SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXPRESS.

GEN. GRANT'S REPLY.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—In the Senate last night nothing was done.

HOUSE.—Schenck desired to suspend the rules to consider the Senate amendments to the bill strengthening the public credit. Butler objected, when the following occurred:

Schenck said, very well, I am aware it is understood by the country that it is on the objection of the gentleman from Massachusetts that we cannot get at that bill, and I want it understood by the country that the gentleman from Ohio cannot get at that swindling brokers bill on account of the objection of the gentleman from Massachusetts. [Laughter.]

Miscellaneous appropriations resumed.

Amendment appropriating $7,000 for equipping and preserving Washington's house rejected.

Another appropriation of $3,000 for Lincoln's portrait adopted.

Credentials from Georgia defeated by omitting to state the number of the Congress for which they were elected.

The Louisiana certificate is defective in omitting State Commissioners for July elected.

These blunders will deprive Georgia and Louisiana of any voice in the organization of the two Houses.

Sherman will not go to Louisiana. Gen. Thomas will remain in his present position, but sweeping changes are contemplated in military districts.

The reconstruction committee will have no more meetings this session.

Adjutant General Townsend refuses to surrender Gen. Beauregard's papers and letters.

Senator Nye said he had received a letter from Virginia from Auditor Rogers, stating that Gov. Wells was his friend; Nye thereupon withdrew the speech of yesterday regarding Virginia's internal improvements.

Gen. Jas. J. Reynolds will probably succeed Canby in Texas. Gen. Reynolds says the dismemberment of the State would be a folly.

Gen. Grant in replying to urgent suggestions of southern radicals who called in a body on him on Monday, asking him to make room in his cabinet for a southern loyalist, said: "you have had a southern loyalist for President for four years, that ought to satisfy you."

At dinner on Sunday Grant, on tolerable good authority, is reported to have said reconstruction with all these minor questions will soon be swallowed up by greater events growing out of the recognition of Cuba, and the contest over the Alabama claims.

Immense crowds at the President's last reception.

SENATE.—An ineffectual effort was made to consider the pay of Southern Senators.

A long debate on paying Vinnie Ream for her model of Lincoln, adopted.

Conference committee on bills removing political disabilities—Recess.

Justice Miller of the supreme court, Judge Safford of the Mississippi supreme court, and Gen. Ames, Provisional Governor of Mississippi, visited Gen. Grant to day.

The press of visitors at Head-quarters prevents pointed conversation.

Colonel Wolfley assessor, and Colonel Creasy supervisor, of revenue of Louisiana, arrived to-day.

Revenue to-day $7,081,000.

A. T. Stewart of New York is here; Gov. Wells, and Col. Mosby of Virginia, are also here.

The Texas delegation headed by Jack Hamilton, and an Alabama delegation headed by Senator Warner, are at General Grant's.

There is a rumor that Gen. Steadman is imprisoned in Cuba.

Both parties caucusing to-night, Colfax will resign the speakership to-morrow.

The President pardoned the Laman's, convicted by military commission for cotton frauds.

Pardons for Spangler and Arnold are momentarily expected from the Attorney General's office, when the President will sign them.

Seward leaves Friday for Auburn.

The House joint resolution regarding printing passed. It had previously passed the Senate. It gives the printing to the Globe.

Joint resolution for a bridge between Cincinnati and Newport passed, and goes to the President.

Another bill authorizing a bridge between Brooklyn and New York passed, and goes to the President.

A committee on conference appointed on the bill strengthening the public credit.

John A. Wimpsey, James H. Christie, and James H. Birch, allowed $1500 each for expenses as contestants.

A bill in relation to the organization of militia in the States passed.

A resolution sympathizing with Spain and Cuba, and authorizing the President to recognize Cuba whenever in his opinion it has formed a republican government, passed unanimously.

SENATE.—A bill relating to time for finding indictments in federal courts for offenses of the late rebellion passed.

Lient. Braine's pardon has been issued; it will probably be signed to-morrow.

PORTLAND, ME., March 2.—The Democratic carried this city for the first time since the rebellion.

CHICAGO, March 2.—The Tribune of this city recommends Joshua R. Hill of Georgia to a cabinet appointment.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Gen. Meade arrived here from Santiago de Cuba.

FOREIGN NEWS.

HAVANA, March 2.—Diario reports a victory for the troops at Cifuentes.

Three hundred rebels surrounded at Villacare.

Gen. Lesesu is advancing into the interior without opposition by avoiding routes where rebels are posted behind fortifications.

Diario also says the revolutionary Gen. Napoleon Finglo, joined the Spanish General Valmaseda, with 2000 men. Thus reinforced Valmaseda set out from Puerto Principe to meet Lesesu, moving from Laguna Grande, where the combined forces will attack Quetzala.

Four Spanish gunboats are cruising between Laguna Grande.

A Spanish man-of-war is watching the revolutionists in Nasar waters.

LONDON, March 2.—Gladstone introduced his bill establishing the Irish Church, with long speech. Disraeli responded. The bill passed to first and second reading—it is fixed for March 18.

General Grant's Programme.

Since the advent of General Jackson as the head of the nation no event has occurred at Washington of greater importance, as the foreshadowing of a new epoch in the management of the government, than the little speech of General Grant Saturday last to the Congressional committee informing him of his election to the Presidential succession. It has already made an impression upon the leading political and financial circles of both hemispheres hardly less remarkable than the little hint of Louis Napoleon to the Austrian Ambassador on New Year's Day, 1859, forewarning the expulsion of Austria from the basin of the Po and the unionization of Italy.

As a man of deeds more than a man of words, we know that this brief speech of General Grant admits of the broadest interpretation. And what does he say? He says:—"I can promise the committee that it will be my endeavor to call around me as assistants such men only as I think will carry out the principles which you have said the country desires to see successful—economy, retrenchment, faithful collection of the revenue and payment of the public debt." These will be the great objects of his administration, and they involve the twelve labors of Hercules.

All dues to said firm must be paid to A. Siemering, who also assumes all liabilities of the partnership.

The Publishing and Editing business of A. Siemering & Co. will be carried on as before, under the same style and firm, A. SIEMERING.

OUR PAPER.

With this number terminates, by an amicable arrangement, the editorial connection of Major Moore with THE SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS. The stable and satisfactory success which this paper has attained during the two past years, and its influence as a loyal journal, are sufficient proofs of the energy, perseverance, and ability which the Major has brought to his responsible task.

We understand that he contemplates adopting some business more lucrative and less arduous than a newspaper engagement, and we assure him of our cordial good wishes in whatever he may undertake.

THE EXPRESS will stand squarely on the Union platform, adhering neither to the right nor left, nor following after strange gods. It will be unflinchingly Republican, believing as it does that the word is synonymous with national honesty and national honor, and that the success of the party is directly and vitally related to the peace, progress, and permanent prosperity of the Republic.

Universal Suffrage, Universal Education, Universal Justice,—we shall oppose whatever hinders these advocates whatever advances them.

The cause and claims of the poor and ignorant classes, of whatever race or complexion, upon the Government for protection and justice, shall be our cause and claims; while toward that increasing class of our disfranchised fellow citizens who, having seen their errors, are moving, however slowly, towards more loyalty again, we extend a friendly God-speed. We trust that the time is at hand when a general and hearty return to political sanity on the part of the people of Texas, will render all disqualifications obsolete. When the body politic begins to secrete pure and vigorous blood, the wounds of the war will heal without a scar. The reign of force and revolution will end of itself.

We are not advised whether any beside Texans were present, but presume not,—from the choice they made of a Chairman.

feasted and triumphant in our great struggle, are accepted as conclusive; and any other peace is fatal and disastrous.

While firmly maintaining the grand results of the war in the expansion of freedom, we ought to begin to forget the bloody convulsed past, be patient with the agitated present, and work together for a prosperous future.

We do not ask our readers to blindly receive our opinions, but to weigh your reasons and respect our intentions; and we invite from our friends, personal and political, a continued interest in THIS EXPRESS.

President Grant.

The long contest of eight years closed to-day. The rebellion has ended, and the Republic is based upon the sure and solid principles of liberty, equality, and justice. The inauguration of permanent settlers once and forever all the old questions growing out of the slavery conflict, and begins a new era of our national career. It shuts a door upon the past which no party will dare to open, and opens a door upon a new and more glorious future than the Nation has ever known.

The Republic has said, "Let us have Peace." May its voice be heard throughout the length and breadth of the land. But to have peace we, the people, must do the things that make for peace. We must now set ourselves at work as never before to break down the spirit of caste, the prejudice of race, and color, and sectional antipathy and scorn, and diffuse those broad, generous and national views that are the cement of a Commonwealth. We must abate the rancor of parties by a new development of patriotism, and draw attention from old issues by provoking each other to good works.

President Grant enters upon his duties with one great advantage over his predecessor. Almost every President for half a century has found himself hampered by party pledges. The vote of this State was secured by the promise of a seat in the Cabinet; that clique was gained by the hero of a mission; another faction was purchased by a fat bribe for its leader. Thus the Executive has found himself surrounded by just the men he did not want, and the public service has suffered.

General Grant was sought by the Presidency. His state is gone, and he holds the power in his own hands. The men he wants he can have, and he will have no others. His success in war was greatly owing to his wise choice of instruments, and he will doubtless show the same wisdom now in selecting his aids in civil service. Like Washington, he seems to have just those solid qualities of character which, in a ruler, are necessary to a nation's well being.

He is no theorist. He is neither poet nor orator. Least of all is he an agitator or a revolutionist. He is nearly and always practical, endowed with untiring good will, he loves quiet, order, and stability. No one doubts his fairness, patience, and reverent good faith. No one believes that an invasion of his certain power will hold the helm.

Our leader is safe and true; if the Nation be true to itself, the future of the human race is assured by our example. No tribe, though a nation strong, can claim to liberty, though ever so martial and resounding, can so persuade and impress the world as does the spectacle of a great Republic, covering a country and covered with calmness and justice by the people itself.

The Texas Delegation.

The dispatches of March 1st, inform us that the "Southern representatives" with Mr. Whitmore as spokesman, visited General Grant; and that said spokesman advised him "to remember their section in the selection of his Cabinet." Whether the order proceeded to name the man of his section who, having seen their errors, are moving, however slowly, towards more loyalty again, we extend a friendly God-speed. We trust that the time is at hand when a general and hearty return to political sanity on the part of the people of Texas, will render all disqualifications obsolete. When the body politic begins to secrete pure and vigorous blood, the wounds of the war will heal without a scar. The reign of force and revolution will end of itself.

We are not advised whether any beside Texans were present, but presume not,—from the choice they made of a Chairman.

General Davis must have been absent, whick knowledge of the com-munist prophecies would have enabled him to hold the irresponsible speaker in check, and prevented the exhibition of this gratuitous assurance.

The reply of Grant was neat and conclusive: "You have had a Southern Loyalist for President for the past four years. Ought not that to satisfy you?" How is it, gentlemen of the delegation, are you not satisfied?

We have always felt that among the many weak and partisan acts of the late Convention, was the appropriation of six thousand dollars to pay the expenses to Washington, of this delegation.

The division of Texas is inevitable. It must in due time come, but the efforts of these men will not hasten the event by a single hour; while a few similar displays of rowdy manners, will go far to increase the National indifference with which we are regarded, and to shun our present difficulties.

Specie Payments.

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in regard to gold contracts is a practical step towards the resumption of specie payments. People need no longer be afraid of being caught in a trap by contracting for gold dollars, and then being forced by the Courts to take payment in depreciated paper dollars at par.

There are two legal tenders, greenbacks and coin; when the kind is not specified, the debt is payable in greenbacks, but if specie is named, the debt can be collected in coin. Contrary to recent unsound decisions in Texas, gold contracts are perfectly legal and enforceable, according to their terms. Now that this question of the legality of gold contracts is finally and rightly settled, engagements of this sort will multiply and become common, greenbacks will pass at a discount instead of gold at a premium, coin will gradually come into circulation, and will soon become the custom, the money of the country, as it is of the world.

LETTER FROM ILLINOIS.

We assure the Herald that its kindly and courteous expressions are reciprocated. We are conducting a strictly Republican paper, but have never held that political differences must destroy the amenities of civilized life. A journalist should not be forever sounding the war-horn and counting his scalps, nor is the tomahawk, to our mind, the most fitting editorial weapon.

INDIANA, TEXAS, Feb. 20, 1869.

Editor of the San Antonio Express:

The usually peaceful town is much disturbed by an unwarranted and violent excess of power on the part of a military officer here, who has been interfering with the course of trade, and the rights of peaceful citizens, to a very serious extent.

As the whole nation, with proper活力, has been bad before this, Custer, upon whom some of justice we confidently relied, to redress, we shall simply furnish your readers with the facts, returning comment.

Seven German teamsters presented from Indianapolis to Indiana to execute contracts for transportation of private freight. After loading, a military guard with a check of the firm of Woodward & Brothers, arrested the teamsters, unhooked the wagons, and drove the freight into the street. The teamsters were charged with refusing to comply with their contract to carry government freight to San Antonio. The teamsters denied the charge, stating that when in San Antonio they talked with Adams & Weeks government contractors, but could not agree as to price; the former asking $1 per hundred, the latter offering but $8.00.

The contractors finally offered them an order on Indianapolis for freight, which they took, with the understanding that they might be it or not, as they saw fit, but no contract was made.

The arrest and detention of these men was done by order of Capt. Hooker, A. A. Q. M. at Indianapolis.

A west-of-hispanic corps was presented and released. The trial then began before Judge York of Jackson county. Captain Hooker denied ordering the arrest of the men, or the detention of their teams, and swore to his denial. Two negroes, who formed part of the arresting squad, swore that Hooker did give the the order. Judge York dismissed the case, and ordered the arrest of Hooker, which the latter refused to obey.

Capt. Hooker then tried to compromise his difficulty with the teamsters, but with no success. He then caused them to be again arrested, brought to Woodward's office, and forced to sign such a contract as he wished, under threats and threats.

The teams were harnessed and the wagons loaded by the soldiers, but the teamsters would not bow to this dictation, abandoned their teams and wagons, and are still under arrest.

As one of the natural and immediate results of this vexatious interference with business by the vicious mobocrats, most of the teams going to Indianapolis have turned back in alarm, and freights to San Antonio have risen to $1, and are still rising, to the great detriment of trade.

Yours,

LOYAL CITIZEN.

A FEMALE BAPTISTES ENTHUSIAST.

A Belgian paper devotes five columns to a description of a new sectante named Louise Latou. It appears that for some months past this young girl presents every Friday the phenomena which are called the stigmata of the passion. She has on her hands, feet, and over the heart, sanguine blisters which exude abundantly. The ordinary functions of life are suspended. The eyes open, and turned obliquely towards heaven, appear to be attentively fixed on something. The pupils are dilated, the face is pale, the mouth partially opened, and the features express a sentiment of admiration mingled with a sweet sorrow. At times the object she seems to contemplate produces a painful starting. When not in ecstasy, she is in catalepsy. Then three o'clock she starts up all at once, and suddenly flings herself on the floor, without the least attempt to protect her face with her hands. Yet she remains motionless. She remains for an hour in this horizontal position, her arms and feet crossed. About 4.30 o'clock she raises herself quickly, without any assistance, her arms still in the form of a cross, as if some invisible power had placed her in this vertical position. She then falls on her knees, next sits down, and in about ten minutes the body is subjected to a kind of torsion, and the stigmata of Jesus Christ—so she is called—throws herself upon the ground. Then it is that she is waked up but to accomplish this the persons about her must belong to the Order of the Passion.

AUCTION! AUCTION!!—The great Auctioneers, David Friedlander & Co., announce in our columns of to-day, that they have another catalogue Auction sale on Tuesday, the 9th inst., embracing 150 lots assorted merchandise, consisting of Hardware, Dry-Goods, Boots and Shoes and a large lot of fire Arms, &c., &c.

1st Private Medical Aid—read Dr. Whitaker's advertisement.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.—The estate of Ulrich & Jones, recently sold at auction sale in this city, comprised about 80 different tracts of land, which averaged all through, about 11 cents per acre. This estate was not known generally to the parties bidding on this land, which accounts for the price given.

CONCERT AT THE CASINO.—It is with great pleasure that we chronicle the return of Professors Miller and Delbert back to our city again. These gentlemen will give one of their delightful and pleasant Concerts at the Casino Hall on Saturday evening, the 6th instant. The Casino will be open for all on this occasion, and we hope to see the Hall crowded with an appreciative audience.

THE ALLEYTON MAIL.—The above mail now arrives on schedule time—Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The Brazos bridge at Richmond is now up, and the trains run their regular trips, making connection with the stages throughout this portion of the State. The roads are now in good condition for transportation purposes, and the stages make good time between this point and Columbus.

NACE DUVAL.—This good old colored man and Minister was buried yesterday morning. A large number attended his funeral—about thirty carriages were in the procession, besides a respectable number of horsemen and persons on foot. The burial took place with the usual ceremonies, at the public cemetery, near the Pox-house.

THE BEXAR BASE BALL CLUB.—This Base Ball Club is composed of young American citizens. We witnessed their playing a few days ago, and can safely assert that the above youngsters play with a sure hand and are quite skillful in handling the bat; so much so that they requested the Local to announce publicly to the Frontier Club that after a little more practice, they would be in trim to play them a match game. The first nine of the B. B. Club would play the second nine of the Frontier. What do you think of this challenge, gentlemen?

RAILROAD MEETING.—We are informed by Colonel Still that a meeting in the interest of the Columbus and San Antonio Railroad, will be held this evening, at Kampmann's new building, to which all are invited, who take an interest in the building of said road. Our citizens will do well to attend and listen to the proposals that will be made by men of enterprise and capital. The time of our waiting for something to turn up, has passed, and we must put our hands and means to work, if we want to make San Antonio.

THE DISTRICT COURT.—This Court has done nothing yet of importance; yesterday morning, the case of Mitchell vs. Eckford, was called for action. The Lawyers for both parties informed the Judge that to save time in this case, they thought a conference together would be of much benefit and shorten the time occupied in the final settlement of this case, and asked His Honor for an adjournment until this morning, so that a consultation could be had. The Judge granted the request and adjourned the Court until 11 A. M., this morning.

This case will consume two days, at the farthest, and as soon as it is adjusted, other cases will be called and disposed of as rapidly as possible.

The year of annexation, 1845, there were in Texas only 411,100 head of horses and cattle, valued at $8,000,000, and, as we have seen, in ten years the value of this stock had increased to $20,000,000, and the number to 1,900,000.
