SPEECHES OF NAPOLEON AND QUEEN VICTORIA.

PARIS, November 21.—Napoleon in his speech said:

In the necessity of resuming the discussion of important laws I am obliged to call you together unusually early. In view of the recent events I desire to avail myself of your sagacity and assistance. Vague disquietudes have arisen, affecting the public mind of Europe, restricting industry and commerce in all quarters. This uncertainty I could endure no longer. It is necessary to accept frankly the changes on the other side of the Rhine, and proclaim that so long as our interests and dignity shall not be threatened we will not interfere in transformations affected by the march of population. The disquiet displayed is difficult of explanation.

When France has offered the whole world the most imposing spectacle of conciliation and peace, the universal exhibition has drawn closer the ties of fraternity between nations; the exhibition disappeared, but its traces will leave deep impressions upon our age; it has destroyed a host of prejudices and errors, but those pledges of concord do not allow us to dispense with improving the military institutions of France. Our weapons are the army and navy, the stronger we are the more certain will be the assurance of peace.

I have been compelled to send again our troops to Rome to protect the Holy See from republican invaders. Our conduct could not partake of anything hostile to the independence of Italy, and that nation now understands the danger of these revolutionary manifestations caused by monarchical principles and European order—calm is re-established in the Papal States. We may calculate the time when our troops can be recalled.

For France the Convention of September exists until it is replaced. Her relations of Italy to the Holy See interest the whole world. To settle these relations and prevent new complications, a conference of the powers is proposed, referring to the Eastern question. I am happy to say that the powers have agreed upon two principal points, the maintenance of the integrity of the Ottoman Empire, and the amelioration of the condition of the Christians.

The journey I have made to the East and North of France has offered me opportunities for manifestations of sympathy, which touched me profoundly. I have found nothing that has been able to shake the confidence the people have placed in me and their attachment for my dynasty. For my part, I labor incessantly to anticipate their wishes. The harvest is not good, and dearthness is inevitable, and foreign trade can alone secure supplies and lower prices.

I foresee the period when the reduction of taxes may be taken into consideration, alluding to the reforms already established and others proposed. Doubtless the introduction of new liberties has exposed the public mind to excitement and dangerous impulses, but to render them powerless I count upon the common sense of the country, the progress of public morality and firmness of the ruling power.

In the suppression let us then follow the work we have undertaken together to develop the liberal institutions without weakening the principle of authority. Let us not cease to spread around us the comforts of life and adopt every measure which will render prosperous the social condition of the great mass. For my own part you may rest assured I will uphold firmly the power conferred upon me, for no obstacle nor unjust opposition will shake either my courage or my faith in the future.

LONDON, November 21.—Parliament was opened by the Queen. She hopes Napoleon will avoid complications by an early withdrawal of the Roman expedition, and asks money for the Abyssinian expedition; that Fenianism was suppressed in Ireland, and has taken the form of organized violence and murder in England, where it must be suppressed by the fulfillment of law.

Addresses from both Houses to the Queen re-echo the Queen's speech. England refused a conference unless a distinct plan is first proposed. Nearly all the members who spoke, condemn Napoleon's Roman expedition. Two thousand extra policemen and a large number of troops are at Manchester to preserve peace pending the execution.

Says the Albany Journal: "The Democratic papers crow over the re-entrance of their party. Their joy will be short-lived. The ghost has only been raised to judgment."

Prof. Swallow and Col. W. L. Irvine, of Montana, are on a visit to the States. The Montana Gazette says that the intention of both is to return in the spring with machinery.

THE SUMNER SCANDAL REFUTED.

The Hannibal Courier, after quoting the "Sumner Scandal" story of the New York Express, says:

In addition to the above, the blackguards who run the Democratic press, have embellished the scandal with the outpouring of their own vicious imaginations, after having tried to root their swinish snouts into Mr. Sumner's private affairs in a manner too disgusting to repeat.

We have received from Washington a letter in which the writer refutes the scandal as follows: "Mrs. Sumner has gone to Europe with Mrs. Hooper, wife of the Hon. Samuel Hooper, representative to Congress from Massachusetts. She left last month. For some reason there has been a change of programme. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner were to keep house here this winter and were having a nice house built for them. Now the house is given up and Mr. Sumner has taken rooms."

"With regard to the charge of Mr. Sumner's inability to obey the command given to Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden, I have to say, that it was well known here in Washington last spring, that there was an heir prospective for the Sumner family, the signs of which were very apparent. I presume that Mrs. Sumner has been prematurely ill, and probably disappointed at the loss, together with necessary attention to health precautions, has changed her plans and sent her to Europe."

"The statement about Mr. Sumner's jealousy of the intimacy between his wife and Baron Helstein, of the Prussian Legation, has no foundation in truth, but is a pure invention of copperhead malice, with only the trip to Europe as a basis."

Thus falls to the ground this malicious scandal. While it cannot injure Mr. Sumner in the estimation of those who personally know him, it cannot fail to show up in their true character, the vicious souls of those Democratic partisans, who do not hesitate to invade the sacred precincts of the home life of a public man, if thereby they make capital for the party which they thus disgrace.

Animals Preserved in Ice.—About 20,000 lb. of fossil ivory—that is to say, the tusks of at least 100 mammoths—are bated for every year in New Siberia. As many as ten tusks have been found lying together in the "Tundra," weighing from 150 lb. to 300 lb. each. Notwithstanding the enormous amount already carried away, the stores of fossil ivory do not appear to diminish. In many places near the mouths of the great rivers flowing into the Arctic Ocean the bones and tusks of these ante-diluvian pachyderms lie scattered about like the relics of a plowed up battlefield. Entire mammoths have occasionally been discovered, not only with the skin—which was protected with a double covering of hair and wool—entire, but with the fleshy portion of the body in such state of preservation that they have so kint mud which was on the point of congealing, and which before the price of decay could commence, froze around the bodies and preserved them in the condition in which they perished. It is thus that they are occasionally found when a landslide occurs in the frozen soil of the Siberian coast, which never thaws even during the greatest heat of summer to a depth of more than two feet; and in this way, within a period of a century and a half, five or six of these curious corpses have come to light from their icy graves. A very perfect specimen of the mammoth in this state was discovered in the autumn of 1865, near the mouth of the Jenissai.

Local Intelligence.

THANKSGIVING.—Thanksgiving Day was universally kept by our citizens. The merchants generally closing their stores, and those who kept open finding no customers. All mechanical labor was suspended. Let loose from their daily drudgery, clerks and everybody else sought some pleasant amusement. We did not hear of any religious services during the day; our churches are not sufficiently reconstructed yet to keep Thanksgiving Day. There were at least many hearts thankful to the Almighty for his manifold blessings. It being a splendid day for hunting no doubt the numerous flocks of quail in the vicinity of the city were made to hump themselves. The streets were quite deserted. The day was dark, damp and chilly, just such a day one would prefer for staying at home and enjoying the society of friends. Many good dinners were eaten and people generally thankful.

A REMINISCENCE.—A friend who remained here during the confederacy says yesterday was the first Thanksgiving kept in San Antonio since Boquer, as mayor, put forth his proclamation for a thanksgiving on the strength of a proclamation from Jeff. Davis calling upon the people to fast and pray; on the same occasion a grand ball was given in the Casino to Magruder.

TAX ON PICKLES, ETC.—The Herald announces that there is a tax on pickles, peaches, tomatoes and other canned fruits and vegetables. Capt. Braubach has invariably informed merchants that there was no tax put upon these articles, and his pamphlet enumerates no such articles in its schedule.

ANSWER TO THE HERALD.—Captain Braubach authorizes us to say in answer to the Herald's notice concerning his book and himself, that he has never been, nor is not now at all disturbed by the barking of rebel hounds.

No News.—The telegraph lines kept holyday.

WHOLESALE AGENCY.

The immense popularity of these Organs, and their superior musical powers, is fast bringing them before the public, as the instrument so long desired in American homes. And although the cost price is but a trifle over the Melodians, yet the musical advantages, beauty of tone and richness of touch and action are so far superior, that they are fast superseding the Melodians, and the only one now almost exclusively for the American Organs.

It is adapted to any music from the quietest and most lively, to the heavy tone of the Church Organ. And almost universally they are preferred to the Piano, by persons who have them, yet costing less than half, and only taking a small amount of room.
