PUBLIC NOTICE.
Whereas, certain evil minded persons have circulated the rumor that some time since I appropriated a sum of money for my use, to which I had no right. Now I hereby declare that the reporters of this are infamous slanders and liars, and I offer a reward of Divine Compassion.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.
Long since, a dream of heaven I had,
And still the vision haunts me oft;
I see the saints in white robes clad,
The martyrs with their palms aloft;
But hearing still, in middle song,
The ceaseless dissonance of wrong;
And shrinking, with hid face, from the strain
—Of sad, beseeching eyes, full of remorse and pain.
The glad song falters to a wail
The harp sinks to low lament; Before the still unlifted veil I see the crowned foreheads bent, Making more sweet the heavenly air, With breathings or unseal prayer;
And a voice saith: "O City which is pain O Love that weeps, fill up my sufferings which remain!"
Shall souls redeemed by me refuse To share my sorrow in their turn?
O, sin-forgiven, my gift abuse Of peace with selfish unconcern?
Hills swiftly ease no pitying care?
'Tis faith no work, and love no prayer?
While sin remains, and so is in darkness disent,
Can heaven its life be heaven, and look unmoved on hell?
Then through the Gates of Pain, I dream,
A wind of heaven blows coolly; Fainter the awful discords seem.
The smoke of torment grows more thin Tears quench the burning soil, and thence Spring sweet, pale flowers of penitence; And though the dreary realms of man's despair, Star crowned an angel walks, and lo! God's hope is there!
Is it a dream? Is heaven so high That pity cannot breathe its air;
Its happy eyes forever dry, Its holy lips without a prayer?
My God! my God! if thither led By thy free grace unmerited, No crown nor palm be mine, but let me keep
A heart that still can feel, and eyes that still can weep.

The Holy Sepulchre.
The attention of the Christian world is directed at the present time with deep interest to the excavations which are going on in Jerusalem, with a view to determine the long mooted questions concerning some of the more important of its venerated localities, such as the Holy Sepulchre, Mt. Calvary, and the Temple of Solomon. We frequently read notices among the foreign news respecting the progress of these excavations. These brief items we always read with a thrill of intense delight.
For we resided nine days in Jerusalem, when we were passing through Palestine, and the name of the Holy City never fails to bring vividly to our remembrance the time when we walked about Zion, and marked her bulwarks, and counted the towers thereof.
One of the main objects contemplated by the excavations which are going on at Jerusalem at the present time, is the determination of the site of the Holy Sepulchre—the Saviour's tomb, where his body lay between his burial and his resurrection. This, as all our readers know, is a subject on which scores of volumes have been written, and it is still an open question. Most Protestant biblical scholars, however, are decided in their belief that the Holy Sepulchre was nearly a mile to the northwest of the site which is now claimed to have been the Saviour's tomb, where he lay when he was hidden by the power of death. They ground their belief principally on the fact that the reputed locality of the Saviour's burial-place is in the heart of modern Jerusalem, which contains a population only of twenty thousand inhabitants, whereas the ancient city must have had a population amounting at least to one hundred thousand. Now as the tomb of Christ was outside of the walls of the Jerusalem of olden times, and the reputed sepulchre of Christ is in the midst of the modern city, hence; it follows that the place now claimed as the scene of the Saviour's triumph over the power of death cannot have been the locality where that stupendous event occurred.
For it would leave the limits of the ancient city too small for the population it contained.
The solution of this vexed question, however, depends entirely on the location of the western wall of the ancient city, which Josephus tells us, ran from the tower of Hippicus now standing, on the south, to the Damascus gate on the north. This wall is, at the present time, buried thirty or forty feet beneath the debris of the ruins that have collected on it in the course of eighteen hundred years. If, when that wall is laid bare by the excavations that are now going forward in Jerusalem the Holy Sepulchre is found on the east side of it, then beyond all doubt, it is not the place where the body of Christ was buried.
For, according to the express statement of the gospel narrative, that locality was outside of the walls of the city. It is on the eastern side of the city.

have been, but not necessarily was, "the sepulchre hewn in stone wherein never man before was laid," until it received the crucified body of Christ.

Cut, whatever may be the final issue of this question, the Holy Sepulchre will ever remain one of the most interesting spots on the face of the earth.
For ages, it was regarded by the whole Christian world with a veneration amounting to idolatry. For more than three hundred years, Europe poured the strength of its chivalry into the heart of Syria, to rescue it from the grasp of the infidels, and shed rivers of blood to accomplish that object. Millions have gone from the ends of the earth, and encountered death in a thousand forms, to let their eyes rest, as they supposed, upon the place where the Saviour was held by the dominion of death between his burial and resurrection, now, as centuries ago, every year, a great multitude of pilgrims from the east and west, from the north and south, cross continents and seas, to look upon the little bit of enclosed rock where the Redeemer of our race burst the cerements of the tomb, and "led the tyrant death in chains." It is still a mighty power in the world, inasmuch as the late Czarist war with Russia on the one side, and France and Turkey arrayed on the other, sprang from the quarrel between the Latin and Greek custodians of the Holy Sepulchre, as to which of those denominations should have the honor of repairing the old, time-worn edifice which shelters it from the violence of the elements.—Buffalo Christian Advocate.

SLAVE TRADE.—The Natal (South Africa) Mercury gives a horrible account of a slave trade carried on by the Boers of the Transvaal Republic. The Boers make expeditions against the native tribes, kill the adults, and carry off the children into slavery. The Rev.
Mr. Ludorf, and old Dutch minister, stated in a public meeting of the Boers that on one occasion, near Zoutspanberg, a number of native children too young to be removed were covered with long grass and buried alive, and so one contradicted him. The London Spectator says: "The British Government is determined to protect the Bastos against these raids, and the Boers have sent envoys to Europe to protect them against its conduct, and procure aid for the Republic. They ought to obtain a heavy reparation from the gentlemen who adhere to the South, and subscribe to the Eyre Defense Fund."

Copenhagen, the capital of Denmark, possesses, it is said, the best museum of northern antiquities in Europe. In it are to be seen, first, the rude instruments of the earlier industry, when man contented himself with the sharp instruments made from bone and flint, this period being classified as the age of stone; another age, that of bronze, next comes; then follows, with approxi-mative dates, the age of iron, running through different periods, the first epoch beginning about 250, to continue toward the year 1030; then comes the middle age, this mediæval period beginning about 1300 and running along till the Reformation, 1836, is reached. The museum finishes its wonderful treasures with the luxuries of modern times; of the Renaissance period, coming down to the year 1660.

"Is a man and his wife both one?" asked the wife of a certain gentleman, in a state of stupefaction as she was hoking his aching head in both her hands.
"Yes, I suppose so," was the reply.
"Well, then," she said, "I came home drunk last night, and ought to be ashamed of myself."
This back-handed rebuke from a long-suffering and loving wife effectually cured him of his drinking propensities.

The young man who offered for publication a poem commencing with the following stanza should be informed that he renders himself liable to prosecution for legal distillation:
"Oh, come, dearest, come, for love's ecstasies wine Bubbles up from my soul to overflow into thine.
And no succulent grape which the Rhine sophists kiss Impartions such dulcet elixir as this."
"Then fly, and your passionate soul shall be filled
With this delicate juice from my spirit distilled.
You may drink till the fountains of my being are dry.
Till you reel with delight! Oh, then—fly to me—fly!"

SUNDAY, SEPT. 6, 1868.

Nominees of the National Republican Convention at Chicago, May 21, '68.

For President. U. S. GRANT. For Vice-President. Schuyler Colfax.

COLORED DEMOCRATS.

The new feature assumed by the Democratic party is very interesting. In one sense it is a complete acceptance of the situation, at the same time it surpasses all the past demagoguery of that mother of demagogues. We allude to the Southern feature of the Democratic party; its struggle to secure the negro vote.

A little over a year ago the cry went up all over the South of "your best friends are your old masters;"—it died out and was followed by Ku-Klux murders, by persecutions and abuses from the "b at friends;" this change was wrought because it became evident that the colored man did not see his old enslaver as his "best friend."

The reconstruction elections past over, in which the colored men developed a strange unanimity in favor of Republicanism. But now comes a national contest, and the old political harlot seeks the friendship of the colored man. Wherever the Republican party has halted the Democratic party has taken an advance step; not only have all the barriers of prejudice been trampled under foot, but they have gone beyond and formed associations which give preference to the colored Democrat over the white Republican in every relation of life—in business and in social capacity. Democratic labor clubs have picked up many thousands of colored men in Louisiana and other Southern States. The laboring white man is almost entirely ignored in the Democratic hurry to entrap the colored voters of the South. While at the North the Democracy howls fiercely in the ears of the laboring whites the terrible words, "negro equality," at the South they charm their victims with "negro supremacy is true Democracy."

Texas has few colored Democrats, but the extraordinary tactics of that old sinful party, no doubt, will secure some colored followers. We would be almost disappointed if it were not so; we have contended and still contend that colored men are like all others—and it is impossible to produce a race of people in which there would not be some silly enough, had enough, mean enough, to belong to the vilest party that ever cursed a republic—the Democratic. But we call upon our Northern friends to note the Southern tactics of the Democrats.

What is it!

Whenever a prominent man like Gen. Rosecrans, who pretends to represent the President semi-officially, sees the arch traitor of the county for terms, he goes beyond magnanimity, he acts upon the principle of the man who says "never mind our friends, they are safe, let us secure our enemies," and then proceed to give the horses and mules of his friends, to his enemies as a pacification. Our enemies will not be pacified until they have our horses, our houses, our flag, and our government. Seymour and Blair are working to give all these to Lee and Hampton. These wily politicians are more potent than Rosecrans controls of the army. Let the General go where his disaffection leads him, to the copperhead party. He can take but few with him.

Rosecrans vs. Lee.

The whimpering, whining, imbecil letter of Rosecrans to Lee, shows that when General Grant set Rosecrans aside, after his blunder at Iuka and almost failure at Corinth, Miss., the General of the Armies was inspired with a keen foresight. God will certainly strike the leaders of this nation dead if they attempt to pursue such a sycophantic policy.

The rebellion is dead; if it has a soul, there are sufficient loyalists South, and white, to bury it deep, deep, and would rather die than see it rise again.

ten thousand deaths on the battle-field than exist another twelve months as they have the last thirty-six.

Turn loose the dogs of war; death to compromisers. Whenever liberty is compelled to compromise with its murderers, it becomes a stench in the nostrils of freemen.

Letter from Colonel Baker, of Lockhart.

Editors of the San Antonio Express:

A few days since I noticed in the Daily Austin Republican of the 14th ultimo, a card, signed by John Mackey, delegate to the Republican State Convention from Caldwell.

Embodied in this card is a letter to Mr. John Mackey, dated Brenham, Texas, August 11, over the signature of one George H. Webber, in which I am maliciously and falsely assailed.

Were the people of this community acquainted with Webber, it would be unnecessary for me to notice his communication; but as they are not, and therefore might place some credence in his statements, it becomes my duty to draw the curtain that the public may catch a glimpse of one of the most worthless vagabonds that has ever disgraced the human form divine.

This fellow Webber first made his appearance in this place on the occasion of a Union meeting, called for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, convened at Austin on the 12th of August. About a week previous to this, Webber made his escape from the police of San Antonio. A notice of the arrest of this scoundrel, and the lawyer-like manner in which he eluded the penalty of his gross violation of law, was published in THE EXPRESS at the time.

Fresh from the scenes of his late revelry, he came direct to Lockhart, where he noted as the champion of Mr. Mackey, assisting the distinguished (?) member from Caldwell in the elucidation of his new-born anti-ab initio views which he had recently imbibed at the Capital under the leadership of the great apostle of that faith.

Webber first attempted to address our citizens at the Barbecue grounds in the morning; but he had not spoken long & he was hissed down by the audience, which was altogether unprepared to listen to his anti-ab initio heresies. After dinner he requested to be introduced to me, and wished me, as President of the meeting, to allow him to make some explanations to the audience, assigning as a reason for the second intrusion, that he believed he was not understood in the morning. I gave him permission to speak. He did not proceed but a few moments till he was again hissed down, thus proving that our people neither appreciated this Mackey champion, nor endorsed his absurdities.

In his letter, the itinerant scape-goat says he "pointed out some of my shortcomings to the colored men, but did not remain long enough to do any good." Here, as in San Antonio, his stay was brief, and his exodus sudden; had he remained another day he would have been honored with a coat of tar and feathers.

As additional evidence to the character of Webber, I refer the public to Mr. Alexander Cowan, Hotel-keeper at this place, who informs me that he left his house between supper and breakfast without settling his bill. I might also refer to Jeff. Storey, Esq., of this place, who found this fellow Webber in his office under, to say the least, suspicious circumstances.

Of this man Webber I shall not again speak, nor will I notice him in any way, unless I happen to come across him. I am not in the habit of noticing men of his stripe.

As to Mr. Mackey and his anti-ab initio views, I leave to be settled by him and his constituency. It is said that a drowning man will catch at straws. Mr. Mackey no doubt feels the cold waters of political death slowly closing over him; but his catch at such straws as Webber will not save him; nor yet can the stronger arm of the Doctor, though he may write for him, keep him afloat. No; he must go, whether the sentiment of his constituency is fast hating him, to the shades of private life.

THOMAS H. BAKER.

False.

Our Associated Press despatches of the 5th instant gives a sensation paragraph under the "corruption and bribery" trial.

Mr. R. J. J. and Mr. Harlan are above suspicion. The man Binckley, who makes the affidavit, is a puppet and tool of Andrew Johnson.

The charges are without foundation, preferred to frighten honest men from the highest office in the country.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—A bill passed both branches of the Legislature authorizing the city government of New Orleans to borrow three million dollars for the current expenses of the city. Officials in market this morning are endeavoring to negotiate a loan.

House yesterday instructed the Judiciary committee to report a bill providing for the appointing of auctioneers in the city of New Orleans, to be confirmed by the Senate; also to prescribe an oath to be taken.

The Democratic State Central Committee calls for a State convention on the 30th inst., for nominating candidates to Congress and Electors and alternates, in place of those who may be found ineligible under the fourteenth amendment.

WASHINGTON, September 4.—United States Marshal Morewether telegraphs that his deputies are prevented from serving processes in Larnie, Nelson and Marion counties, Ky., he states his posse was captured, taken to a mill, robbed of their papers and destroyed them, and they escaped with their lives only, because they were special, not regular officers, they were taken to the nearest depot and warned not to return.

Merewether states that Thomas has no mounted troops, and as processes must be served within two weeks, to make them returnable at October term, he asks immediate instructions. The matter was referred to the Secretary of War, who replies, both Marshal and Gen. Thomas must be governed by the Attorney General's opinion to its Marshal of Florida.

R. J. J. and McCulloch have almost daily conferences regarding Revenue supervisors, without any apparent approach to solution.

Schenck and Morgan will not meet to determine September session to 17th or 18th.

Representative Kellogg, of Alabama, opposes session, because, even if bill arming the militia could pass over veto, arms could not be distributed before the election; he apprehends a session would do more harm than good.

The general impression is there will be no session.

Commissioner R. J. J. replying to a tobacco manufacturer says, tobacco tax will be assessed and collected as heretofore until stamps are furnished.

OMAHA, Sept. 4.—There is reported a large body of Indians moving north, to strike the Pacific Railroad, between North Platte and Julesburg.

DENVER CITY, September 4.—Indians killed, three, wounded one, near Colorado city yesterday.

LONDON, September 4.—Reverdy Johnson made his first speech at Sheffield, Cutlers annual feast, saying he came to this country as messenger of peace.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 4.—The Cattle plague appeared at Cuyahoga, Portage counties, many cattle died, much alarm.

Rosecrans letter to Gen. Lee commences full of solicitude for the future of our country. I come with my heart in my hand, to learn the condition, wishes and intention of the people of the Southern States, especially to ascertain the sentiments of that body of brave, energetic and self-sacrificing men, who after sustaining the Confederacy for four years, laid down their arms and swore allegiance to the United States; whose trusted and beloved leader you have been. The letter is quite long. Gen. Lee's answer is also long, and at the late hour at which it is received here, forbids telegraphing it in full. It would be protracted to attempt a condensation of Gen. Lee's noble letter.

After General Lee's signature, follows thirty leading Southern names.

LONDON, September 5.—The Bermuda safely launched. The potatoe riot at Cork dispersed at the point of the bayonette. Cholera killed the heir to the Persian throne.

Several incendiary fires in Cork, loss quite heavy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Secretary of War is perplexed by conflicting Legislation, has asked the Attorney General's advice on paying Southern claims on file in War Office, growing out of the war, they aggregate from twenty to thirty millions.

Key-West, Sept. 5.—Habeas Corpus for Mudd Arnold and Spangler refused.

New York, September 5.—The Ocean Queen brings three hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars in treasure. A severe earthquake is reported in Peru, damage supposed to be great. Excessive rains in Chili, much damage done, many lives lost.
