following cotton is alright, but following corn or grain sorghums, requires considerable manure. Plant as early in April or May as moisture and germination temperature will permit. Use one-half pound of seed per acre. Rows should be 20 feet apart with hills eight to 12 feet apart. This leaves for later cultivation and roadway in harvesting. Plant on slight ridge just above ground level, the ridge warms up faster, melons develop quicker. After ground is thoroughly warmed furrow planting is alright. It is best to plant with the hoe, planting six seed to the hill; later, when they begin to vine, thin to two or three per hill; plant about the same depth as cotton; every week or so, replant missing hills. Keep clean of weeds, or other moisture-sapping crops. Do not plant other crops in the middle until melons are matured. Poison for rodents (common prairie dog poison) should be put out about the time you plant, then watch for signs of digging up seed or plants until you are sure they are killed off. After melons set on, and begin to grow, watch for ill-shaped ones, and if too many start, prune some off, leaving only the perfect shapes to mature. Cultivate middles as any other crop, plow shallow with cultivator or tooth harrow.

Obtain the purest seed that can be had, of the Florida Giant or a close approved strain of that variety. Do not plant too much in yellow meats. The public demands the red-meat ones. The Desert King, Black Diamond yellow meat, tender sweets, also have proven successful here. Do not plant any variety that might have defects. Don't sell to anyone, melons that are not ripe, this injures our market reputation. Always allow melons to stay on vines till sweet ripe. Don't become alarmed at above varieties becoming over ripe, as they have proven successful for this climate and altitude.

Don't plant inferior seed for commercial crops, or even for hog feed. Better pay $5.00 per pound more if necessary. Will pay in long run. We desire to maintain our good market."

Meadow Goes Over The Top In Red Cross Drive

With the Meadow school making a banner showing, the Meadow community completed its Red Cross drive Saturday, March 18, with a grand total of $1432, a margin of $32 above its quota of $1400.

The boys and girls of the Meadow schools were collecting active during the drive and raised a total of $330.96. Of this amount, $207.20 was contributed by the pupils of Meadow grade school, the seventh grade leading with a contribution of $42.28. The Meadow high school contributed $128.76, representing 100 percent participation on the part of the members of the junior and senior classes, the largest amount being raised by the 17 seniors and totaling $37.70.

The entire community is justly proud of the splendid spirit manifested by those who responded so whole-heartedly to this most worthy cause—the Red Cross—Mrs. J. M. Burleson, teacher.

FEED MAKES FOOD and COTTONSEED MAKES BOTH FEED and FOOD!

The War Food Administration is urging farmers to an all-out effort to produce more in 1944 for military, civilian, lend-lease and foreign relief programs.

This is the cotton farmer's chance for distinguished service on the Food and Feed Front. Food fats and oils are scarce and rationed. Supplies of meat and milk are short and expected to be shorter.

COTTONSEED supplies these edible oils and COTTONSEED MEAL and CAKE furnish the protein concentrate essential to increased production of meat and milk.

By increasing the cotton acreage planted in 1944, farmers will be helping the Nation, the War Effort and themselves. PLANT MORE COTTON FOR VICTORY!

Housekeeping Hints Worth Remembering

Use More Cabbage

An all-time record crop of cabbage is now on the market and the government asks your help in seeing that it doesn't go to waste. It is a very good source of Vitamin C and may be used as a partial substitute for other foods high in Vitamin C, such as oranges, grapefruit, and tomatoes. To get the full quota of Vitamin C, however, Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of a home economics institute, makes these recommendations: (1) Buy firm, fresh heads, not too large, and with green outside leaves when possible; (2) Store in the refrigerator, either in a crisper or vegetable bag, not in a paper sack; (3) Cook as quickly as possible in a covered container, and when preparing cabbage for salads, slaws, etc., chop or shred just before serving.

To Dry Those Tears

Peel onions under running, cold water and you won't shed a tear, say home economists, who also find that rubbing a little salt on the hands will absorb any remaining odor.

Shapely Shades

Remove cellophane from a lamp shade as soon as it's put to use. Otherwise, as Miss Myrtle Fahsbender, director of home lighting explains, the heat from the bulb and varying weather conditions will cause the cellophane to shrink, bending the frame and wrinkling the silk. To keep shades clean, use "slip covers" which are made for the purpose.

Work Saver

Keep matches, eggs, salt, fruit juice, and rubber away from silver. They tarnish it, reports the home economics institute.

Necessary

There is no advantage in washing home canned food with cold water before using it. Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of the home economics institute, points out that it doesn't do anything toward stopping bacteria action, whereas it is apt to wash away some of the

Controversial Matter To Be Kept Out of The Herald

Of late we have received quite a few letters, most of them too long when the government is hollering to cut down on print paper. Some are from civilians, some are from men in the service, but most of them on highly controversial matter — soldiers' vote, for instance, is one of them.

Let us remember that after this war is all over, and all come home—we hope—we will all have to live together, war front as well as home front folks. Our opinions may be the truth, and maybe should be told, but some of them are calculated to ire someone else.

So let's all be as sweet as possible during these trying times, and then we will all be good friends when it's all over, over there.

precious vitamins and minerals to say nothing of the flavor. The only protection against harmful bacteria in canned food that has not been pressure-cooked is to boil it at least 10 minutes before you even taste it.

Start a Soup Pot

Grandmother "had something" in that big pot she kept simmering on the back of the stove. It was a thrifty way to use otherwise wasted leftovers. But the constant simmering was a bit tough on vitamins. So to improve on her idea a little, keep a big jar in the refrigerator, bits of plain or buttered vegetables. Save marrow bones and meat scraps and simmer with a bay leaf for two or three hours. Then add contents of the "cold storage soup pot," as it's called in the home economics institute, and boil for 10 minutes. The result—a wonderful soup.

For Variety's Sake

Serving beans or peas in white sauce is an excellent way to make a few look like more. For variety's sake, Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of the home economics institute, sometimes adds finely grated cheese and uses one-fourth teaspoon of dry mustard to bring out the cheese flavor.

BORROWING TO PAY TAXES

"Banks, small loan companies, and credit unions, according to the Wall Street Journal, are doing a brisk business among people who have discovered, after traversing the jungle of Form 10-40, that March 15 is gone to catch them short.

"Some taxpayers are cashing in war bonds to make ends meet, but most people, according to the Journal's survey, prefer to hang onto their bonds and borrow money, at higher interest, to meet their tax obligation.

"If congress does a real job of simplifying future tax returns, these periodic personal crisis that send so many folks scurrying to the money-lenders will be alleviated. There is no reason why the withholding tax, now 20 per cent, should not be made adjustable—that is, tailored to fit every size of wage and salary, so that the entire tax due would be withheld from the pay check or pay envelope each week. Most taxpayers would then be constantly and completely current, and there would be no need for them to make any tax return whatsoever.

"That might be tough on the lenders, but it would be an unmitigated blessing to everybody else, including the collector of internal revenue.

"While the ways and means committee is simplifying, and we hope strengthening war-time taxes, it had better begin the spade-work on postwar taxes. Whether millions of our fighting men return to jobs and opportunities—or to unemployment—will depend upon how wisely and speedily a peacetime tax program is put into effect.

"The case was stated succinctly in the Baruch-Hancock report:

"Let us not provide credit to the returning soldier or small businessman which will only chain him like a galley slave to a loan he can never repay. We must also make possible for a man to repay what he borrows.

"At current tax rates, few new enterprises or individuals could repay their borrowings out of earnings less taxes in any reasonable period of time. There will be general agreement that tax rates should be reduced after the war. However, until it is definitely known that postwar taxes are to be reduced, the launching of new enterprises and the expansion of existing ones will be deferred. We recommend, therefore:

"That a postwar tax law be drafted now, during the war, and put on the shelf to go into effect at the end of the war."

"Incidentally, it might be a good idea for the ways and means committee to invite Messrs. Baruch and Hancock to propose for its consideration a postwar tax program in detail. It would be a pretty tough order, but the team of Baruch and Hancock is not one that shrinks from rugged assignments."—The Houston Press.

PREDICTS DEMAND FOR 12 MILLION CARS

Washington—Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen, army production chief who in peace times was president of the General Motors corporation, predicts that residents of the United States will want 12,000,000 new automobiles after the war—and will begin getting them six months after peace has come.

Mr. Knudsen declared: "The first post-war cars will be 1942 models; the so-called supercar won't be much like those depicted by artists today. I don't think they'll be plastic which breaks instead of dents. We've made amazing progress in light metals; that will be the next important step in the industry."

Speaking of airplanes, he said: "Progress in the air will be in bigger passenger and freight planes, rather than fliver planes."

NATION'S LIQUOR BILL RISES DURING PAST YEAR

Washington—The commerce department estimates that Americans during 1943 spent nearly seven cents out of every dollar paid for goods and services of all kinds for liquor, or a total of more than $6,000,000,000.

People of the United States spent 17 percent more for liquor last year than during 1942. Part of this greater cost was due to an increase in liquor taxes from $4 to $6 per gallon, and on April 1 this tax will be further increased to $9 per gallon.

Spending for alcoholic beverages in 1943 on a per capita basis amounted to $46 for every man, woman, and child in the United States.

OVER 2 BILLION COINS MINTED BY U. S. IN 1943

Washington—The three United States mints, working 24 hours daily, turned out 2,023,898,270 coins during 1943, or nearly one-tenth of the total coins produced since the first mint was established in this country in 1792. More than one-half of the 1943 coinage was of the unpopular steel penny, which is no longer being made, coinage of the old-style penny being resumed January 1.

DRAINAGE IN UNITED STATES COVERS 87 MILLION ACRES

Washington—Of the total land area in the United States, one-twelfth, or approximately 87,000,000 acres, are served by organized drainage enterprises. This is an acreage slightly more than the total land area of the states of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio combined.

Eliminating land in farms not available for crops, land in these various drainage enterprises is one-sixth of all farm land in the nation. There are, however, some 17,000,000 acres of land in drainage enterprises outside of "occupied farms," such as land available for settlement, etc.

The land in these drainage enterprises requires 146,152 miles of open ditch, 55,734 miles of tile drains, and 6,793 miles of levees with a capital investment of $691,724,519.

MARCH 31 DEADLINE ON SOME GAS STAMPS

Washington, March 24—The Office of Price Administration announced today that "B" and "B-1" and old-style "E" and "R" gasoline coupons will be invalid for use by the public after March 31.

DOORMAN

A southern textile mill had a set of problems—one was to keep the temperature and humidity of two rooms at different, but constant, levels; the other was to let goods pass between these two rooms on trucks.

Opening the door by hand was slow, took manpower, and disturbed the established temperatures and humidity conditions.

So an electric device (the photoelectric relay) was installed, to open the doors between the weave shed and the warp-sizing room.

Now the doors swing open promptly when the truck approaches, close quickly after the truck has passed through. Temperature and humidity suffer little disturbance, and a man is released for other work.

WAR BONDS . . . your way to back your country's attack!

MORE MANPOWER

"As the demands for manpower in the fighting forces increase, the work of the thousands of local draft boards increase. Some important and difficult decisions must be made. A lot of mistakes will, of a necessity, be made by the boards. Saw a soldier yesterday with a tiny baby in his arms and two other little tots following him. Somewhere, sometime, there must be a line drawn between the home front and the fighting front. The greater the drain on the home front, the less production. Evidently the selective service agency knows approximately how far it can go before the production on the home front is materially affected but to an outsider it seems that we are getting mighty close to the line.

"In a farm and ranch territory it must be most difficult to decide who is to be deferred on account of work. Practically everyone, including business men who neither produce, manufacture, or sell essential materials to farmers are, to a certain extent, essential to agriculture. Little complaint or criticism of the local board has been heard, but as the problem

PAPPY O'DANIEL RESIDES AT ALEDO

Pass the Biscuits, "Pappy" W. Lee O'Daniel, junior United States senator from Texas, can no longer be referred to as hailing from cow town Fort Worth. The latest issue of the congressional record lists the senator's home address as Aledo, Parker county, Texas. The former flour salesman, who ran for governor of Texas without a poll tax receipt, qualified as a voter this year by paying his tax at Weatherford.

The average girl who leaves home is about 15, according to statistics. The average girl who stays home is about 80.

HOW ABOUT DRAFT DODGERS

"Immediate need of the nation calling more men to the colors brings the stark, cold facts to the front that West Texas counties like Scurry, Garza, Borden, and others have virtually been drained already of able-bodied men fit for service in the various branches of military service.

"Need of yet more men for service prompts the question, in view of the serious manpower problem, why Selective Service does not clean out the aircraft plants of the nation and other plants of able-bodied, robust men who have found in war jobs a good refuge from the draft. A Times reporter recently saw several thousand young men working in a bomber plant—holding down jobs women could easily fill with honor and credit. There certainly isn't any sense in draining our counties here of all men folks when aircraft plants and tank plants are harboring thousands of draft dodgers. Washington itself is harboring thousands who occupy chairs in government agencies, and the sense of right should prevail over might—even if we are involved in a war that gets more bitter

New Steel Beauties on the Santa Fe

There isn't yet the ceremony in taking delivery of a new locomotive that there is in christening a ship.

But, just the same, it's a great occasion on the Santa Fe when we receive those super-powered, high-speed locomotives so badly needed today.

For every new one means "rolling" more and longer freight trains loaded with war matériel, and more trains operated for the increasing troop movements.

The three locomotives shown above are among the first delivered of the big fleet of powerful locomotives ordered by Santa Fe. And more are coming!

★ Locomotives illustrated above—new "4-8-4" steam locomotive, "2900 class"; 5,400-horsepower freight Diesel; "2-10-4" steam locomotive, "5001 class." You can bet your driving wheels they'll pull a lot of freight cars fast!
