The Trouble That Occurred at the Corners in the Selection of Delegates to the New York Convention—How the Faithful were Drilled in Their Duty.

(POST OFFICE, CONFEDERATE X ROADS, Wich is in the State of Kentucky) June 16, 1868.

The selection of delegates to the New York Convention has been a bother to us in several ways for several weeks past. No one wanted to go, and it was unanimously decided by all that of the Corners was represented at all, I must be the man. I objected, for there is no profit in such trips. Ordinarily, I could check my expenses. Hotel keepers are but human, and I never yet failed to stick em; but with a Democratic convention in full blast it would be a hopeless enterprise. With ten thousand like me, all a gain on their clock, what would they be for me? With ten thousand hungry, thirsty, empty-poketed souls what good I do? Therefore I felt that I could not go. I wrote to A. J. to know if he would allow per diem, transportation and mileage to delegates, to which he answered:

"Sir—For which candidates do your delegates propose to vote?" This cruel epistle settled me. I couldn't go there pledged to him, because of his election being nominated was Wood because my Post Office? Wood his successor continues me in place, who had his active in support another?

Finally the day for our convention came, and we assembled. Bascom was nominated, but he declined. Deckin's program was offered the honor, and he declined, and so did McPetter, Isacker, Gavitt, Podhammer, and the rest of us. We passed all the first day in trying to get one who would stick, but all in vain. Nine came—we adjourned till nine the next morning, when we resumed our unsuccessful endeavors to persuade each other to go to New York. Another day was thus fruitlessly spent, and still another—the last leaves us no nearer our haven than the first. And so a week passed. We met every morning, coaxed, begged and swore at each other till nine, only to meet and go through the same formula the next day. I felt that, unless something was done, the Corners would go unrepresented.

On the eighth day, at about ten in the morning, Deakin's Pogram's youngest boy, a fair-haired lad of fourteen summers, who resembles the Deakin to a degree quite complimentary to his mother, came in with the New York Day Book, which the Deakin takes but never reads. The book told us that Bascom, who opened it, and read a minute, when his face changed justly. "Hell," he said, "to himself, and then he stood up and said: 'Mr. Chairman,' he said, 'I find this unprofitable session. I would say that I have reconsidered my determination. I will go to New York.'"

The convention was thunderstruck. What did it mean? The Deakin seized the paper, and glancing over its columns, read painfully a minute and said that he was surprised at Mr. Bascom's avowal. "I shall be a delegate myself," he said.

"By this time McPetter said it, and I got it and read this paragraph: 'Let the Western Democracy beware. They must come, on the Fourth, prepared to encounter bribery and corruption. Belmont and the Wall street elite have raised $1,600,000 to be used in the purchase of delegates to defeat Pendleton.'"

The Deakin protested again Bascom's going. "You can't be spared," shrieked he. "Who will run the business in your absence? Is there a man in the Corners you dare trust inside your bar a minute? No, I will go."

"Not so," he yelled McPetter. "I will go as a delegate. I've borne the heat and burden of the day—I was with Fort, and now that there is a change to make within—that is, now that there is a position of profit—which is to say honor, I want it."

Isacker, Gavitt, with a face pale with disappointment, that he hadn't taken it when it was offered him, swore that if the Gavitt family was to be overlooked, why the sooner Democracy was buried the better.

Some here in the course of my reading, I came across an account of the trouble that was perjured in a mythological heaven by some euss who lost in a golden apple, labeled 'to the fairest,' or words to that effect. The announcement that Belmont had a million and a half to invest in delegates was the golden apple which set us in a uproar. Every euss in the convention wanted to be a delegate immediately, and the result was the entire billiard room to blows. I had the magnificent cash in my pocket Bascom with his fingers clutched in the neck-tie of the venerable Pogram; Isacker Gavitt and McPetter were similarly engaged, while I was a doin my level best to restrain Podhammer from massing em. Had not Joe Bigler and Pollock arrived opportunely the entire Democracy of the Corners would have been wiped out on the spot.

It was finally settled by throw'n dice for it, which would be, by the way, to be adopted by all Democratic bodies everywhere. Randall and McCulloch have practised it with distinguished success in making their appointments. Say there are twenty applicants, or, to get nearer the truth, three hundred, for any given place. Very good. The head of the department ascertains first of them all Democrats. Then three hundred clerks are detailed, each clerk representing an applicant, and they throw dice, the lowest retiring every throw, until one is victorious, and the man represented by him gets the place. It saves a vast amount of labor in the examination of certificates, &c.; and besides, it's impartial. All the appointments are now made in that way at Washington.

We adopted this advice, and I was made delegate and Pogram alternate, the agreement being that whatever we got over expenses was to be divided equally. They a holy calm succeeded the storm of passion which had raged. We go, of course, unimpaired, for obvious reasons. If we were instructed where Wood be the object of our going? It is not such that Belmont will go for.

The uncertainty of the result of the convention (I say uncertainty, for who can tell which candidate has the most money?) has occasioned me a vast amount of trouble. I have laboring assiduously to get our people into a frame of mind to be enthusiastic over the nominee, no matter who it is, or what platform he is put on. To bring this about I have been in front of Bascom's every night for a week trainin' em. I ranged them in a row, and, taking my position in front, give the word like a military officer.

"Attendsen!" sez I. "For Chase and Morrissey! Together!"

"For Chase!" but ther they broke down.

"Parson!" sez Deakin Pogram. "I can't. Give me a week or two to practise alone by myself, and possibly I kin make it. The spirit is willin but the flesh is weak."

"It won't do," sez I, sternly. "For Chase and Ameriky for white men!"

"For!"

"For for Chase, Brick Pomeroy and eak suffrage."

"For!"

"For for Chase, A. Johnson and Mayor Mohroe."

"For!"

"For for Chase and Repudiasen."

"Will that be the slogan if Chase is nominated?" asks the Deakin.

"It will down here."

"For!" y-hied they all.

"For for Chase, Fernando Wood, and death to niggers."

"For!"

"For for Chase, Pendleton, and no tax-shen for a unconstitutional debt!"

"For!"

"For for Chase, Hancock, and restoration on our plan."

"For!"

"For for Hendricks, Chase and general amnesty."

"For!"

CARPET BAGGERS.

A Victoria correspondent writing under the above caption, gives some wholesome hints to the asses who are attempting to ridicule immigrants, by classing them as carpet baggers. By enquiring into the personal history of those individuals who are the most active in denouncing Union men, it will be found that they are strangers, and in addition, men who have bad records. Galveston has been particularly cursed with a stock of this class of persons.

Major Perry, who was at one time city marshal of that place; and a pet of the rebels, was a horse thief and swindler. He started to Mexico with a bandit, stole horses, arms, and money on the road; and his party murdered a Mexican near the Rio Grande. Another one who fixed the "Rev." to his name, has since been somewhat prominent in Galveston, was very reckless in his use of property not his own.

The latest rebel importation, and a fit associate of the Judge of the Eastern District, is Col. Byrne, the present United States Marshal at Galveston. Col. Byrne, we remember to our sorrow, was the Commander of the Post of San Antonio, in 1865. His Provost Marshal was Capt. Rockwell; and a favorite spy was a green looking young man by the name of Byrne, and a brother of said commander. The thousands of dollars taken by this headquarters crew from the sporting fraternity, we shall not attempt to trace, as we have as little sympathy for gamblers, as we have for those who seize their ill-gotten gains.

Let Col. Byrne make himself prominently active against reconstruction, we will prepare a list of his transactions here, that will entitle him to the confidence of all good traitors.

FOR SALE.

A large assortment of "Carpet-bags" lately used by the "Carpet-baggers" in the Texas Convention; in view of the fact that the owners thereof have concluded to fight it out on this line, if it takes them all summer, hence they have no further use for them.

Having learned that that kind of merchandise being in great demand by the late rebels—as it is generally understood that they are about to commence traveling to mass congenial climes.

Wardrobes and trunks will be taken in exchange.

The stock on hand may be examined at the capital, Austin Texas.

COPPERHEADS.—Strange, as it may appear, yet it is nevertheless true, that while the north has openly decided that negro suffrage must be granted in the south, to secure it from the rebel rule, the officers at New Orleans are interposing every obstacle to reconstruction on this platform, of all the officers sent south by Johnson to rebelize the southern states, Hancock and Buchanan are the only two who have so far stultified themselves as to aid treason. Even Gen. McDowell in Mississippi has been compelled to punish traitors by removal, and all officers except Poppinjay's or imbecils have acted true to their records.

We are arranging a photograph gallery of Copperheads, and shall place them at Gen. Grant's disposal in March, 1869.

NEW STATE.—Inasmuch as San Antonio is to be the capital of Lincoln, we must brush around and see what prospect we have for building capitol buildings, who is the fortunate individual to have land to give away! We suggest the ground be selected about a mile west of the Court House, and a new ditch cut through from the head of the river. This would place it at a safe distance from the miasmas of the river bottom, and be a healthy situation.

A voice from Carpet-Bagger—What kind of ex-Yankee strains with traitors—Flake's Copperhead, &c., &c.

VICTORIA, TEXAS, July 26th, 1868. Editors San Antonio Express:

I was somewhat surprised, in reading an article in Flake's Bulletin of the 20th, under the head of "McCormick of Brazoria," to find that the Bulletin, which pretends to be a loyal paper, joins in with the dirty Herald of your city, in denouncing all the Union men who have come to the State since the war, as "Carpet-Baggers," "army of Buzzards that are now hovering in the air ready to settle down and feast upon the carcass of the State." One of these "Carpet Baggers" makes haste to let the people know that his objects to being classed with other Union men who have come to the State since the war. We guess Gen. Byrnes would deny the uniform he wore during the war, as he objects now to be classed with his former companion in arms; when a semi-rebel sheet denounces them. The Bulletin should recollect that nearly all of the "Carpet-baggers," as he chooses to call them, came to the State when reconstruction under the Johnson policy was almost a fixed fact, and that they would have stood no chance politically, under that reconstruction. Yet they are denounced continually by a paper claiming to represent all the loyalty, intelligence and decency in the State. The editor of the Bulletin must be very ignorant of the record of most of his "native Texans," or thinks other people are, or he could not parade them so conspicuously—with democrats, or other people.

The records that some native Texans made during the war, they may well be proud of, but A. P. McCormick is not one of them. A secessionist at the beginning, he advocated the rebellion until his sinking fortunes were plain to be seen by every one; and then he leaves the sinking ship and gets aboard the Union craft, and now claims all the loyalty, decency and intelligence aboard. Elected to the Convention almost exclusively by negro votes, because a "Carpet-bagger" would not run, his friends turn now to abusing the men on whose shoulders he got his present position. I say there are Texans whose records they may well be proud of—such men as Gen. Davis and Hon. Wm. M. Yarnell, of Jackson county, and we have no objection to electing such men. In fact, at a republican meeting held here a few days ago, to appoint a delegate to the nominating Convention to be held at Austin, it was resolved that Wm. M. Yarnell was the first choice of the Union men of this county. Give us such a man as Yarnell who was not afraid, during the darkest days of the rebellion, to boldly uphold and advocate the Union cause, and we will be satisfied; but McCormick never will we vote for. Yarnell was appointed U. S. Marshal by Johnson, but when he refused to subscribe to his policy, was ousted, to give room for Byrne, who comes here and now denounces, or "goes back" on the uniform he wore. We will show these men yet what can be done by the—"CARPET BAGGERS."

TELEGRAPHIC

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES.]

NEW ORLEANS, June 29.—Another squad, composed of supposed filibusters, numbering about 85, were captured near Fort Livingston, La.; brought to Fort Jackson, but two among them apparently exercises any authority. The majority were Mexicans. Small luggage loaded with provisions was also captured, but no arms were found except one single Colt's revolver. The prisoners assert they are peaceable citizens.

Louisiana Legislature convened today.

Senate called to order at noon by Lt. Governor Dunn, temporary Secretary was ordered to read Gen. Buchanan's order promulgating Grant's order for the removal of Baker and Voorhies and appointment of Warnouth and Dunn, provisional Governor and Lt. Governor in their stead.

Warrmouth's order convening the Legislature, was read, and the roll called.

From Gen. Buchanan's order announcing names of those elected, thirty-four members answered.

Grant's order to Buchanan, approving the action of the latter regarding municipal affairs, suggesting that only the oath prescribed by new constitution, be taken.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—House Joint resolution extending agricultural college act to Arkansas, was referred to committee on public lands. Cobb introduced the following:

Resolved, that the committee of Ways and Means be instructed to report without unnecessary delay, a bill levying a tax of at least ten per cent on the interest of bonds of the United States, to be assessed and collected annually by the Secretary of the Treasury and such subaltern officers as are charged with the duty of paying interest on the bonded debt of the United States.

Price inquired if that included bonds held in foreign countries. Cobb replied it did, and demanded previous question.

Allison asked if resolution was mandatory.

Speaker replied affirmatively.

House refused to second previous question.

Washburn of Indiana moved to lay the resolution on the table, rejected, yeas 27, nays 68.

Price moved it be referred to Ways and Means committee.

Previous question then being seconded, Butler asked what would be the effect of this vote? Speaker replied, the effect would be to refer resolution, without instructions.

Blaine, is not Ways and Means committee privileged to report any time?

Speaker, it is. Butler, but everybody knows they will not report the resolution back unless they are compelled to do so.

In answer to further inquiries, Speaker explained that as previous question was non operating, if House refused to refer resolution, the question would recur upon its passage. House refused to refer resolution—yeas 16, nays 80.

Question recurred upon agreeing to resolution, passed—yeas 92, nays 54.

Democrats, excepting Sitgreaves, voting aye.

River and Harbor bill resumed. One hundred and fifteen thousand dollars for Tennessee river, adopted.

Eighteen thousand appropriated for experiments in shifting sluces; also, appropriation for surveying Ouachita and White rivers, Arkansas.

Bill concluded, but without any definite action. Adjourned.

Senate—Bill providing where any State in arrears for interest or bonds held in trust, by Federal Government, shall withhold money due said State, passed.

Civil appropriation bill resumed.

Night session ordered recess.

President's family departed for Summer, in Tennessee.

General Court Marshal ordered at Fort Monroe, July first.

Breckenridge is at Toronto, Canada, where he will remain some time.

Tribune says editorially, alluding to Government order placing recently elected officials in office in Louisiana, that Gen. Grant will to day issue an order of the same nature, applicable to the State of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Senate confirmed Admiral Dahlgren Chief of ordnance bureau.

Deficiency bill reported, in House to day appropriation five hundred and twenty thousand dollars for reconstruction purposes.

Great many delegates to Democratic Convention here, many of whom visited the President.

NEW ORLEANS, June 29.—The constitution provides that an oath be required of newly elected officers. Lt. Governor Dunn announced to the Senate that he was not prepared to comply with Gen. Grant's suggestion, but would require testimony to be taken. Conservatives appealed; argued that presiding officer had no authority to prescribe any oath whatever, that the Legislature convened under new constitution, and only what is therein specified could be demanded; it was moved that it be referred to Commanding General Dunn ruled that until members had qualified, no appeal could be taken.

A motion was offered and ordered, roll called, members who could do so, came forward to take test oath as their names were called. Conservative members entered protest and refused to take the oath, several asserting their ability to do so, but denying right to demand it, 19 (a quorum) took test oath after which constitutional oath was administered. Committee on credentials of elections was appointed, when several contests for seats occurred. Adjourned till to-morrow.

Soon after adjournment, a large number crowded around the presiding officer to offer congratulations, four of the Senators are full negroes, several mixed blood, all of whom are radicals.

House called to order by Batchelder, of Gen. Buchanan's Staff, who called the roll. R. H. Isabelle, (colored) elected temporary Chairman, who took test oath; on taking his seat the Speaker announced in reply to a protest that no member who could not take the test oath, could take his seat, 53 (a quorum) took required oath, a majority of the conservatives withdrawing. Committee on elections appointed. Adjourned till noon, to-morrow.

McNalle, Republican entered protest against recognition of authority of Gen. Buchanan to interfere in organization of the House. He concluded his remarks as follows: and when this House is once organized, then I desire to announce to Col. Batchelder and to Gen. Buchanan, Commanding, and to the U. S. Army at large, if necessary, that all interference on the part of the army must cease." The proportion of negroes in the House is greater than in the Senate.

THE CONVENTION.

TWENTY-SECOND DAY.

CAPITOL, AUSTIN, TEXAS, June 25, 1868.

Convention met pursuant to adjournment; roll called, quorum present; prayer by the Chaplain; journal of yesterday read and adopted.

Mr. Phillips of Wharton, from the committee on commerce and manufactures, made the following report:

COMMITTEE ROOM, June 24, 1868.

To the Hon. E. J. Davis, President of the Convention.

Sir—The committee on commerce and manufactures, to whom was referred the preamble and resolution, requesting the committee to take some action to encourage manufactures in the State of Texas, have had the same under consideration, and they unanimously direct me to report to the convention in favor of the adoption of the resolution.

Respectfully submitted,

W. S. PHILLIPS,

Chairman.

Mr. Jordan introduced the following:

Resolved, that we, the people of Texas, by our delegates in convention assembled, do, in our independence, prosperity and high position in the family of nations, recognize the efficiency of Divine Providence. Therefore

Resolved, That we regard it as our first duty in framing the organic law of the State, to acknowledge our faith in our Living and True God, and in the Lord Jesus Christ, His Son, and in the Holy Bible as a Divine revelation and as containing the true principles of all just government. Therefore,

Be it declared by this convention, That no law shall ever be enacted by the authority of the constitution of the State of Texas, which may in any way contravene the plain teachings of the Holy Scriptures.

On motion, the resolution was referred to the committee on education.

Mr. Phillips of Wharton introduced the following declaration:

A DECLARATION.
Be it declared by the people of Texas in convention assembled, That in all actions, the time between the 2d of March, 1861, and the date of the recognition by the Congress of the United States of the existence of a loyal State government in Texas, shall not be computed in the application of any statute of limitation, and that the liability of drawers of bills of exchange, and of endorsers of negotiable instruments of every description, shall not be discharged by any lapse of time between said dates, or by the failure of the holder to put such paper to protest or in suit during the period between said dates.

On motion, the declaration was referred to the committee on general provisions.

Mr. Fayle introduced the following declaration, to be inserted in the bill of rights:

A well regulated militia being necessary to the safety of a free State, every citizen shall have the right to keep and bear arms for the common defence. Nevertheless, this article shall not be construed as giving any countenance to the evil practice of carrying private or concealed weapons about the person; but the legislatures and municipal authorities within this State are fully authorized to make such laws and ordinances as shall tend to abolish a practice so prolific of strife and bloodshed.

On motion, the declaration was referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. Fayle introduced the following declaration:

It being the object of all true government to give the largest measure of individual liberty and personal right compatible with the general good of society and the safety and protection of all; therefore,
Be it resolved, 1st, That no individual or class of society shall ever hereafter be debarred from the rights, privileges and immunities common to all citizens, and especially those of suffrage and holding office, except aliens, idiots, or lunatics, and criminals.

2d. That all disabilities growing out of a participation in the late rebellion, shall be entirely removed in the year of our Lord 1860.

On motion, the declaration was referred to the committee on general provisions.

Mr. Armstrong of Lamar, offered the following resolution:
Resolved by the people in convention assembled, that the committee on printing be instructed to contract for and have all matter printed required by this convention, and all resolutions and declarations shall be printed after the same is engrossed, and laid upon each member's table.

Mr. Armstrong of Lamar moved that the rules be suspended to take up resolution.

Rules suspended.

Mr. Burnett offered the following amendment:
Resolved, That hereafter all contracts of printing shall be made by the committee on printing, and that whenever any printing be ordered by the convention, that the committee on printing shall have the same done.

The question recurring upon the adoption of the amendment.

It was lost.

The question recurring upon the adoption of the original resolution.

It was adopted.

Mr. Monroe offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That freedom of speech being one of the essential attributes of freemen, that it shall be made a penal offence to disturb any religious or political meeting held anywhere within the limits of the State of Texas, either by threats, insults or the exhibition of deadly weapons, so as to disturb the deliberations of any such religious or political meeting, held anywhere within the limits of the State of Texas, either by threats, insults, or the exhibition of deadly weapons, so as to disturb the deliberations of any such religious or political assemblies.

On motion, the resolution was referred to the committee on political or legislative.

The President submitted a communication from his Excellency, Gov. E. M. Pease, recommending the purchase of 3500 copies of Paschal's Digest of the Laws of Texas.

On motion, it was referred to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Slaughter moved that Mr. Whitmore be excused from attending the sitting of the convention to-day.

Leave granted.

Mr. Patten moved to take up the unfinished business upon the President's table.

Carried.
The President announced the first business in order was upon the final passage of a resolution, appropriating $15,000 for the payment of the officers appointed by Provisional Gov. A. J. Hamilton. The question being upon its third reading, it was read a third time and passed.

The next business in order was upon the report of the committee on contingent expenses, recommending the passage of the resolution appropriating $200 to frame the portrait of Gen. Sam Houston.

Mr. Monroe offered the following amendment:

Amend so as to read "Father of Texas and American statesman."

Mr. Flanigan moved the previous question, seconded by the required number.

The question being "shall the main be now put?"

The main question was ordered.

The question recurring upon the adoption of the resolution, it was read a second time and ordered to be engrossed.

McCormick moved a further suspension of the rules to put the resolution upon its third reading.

Rules suspended.

Resolution read a third time and passed.

Mr. Pedigo moved that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole upon the report of the committee upon federal relations.

Carried.

Mr. Armstrong, of Lamar, in the chair.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

Leave granted.

On motion, the convention adjourned till to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.
