Indian News.

PORT GRIFFIN, TEXAS,
May 27, 1869.

DEAR SIR:—Perhaps you are fully aware of the state of affairs upon the Texas frontier, and may have heretofore received all the information, and more than I shall be able to give you at this time. This immediate vicinity has been for several weeks past, annoyed almost beyond endurance by hostile Indians. Hardly a stage arrives without the driver bringing us intelligence of Indians seen near the post, passing back and forth—coming into the settlements or going out with stock and plunder, generally passing along the valley of the Clear Fork of the Brazos, and of late making frequent visits within the limits of this post, having twice within the last month taken the stage mules, and all other stock to be found within a half mile of the barracks. A party of officers, Colonel Cressen, Major Smith, and Lieut. Sherman, 35th Infantry, and Dr. McL Eldery, U. S. A., with a party of fifteen Tonkawa Indians, (living upon the government, at this post), went out about the first of the month upon a volunteer scout, or buffalo hunt, perhaps the two in conjunction, and were remarkably successful, killing fourteen Comanche or Kiowa Indians, capturing fourteen ponies, twenty odd saddles, bridles and equipments. Several other Indians were wounded.—Since that time four or five more ponies have been picked up in the vicinity of Phantom Hill, which were recognized as among those not caught by this party, having separated from the herd. The officers and the Indians both think that had they had more ammunition, they undoubtedly would have killed or captured the entire party—25 or 30—and probably have overtaken and captured the stock from another detachment of about 10 Indians, going out with about 30 head of horses, whose trail they were closely following when meeting this party coming in, who were encamped and feasting off a buffalo just killed, and were discovered by their red and white blankets hung in the mesquite bushes for shade. It appears from what I can glean in conversing with the officers, and some of the most intelligent Indians, that the Comanches were surprised in their camp, having just turned their animals out on herd, under guard of two or three Indians as herders. The scout upon seeing them, without standing upon the order of their going, went at full speed, coming down upon them like a thunder-clap, giving them no time for preparation, charging their camp. The Indians seeing themselves overpowered, thought to sell their lives as dearly as possible, gave them the contents of their rifles and pistols, as well as several clothe-bags of arrows. In the charge, and in the midst of their camp, Major Smith's horse became unmanageable, beset, seized, and fell, dismounting the Major, and endeavoring to get loose, and while the Major was rearranging his arms, which had become misplaced, and re-mounting, one Indian, taking advantage of the accident, was rushing upon him, behind his shield, in hopes probably, not only to kill the Major, but to capture his horse, when suddenly brought to a halt by a ball from Jack's carbine. To Jack, a negro boy, taken along as a servant by the officers, Maj. Smith is undoubtedly indebted for his life. The Major retains the shield, bow and quiver as a souvenir. The officers were each presented by the Indians (to whom the captured property belonged) with a Comanche pony each. Unfortunately the Tonkawas were ill provided with ammunition, they had in hunting expended all their allowance of 20 rounds issued by the government, except an average of nine rounds per man; fortunately, Maj. Smith had with him 100 rounds of private ammunition, which, when their own was expended, was used, almost entirely, adding greatly to the result of the fight.

This is the only one of the scout, he having been with Maj. Cressen last season in his fight near Double Mountain, and about 12 or 15 miles from the field of the late fight, in which Maj. Cressen killed 7 Indians, and for which he was brevetted. Consequently, Dr. M., was somewhat acquainted with the country, and being able to understand and converse a little in the Tonkawa tongue, is given much credit for his services during the engagement, as well as upon the entire scout, which was suggested by him, and I believe, was originally intended as a pleasure expedition and buffalo hunt. Dr. McL Eldery is a dashing officer and an excellent surgeon.

Lieut. Sherman, although quite unwell upon the trip, is given great credit for his indefatigable will and energy in keeping up, and for the part taken by him in the engagement.

It is said that when well supported by officers or soldiers, the Tonkawas fight very bravely. There are of this tribe now at this post about 130, probably 50 warriors, who are drawing rations from the government and rendering no service, until of late Gen Canby, I believe, ordered that 25 of their braves should be mustered into the U. S. service for three months, which we look upon as a wise measure, one which if continued, may be productive of great good to the frontier, especially as guides and scouts, operating in unison with the troops.

We have now a garrison of two companies of the 4th Cavalry, commanded by Capt. John Lee and Major Major Davis, both considered very excellent, and efficient officers. Capt. Lee commands the Post. You will no doubt hear from them as soon as they become well settled, having just arrived, relieving the two companies of the 35th Infantry, who left several days since for Fort Concho.

I have just learned of a raid made by 50 Indians upon a party of 15 citizens, near Belknap, 35 miles from this post, killing 5 and wounding 7, some of whom have since died. Dr. McL Eldery is in attendance.

The Department Commander must soon see the necessity of more active measures against these Indians. You will recollect seeing in the Army and Navy Journal, within a few weeks, that there were between Double Mountain Fork of the Brazos and the Little Wichita, 4,000 hostile Indians. Fort Griffin is hardly 100 miles from either point, consequently, we have in our immediate vicinity, about 4,000 hostile Indians, made more hostile by being driven into close quarters, and in a country scarcely less barren than the "Staked Plains." Would not an active campaign for a few months, such as was carried on further north, by Custer, be productive of equally great and glorious results, by either destroying, or bringing into the reservations those bands still upon the war path, devastating upon and impoverishing this frontier?

AMERICAN NEWS.

NEW ORLEANS, May 27.—Charles Morgan, purchaser of the Opelousas railroad, in a long public communication, announcing his readiness to co-operate with business men of Texas, Louisiana and New Orleans, or any other section of country interested in extending the Opelousas road from present terminus, to Texas, by the most eligible route proposed, new corporations be formed, and obtain the remaining franchises of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad company, with cash capital of four millions, of which he will himself take and pay cash for two millions stock; provided the same amount be raised by other parties interested. He further announces his intention to put the road already completed in perfect order, and if necessary, making double track.

Delegation from the State of Alabama, to the Commercial Convention, adopted a series of resolutions expressing high appreciation of the admirable qualities of the late Colonel L. T. Woodruff, President of the Mobile Board of Trade, who was killed at the recent fire, and their regret at his untimely demise.

Upon assembling this morning, the convention took up the report of the committee on obstructions at the mouth of the Mississippi, and without recommending any particular plan of operations, respectfully commended it to the attention of the General Government.

The suggestions of the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce upon the subject, is that while acknowledging the liberality of the appropriations for the removal of obstructions, they would, in view of the large accumulation of deposit within the last few years, earnestly urge the necessity of still further appropriations for continuing the work; also recommend that the control of undertaking, be confided entirely to the United States Engineer Bureau, in whom they express confidence. Report adopted.

The following, which was embodied in both majority and minority reports of the Pacific Railroad Company, was adopted:

Resolved, That the main trunk railroad line from San Diego, Cal., should be built through to the junction of the rivers Colorado and Gila, along the valley of the Gila, south of the same, to El Paso on the Rio Grande, thence to a convenient point near the 32d parallel west of the Brazos or near the river in the State of Texas, to which main trunk feeder roads may be built from St. Louis, Cairo, Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans, Galveston on the east, and Guaymas, Mazatlan and San Francisco on the west, with equal rights of connection, all of which should be known and designated as the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The discussion on the Pacific R. R. question was lengthy and exciting, and a longitudinal route from Cairo to Mazatlan strongly advocated by Texans and Illinois.

In the course of the debate the State of Texas was rather severely assailed by Gov. Anderson of Kentucky, and vindicated by

Col. Parsons of Houston, on behalf of the Texas delegation.
A number of new delegates arrived today.

MADRID, May 27.—Serrano in addressing the Cortes said the rebellion was suppressed, but moral disorders are disappearing slowly. When its nominal condition has been restored the same government, acting with Cuban Deputies, will suppress slavery.

WASHINGTON, May 27.
It is reliably stated that Boutwell, after hearing Opatko, determined to persist in selling two millions of gold and buying one million bonds, until the bonds placed in the sinking fund shall reach twenty-six millions. This involves the sale of nearly sixty millions of gold.

A Correction.

We read in the recent telegraphic dispatches, that "Major Moore of the San Antonio Express" had a talk with Grant...

There is no such person, as "Major Moore of the San Antonio Express." No gentleman of that name has any connection with this office...

THE "leader" in the Express of Saturday, leads us to think, that we shall soon have the pleasure of welcoming it, as one of the supporters of the "people's ticket."

As "the leader" in the Express of Saturday," was a sketch of the San Antonio race course, with full description of stables and steeds...

STILL ANOTHER RICHMOND.—We learn by a letter, received from Geo. T. Downing in Washington, D. C., that James P. Newcomb, Esq., editor of the Express, San Antonio, Texas, is visiting that city.—Exchange.

The Express has but one editor, and he does not spell his name that way.

PARAGRAPHS.

"My friends," said a returning emigrant, at a late anniversary meeting, "I have avoided sectarian animosities. The inhabitants of this town, when I have been here, have a proverb: 'though you bathe a dog's tail in oil, and bind it up in splinters, you can not get the crook out of it.' Now, a man's sectarian bias is simply the crook in the dog's tail, which cannot be eradicated, and I hold, that every man be allowed to wag his own peculiarity in peace."

THE Apache Indians driven from Arizona, are making terrible incursions in Sonora, devastating the whole frontier.

Reports from Chihuahua, and Nueva Leon, are equally alarming in regard to Indian depredations. It is estimated, that these frontier States have already lost one-third of their population by the incursions of savages, and unless the matter is seriously attended to, soon will be depopulated.

THERE are two things, says the German philosopher, "that strike me dumb—the starry firmament, (palpably infinite,) and the sense of right and wrong in man."

THE Louisville Courier Journal says, if Gen. Butler were kicked as often, as he deserves it, he would be very glad to go to Connecticut, and exchange his hams for wooden ones.

BY the wise policy of Iowa, a large part of that State, which was covered with hazel shrubs, and prairie grass, fifteen years ago, is now clothed with forest. Planting forest trees, exempts a certain amount of taxation for ten years.

TRIP ROUND THE WORLD.—An international expedition, around the world is being projected by Monsier Lessups, the originator and engineer-in-chief of the canal across the Bore, now approaching completion. He desires to have one hundred gentlemen from different nationalities, assemble at Paris next spring, and go via Marseilles to Egypt, to be present at the opening of his canal. From Suez the party is to visit India, China, and Japan; then cross the Pacific Ocean to San Francisco, and come eastward to Chicago and New York, over the Pacific railroad. From New York the Europeans will return to their respective homes.

THE young man of to-day, who has seen all these things accomplished, will have tales to tell to his grandchildren, such as no grandchild of our day can summon from the stores of his memory.

FIFTY-TWO Life Insurance Companies transacting business in New York State, paid losses, during the year 1868, to the amount of nearly eleven millions of dollars! The business of life insurance shows a large increase in 1868, over previous years, and while the system is yearly being established upon a healthful basis, we cannot but anticipate continued and uninterrupted prosperity, for those well managed institutions whose name and fame have been so deservedly earned.

THE dream of the Pharaohs, the Ptolemies, the Bolapartes, will soon be a reality. Ships will sail freely past Egypt and Arabia, into the Indian Ocean, saving many thousands of miles upon the old voyages from Europe to Asia. This is the culmination of the world's efforts for a route Eastward to the Indies. The Suez Canal; begun and ended by French enterprise, at a cost of $100,000,000, is characterized as "a task which has no equal except in mythology, when Hercules joined the Mediterranean to the Atlantic."

MEN now living, not forty years of age, who studied Olney's Geography in boyhood, will remember well how there was printed, on that part of New Mexico in which Brigham Young now reigns, the mystical, wonderful words, "Unexplored Regions." It was a mighty terra incognita; and what a change! Eastern fairy tales tell of no such miracle as this wrought by human genius and energy. The story recited by Olney's map is blotted out forever, and the genius of steam and civilization has stamped its ineffaceable imprint on the whole map of America.

IN the year 1847, the growth of Memphis rivalled that of Chicago. From 1850 to 1860, its increase was nearly double that of any other city. Its population is now estimated at 20,000. A man who bought property in Memphis in 1840, for $100,000, it is thought, would now own $1,000,000. Memphis subscribed one-tenth of her taxable property to the construction of the Memphis and Charleston, and one million to the Memphis and Ohio, Mississippi and Tennessee and Little Rock roads; and notwithstanding the croaking of the fogies, she has not ruined herself in her wild hunt after improvements. On the contrary it was these heavy outlays for improvement that have caused her to multiply her five millions taxable property in 1869, into thirty-five millions in 1869! This tells the story as to the advantages of railroads to enterprising communities. But it does not yet appear what we should be when our concussions westward to the Pacific shall be consummated.

UGLY sores let out the festering humor which would otherwise prey upon the vital parts, and bring fatal disease. As boils are signs of health, the rabid utterances of foolish Editors not unbecomingly indicate a growing state of good feeling, which so galls the soul of the writer, that he strains himself to excite in his readers, the hatred which he feels is dying out. "The devil is a fool" and these malignants only hasten the better day by their savage utterances. Sober men are aroused by them to a better appreciation of the infamous spirit of those who have been called their leaders and organs. Sensible men laugh at blather, bores, and rhodomontade, even in a cause to which their sympathies still cling, and from disgust and contempt for its lowest advocates, they soon pass to derision for the cause so advocated. The poisonous humor is there, and by all means let it find utterance, the more freely the better. The wise old Quaker, who heard a little scamp swearing horribly, only remarked, "That is right, my son, get all that bad-stuff out of thee!"

How to Attract Immigration.

Since many persons, who would immigrate to America from Europe, cannot read at all, and fewer still can read the English language, in which most descriptions of this country are written, it might be well to employ lecturers to travel over Europe, and instruct the people as to the products, and peculiarities of our soil and climate. If European farmers, every where knew how cheaply the richest lands in the West climate in the world may be bought, and if erroneous prejudices which Northern newspapers have sedulously fostered, were thus removed, multitudes of every European nationality would flock to America.

Land owners surely see, how it is to their interest to organize associations for the purpose of accomplishing such ends as are here contemplated, and if these associations, created in different parts of the State, co-operated harmoniously, as now proposed in Alabama, the greater portion of Western Europe would soon become thoroughly cognizant of the superior attractiveness of the South, and the tide of immigration would no longer flow towards the Rocky Mountains.—Exchange.

IN Europe there ever hangs up a dread shadow that hourly grows more conspicuous on the political sky. This is the Revolution. The people—even the butcher class of all Western Europe, worn out with the burthen of huge military establishments in time of peace, and crushed to the dust by other evils of modern social organization, are secretly agitating in a manner unknown since 1848. Political observers, clergy men, schoolteachers and tradesmen, who have the best opportunity of mingling with the masses and knowing their real sentiments all bear testimony to this fact. The most threatening feature of this rising tide of popular indignation, is its universal character. Thus, we find that the incendiary agents of the owners and workmen in Belgium, had their echoes immediately in Germany France and Italy, or rather that they came in as one chorus of a general diapason. The question is rapidly narrowing to an issue between production and non-production, and the right by which the latter takes the former; and depend upon it, unless the year 1910 should prove memorable in its ameliorations, it will be signalled by tremendous popular movements. All this the monopolists, crowned and uncrowned, of the old world know, and they will manufacture a great war, if needs be, to avert the crash at home.

A CLERK in a mercantile establishment, writes his friends at home: "Piquet, easy times now-a-days, very little work to do, don't advertise."

MURDER.—On Tuesday last, a man by the name of Thomas Malone, was killed between San Marcos and New Braunfels. Malone, in company with a man named Henderson, had been to Mexico for mules, and were camping, when the murder occurred. Henderson has fled, and is supposed to be the murderer.

ANOTHER.—A man named Galbreath was killed, a few days since near Lockhart, by Cabanis. The difficulty originated in a dispute about a cow.

ARRANGEMENTS.—The races, have, with exception of Thursday, when the rain came down in torrents, occupied the whole week. On Sunday there will be theatre in the Casino Hall; on Tuesday Prof. Delling's ball will take place in the Casino Hall, and on the next day, at the same place, the pupils of a German dancing school will hold their ball. This will be enough for the next few days.

RAIN.—Thursday was the day selected by the God of rains for his special enjoyment. The waters of heaven had their full sway, and the river commenced rising, but ceased in time, so as not to do any damage. A fresh breeze from the north was received with general acclamation. The weather continues cloudy and fresh.

GAMBLING.—We would respectfully inform our County and City authorities, and whomever it concerns, that a Roulette, and several Faro and Montebanks are playing a lively game at the race track, contrary to the laws and the dignity of the State. We hope the coming election has not blinded our officers as to their duty.

THE RACES. FRIDAY, 29th, 1883.

Thursday proved very showery, and the road to the race ground and the Jockey Club course, got its full share. In consequence of the rain, the races announced for that day did not come off. But Friday, though cloudy, and at times menacing moisture, thereby deterring many from attending, was on the whole pleasant, and the freedom from dust, which was the consequence of the showers, was highly enjoyed.

FIRST RACE.—Chest $100. Mile heats.

1. C. H. Boston, entered by B. K. Sappington.

2. Grey Filly, Belle Warren, entered by Lewis Glenn.

Both rivals appeared in high condition. But the chestnut horse Boston was the more solidly built and muscular, and in the heavy and muddy condition of the track, strength was as necessary as speed. Both steeds went off well together at the word. Boston on the inside. The grey mare made a gallant burst for the lead, but Boston was not to be caught; he kept his lead and gradually and steadily increased it, till he distanced Belle Warren. The opinion was generally expressed among the knowing ones, that with a light and smooth course, the result might be reversed. Time 2 minutes, 5 seconds.

Sandy Valley and Edinboro, was postponed, but we hope it will come off soon.

SECOND RACE. Mile dash for ponies under 14 hands.

The following entries were made: 1. Dashiell—Bay mare.

2. Harrison—do.

3. Arnold—Bay mare.

4. Long—Gray mare.

Dashiell fine and fast, but Long pony won the race, coming in the order named. Long's nag was a "long" distance behind. Time 2 min. 19 1/2 seconds.

THIRD RACE. Match, $400, distance 600 yards. Pat. Uncle Sam.

The second was much the favorite in the betting, as he had shown in a previous contest with his present rival, superior speed. But the struggle of today showed that he was not so good a mud traveler.

Pat had the inside, and in making the turn on the home stretch, Uncle Sam was somehow thrown off the course on to the grass, and lost headway which he was not able to regain. Pat won by several lengths. A large amount changed hands on this race.
