A Public Nuisance to be Abated.

No excitement. Frantic threats have vanished in thin air. Windy talk of resistance has ceased. In Virginia or in Tennessee there may still be symptoms of disorder, but it grows out of a state of things anterior to impeachment. The Northern people are profoundly quiet and calm, watching proceedings gravely and earnestly, but without any apprehension at all that the constitutional removal of a President will cause the heavens to fall. Gold, selling on the day that impeachment was voted at 145, now sells below 140. The money barometer, always most sensitive in any time of real danger, predicts fair weather in spite of the gloomy prognostications of Conservative hypochondriacs. In short, impeachment is peace. Even more than its most ardent advocates had hoped, the proceeding has served already to quiet agitation, to remove vague apprehensions of danger from the coming political contest, and to assure the country that its government is fully equal to this as to every other emergency.

It is very amusing to read the dreary jeremiads of those who opposed impeachment, now that the event enables us to test their predictions by facts. It is amusing to remember how gravely we were told that this proceeding would "shake the whole country to its profound-est depths," how it would prostrate all business, derange all values, upset all industry, destroy confidence, strain our institutions to the utmost, excite passion beyond control, bring danger of civil war and blood in our streets, and play the mischief generally. Through these nightmare dreams with which poor Conservatives were afflicted, stalked gaunt forms of want, starvation, red-handed violence, and horrible anarchy—frightful shapes which have been visible only in dreams, and even in visions revealed only to Conservative prophets. Instead of what we have reviving business. Instead of bloodshed, we have a profound conviction that there is to be no more fighting. Instead of anarchy we have a peace so unbroken and unperturbed that one would suppose we had been suddenly translated to the clear heights of some Alpine peak, where eternal silence reigns, or rather to some quiet valley of repose, where nobody ever gets excited.
There has not been in this country, since Andrew Johnson reeled into office with a brawling speech on his lips, a season of such general and unbroken quiet, as since the people's representatives summoned him to answer before the Senate for high crimes and misdemeanors.

This is not unnatural. Andrew Johnson was the great disturber. He has kept this country in a constant turmoil for years. His violent words and reckless acts, betraying a mind and character utterly unfit for power or responsibility, aroused in every thoughtful mind a fear that the vast influence of the President, in the hands of such a man, would yet be so used as to plunge the nation into some terrible conflict or calamity. His own struggle with Congress, his perpetual stirring up of conquered rebels to resist the conquering nation; his stealthy appeals to the copperheads of the North to rally around him and sweep this Congress, "hanging on the verge of government," out of the way; his use of patronage and power to keep up a strife which the people want settled and ended, has not only kept us in continual disturbance, but has filled the mind with vague fears for the future. But for him this people would have been at peace long ago. The North voted; the Democrats were so beaten that they lost all hope and began to talk of adopting negro suffrage as their platform; the South, but for him, would have accepted the terms proposed by Congress and been at peace. He is the sole cause of years of strife, excitement and apprehension. The mere prospect that he will be abated as a public nuisance operates as a soothing anodyne, and brings quiet, confidence and hope.—Ex

Bridgport, March 23.—Gen. Carl Schurz addressed the German people of this city, this evening, in the German language. The meeting was very successful and enthusiastic, and will have a good effect. The subject of his address was "Reconstruction, Impeachment, and General Issues of the Day." The General was loudly applauded, and his speech gave entire satisfaction.

Stamford, Conn., March 23.—Gov.
Harrison of New-Hampshire addressed a large assemblage of citizens in this town to-night. He was warmly received, and his speech is decided to have been the most powerful yet delivered in this section during the campaign. Lieut.
Gov. Woodford of New York, announced to be present, was unavoidably absent. Gov. Harrison goes to Danielesville to-morrow.

A Robber Killed and another Captured—One of the Taylor Gang Killed.

We have for some time had accounts of the depredations of an audacious band of thieves west of the Colorado. We see by the Bastrop Advertiser that the gang is in a fair way to be broken up.
That paper states that a posse of citizens, eight in number, from Clinton, Dewitt county, arrived in Bastrop last Wednesday in search of a party of de-peradoes charged with horse stealing and murder in Dewitt and other counties.

Charley Taylor and James Sharp, said to be connected with a clan of fourteen men charged, with horse stealing, left Dewitt county a few days since, on their travels engaging in stealing horses.
The men named, arrived in Bastrop on Monday last, and their conduct and general appearance excited suspicion.
The pursuing party, having proper legal authority to arrest Taylor and Sharp, seeing them on Main street, approached them and demanded their "surrender," but they attempted to escape, Sharp an-tering and passing through the store of Messrs. Cunningham & Co., while Taylor was pushing for the store of Messrs.
Crow & Jones, for the purpose, as was believed, to offer resistance, but before reaching the door he was fired on and killed. Sharp passed to the rear of Mr.
Green's livery stable and on to the dwelling house of Mrs. T., and concealed himself under the kitchen floor, where he was taken into custody by Mr. Sutton in charge of the posse in search, who the same evening started with the prisoner to Dewitt county.

Two men from the country, named Longee, father and son, were accidentally wounded during the firing—the father slightly, but the son severely though not dangerously. It is believed that had Taylor reached the store of Messrs. Crow & Jones unhurt, a severe encounter would have resulted, in which several might have been killed, as he is described as a very desperate and cool man, and though young, has slain several men in his day.
Another squad of citizens are in search of other members of this gang of horse thieves, two of whom have been arrested and lodged in the jail at Clinton.

Ku-Klux Klan.

The Copperhead papers pool-pool the idea that the Ku-Klux Klan, which is creating such an excitement in certain localities at the South, is anything more than a harmless organization, whose main object is fun at the expense of the superstitious fears of others. We are aware that people will often go to great lengths merely to amuse themselves, but when we find them getting up elaborate organizations like the one in question, turning their nights into days, spending money to print mysterious posters, and using up horse-flesh in riding about the country, we may conclude that they have some more serious object than mere fun.

In a country so badly impoverished as the South now is, when every man's work is needed in the field, it is scarcely likely that honest and well-meaning people would be found wasting their time in such frivolous pursuits as are attributed by Northern Democrats to this mysterious Ku-Klux Klan. The suspicion, then, is natural that they are not honest and well-meaning people, and that their pursuits are more serious, and at the same time more questionable in their character than their apologists would have us believe. It is not likely that they are idiotic enough to think of getting up a new rebellion, but their actions indicate that they are after no good; their political sympathies are manifested plainly enough, even in the mysterious jargon of their orders; their organization is adapted to evil purposes, and their conduct in many cases has been such as to warrant the belief that their movements need watching.—[Washington Chronicle.]

The Indianola Bulletin says:—The Common Council of Goliad, have appointed a committee to advertise for proposals for building a bridge across the San Antonio river.

The Guard says:—
A good bridge across the river at Goliad would be the beginning of a new era in the progress of the place. A ferryboat will not pay, for the reason that rises in the river are so few and sudden that some accident happens to either boat or ropes which detains travelers more or less, then the high price for ferriage necessary to keep up a boat, causes some to undertake to ford, when the banks, after a rise, is always almost impassable.

There are many fords on the river, above and below Goliad, which are used on occasions of continued low water, which no traveler would think of crossing if there was a good bridge here. The fact is, we would prefer giving the right to build a bridge for twenty years than have none; and we understand that two reliable gentlemen offered to build it for that length of time ten years ago.

OUR WEEKLY EXPRESS.

A splendid eight page forty column paper, containing less advertising and more reading matter than any paper of its size in the country. Every town and every Post office neighborhood in Texas, should possess a Club of the Weekly Express. It is to the interest of all peace loving citizens to acquire broad cast throughout the State the truths in its columns. To do this, let every reader induce his neighbor to subscribe, after reading his paper, each subscriber can do his paper up and forward it to a loyal friend who will raise a Club in a region where the paper is not now known.

JOB WORK.

Our patrons are solicited to send in their orders for Bill-Heads, Cards, Circular letters, Checks and every variety of Job Work. We have secured the services of a first class workman from the east, and have made our Job Department as complete as is possible to have it.

ANOTHER.—Judge Ogden opened court in March in Goliad, Goliad county, and up to that day, within the twelve preceding months, there had been eighteen murders in the county. There are less than two thousand inhabitants in the county, and Goliad contains less than an average number of outlaws. This is authentic.

STARTLING.—It is gaining in belief that Johnson the impeached, expects to use Hancock in kidnaping Grant, Stanton and other loyal officers around Washington, make prisoners of Congress, revolutionize the government and declare "Moses" dictator. The only thing looking to make this scheme a success, is the consent of the grand army of the Republic.

COPPERHEADS.—There is occasionally a Copperhead officer wearing the United States uniform, and they may be seen hissing around the outskirts of "best society."

When we get a loyal President this class of persons will be attended to, and where seen they should be spotted and their actions become a matter of record in Washington. They may be known by their attempts to associate with rebels and their affected contempt for the people. This is authentic.

GONZALES.—While the troops were in Gonzales the rebels of that region were meek and gentle Union men. Hancock's order came for the removal of the troops, low and behold rebels came hobbling to the surface like corks out of water.

Government pressure drives this class of persons into their holes as tight as a cork in a champagne bottle, cut the wire (take away the troops) and they pop out with all the agility of a French dancing master.

CIVIL LAW IN TEXAS.—Mr. Smith a loyal man living near Helena, Karbas county, while at home one day, about three weeks ago, was suddenly pounced upon by four or five ruffians disguised, who seized him, put a rope around his neck and then gave him five minutes to give up his money or hang; the victim stated he had no money, that it was in bank in San Antonio, and offered his torturers a check for the amount. They professed not to believe him and drew him up to the limb of a tree several times until he was insensible and then rifled his pockets of one dollar and fifty cents, threatened him with death if he reported who his torturers were and then left. This is authenticated.

A HARNES is stronger, and more comfortable, and lasts better when kept soft and pliable with neat-foot oil.

GENERAL HANCOCK VS. GOVERNOR PEASE—HOW A "DEAD DUCK" QUACKED!

Hancock has written a long reply (or had a long reply written for him) to the communication from Governor Pease, written January 14, 1868. The reply was undoubtedly written by a pettifogging lawyer, as the entire mess of twaddle is more like the action of the thug who throws pepper in the officer's eyes while he escapes, than a respectful reply of a military subordinate to a civil chief, who he (the said military subordinate) professes to venerate.

We get some very valuable facts from Hancock's communication. We there learn that when a boy he read a speech of Lord Chatham in relation to the employment of savages on the British side during the Revolution. What a pity that he could not have kept reading when bigger, instead of devoting his time in rebel society at New Orleans. If he had only kept on reading, he might by this time be a martyr and go to England and practice law with Judah P. Benjamin; that would have been much nicer than being "Ed Washington" on President Johnson's staff. And since his brother, John Hancock, failed to get the Collectorship at New Orleans and five or six other places applied for, we are sure it don't pay to be Washington the 2.

This wonderful Washington reminds Governor Pease that to declare the laws of Congress unconstitutional is not a new thing in this country, as the Tories did the same thing in the Revolution. He does not, however, in his apology for the little peccadillos of his rebel friends, tell us whether or not any class of the Government defenders were required, at that period of our history, to allow themselves to be murdered and robbed, and gradually exterminated, to soften down and appease the "ompleasant" feeling of the disaffected.

The facetious Washington No. 2 gets on the wrong side of the fence once. He says:

"It is time now, at the end of almost two years from the close of the war, we should begin to recollect what manner of people we are; to tolerate again free, popular discussion, and extend some forbearance and consideration to opposing views. The maxims that in all intellectual contests truth is mighty, and must prevail; and that error is harmless when reason is left to combat it, and not only sound, but salutary."

The axiom is correct, but the application is an error.

The death of Dr. Cunningham, who was killed in February, 1868, by a garison of soldiers at Gonzales, Texas, in an attack by an organization of citizens on said camp, does not offset the two thousand murders of loyal men and negroes in this State during the past two years. We fear General Hancock was looking at things through a very brilliant pair of black eyes (South) when he wrote that sentence. As Dr. Cunningham is the only rebel martyr they have since the close of the war, we think General Hancock can easily say—so far as rebels are concerned—"civil law reigns in Texas." So far as civil law is concerned, we give one solitary instance:

Judge W. B. Ogden, of the District Court, opened Court in March last in Goliad, the county seat of Goliad county, and he reported to the military commander that eighteen murders had been committed in that county during the preceding twelve months. Goliad has less than 2,000 inhabitants, and there is a loyal paper at the county seat. Goliad is anything but the worst county in the State.

The assertions about his (Hancock's) intentions to instantly suppress crime in Texas look well on paper, but how does it look together with the cold-blooded murders of officers and soldiers in Texas, a class of victims selected by the rebel friends of H. since he assumed command? The Major Thompson and Captain Culvers were let alone previous to General Hancock's arrival in the Fifth Military District, the murderers thinking the authorities would certainly avenge the death of its own officers.

The crowning idea in the balderdash of General Hancock is, his attempt to throw upon Governor Pease the odium of the failure of civil law in Texas, in which he tells Governor Pease that "having the whole military force to back him up," &c. The only military assistance ever rendered the civil authorities in spirit during Hancock's regime was rendered by Sergeant Dwyer at Gonzales. The Sergeant did not resort to extreme measures until he was attacked and shot at; he then defended himself as a brave soldier should; and for this, Sergeant Dwyer has in a silly dungeon in San Antonio awaiting a trial, and rebels exultingly boast that they will convict him on their testimony.

Can rebel sophistry, thrown into Governor Pease's face for the past two years, be made dirtier by being again flung at him by a brave defender of the Stars and Stripes?

The New Albany Commercial devotes its daily issues largely to incidents of the great revival there. At the close of one of its articles it says: The young and the old, the rich and the poor, the learned and the illiterate, the distinguished and the humble, are all alike affected by the wonderful religious influences that pervade the city. Such a work of revival was never known here before. No one talks of anything else than religion. It is the topic on the streets, in the stores, offices and shops.

The Virginia Convention adopted the article on the Judiciary. The judges are to be chosen by the Legislature, the Attorney-General by the people, and the other State Attorneys are to be appointed by the Governor.

BY ORDER of the Hon. Police Court of Bexar County, at its present April term, I am directed to notify all persons paying license on occupations in this county, as the law directs, to file with me their receipts for the same and procure a License therefor; also, to call the attention of those officials whose duty it is to see that the laws in the premises are not violated, that they will be held to a strict accountability for dereliction of duty, and to all concerned, that the laws will be strictly enforced.

CIRCULAR.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, } Austin, Texas, March 19, 1868. }
To the Clerks of the County Courts:
The law requiring Clerks of the County Courts, (O. and W., pages 427 and 423.) to transmit to the Comptroller on the first day of June in each year a transcript from their books of the licenses granted during the year, has not been observed as it should have been. Hereafter each Clerk failing to make the report as required, will be reported for a violation of law.
It is respectfully suggested that Clerks of the County Courts furnish reports quarterly, i. e. 1st April, 1st July, 1st October, and 1st of January. This is necessary to detect fraud or deceit on the part of Assessors and Collectors, and to guard the public Revenue.
The reports for the year ending 31st May, 1867, should be sent up at once.

APRIL 8, 1868. To the Stock Drivers OF TEXAS.

The undersigned takes this method of informing the Cattle Drivers of Texas that our Shipping Yards at Abilene, Kansas, will be open free to all to ship this season, these yards are on the Union Pacific road, 100 miles west of Topeka, Kansas, on the only legally authorized route from Texas to the north-west; and are situated in an excellent grazing region, these yards are extensively advertised in the leading northwestern papers, calling attention of all classes of buyers, where they can come and supply themselves; and this point will, without doubt, be the best one to which to drive and sell the surplus cattle of the South-west. Once here, you are accessible by rail to all the markets of the country. We would advise to drive only full grown steers, as they are the most wanted. The proper route to drive is via Bolon's Crossing on Red river, thence to Fort Arbuckle; thence to Chiama ranch; thence to the mouth of Little Arkansas; thence to Abilene; total distance from Northern Texas about 350 miles.

We will beat Abilene in the trade, buying, shipping and selling on Commission, &c. We refer to all with whom we dealt the past season. W. K. McCOT & BRO'S. March 26 dtf
