General Longstreet has been nominated by the President for Surveyor of the New Orleans port, but the appointment hangs fire in the Smate. Longstreet was, next to Stonewall

Jackson, the ablest Lieutenant of Lee. He fought hard and he fought fair. He published no swaggering letters proposing to hoist the black tiag, as did the gaseon Beauregard,nor was the charge of cruelty, and ncedless hushness in warfare, ever recorded against his name.

When the war ended, he closed that leaf of his life, and cast it behind him forever.

Without reserve he accepted the situation. Said be :

"We staked all that we had on the war, and we have lost. It is for the victors to dictate the terms." With a moral conrage that none of his brethren in arms dared to emulate, be defended and sustained the National policy of Reconstruction, admitting the power of Congress to pass the requisite laws, and conceding their fairness and necessity.

Into the grave of the "lost cause" lie threw the dogmas of caste and slavery, granting with prompt cheerfulness the equal civil rights of all men, without regard to color. His powerful appeals brought back many an admiring Southern heart, to its allegiance to the Union and the flag.

He was among the first whose disabilities were lifted by Congress, and last fall his voice and this vote Of course by the rought and to dered in the prevalent style.

He was Apstate, a wrete of renegade, traitor to the South.

Worse than the prince of carpetbaggers was he, and of all the scalawags the scalawagiest.

But this chorus of snarling, irrational dissent, did not move him. He took his manly course and kept

Now we are by no means anxious to make large concessions to those who yield but a gradging and stinted allegiance; and who, having once fought against the Govern ment, show by their sullen and impotent disaffection, their readiness to do it again, if they had the power. Back seats for all such, say we.

But Longstreet is the representative of a different class. He is at the head of those who have covered the errors of the past with eternal oblivion, by their cheerful unreserved acceptance of the results of the war, and their voluntary support of National men and National

Such men are with us and of us. The early hand of recognition and of welcome is their dne, and it was right and fitting that our President should thus remember and honor, their worthiest representative.

"We wish to know distinctly how this hearty and general accep-tance (of the Maverick letter) has been given by the Democracy. — San Antonio Herald.

We have seen, somewhere, a description of the Democratic party in Texas as divided into two classes the smooths and the roughs.

Accepting this nomenclature for lack of a better, the Telegraph and the Herald may be said to represent the smooths, the Houston Times the roughs,

These three papers at least, with perhaps some lesser fights, gave the letter in question the benefit of of public plunderers. But a new their circulation, making courteous conductor is on the train. He has reference to it as an important political declaration, worthy of consideration.

The Times differed with the letter as to its argument, but made no disclaimer with respect to its spirit and temper. The Herald and Telegraph gave no token of dissent, either from the second and the third time, till be its matter or manner.

Now it seems to us that when the leading party presses published, without a word of disclaimer, a political utterance so hitter and objectionable as this, it was fairly inferential that it met their tacit acceptance and approval.

If we were mistaken in our inferlooked upon the appearance of that says: import.

We understand the Herald now as distinctly repudiating the sentiment and spirit of the Maverick letter, and The hatching troughs are filled with with that understanding we modify our perhaps too general statement. as nothing can be farther from our intention than to "strike below the belt."

The request of the Herald that the Republican press shall give the denial, as much publicity as they did the letter, is but fair.

We have already done so.

THE POLITICAL POWER OF THE WEST.-The Philadelphia Press, in an article alluding to the prompt as well as drawings, painted to the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment by Kansas and Nevada, blames the members of the Pennsylvania Legislature for not being at their posts, at the head of the Union column. Its article concludes as Rhine, 514 pounds; from the Tay 53 follows :

"The time is fast coming,-nay, more, it is already upon us-when the West will control the politics of the entire country, and it will lead as it leads in business and everything else, with prompt and deci-sive vigor. The old day of dallying and delay will have gone by when the West comes into power. It will govern as it has fought."

If the Democratic party hold no convention, or if they do, and no better men are candidates, and they would be hard to find among those who are eligible, we shall not oppose their election.—S. A. "He that is not against us is for us," so we welcome the Herald to the ranks of the Republican party. But what will the Houston Times say? Whew!

Honesty Looking Up.

To persons who have had an oppartunity of looking inside the "Rings" which have disgraced Mr. Johnson's administration and fleeced and dishonored the country, it is well known that honesty,—that good old fashioned word, which Frank'in said was the "best policy," and which our simple-hearted grand fathers and grand-mothers used to tell us was a necessary virtue,-bus had rough treatment in fact has been completely tabooed, as a troublesome isagreeable, shabby fellow. When be ventured to speak in behalf of the country, and to quote a verse or two of Scripture, he was set down as an ass, and it was voted on all hands that his pious braying would not be tolerated. So, men that had a conscience, and would not cheat the Government, thinking an oath was rather a solemn affair, and that perbaps by and by there might be an overhavling of matters by the tigh er Tribunal, if not by an earthly one. were worried and laughed at till they either succumbed, or were but to glad to quit a "den of thieves."

The late Mr. Johnson, of singular memory, helped to bring honesty into disrepute by his bad appointments and equally bad pardons so that the nation was becoming rapidly demoannounced, to the dismay of the rastuous, that he shall reverse the en gine, and run the public cars in an opposite direction He will turn out all unfaithful servants and take into his employ only the "honest and capable," and if he fails to secure such men the first time, he will try succeeds. Really, this is refreshing. Poor, brow-beaten Honesty will be no longer at a discount. And not only will the public treasury feel the happy change, but the conscience will receive a healthy stimulus, the effect of which will be apparent through all classes of society.- New Orleans Tribune.

OUR comparatively young, recently spliced and really talented friend Capt. Sam C. Wheelock was admitted the other day, we under-stand, to practice at the bar. And we mean practice at the bar of the courts of law of this Territory, not at the "bar" of the taverns; at the latter he don't and wont practice worth a darn, while at the former we loope and believe he will become a shihing light. "About the middle of January entlemen, Dr. —, on the Angenta myer, in the loweredge of Chemical to critical the neighborhood freedmen from the neighborhood. The good citizen protested against such a course. such a course. Among others who protested against it was a Mr. Grant, who is a merchant in the neighbor-hood. This doctor succeeded in confederating with himself a few men, and made the attack. The negroes met them in force, and a fight ensued, in which several were wounded, and a man named Doc Tinsley was so badly injured that he died in a few days thereafter. Before his death he made a full confession, and professed to have been inveigled into it while drunk. At this stage the whole matter was hushed up, and no arrests were made.

A week or two later a rap was made on Mr. Grant's door at night, which was answered by a school teacher boarding with the family. As soon as he opened the door, he was shot down, dead, and the assassins rushed in. Mr. and Mrs. Grant rushed out of another door, and, as they passed out, a shot took effect in the fleshy part of Grant's arm, but they made their escape. Two little children were in the house and ran under the bed. In going under, one was shot through, then pulled out and shot again. The assassins then jumped upon him and stamped him literally to atoms. They then went to the store and rifled it of all the money and such other valuables

Up to the date of our last account no arrests had been made. Mr. Grant professes to know the parties, and says the attack was justigated on account of his opposition to the attack on the negroes.

THE APPOINTMENTS TO OFFICE. Mr. Julian, after the usual courteies, asked in substance what Gen-Grant's policy would be as to local appointments. Mr. Lincoln's rule was, to refer all local applications for places, such as postmester, collectors, assessors, &c., to the Repre-sentative of the District, and accept his judgment thereon. If it was not incompatible with the General's ideas of propriety, he (Mr. Julian) would be glad to know what rule would be adopted by the new Administration, as he was in receipt of many applications, and if expected to give his views, would like to have time to examine fairly into

Gen. Grant replied at once that except in a few cases all over the country, where he might desire to appoint a personal or army friend, whose ability, &c., he had personal knowledge of the rule Mr. Lincolu-followed, would be his.
