National Colored Men's Convention—Adjournment Sine Die.

Address to the Colored Citizens of the United States.

ELLOW CITIZENS: We your representatives assembled in national convention, having attended to the business which you intrusted to us, and which we respectfully beg leave, at the conclusion of our labors, to address you briefly, yet earnestly in reference to the condition which we now occupy here in the land of our nativity, and to the duties and responsibilities which are in consequence devolved upon us, in order that we may attain to that equal station in the eye of the law with our fellow citizens, which we of right aspire to; and which we of right ought to enjoy.

At the outset of our address we would devoutly call upon you to join with us in thanks to Him in whose hand is the destinies of all his creatures, that through the prayers of His providence, we speak to you under far different circumstances from those in which you have been addressed by your assembled representatives at other periods of our history. Once you were called upon to labor for the overthrow of a gigantic system of oppression, which held in its enslaving grasp more than three millions of our kindred, and for the recognition of our equal claims to citizenship in these United States of America. Now we are here to exchange congratulations with you, that throughout the broad domain of our beloved country, from the St. John's river upon the north to the Rio Grande, and from the Atlantic border to the Pacific coast, the grand anthem of liberty is intoned with a harmony unbroken by the discord which would be caused by the willing consent of one unhappy slave. We can do so, too, with a consciousness that we are not looked upon now, as we were then, in the light of quasi aliens; for the American people have spoken through their representatives in Congress, and enacted that "all persons born in the United States, and not subject to any foreign power, including Indians not taxed, are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States." Thus, fellow-citizens, we have reason to rejoice in the fact that the past has had its triumphs; but our condition in the present, together with the duties and responsibilities which it enforces upon us, demands our attention, and of that condition, of those duties and responsibilities, we would now speak.

As to our condition, we need not dwell long upon that, for you understand fully the necessity which prompted you to send us to meet together in convention. You know that our citizenship, recognized as it has been by statutory provision, has not secured for us throughout the different States of this Union those franchises and immunities which are the pride and boast of our white fellow-citizens. Rank one of you, in his own individual capacity, is painfully alive to the grievance (as various in their character as the localities themselves) which he is called upon to endure. But, let us not be disheartened, in view of these grievances. Let us remember that

Mute.
The camel labor, 'neath the heavy load,
And the wolf died in silence. Not bestowed
In vain let such examples be. If they,
Things of ignoble, or of savage mold,
Endure and shriek not, we of nobler clay
Should temper it to bear. It is but for a day.

Let us gird ourselves up manfully, and contend for the removal of those grievances, in the firm and confident trust that the same God who has conferred blessings upon us in the past will be equally propitious to us in the future; and that, as He raised up for us these hosts of sympathizing friends, to follow the leadership of a Garrison, a Gerritt Smith and an Abraham Lincoln, so He will accord to us such friends, so largely increased in number, and bearing so many illustrious names that to single out any two or three from that sparkling galaxy would seem invidious. Suffice it that the mere mention of those honored names serves to thrill us now to the very core, and that they shall be cherished enduringly in our hearts, to be handed down to the grateful remembrance of our latest posterity. God grant that each one of the possessors of those names may long be spared to us, and that the day may be far, far distant when we shall be called upon to lay him away, with tender hands, and with tearful eyes, by the side of his illustrious compeer, the ever to be lamented Thaddeus Stevens!

But, fellow-citizens, let us not forget, in our grateful recognition of those essential services for our benefit and behalf, that the all-loving Father allows them to us only upon the condition that we labor earnestly and untiringly in our own behalf. He may, indeed, send His Messiah, as "the way, the truth, and the life;" but every day He requires us "to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling." Still, His promise, that cannot be abrogated, and assured beyond a doubt is that guardian of success which awards us if we only toil faithfully unto the end. Then let us not be found wanting in this crisis of our fate; but let us firmly and unflinchingly address ourselves to the duties of the hour.

In our present condition we are an unjustly degraded people; for we are stripped, more or less, in every State in this Union, of privileges and franchises which are fully enjoyed by every class of our white fellow-citizens. This ostracism of us, without any crime upon our part, urgently demands redress. And for this redress, and in order to secure our immunity against any future encroachment upon our interests, the current of all political experience points to one measure; and that is, to render the right of suffrage and of eligibility, as an universal as citizenship itself. We all understand fully the importance of this right of suffrage; we know that it is the dearest treasure in the gift of any government—the strongest weapon in the possession of the subject, repelling the approaches of despotism, and guaranteeing the possession of all other franchises—a weapon that, in the expressive language of Whittier—

"Executes a freeman's will,
As lightning doth the will of God."

Now, to deny such a right to one class of citizens while it is accorded to another, without a good reason for such a discrimination, is manifestly unjust and anti-republican. Let us, then, in the premises, appeal to Congress, reminding it that the Federal Constitution, in article four, section four, provides that "the United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government." Let us urge upon that body and upon the great mass of the American people whom it represents, that, in settling the definition of this epithet, "republican," we are not enticed, either by ancient or modern assumption, of its "for the purpose of denigrating manifest tyrannies, from interpreting it in the light derived from the Declaration of Independence—that Magna Charter of our liberties—that setting aside Grecian and Roman precedents, as well as those of medieval Europe and of the fathers of our own government, blinded, as the latter were, by a spirit of compromise, or hampered by evils which they conscientiously believed to be apocryphal, we should determine and insist upon it that a "republican form of government" is one deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed—one in which taxation is the correlative of the right to be represented thereon. Let us appeal to them to consider that most of our State governments are mere autocracies, the most intolerable, because by them the bulwark of (so-called) republican nobility are conferred upon the many while they are withheld from the few. And, in making this appeal, let us insist, as we rightfully can do, upon our citizenship and upon the proofs of determined manhood and loyalty manifested by colored men at different periods of our national history, and especially during the late unhappy rebellion. If the black soldiers' prowess at Red Bank, of revolutionary fame, and at New Orleans during the war of 1812, is forgotten, surely his gallant bearing at Fort Pillow and before Petersburg still dwells in the memory of the country, for which he gave the highest manifestations of his love, and which he hopes will yet prove grateful for his devotion and self-sacrifice.

We have, therefore, fellow-citizens, to have invited your attention to the importance of education, and of establishing a supporting schools and colleges among us, and also to have pressed upon your consideration the necessity of cultivating habits of industry, and frugality of engaging in agricultural, manufacturing, and mechanical pursuits, and economizing and saving our earnings, and of becoming proprietors of the land. But these topics have been so eloquently treated by the Rev. Bishop Daniel A. Payne, in his letter to this convention, that we cheerfully refrain from saying anything further thereon, and content ourselves by referring you to that able production, as published in the minutes of this convention.

And we shall now conclude by returning with a Cato-like persistence to the all-important subject of universal suffrage, and reiterating our entreaties that each and every one of you, fellow-citizens, make that matter one of personal moment, and never cease in his endeavors, by petitions and memorials to Congress, to secure its triumph until that triumph is an accomplished fact. Then, indeed, shall we confidently trust in the prospects of a bright and glorious future for our country. Then will she, proud of the fealty and devoted sike of her white and of her black children, sit honored among the nations. Then will her renown, acquired by martial exploits, by her progressive industrial enterprises, by the brilliant achievements of her armies and navies, by her successful and increased competition in every department of literature, science, and art, be eclipsed by her prouder glory, resulting that through all her widely extended confines the right of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness are secured to each and all of her citizens of whatever condition or hue.

A Generous Voice from the East (From the Tyler National Index.) West Texas.

Just as we were going to press we received a copy of the "Constitution of West Texas," and consequently we have no time to give it even a general examination; but so far as noticed, we are pleased with the document. We know the people of "West Texas" are loyal to the Government, and are prepared to enter the Union in the true spirit of devotion to free government, ready and anxious to mete out "equal and exact justice to all." We do most earnestly hope the Congress of the United States will give "West Texas" a hearty welcome as another bright star in the national galaxy. We are thoroughly convinced that it is the will of the loyal people of Texas that West Texas should be admitted at once under the constitution of her own choice. The slanderous, indecent, contemptible, disloyal articles published by the "Austin-sing" of the defunct Hancock, Haynes, Evans and Caldwell style of Republicans, through their official organ, the Austin Republican, to the contrary notwithstanding. The population of "West Texas" is made up of sturdy German settlers, men noted for their honesty, industry, economy, intelligence and enterprise; and last but not least, for loyalty to the Union and their fidelity to the principles of the republican party. There is no good reason why West Texas shall be longer compelled to remain "out in the cold" because the State at large is disloyal, nor are we disposed to have her longer remain subject to military government because the remainder of the State of necessity must. But we place our desire for her success on yet higher grounds—the future welfare and prosperity of the country, her natural boundaries, soil, climate, and resources, which are suited to a class of legislation that is peculiar alone to that part of Texas; and we venture the assertion that no more real talent can be found in any Southern State of no greater population. West Texas may well be proud of her statesmen, of whom she has many; Gen. Davis, President of the Texas Convention, being a noble hearted, patriotic, whole-souled gentleman, as well as an able statesman. More than this, he has never deserted the flag of his country. Whilst such mean, contemptible wretches as compose the Austin ring, have pursued a trembling, vacillating course, Gen. Davis has pursued the even tenor of his way, without waiting to know whether his course met the approbation or condemnation of "the powers that be." A genuine republican, no man is so mean as to charge Gen. Davis with duplicity or dishonesty of purpose; whilst Mr. Degener is perhaps the ablest statistico-politician in Texas.

We are sorry that we have no time to say more, but must close for the present.

A curious matrimonial affair has just transpired in Brooklyn, New York; the parties are not in high life nor known to fame, but their history is nevertheless interesting. Ten years ago, a couple, recently married, moved from Boston to the City of Churches, where the husband set up in business, and prospered. His business at his office was better than at home, for his married life was unhappy, and about five years ago the parties managed to secure a divorce. They gradually lost trace of each other, and during the ten-year each of them married, and each to a person who had been divorced. The two husbands were thrown together, without knowing their real relations to each other, and a few weeks ago the one who had married the divorced woman, invited the other home to dinner. Imagine the embarrassment when the happy husband introduced his wife to his friend. Both were too well bred to have a scene, and so the dinner passed off somewhat frigidly, but with no actual unpleasantness.

The recipient of the dining court-ey invited the other to go home with him soon after and partake of a family dinner, little thinking, as it happened, that he was to return the compliment in every particular. It turned out that each had married the divorced spouse of the other, and it was more satisfactory to them to know that each was entirely pleased with the arrangement. So much for the intricacies of matrimony. I dare say there are many a couple or many a pair of couples that would be greatly benefited by just such a change.

TEXAS ITEMS.

On last Thursday evening, says the Columbus Times, Mr. E. Besch shot Mr. Davis, the ball taking effect in the region of the temple, and ranging backward and upward, lodging in the scalp, without doing any particular injury. We know nothing of the cause of the shooting but presume the civil authorities will investigate the matter.

A little fellow known as "Man-Boy," was killed near Daingerfield on the 10th ult. His murderer was arrested and brought to Jefferson. The Times knows nothing of the particulars.

Colonel Loughery writes us from Marshall, under date of the 18th, as follows: "There was a man killed this evening, about five miles from Marshall by a man who said he was Cullen Baker. The murderer was pursued, but has not as yet been arrested. The people here are greatly incensed at this murder. No further particulars."

Joe Lee, a notorious scoundrel, was hung a few miles above this city on Monday last. Joe had stolen a mule and some eighty dollars in money from men out east, who followed him to this place, and by slipping an X into the hands of our efficient police succeeded in laying hands on the gentleman and taking him in jail for safe keeping overnight. He was taken out the next day for the purpose of taking him back to the county whence he had fled. We learn that a day or two after the parties had pursued their journey Joe was found swinging to a post on a limb at the end of a rope.—Bryant News Letter.

HORRID MURDER OF A LADY.
Mrs. Sallie Rouch, widow of the late Bracy Rouch, residing near Crump's Ferry, on the Brazos river, in Austin County, was killed the night of the 2d inst., while at the supper table, a child in her arms, by an unknown assassin, who shot her through the window with a shot gun—sixteen buckshot taking effect in her breast and killing her instantly. Capt. J. C. Wallis, of our city, a relative of the lady, received the information above given, last night, by letter from Dr. J. W. Lockhart, of Chappell Hill, also a relative. Mr. Rouch had resided in Texas five or six years, and was a most accomplished and estimable Southern born lady, who was not known to have an enemy. No clue is given as yet and the murderer is unknown.—Galveston News.

MURDER AT HUNTSVILLE.—John I. Davis, an old and respected citizen of this county, was shot and killed on Sunday morning last by a negro named—. The murderer was arrested by the civil authorities—also another negro, reported to be an accomplice.

Before the Examining Court, in evidence, he was waylaid and shot about two miles from his residence. The negro confessed that he killed the deceased, on account of some business matters. The parties were committed to jail to await trial before the District Court.

We are informed that Mr. Davis was nearly sixty years of age, and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his tragic fate.—Huntsville Times.

KILLING OF CAPT. WM. PERRY.
The Jefferson (Texas) Jimblets of the 5th, gives the following details of the killing of Capt. Perry, a brief notice of which appeared a few days ago:

On Sunday night, about 8 o'clock Capt. Wm. Perry, one of our oldest and most respected citizens was shot and instantly killed on Folk street, near his own residence. The affair is wrapped in the very deepest mystery as yet, and created a deep sensation among all classes. The jury of inquest is still in session, and their verdict is awaited with great anxiety. From best information obtained he was killed through mistake by a squad of United States soldiers who were hunting for another party. Capt Perry was one of the founders of Jefferson, and has probably done more for the advancement of the place than any other man. He was a Northern man by birth, and has always been a warm and consistent Union man. His loss will be deeply felt, not only by his family and friends, but by the whole community and section. His funeral took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and was attended by an immense throng of people. He was formerly a steamboat captain, and the steamers at the levee all had their colors at half mast, while every business house in the city was closed and all occupation stopped, in honor of the deceased.—Galveston Civilian.

The following is from the Columbus Times:

In Columbus on Wednesday evening, the 6th inst., we learn Mr. John Harbert shot and severely wounded Mr. Henry Brooks. Mr. Harbert also received a severe contusion, inflicted by a blow from a six-shooter in the hands of John Brooks, brother of the wounded man. We know nothing of the particulars, and refrain from further remark, as the matter, no doubt, will receive the attention of the civil authorities. Harbert has been admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000.

The prevalence of wearing arms and drinking whiskey enables us occasionally to refresh our bloodthirsty readers with a little episode of this kind. During the late revolution, killing became a little chronic, and we suppose it will only require a little time and indulgence to cure the disease.

Mr. Brooks, we are pleased to state, is in a very fair way of recovery.

The Senate Judiciary Committee to-day agreed to report Senator Stuart's bill with an amendment imposing a heavy fine and imprisonment on any person who performs the functions of an officer to which he is ineligible under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. It is alleged by the people in the reconstructed States that this legislation is necessary, and unless adopted, persons will be elected to various positions notwithstanding they are debarred by the Fourteenth Amendment.

A Poisoner.—We learn from good authority that there is a negro boy in Hempstead, about 7 years old, who reports that he has been commissioned from above to preach the gospel of Christ. Yesterday he made a public effort before an audience of educated gentlemen, including Bishop Simpson of the M. E. Church. It is said that his sermon was effective. We hope his efforts may be extended efficiently among his people in Texas.—[Houston Telegraph.]

THE CITY VS. DAUENHAUER.—The verdict of the jury in the above case, was rendered yesterday, which was to this effect, that the city do pay to said Dauenhauer, the sum of $500, for damages done in setting his building back to the prescribed limits of the city ordinance, and losing a certain portion of his lot, assessed by the jury to the amount of $500.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.—Today is St. Valentine's day, upon which a sweet heart is chosen. A day sacred to St. Valentine, the 14th February. It was a very old notion, alluded to by Shakespeare, that on this day birds begin to couple; hence, perhaps arose the custom of sending on this day, letters containing professions of love and affection. If the birds of the forest find their mates, why cannot we do the same, and couple with our sweet-hearts, if we have chosen and picked our mates for life?

This is an occasion for bashful young people, who dare not tell the dear ones that they love one another, and as a matter of course and good judgment, take advantage of the saint and pour out their song of love in a Valentine.

FINEY LOVE.—A gushing youth whose poetical feelings are damped by measuring calico, in one of our Commerce street dry goods stores, was thus expressing his love to a young lady who wanted a pair of No. 1, gaiters, and was doubting his love: "Marie, for thee—yes, at thy command, I'd tear the eternal firmament into a thousand fragments—I'd gather the stars one by one as they tumble from the regions of ethereal space, and put them in my trousers pockets. I'd pick the sun—that oriental god of day, that traverses the blue arch of heaven in such majestic splendor—I'd tear him from the sky and quench his bright effulgence in the fountain of my eternal love for thee." "Our devil, who was awaiting for some one to give him five cents worth of shoe strings, rushed out of the store and informed us of the above and added "you better light the lamps, for if that fellow tears the sun from the sky, it will be awful dark." We lit.

The Convention.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY EIGHTH DAY.

CAPITOL, AUSTIN, TEXAS, February 6, 1869.

Convention met, no quorum. The President directed the Secretary to read the following communication.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, Austin, Texas, February 5th, 1869.

Hon. E. J. Davis, President of the Convention: Sir in reply to your enquire, I have the honor to state, that the records of the convention when completed, be turned over to the custody of the Ast. Adjt. General of the District remaining in the mean time in the custody, and under the control of the proper officer of the convention.

Very respectfully, Your obedt. servant, (Signed) E. R. S. Canby, Bvt. Maj. Gen. U. S. A. Comd'g.

Mr. Patten moved the convention adjourn without date, subject to be reconvened by the order of the Commanding General.

There being no quorum present, the motion of Mr. Patten was ruled out in order.

The President of the convention thereupon declared the Reconstruction convention adjourned, and directed the Secretary to hand over the constitution adopted by this convention, and all ordinances, declarations, and resolutions adopted by the same, and books and records to the Adjt. General of the 5th Mil. District as list as the same could be arranged, written out and enrolled, and that the Secretary be charged with seeing to the completion of this order.

The adulteration in ale is the latest text of the New York World's investigations. Ale should be the product simply of malt, hops and water, yet the samples submitted to the chemist were found to be drugged with alum, lime and salt, with strong hints of cocculus indicus. Salt is put in to excite thirst, alum to produce a head and a bitter taste, the lime to correct acidity. Cocculus indicus goes in to replace the bitterness lost by over-dilution with water.
