OUR FACILITIES.

The Daily Express has grown with the most wonderful rapidity known in newspaper enterprises, with daily dispatches from all parts of the World, and correspondents in the various Cities; in a wonderful short space of time it has sprung from the rear to the most admirable output of enterprising Journalism.

OUR WEEKLY EXPRESS.

A small eight page forty column paper, containing less advertising and more reading matter than any paper of its size in the country.
We have never found it necessary to appeal to the friends of the Union to support this journal, as its merits have been acknowledged by friends abroad, having subscribers and contributors in twenty-three States of the Union and in Europe. Every town and every portion of neighborhood in Texas, should receive a copy of the Weekly Express. It is to the interest of all persons living citizens to sus-tend her throughout the State the truth in Washington. To do this, let every reader in this neighborhood to subscribe, after reading his paper, each subscriber can do his paper up and forward it to a loyal friend who will receive it in a region where the paper is now unknown.

ble to have it.

THE NEGLECTED GRAVES OF UNION MARTYRS.

Captain W. J. Locke, who was recently in the mountains, visited the graves of some of the Union martyrs, hung by the murderous Duff and his command. Four of these graves are together—Hiram Nelson, Seabird, Henderson, Franklin Scott, and Gustave Tegner. In August, 1862, these men were taken from their homes, hung, their throats cut, and their bodies thrown into a pool of water.

At Spring Creek. The homes of these men were burned, their fields destroyed, their cattle killed, and their wives and children imprisoned in a rebel jail.

Hiram Nelson and Scott were old, gray-haired men. Mrs. Nelson, an old lady whose head was white with gray, begged for the body of her husband, but was driven away by the rebels and threatened with death. Weeks after, the bereaved widows of these martyred Union men visited the spot and dragged out the decomposed bodies and buried them in a shallow grave. Tegner's head was gone. Captain Locke says these men are unprotected, and in a dilapidated condition.

These men died for the sake of principle—they died at their door-steps; on them was vented the most diabolical passion of the rebellion. Their resting place should be held sacred by every loyal man, and above their ashes should be raised a monument. It is suggested that they be removed to this city and interred in the Military Cemetery. This would certainly be appropriate; but we had rather see a wall around the spot they fell, and, as our State fills up, their monument will remain a monument of that patriotism which saved the Republic.

The State should vote an appropriation to have the remains of all those who have died thus, collected and above them erected a suitable monument.

Good Joke.—Under this head the Herald gets off in its issue of Tuesday, one of its usual lies. It says the Mayor killed a young man $7, and upon the young man stating he had only 75 cents, the Mayor took it and released him.

This belongs to the smallest kind of lying, as chicken stealing belongs to the smallest kind of theft. The Herald does not scruple to steal our despatches, and of course it would not issue a complete edition unless it lied about some loyal man.

A Sea Gull.—A young sea gull was picked up in the Arsenal grounds after the storm on Wednesday.

No Mails.—In consequence of the

THE HAIL TORNADO.

Our city is a perfect wreck, every home in it has received some damage, many are complete ruins, with nothing but fragments of walls standing. The hail stones penetrated the best roofs, going through tin roofs like cannon balls. All the windows facing to the north have been shattered in, even window shutters and doors were broken down. The appearance of the city could not have been worse under severe bombardment. Trees are stripped of their leaves and branches, which lie piled up in the yards and streets—the sides of houses exposed to the hail have the appearance of having withstood a thousand discharges of grape and canister. The roofing of the entire city is perforated like a sieve.

The hailstones were of irregular shape and all sizes, as if a mass of ice had broken above our devoted heads, and driven by a tornado to the earth. One hail stone was found weighing over five pounds, while a great many as large as a man's fist were picked up.

Casualties.

Many of the families whose houses were beaten down, took shelter under beds and tables and thus escaped bodily harm. We have only heard of one death, a negro boy; several had limbs broken and were severely bruised, while the whole population was frightened almost to death.

Damages.

The damage is of every character, and $500,000 will not cover it all—roofs were universally destroyed and windows broken in—household furniture was entirely demolished in some houses and in many stores the damage was great. The Menger House was greatly damaged, the Klepper Hotel is almost a wreck, the Convent buildings are terribly cut up. All the blinds and window glass on the northern side destroyed. French's building suffered greatly, and in fact, all buildings having windows to the north.

Gen. Mason's residence was unroofed and his family exposed to the inclement storm. But the most distressing picture of all, are the habitations of the poor people, their houses battered in, household goods destroyed and their little gardens ruined.

The corn patches and gardens are flattened to the ground and have the appearance of having passed through a chopping mill. All the fruit crop is destroyed.

What the Storm Resembled.

The storm resembled a terrific battle, the lightning flashing in fearful vividness, the thunder crashing like a thousand cannon, and the hail falling like shot; so fearful was the noise that no one could hear unless they screamed in each others ears. Never in the history of this city, never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, was just such a storm experienced.

Its Extent.

The extent of the hail storm is not known. We learn that New Braunfels and Seguin have had like visitation; to the West the hail did not extend over half a mile beyond the city. The full damage cannot be ascertained.

The tornado commenced about 9 o'clock, on Wednesday night the 19th inst. and lasted about half an hour.

THE EXTENT OF THE STORM.—We learn by telegraph that the hail-storm commenced eight miles this side of New Braunfels, reached only a short distance below our city, and extended from five to twenty miles in width—destroying everything over a region thirty miles from north to south and ten to twenty miles from east to west.

The death of "Aunt" Fanny Burrows, of Warren, R. I., is announced. She was born at Mystic in the autumn of 1709, and was therefore in her ninety-ninth year. She was born while Connecticut was a colony, remembered the battle of Bunker Hill, the Declaration of Independence, and the measures of relief for the soldiers of the Revolutionary war. She was about twelve years of age when the massacre of Groton Heights took place, and forty two widows were made in one day within the large population of her native Groton.
Washington was inaugurated when she was about twenty years of age. She also aided in fitting out garments for the soldiers and sailors of the war of 1812, and last, though not least, joined in knitting stockings for the soldiers of Rhode Island in the late war.

MAJOR MOORE ATTACKED ON THE STREET BY A REBEL RUFFIAN—No DAMAGE DONE.—During the darkest period of the impending storm on Wednesday morning, Major Moore was on his way to the store of Norton & Deuts to purchase some window glass. Thomas Leckie (the individual we noticed in a recent issue as being fined by the Mayor for being drunk and committing a nuisance in the street) made an assault upon him (Major Moore). During the scuffle Major Moore used a pocket pistol. Leckie being a large man and Major Moore being rather a small man, Leckie succeeded in throwing him to the ground. The police were soon upon the spot, the combatants were separated, Major Moore put under arrest, and Leckie taken off by his Ku-Klux friends to have his wounds examined. It was rumored that Leckie was shot through the head, and that Major Moore was stabbed. The case was examined before the Mayor at 11 o'clock the same morning, and dismissed.

The pretended grievance of Leckie was the police item giving an account of his drunkenness. We also stated that this man had been a vampire upon the city for several years, and that he was an ex-rebel Justice of the Peace, and that he had taken an active part in King's Court in all prosecutions against loyal men. But this was evidently only the excuse. This attack upon Major Moore is a part of the plan of the Ku-Klux; Leckie has simply been the instrument in the hands of others. Devine, Superville, Cupples, and other traitors are behind the scenes watching the effect.

We have known Leckie for many years; he came here as a Presbyterian preacher, but, falling from grace, he became the companion of men of dissolute habits. A man of education and of usual gentlemanly manners, he was employed as a teacher in the public schools; and during the Lyons administration he held that position as a sort of sinecure, at the same time he was Justice of the Peace. He has lived off the city ever since his arrival, now about twelve years. Only that he had been picked up on the street drunk, his name would never have appeared in our columns. He was a traitor to the Government, and did all he could to destroy the Union. And had he not been urged on by Ku-Klux intrigues, he would hardly have felt at all sensitive over our notice of his specie.

The Major received a few scratches about the face, while his Ku-Klux assailant allowed severe punishment about the head—one cut looking considerably disfigured.

For Leckie we care nothing; but we give fair notice to all rebel thieves, cut-throats and murderers, that we will never cease to hold them suspended before the public, & their crimes can only be punished in this way—provided their insolent audacity carry them beyond the forbearance of a community they have so deeply wronged.

THEY PRAYED.—It is confidently ascertained that more than during the storm on Tuesday night, than during the last year, or since the last flood.

SCENE AT THE THEATRE.—Quite a large audience was present at Crisp's

Theatre on Wednesday night, at the benefit of Mr. Bobo; when a storm came off the greatest condition occurred among the audience—it was with difficulty that some of ladies were prevented from running

The Old Presbyterian Church.—Nothing remains of the old Presbyterian church on Commerce street. It was the first Protestant place of worship erected in this city, being built in 1848, by Mr. McCulloch, a Presbyterian minister. It was used as a church on Sundays and a schoolhouse during the week. As we look at its ruins opposite our office, many recollections of school-boy days come back; one generation of boys and girls have gone out from under its roof, and many of them are in the grave. It was once the meeting place of a large and flourishing Sunday school. General Babbitt, the venerable Samuel Newton, Mr. Tunstall, and others, figured successively as Superintendents. We remember one incident which disturbed the peace of the Sunday school; a pretty girl with a slight tinge of negro blood became a member of the school, and attended several times before it was discovered—she was driven out—that gate to heaven was closed against her. Recently a large school of colored children under Miss Nahar have been accustomed to meet in the old church from Sunday to Sunday. It rose during a period of barbarism; it stood through rebellion; its walls were saturated with the religion of slavery; it has witnessed the dawn of freedom; it has perished in a half storm at last; it has made its record above and below; the publican and the sinner, the sincere and the hypocritical, have a share in its ruins.

THE FLOOD.—Misfortunes never come single. The terrific storm of Tuesday night, was followed on Wednesday morning by a heavy rain. The clouds obscured the sun, so that lamps had to be lighted in the houses, in order to distinguish objects; then followed a fall of rain, which soon converted the streets into miniature rivers; after the rain, which lasted about an hour, the river began to rise, and rose, till it ran over its banks, taking away bath houses, and foot bridges, and doing great damage to property along the banks. We have no means of knowing the amount of damage done by the high water, which began to subside about noon.

HOW TO TREAT CUSTOMERS.—A couple of ladies, while in a dry goods store in this city, on Friday, noticed the Express, whereupon a stripping counter jumper, remarked that there was something on foot that would put a stop to the Express. The ladies happened to be loyal, and were considerably alarmed. Young men, who are yet fresh in the way of bloodshed, and Ku Klux Klan intrigues, will do well to cultivate their mother's apron strings, and keep out of bad company.

THEIR WEIGHT.—Leckie is a man of heavy proportions, weighing at least 225 lbs. Moore weighs, 140 lbs.

THEY GATHERED.—Immediately upon the attack made by Leckie, upon Maj. Moore, quite a disinterested crowd gathered around, to see it well done.

GLASS.—There was an enormous demand for glass, on Wednesday morning. Some of the merchants put that article up to a high figure, thus speculating upon the misfortune of the citizens, while others generously sold their entire stock at wholesale cost. We do not believe there is enough glass in the city to repair the broken windows.

WHAT ONE HAILSTONE DID.—A large hail stone drove through the roof of Slocum's Book Store, through the ceiling, and through the heavy plate glass show case, into the fancy articles, where it concluded to melt.

DESTRUCTION IN THE COUNTRY.—The splendid residence at the head of the San Antonio River built by Colonel Charley Anderson before the war, was destroyed by the storm. Also, the City Tannery was blown down, the inmates barely escaping with their lives.

AT A PREMIUM.—The old thick walled, flat cement roofed Mexican houses are at a premium since the storm.

NO DISPATCHES.—The telegraph line is down between Houston and New Orleans.

Over five hundred panes of glass were broken in French's building.
