HIGHEST MARKET PRICE.

Editorial Correspondence.

GALVESTON, April 29, 1868. Coming from the dinner table, where I had enjoyed a good dinner with Mr. Zanderson, I find time to write you of my adventures since I left Austin. The cold spell which set in, made this journey a very disa greeable one, especially as I left Aus tin in a gay summer habit. I had agreed with Gov. Hamilton to meet him the next day in Bastrop. In Bastrop I witnessed one of those scenes which have made this place famous for her bad deeds. While walking down the Main street in company with Capt. Porter, the Bureau Agent, the notorious Bell, a scoundrel who has kept the place in terrorism for more than three months, followed us, and commenced cursing Capt. Porter in the most abusive terms, charging him with cowardice and the like, and threatening to kil! him, not wishing to provoke a contest with him; at my request Capt. Porter kept quiet, closely watching the fellow, who seemed to know that he would not have it all his own way in case of a fight. Arriving at the door of the Assessor of Internal Revenue, we found the or on the door, nearly as follows: Lions Den, order No. -, beware of K. K. K. * * * Grand Cyclope of One Shee. &c.

I advised the Assessor to postscript :- "The Loyal League will take care of you."

There have been five murders committed since the 15th of April in Bastrop, three freedmen and two white men. All the murders are due to from New York and New Orleans Hancork's civil order. The town of give evidence of the fact. Bastrop has suffered from these des. peradoes more now than it did dur, ing the war. The Germans at this place, most of them, are thorough Union men, and have erected a fine building for a Casino, similar to our Casino, in ple of San Antonio do something to which they enjoy and instruct them the West? selves

My journey to Brenham was a very tedious and disagreeably one on secount of the extremely bad roads. Gov. Hamilton arrived in due time in Bastrop, and we had to console ourselves with our unfortunate fate.

At Houston I left the Governor nd went on to Galveston, he p on the cars between Brenham and Houston, a stout Southern gentleman observing some idle freedmen on the road idle, because the ground was to wet to work, remarked:

"I have never believed in the Cathotic religion; but I believe now, that there is a purgatory especially for

Whereupon, Hamilton in his deep voice answered:

"Yes sir-Since these people are free, the whole economy of the beavens have changed."

That raised the ire of the Southern gentlemen, and he commenced a long argument, to which Gov. Hamilton gave prompt and satisfactory answers much to the amusement of all the passengers. In reading the Telegraph, I find our old friend Murphy suspects Hamtold him that he had the good of the country at heart. Hamilton laughed heartily at this conclusion. Well it not depend upon Murphy and his like.

I arrived yesterday evening in Galveston, and in perusing Flake's Bulletin, I find—that he says he has quit exchanging with the Express. Poor fellow, if he only knew in what contempt his paper is held in the West among the Union men. He seems to have lost all sense of honor; havof Union men in 1865, he turned traitor to them in 1866. His howling about Johnson's impeachment, remindered, that in meanness he is far held that the done it, for we would have him to leave none but warm-test friends behind him here, and we trust that when the ship bears him away the American people will wish him with entire unanimity God speed, long life and happiness.

been long ago impeached by all honest Union men for high crimes and misdemeanors. I hope that Johnson's conviction will be equivalent to Flake's conviction. Who cares for his paper? Who wants him to exchange with the Express? May we

I find that Flake bowls like our Herald about the Government printing. This is clear evidence that he feels the loss of it, however, he may brag of independence of the Gevernment 'He has lost so many subscribe ers that he longs for some compensation not from the poor city of Galveston, but from the Government. The Austin Republican has answered him well, and we endorse every word of what the Republican said. Poor Flake, his star is evidently going

I see that Flake ealls San Antonio a tributary to Galveston, that merchants of San Antonio buy in Galveston at wholesale and sell in San Antonio at retail? His assertions shows the utter ignerance of these fellows of the significance of San Antonio; and their bappy mind in making false and malicious statements. A simple inquiry of their wholesale merchants would covince our Galveston friends, der of the Ku Klux Klan posted up that San Antonio does not buy, and never did buy from Galveston, and it is known all over the country that San Antonio boasts of larger business houses at wholesale than Galveston can brag of. I am in Texas seventeen years, and I know not the time when San Antonio was dependant upon Galveston in any way. San Antonio buys in New York, New Orleans, and in Europe, and the many schooners and steamships arriving in Indianola a railroad to San Pedro Springs. I learn from Mr. Jocust, the Prussian consul, that five vessels with emigrants are on their way from Bremen to Gaiveston Cannot the peosecure a portion of this emigration to

The Dickens' Banquet.

The New York Tribune speaks thus of the Dicken's Banquet given in New York on the 18th inst:

The dinner given on Saturday evening by the press of the United States to ising to meet me the next day. While more than an ordinary compliment from the members of the profession to the foremost man of their craft. To those who sat around those brilliant tables, it seemed not so much a testimonial to the genius of a successful author as a tribute of personal regard for the characters with which that genius has improved and delighted us. When Charles Dickens took his place at the board, many a dear old friend sat down with us unseen; and it was hard not to imagine that we were cheering Sam Weller, or hobbobbing with Tom Pinch, or laughing with Mark Tapley, or gazing into the beam-ing spectacles of Mr. Pickwick, The cordial greetings were interchanged not only between Mr. Dickens and the two hundred of his admirers whose invitation he had accepted, but troops of those de-lightful people who live only in his books seemed to be there with him, and the hand-shaking, the touting, the waving of bandkerchiefs, were quite as much for them as for their genial creator. And so, amid lights and flowers, and the breathings of delicate music, and ilton to be a Conservative, because he the laughter of many voices, the evening passed merrily away, as if in the socie-ty of friends whom he had long known is fancy but never met is the flesh.

The admirable speech in which Mr. is, that the good of the country does Dickens acknowledged the compliment paid him will undoubtedly add a great deal to his personal popularity in America, for it was just such a speech as Americans particularly like to hear. It was frank, it was cordial, it was generous; and as for those old darts of offense which have rankled so long in the wounds of a few of us, he drew them out with a deft and tender hand, and salved the injury with the unction of a little national flattery. We do not know that he was under any obligation to do this, ing filled his pokets with the money but we are glad that he done it, for we

JOSSELYN OF THE GAZETTE.-The Houston Democrat speaks thus of the old ignoramus of the State Gazette: "To call the desertion of the old blatherskite of Austia by its right name, would be impolite and offensive to people of fine sensibilities."

IMPEACUMENT DRAWING TO AN END. Our despatches bring us an extract from Mr. Bingnam's speech, which is the best appeal before the final vote. To-day or to-morrow will finish the business long wished for. A reported conversation between Mr. Wude and a Congressman smacks a gold deal like a foregone conclusion.

ENGLAND. - England is going through Another revolution-a rew Ministry is to be installed. Deisrael had hardly warmed the seat of Prime Minister before he is forced to resign.

THE BAR-ROOM CASE .-- Upon the rep resentation of the police that one or two bar-rooms kept open all night, thereby inducing drankenness and crime during the dead hours of night, and that a majority of the bar-rooms cosed their doors before 11 o'chick at night, the Board of Aldermen revived an Ordinance passed not figure out more than thirty-three during the Cleveland administration to that effect. Immediately upon the passage of the Ordinance an antagonism is aroused and several bar-rooms bid defrance to the City Ordinance. Mr. Marmion was arrested for violation of the Ordinance, and the Jury decided that he was not guilty. It is possible that a jury of tweive men are better judges of what is proper in city government than the City Council, but we doubt it. The only question which really exists in this matter is-whother the peace of the city demands it? If not, then it would be dicially determine whether your laws best to let t'e ordinance drop. But certainly what was good under Gleveland ought not to be bad now. Another thing that militates against the ordinance is, that club-rooms are excepted from this ordinance.

What is a Conservative? We ask the question with some interest, because we notice that Mr. A B-Imont, banker, and Chairman of the Democratic National has issued an invitation all Conservatives to join with the Democrats in the next Fourth of July Convention in this city. Chalk we understand to be chalk, and cheese we have good reason for believing to be cheese; but that chalk is cheese or that cheese is chaik, we stand pre ared unflinchly to deny. A Conservative Democrat is an incarnate contradiction. Conservatism halts, besitates, trembles, doubts, and turns its gaze wistfully to the past. Democracy advances, is confident, is bold, is decided, and looks hopefully to the future; but a Conservative Democrat must have one eye at least in the back of his head, weeping for extinct despositans; while with the other eye in his forehead he marks the signs of hu man advancement. It would be a very encions physiologicial circumstance if it should turn out that Mr Belmont's delegates, the Democratic Conservatives and the Conservative Democrats, resemble each other in having both eyes, in the back regions, exhibiting something of "hungry look" by reason of their neighborhood to the phrenological organ of dimentiveness .- N. Adjourned. Impeachment.

Washington, May 4 .- The white house was crowded all day with visitors and Johnson sympathisers. Impeachment stock fluctuates hourly here. Both sides are confident of success. Mr. Johnson's council canvotes at the outside for conviction.

In the Impeachment Court, Mr. Bingham aid he disowned parties or prejudices, that he was there a repre sentative of the people, he applied the term "hired" frequently to Johnson's council. He said that Mr. Evart's speech had more latin than law, and that the Supreme Court had no possible jurrisdiction in the case; he narrated Lincoln's assination and quoted from the Fugitive Slave Law operations. He said the gentleman who opened this case claimed that the middling 31 je. President may judicially construe the Constitution for himself, and may juare possed under the Constitution and whether he shall execute them. Mr. Bingham repeated this, that it might be buried in the hearts of Senators; the laws were only to be executed, and if it pleased his highness, Andrew Johnson, First King of the United States, to do otherwise, and as insisted on by Johnson's advocates, Mr. Bingham said that the Constituand revere as the bniwark of our liberty, Sales 15,000 is a Constitution which invites violation of the law, not obedence to it. He further urged that it Senators by their judgment should countenance this plea of Johnson's counsel, then they would be the arbitrators of their country's ruin -they would give over this land to anarchy. No matter what demagogues may say out of this Chamber, the issue is anarchy in this land, and the recording Angel of history stands ready to trace that it is so of all of it. head and front of Johnson's offending is that he has assumed to bimself the preand the laws, and, in spite of all lawyers' tricks, in spite of all the tectnicalities, is growing better day by day. this was the issue.
