Great Republican Mass Meeting in Walker County.

The Republicans of Walker county assembled in Mass Meeting on Monday, May 24, 1869, at Huntsville, for the purpose of expressing their political opinion, and selecting delegates to the Houston Convention, on the first Monday in June, prox.
 On motion the Hon J. P. Butler was unanimously elected chairman, and Geo. W. Webber, Esq., Secretary.
 On motion a committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions, and select delegates.
 The Chairman appointed on that committee the following gentlemen: B. M. Bankhead, chairman, Strother Hume, and Richard McFar.
 The committee retired to draft resolutions, when the Chairman introduced the Hon. G. T. Ruby, of Galveston, who in a very eloquent manner, explained the principles of the Republican party, and laid bare, in a very clear and forcible manner, the organization of the Third party movement.

At the conclusion of which Captain Butler made some well-timed, forcible and pertinent remarks; after which the following resolutions were reported by the committee, and unanimously carried:

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of Walker county, in mass meeting assembled, endorse the principles set forth in the National Republican Platform; and that we disapprove of any dissension, and earnestly urge all true Republicans to drop all side issues and unite with us.

Resolved, That we heartily and cordially endorse the 15th amendment to the constitution of the United States, and recommend its adoption by the Legislature of the State.

Resolved, That we endorse the holding of a State Convention at Houston, the first Monday in June, and a Congressional Convention of the Third Congressional District, at the same time and place, and earnestly urge all counties to send delegates.

Resolved, That we will oppose all independent candidates, and pledge ourselves to the support of the regular nominees of the Republican party for State, District, and County offices.

Resolved, That the Hon. J. P. Butler and Joseph Metawer represent this county in the State Convention to be held at Houston, on the first Monday in June.

Resolved, That the following named gentlemen be appointed as the Republican Executive Committee of Walker county: J. P. Butler, R. M. Bankhead, Strother Hume, M. H. Goddin and Wm. Bang.

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of the county be requested to act in concert with the chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Grimes county, in calling a Convention to nominate District officers.

Resolved, That the Secretary of this meeting be instructed to furnish a copy of the proceedings to all the loyal papers in the State.

J. P. BUTLER, Chairman.
 GEO. B. WENZEL, Secretary.

TEXAS ITEMS.

We have received the 2nd No. of the Argus, a new paper, published in our neighboring city, Seguin. It is well printed, and contains much well selected reading matter. The editorials read like epic poems. Here is one:
 Have we not conceded enough? Must we garland the rod that smites us, and wince not under the yoke that galls our necks? Are we to have no voice in our government? Are our sacrifices of principles and concessions in favor of peace to be rewarded with political dissolution? Such is the plain import of this nefarious menace. Let the path of duty lie plain before us. We must resolve, and we do, that the Twelfth Legislature must be secured as the exponent of conservatism. Through it we can shield this people from appalling oppressions upon their private rights, and thereby the line of policy will defeat reconstruction, is not without its meaning. It anticipates the action of the people, and seeks to deter them from their proper course of action. There must be a yielding to indignation.

The colored people of this city would not turn out to hear Hamilton's speech. What does that mean? But they had a large meeting at night, at the Courthouse, and not a word was said in favor of Hamilton. Every utterance from colored men since the speech has been against him. There is a black majority of between five and ten thousand in this Congressional District, which Hamilton will lose.

Two Crows.—A gentleman near here, has just harvested a crop of crows, plowed up the same field and planted it in cotton. This fact demonstrates most clearly, that industry and energy will do in Texas. Nature has nowhere been more lavish of her bounties, and nowhere does the farmer meet with greater reward for his toil.

Female suffrage is not, unknown to the world that is. In Austria, women who are noble or who are tax payers, vote, as do men, in a corporate capacity. Up to the time of the revolution of 1848, Hungarian women, unmarried and widows, voted. In at least one portion of Australia women vote, and have done so for four years past. Frederica Bremer obtained for her sex in Sweden a right to vote on certain property qualifications. In Holland and France women vote on certain questions. The same is the case in certain of the New England States, where a woman vote for school trustees.—Bulletin.

Charles Morgan is going to build the Opinions railroad to the Texas line—provided, that the impoverished people give him two millions of dollars to pay for the work. We shall have the road how, or on what.—Houston Times.

We had another heavy rain yesterday; from what we can learn the rain seems to have been heavier down the river than above town. The farmers say their prospect for corn crop is as fine as they ever saw them in this or any other State.—Waco Ex., May 24.

The stream of cattle crossing at this place still continues. On last Wednesday 500 head crossed, on Thursday 400, and on Friday the cows of the week, inform us that a couple of gentlemen have made arrangements to cross 1500 head this morning.—Waco Examiner, May 24.

The employees are busily at work on the bridge tower on the bank of the river, and its height increases rapidly. We are informed by Mr. Griffith, chief engineer, that the wire cables will be extended across the river in four or five weeks.—W.

Gen. W. F. Clark, of Texas, says that the State is never more prosperous, and that fully three acres of cotton, and corn are planted for one last year. Good. Cheaper cotton would do much to revivify the North, and a big crop of sugar in Louisiana and Texas would do much to sweeten our dispositions.—Chi. Times.

We have a great respect for the statistical abilities of our friend the General, but must suggest the propriety of abating that estimate a little, say to the extent of a half acre.—Bulletin.

The Henderson Times of May 21, says:—since our last issue we have had—not very growing weather, but much better than we have heretofore had. The result has been a heavy crop of corn. Corn that was thought to be dead, is growing off, and the corn that was stunted is looking fine. Gardens look a hundred per cent. better than they did a week ago.
 In short, the prospect now is for—at least an average crop. The few farmers we have met this week, and we have met but few—they are all at home and at work—wear pleasant countenances. They are helped up, and have abandoned all idea of starting out west.
 The fact is, there is always an outcome in Texas. Just as every thing is considered lost, something turns up and we are found to be more prosperous than ever before.

The Bryan News Letter says:—The Central Railroad is now shipping directly through to Houston from Galveston, and several houses are now going up at Hearne that will do a good commission business during the summer and fall.
 The same paper says that there is a general stagnation in business at Bryan.

Speaking of the large arrivals of emigrants, the N. Y. Journal of Commerce says that the Germans and Irishmen are going West to till prairie lands or build railroads. Of the South they are ignorant as of the moon, and no amount of enlightenment can lead them, but it is not a region given over to poverty, robbery, arson, assassination and refractory hangings by the Ku-Klux-Klan, the Journal says. Yet the Germans and Irishmen, would not and could not take sugar with their own hands, and in many parts of the South could not work in the cotton field. This is an error. The cultivation of sugar is no more difficult or laborious than that of cotton. The heavy work of taking off the crop takes place in cool weather, and can be performed by white men as easily and safely as taking off the wheat harvest in July in any of the old States. The work is not as arduous as that of the all-around farmer. While the Germans and Irishmen, before the war, the Germans on the Brazos and Colorado cultivated a good deal of cotton by their own labor, and now cultivate more. Picking in August and September is rather warm work, but much of it is done later, when the weather is entirely pleasant. Cotton made by white labor always commands more in the market than that made by the negro, because it is better handled and more free from trash. In Fayette today, Boston contains a count a pound more than that made by negroes, as we have been frequently informed by merchants.—Civilian.

California and Western Texas.

THE HOME FOR THE GRAPE VINE.

California is so much praised for its grape culture, that we generally consider it as the El Dorado for the raising of the grape vine. If vine cuttings, stuck in the ground, at Monterey, California, bear grapes within twelve months, as is stated by the press, it seems to be all we can reasonably expect. But Western Texas has the same capacities, if no better, though the grape is not as yet extensively cultivated; a few instances will confirm the assertion.

Mr. Zizelmann, of San Antonio, has this year a considerable number of the so called San Antonio Burgundy grape vines, one year old from cuttings, which are now overloaded with fruit.

The hail storm last year destroyed not only the half grown fruit, but also damaged badly the vines of the few Rieslings on Mr. Kosfeld's place, but to the astonishment of all who saw them in their ruined condition, they started a new growth of wood, and yielded a second crop of grapes the same year.

Mr. Beckman made an experiment by trimming a part of one of his grape vines after the grapes had ripened and harvested, in mid-summer; these vines this summer commenced putting forth a new growth of wood, from which he had the pleasure of feasting, about Christmas, on delicious grapes of the second crop.

In the month of February last, Mr. S. Brodbeck planted some cuttings of the San Antonio Burgundy grape, several of which flowered. To save the vines, he cut off all flowers except one, which has now fairly set, the grape is about half grown. This is a grape on a vine only four months old.

If this does not beat California in the culture of the grape vine, we do not know what will.

Emigration.

The following is an extract from a letter to Hon. Joseph Wilson, from a gentleman connected with the public service at Stratford, dated Canada, May 14, 1869:

Hon. Jos. S. Wilson, Commissioner General Land Office:

DEAR SIR:—Instead of diminishing, the tide of emigration is increasing; thousands upon thousands are leaving Canada. As you see, the little town of St. Joseph is pouring out nearly the whole of its population. The same can be said of nearly all the towns of Canada East. Last night a considerable party left here for California, via Union Pacific Railroad. I cannot estimate the number, even from Canada West, that are emigrating. Considerable alarm is manifested by the authorities, in consequence of the exodus. The France Canadian, published at St. John's, says that at the station of that town they sell emigrant tickets to the amount of from $700 to $1000 daily. Other stations nearer the line sell larger amounts. In one range in the parish of St. Alexander, eleven farms have been abandoned. Every Sunday, the public crier has a long list of public sales of furniture and implements, by parties who wish to obtain the means to leave the country.

At Sherrington, twenty-five families left in one day, and at St. Valentine, a grand mass was celebrated on the occasion of the departure of fifty young men.

THE NEW ROUTE TO CHINA—THE FIRST TRAVELERS.—The Salt Lake Reporter, published in Corinne, says:

Three gentlemen from London, on their way for Hong Kong, stopped in town night before last. To China and Japan, the Pacific railroad offers a route from London ten or twelve days shorter than any other,ording the traveler the pleasure of passing the continent of the United States from Boston or New York to San Francisco. Think of it as a pleasure trip; fifty-five hundred miles over every variety of scenery; the world from the high mountains and valleys of Massachusetts to the gloomy regions of the Rocky mountains, the blue Lead Sea, the Mississippi prairies, the great American desert and the American Andes thrown in as side shows! With the completion and equipment of the road, the trip will be very agreeable, personally, what with good eating houses and hotels along the road, sleeping and hotel, and silver-mounted cars.

PARAGRAPHS.

THE story is told that the young emperor of China lately wished to try the virtues of opium, and smoked a pipe of it. The queen mother learned of it and discovered that the drug was supplied to him by one of the chief eunuchs. She ordered him to be beheaded, and caused a new proclamation against opium to be sent throughout the empire.

CHARLES V. of Spain, was one of the best linguists of his age. Once being asked by an Englishman what language he preferred to converse in, he replied: "That depends on whom I am speaking with. When I talk to God, I use Spanish; in conversation with crowned heads I talk in French; in my intercourse with scholars I speak in Latin; in discussing military affairs with my generals, German is the language; in taking with ladies, I use other tongues; thus, I address a Jew in Hebrew; my horse in Dutch; the devil in Bohemian; a bear in Russian; and a goose in English."

THERE is an old tale, of which, though idle in itself, the use may be good. A certain man would never go to church, but when he heard the saint's bell, would say to his wife, "Go thou to church, and pray for me and thee." One night he dreamed that both he and his wife were dead, and that they knocked together at heaven's gate for entrance. St. Peter, who acted as the porter, suffered the wife to enter in, but kept the husband out, answering him "She is gone in both for her self and thee. As thy wife went to church for thee, so she must go to heaven for thee."

A GERMAN in Hannibal, Mo., owns a wonderful dog. It is of the hound species, and runs a mile a minute, and can stand flat-footed and eat of the top of a pork barrel. On a rabbit or deer chase he is a "sure thing," and is equally successful in pursuit of prairie chickens, being enabled to leap a long distance in the air and nab the game on the wing, thus dispensing with the necessity of fire arms.

A NEBRASKA editor says, "Hell is treeless;" and taking that original assertion for a text, he warmly exhorts his readers to "plant trees," in order to make a difference 'twix'd Nebraska and Hell. The advice is good and ought to be followed to avoid confusion if possible.

WHEN a lady condescends to a practical joke, it is generally a very neat one. M. Boncourt, the rich financier and banker in Paris, was very stingy to his wife in the matter of pin-money. One day a lady, closely veiled, and anxious not to be recognized, called upon him and borrowed a large sum, leaving her diamonds as a pledge. It proved to be his wife.

THE Nation says there is no hostility amongst the greater portion of the public to woman's appearance in public. People go to hear female orators, readers and lecturers just as readily as males, if they are worth hearing; and our advice to women would be stop talking about their right to follow this and that calling, and follow it. If their goods are better than other people's, the world buys them.

T. STERRY HUNT says that the general rate of increase of heat as we descend in mines, the temperature of lava would be reached at a depth of ten or a dozen miles. It is difficult to conceive how water could reach any molten mass of matter, as it would be natural to suppose it would be expelled by the force of steam long before passing through the earth's crust. Yet it seems certain that it is the action of water and steam that has forced up the lava of volcanoes.

APPLETON'S Journal for last week has a pleasant article on "French Morals and Manners," which says: "The devotion of the French mother to her children is very great, and her household duties absorb much of her time, while nowhere can be greater displays of devoted affection and demonstrative fondness than in a well-ordered French household. Frequently, even after the marriage of the younger members, the united families continue to live together under the same roof, and the pleasing spectacle is often exhibited of three generations sitting daily at the same board, and dwelling together under the patriarchal control of aged grand-parents. The separation of families, almost universal with us, whereas the new scions are usually transplanted to the West, and the parents are left solitary in old age, while the offspring are people of law regions far from the old home, and no composition in France, the tendency is to cluster together, not to scatter. Thus the parental influence is felt and exerted throughout life, the experience and wisdom of age ever tempering the headlong ardor of youth and the mature plans of manhood; for the foundation of all society is in the family, and the stronger that tie, the healthier and the happier will be the society built upon it. In all societies, woman gives it the tone, whether as mother, wife or head of a household; and the training she receives determines the measure of her influence, and the good or evil effects it produces. The training of the French girl is exceptionally good for this purpose, and her purity of mind and freshness of feeling preserved by the system, which is sneered at by those who do not comprehend it. The parental supervision of the boys is very strict; but that over girls is stricter still, and they are treated as children up to the period of assuming the obligations of the heads of households themselves, and guarded as carefully from all contact with the other sex as, under a different system, in the East. The mind and heart of a young French girl, tenderly nurtured, are like a virgin page of paper on which no impressions have yet been made—innocent of evil thoughts or deeds, and unshaken by premature experience. The will of the parents has ever been the child's law; and that pernicious make-believe love-making, styled " flirtation "—in which young America indulges freely on entering her teens—the French girl would shrink from as immodest and shameful. The French girl is taken early into society, but always under her mother's wing and strict supervision; and her shrinking modesty and timidity of manner surprise the American or Englishman, accustomed to the frank fearlessness of his fair-young compatriots, who agree with the poet Burns that "A man's a man for a' that," and by no means an alarming creature."

England.

MR. SUMNER's speech, or rather the paraphrases of and comments upon it by the English papers, has awakened a general and intense anti-American feeling, and pushed negotiations back to the point where they were when Mr. Adams first proposed arbitration. Judging from articles in the English papers, and the reports of conversations, there is no evidence that the speech has been carefully and calmly read by any one. British pride seems to have been piqued, and prejudice excited, at the outset, to such a degree that the whole effort is regarded as little else than an elaborate insult, and anything like a weighing of its words and holding of its ideas up in the clear light of justice, is simply impossible. A storm of national feeling has been aroused, and while that rages reason is out of the question. By and by the dull-headed British public will see that it has goaded itself to madness without cause; that Mr. Sumner does not lay down the basis of negotiations, but simply states the facts of the case; that he points out wherein England wronged us, and how much the injury amounts to, while he carefully abstains from saying how little America will be satisfied with. But it is just this statement that makes England mad. Nations, like individuals, cannot bear to be reminded of their own wickedness. But the anger cannot last long, and when the frenzy burns itself out, our English cousins will be the more provoked with themselves that they gave way to such a fit of blind rage. They will see that America has been long suffering, and is kind; that she does not expect England to repair damages which are irreparable; that she only asks for the very least which is consistent, with national respect; that the interests of England and the civilized world require acknowledgment of the wrong done, and so much reparation of the injury as our national self-respect requires and her national honor can, with propriety, make. It is understood that Mr. Motley has instructions not to press our claims upon the British government, nor even to renew negotiations. We hope this report is correct, as enough, and more than enough, has already been said and done by our Government in the premises. We need not be in a hurry to have the Alabama claims settled. We can afford to wait much better than England can afford to withhold justice. If individuals suffer, let our Government liquidate, at least, a part of their claims. But national self-respect should be preserved at all costs; and that requires us to cease dunning the British government for the payment of our bill, as though we were in distress for the money, and it were on the verge of insolvency. Besides London is not the place to carry on these negotiations in. The public sentiment, the whole atmosphere of the place are anti-American, and adverse to our cause. It is the last place in the world for us to expect to get justice. Negotiations should be held once removed from the influence of that arbitrary and prejudiced capital to Washington, where the English Plenipotentiary shall feel something of the pressure of American public sentiment, and understand that there is a power on this continent that England can neither bully nor bribe into submission to her imperious will. We hope that our Government will see the importance of adjourning negotiations from London to Washington, and until such time as the British government is ready to renew them on fair and honorable terms.—Wash. Chronicle.

Impolicy of a French War.

Every now and then the world is treated with a report that a European war is imminent, that Prussia wants to subdue the whole of Germany, that Austria wants revenge for the defeat of 1866, that the Czar desires to pounce upon Turkey, and that Napoleon, afraid of his army, and desirous of drawing the mind of France from political agitation on domestic affairs, is about going to war with somebody unnamed for some cause unknown. Now, all publicists seem to fancy that whenever peace is broken, Napoleon will be the culprit. Why should he? No European sovereign has a greater interest in the preservation of peace. War, waiving all other considerations, is a very costly exercise. The expense must be paid by some one. The first Napoleon made his wars apparently inexpensive by compelling those with whom he fought to defray the costs of both parties. This would have been very well had it only lasted. But Napoleon was hurled from the throne, and France had to refund all the war-costs which the other nations had disbursed during the imperial domination. This settlement of accounts almost beggared France at the time. Independent of restoring every square foot of land captured since 1790, France had to pay 700,000,000 francs, (equal to $140,000,000 in gold,) to the allied powers, for the expenses of the war; to pay the expenses of maintaining a foreign army of occupation 150,000 in number, for not less than three and not more than five years, and to disburse 735,000,000 of francs ($147,000,000 in gold) to the different Powers as indemnity for the spoils committed upon them by France, during the Revolution, and to provide 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000) to the smaller Powers as an indemnity for the expense of the war. So, besides maintaining 150,000 men as an army of occupation, for several years, France had to pay, in hard cash, a total of 1,535,000,000 francs, equivalent to $307,000,000 in gold. With the example before him, the Emperor Napoleon will pause and think twice before he exalts his banner in a European war.—Washington Chronicle.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—The communion of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the Presbyterian Church, this morning at 11 o'clock.

DIED.—At Fort Concho, Texas, June 1st, 1893, OTIS ROCKWELL NOTSON, infant son of Dr. Wm. M. Notson, U. S. A., and Elizabeth, his wife.

THE WEATHER.—Friday was the hottest day thus far, the thermometer registering ninety in the shade. About dusk a brisk norther came up with plenty of rain, and now the weather is bracing and cool.

THE recent rains have rebbed the whole face of the country in a beautiful liver of green. The grass upon the prairie, adjacent to our city is finer than it has been for years. Stock is in splendid condition, and our markets are supplied with fine meats as any country on the globe.

FIGS.—The Galveston Dispatch has been shown a ripe Smyrna fig, grown in that city this season, weighing five ounces, and measured round the thickest part 4 1/2 inches, and around it lengthwise 2 1/2 inches.—That was certainly a very large fig, and very early in the season, yet we believe San Antonio can do better. We trust some of our numerous friends will send us samples, and, if they do, we'll take their dimensions.

THE FAIR for the benefit of A. M. Church came off as the 28th, and was largely attended. The little children of Mrs. Nahar's school sang and spoke well. There was cake and candies in abundance, and, in fact, everything that one would expect at a fair, besides a few candidates.

Every one present seemed to enjoy the occasion, and were in the greatest good humor with themselves and the "balance of mankind." Such undertakings should be well patronized, and we are gratified at the result of this first effort. Mrs. Austin Thornton and daughter superintended, and certainly deserve the thanks of all those present.

The receipts, clear of all expenses, was $138, coin.

The Railroad West.

The Gonzales Inquire makes the following statement in regard to the plan and prospect of continuing the railroad from Columbus westward:

Col. Stoll having just returned from Galveston, where he went to meet the owners of the B. B. & C. Road, reports that these gentlemen are still firm in their determination to extend the road from Columbus to San Antonio, and that they are ready to do so just as soon as the people along the route will guarantee in lands, or other real estate, an amount of property sufficient to cover the interest upon the amount of money invested in building the road.

If they make the donation asked, and which will authorize the company to put their money into it, it will be built; if they fail to do this, it will not be built. This is the whole question in a nut shell. We have no money to build the road ourselves, our only chance of securing it is by the donation of a portion of our lands to men who have the money and who will build it on that condition.

But we must remember two things—first, that the capital seeking this investment is foreign capital, and that the men to control it have no local interests in Texas to be benefited by the building of the road. Secondly, that knowing the investment will be unprofitable and unproductive for years, they cannot afford for their benefit to sink their money in a railroad, and wait ten or fifteen years until an issue of business and population shall be paid. This is the first instance in the foreign capital has sought such an investment in Texas; and if we do not engage it, we shall have to wait till we are able to build our own roads before we have the benefit of such improvements. At the men who have tendered this action to us have the means of carrying starting the road, but the railroad does all their planning, we do not question for a moment, provided the people will do their duty in the premises.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

National Republican Party of the United States, assembled in National Convention in the city of Chicago, on the 15th day of May, 1868, made the following declaration of principles:

First. We congratulate the country on the assured success of the reconstruction project of Congress, as evinced by the adoption in a majority of the States lately in rebellion, of constitutions securing equal civil and political rights to all, and regard it as the duty of the Government to sustain their institutions and to prevent the people of such States from being remitted to a state of anarchy.

Second. The guarantee of Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men of the South, was demanded by the fundamental principle of public safety, of gratitude and justice, and must be maintained; while the extension of suffrage in all the loyal States, properly belong to the people of those States.

Third. The guarantee of Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men of the South, was demanded by the fundamental principle of public safety, of gratitude and justice, and must be maintained; while the extension of suffrage in all the loyal States, properly belong to the people of those States.

Fourth. It is the duty of Congress to see that the guarantee of equal suffrage to all loyal men of the South, is not evaded by any fraudulent or corrupt means, and that the extension of suffrage in all the loyal States, properly belong to the people of those States.

Fifth. It is the duty of Congress to see that the guarantee of equal suffrage to all loyal men of the South, is not evaded by any fraudulent or corrupt means, and that the extension of suffrage in all the loyal States, properly belong to the people of those States.

Sixth. The Government of the United States should be administered with the strictest economy, and the corruptions which have been so shamefully nursed and fostered by Andrew Johnson, shall be speedily and thoroughly reformed.

Seventh. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States, as a relic of the feudal times, not authorized by the laws of nations, and at variance with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to be protected in all their rights of citizenship as though they were native born, and no citizen of the United States native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest and imprisonment by any foreign power, for acts done or words spoken in this country. And if so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the Government to secure his release.

Eighth. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States, as a relic of the feudal times, not authorized by the laws of nations, and at variance with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to be protected in all their rights of citizenship as though they were native born, and no citizen of the United States native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest and imprisonment by any foreign power, for acts done or words spoken in this country. And if so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the Government to secure his release.

Ninth. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States, as a relic of the feudal times, not authorized by the laws of nations, and at variance with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to be protected in all their rights of citizenship as though they were native born, and no citizen of the United States native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest and imprisonment by any foreign power, for acts done or words spoken in this country. And if so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the Government to secure his release.

Tenth. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States, as a relic of the feudal times, not authorized by the laws of nations, and at variance with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to be protected in all their rights of citizenship as though they were native born, and no citizen of the United States native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest and imprisonment by any foreign power, for acts done or words spoken in this country. And if so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the Government to secure his release.

Eleventh. Foreign immigration, which in the past has added so much to the wealth and development of the country, and the removal of the impediments imposed upon the rebels in the same manner as their spirit of loyalty will direct, and as may be consistent with the safety of the loyal people.

Twelfth. That we recognize the great principles laid down in the immortal Declaration of Independence, as the true foundation of Democratic Government, and we hail with gladness every measure which maintains these principles as a living reality in every inch of American soil.
