Edwin M. Stanton.
The statesman whose loss we are to-day called upon to deplore, surrendered his life for his country as truly as the soldiers like Sadgewick and MacPherson, who gave up their breath upon the field of battle, or the martyr Lincoln, who died at the arraigning hand for his devotion to liberty. No single man, except Abraham Lincoln and possibly Ulysses S. Grant, deserves a larger share of the national gratitude, or will fill in history a more honorable place in the story of our great war, than Edwin M. Stanton. No man, we believe, ever sacrificed more completely to the performance of patriotic duty every energy of his mind and body, every hour of his time, every pleasure of life, and every instinct of personal ambition. He killed himself by fidelity to his work. When the harassed merchant or professional man falls a victim to incessant overworking of the brain and body, we inquire over the folly or the wickedness which makes the search for wealth and honors the supreme goal of existence, and sacrifice health and happiness in the vain pursuit; but when a patriot like Mr. Stanton, destroys himself in the service of his country, we feel that the manner of his death has added a new luster to his fame.

There are great works whose proportions can only be judged from a distance, and it may be years yet before the part which Mr. Stanton has played in the history of the last decade can be properly appreciated.
But the present generation will not pass away before men recognize him one of the greatest organizers in all history; as possibly the greatest of all war ministers; the tremendous lippelling force which gave vigor to the long years of war; and gathering up in his strong hand the myriad of ignorant volunteers and still more ignorant generals, moulded them into the finest army this continent has ever seen. It was a rough as well as an arduous work; and perhaps no man who was not a rough as well as a vigorous one could have performed it. Rough men make enemies, and no American statesman ever made more than Mr. Stanton. He was a quick judge of character, and when he found that the idols which the people worshipped as gods were only common clay, he dashed them down with a quick, rude hand, and broke them to pieces. He spared no moments for his private leisure or even for the rest which nature required and he would not always spare moments for the expression of individual rights and wrongs, or for the courtesies to which men were accustomed in his office. But when once convinced that a public officer was a good patriot and an efficient servant he stood by him with the firmness of the everlasting hills, and neither popular clamor nor private entreaty could shake his resolution.
Bayard himself was not more chically self-assertive. It was upon Mr.
Stanton that Abraham Lincoln leaned with the most absolute confidence; it was upon Mr. Stanton that during the first hour of the assassination, the government for a while seemed to rest; it was upon his firmness, his incorruptible honesty, that during the dark days of Mr. Johnson's administration the hopes of the country seemed to depend. No wonder that such a man left enemies; it will be one of his chief titles to historic renown that those enemies were all the enemies of his country.

The universal satisfaction with which, except by that disloyal faction which can never forgive the war, Mr. Stanton's recent promotion to the bench of the Supreme Court was received, proved that the country was not insensible of its obligations to him and not ignorant of his extraordinary merits. It would have been a deep gratification to all good patriots if in the comparative quiet of that honorable position he might have lived to witness the growth of that renown which must surely be his before many years have passed away; but the war had literally worn him out; the stormy administration of our last Chief Magistrate completed the ruin of his system; and by a coincidence which would seem almost poetical were it not so mournful, he passed away just as the work for which he sacrificed himself approaches its completion, and the day of full liberty and equality dawns brightly under the rule of the illustrious commander whom he gave to the country—New York

SATURDAY, JAN. 8, 1870.

The Austin Republican and Gen. Reynolds.

We have before us two copies of the little Austin Republican, the 3d and 4th inst., devoted entirely to General Reynolds. Having made a complete failure with the "coalition" the managers of the Republican concern, have turned upon General Reynolds with a spitefulness unequalled by any of the KuKlux journals of the State. All the bitterness of disappointed ambition, all the despair of bankrupt hopes, all the desperation of empty pockets and a gloomy future are concentrated in these newspaper attacks upon Gen. Reynolds. It would be giving entirely too much weight to these attacks to enter upon a complete history of the past year, in order to defend General Reynolds from the falsehoods they set forth, but we consider it due to General Reynolds at this time to say a word in his behalf, not that Reynolds ear interposition, but because he deserves to be properly represented before the people over whose destinies it has been his lot to take a leading part.

The articles in the Republican are written by Haynes the ex-Collector and the defeated candidate for Congress in this district. This fact alone accounts for their mendacity and slanderous character. Jack Hamilton, Pease, Mills and the rest of the defeated and idle politicians about Austin have a finger in the revision and general tone of these attacks, as they look upon Reynolds as their "last ditch". With this explanation as to the pater- nity of these attacks, we are ready to consider their substance.

The first article is headed "The Situation—Gen. Reynolds," and begins thus: "At last we approach the end of one of the sharpest political contests ever fought in Texas."

Why the "sharpest," we see nothing sharp about it unless it is the one point to which the coalition has been whittled.

On the "situation," it says further: "Certainly the General Government might in our present condition, declare General Davis Provisional Governor of our State, and retain him in that position at pleasure. But no reasonable man can believe that he will be declared to be the duly elected Governor of this State for four years, and a portion of the people of the State, duly registered, and numbering four times as many voters as Davis, reputed majorities, had no opportunity of casting their ballots for, or against him. These counties did not vote at the late election, because of alleged disturbance during registration, and threatened disturbance during election."

These defeated tricksters can see nothing but Milam and Navarro, notwithstanding the fact that they went into the election with the possibility of such instances being numerous, and that Milam and Navarro are the only two counties thrown out of the count, is due simply to the dishonesty of registrars in several counties, where violence was resorted to and where the loyal men were either kept from the polls or forced to vote the Rebel ticket, at the muzzle of the pistol; and an election in Milam and Navarro would not effect the result unless the coalition could effect something by corruption or violence as the registered vote stands 1001 colored to 1332 white; allowing that Hamilton would get all the white and 1000 of the black votes, it would not change the result; and this fact is well known to the coalition.

The Republican remarks further: "We doubt whether a general election in any State was ever had, with so little violence as that about concluded in Texas."

This paragraph is intended to help out Milam and Navarro, but were it true, it would be a complete refutation of the argument attempted in the first paragraph quoted. If the election was marked for its quiet and order, for its peace and good humor, for the complete freedom on the part of the people to vote or not to vote, and to vote without constraint, then "a reasonable man can believe" that General Davis is not the duly elected Governor. But the above is not true. In many of the counties, violence and intimidattion was used; in McLellan, in Falls in Robertson, in Kaufman, in Dallas and in other counties the KuKlux ruled the day, with threats, with pistols and Bowie knives, but all this violence and intimidation was used in behalf of Jack Hamilton and his party, which makes it apparent to every "reasonable man," that General Davis is the properly elected Governor, in spite of the violence used to defeat him.

The next point in the Republican's "situation," is set forth as follows: "The contest has really been between Republicans. A majority of the registered Democrats for reasons best known to themselves, remained away from the polls, and this in itself gives the tie to the charge that Hamilton had sold out to them, which was so persistently made by his enemies, both here and at Washington, during the campaign."

This statement is so false that it could only emanate from the Republican, which has the audacity to endorse to the country the party with which it effected a coalition, as Republican in its principles. Judged by any criterion, the "coalition" was not Republican. By its press, the Telegraph, the Galveston News, the State Gazette, the San Antonio Herald, and in fact the entire KuKlux press of the State, how was the contest between Republicans? Judged by its leading politicians, Jack Hamilton was endorsed by the only recognized Democratic organization in the State, the Democratic Executive Committee, of which W. M. Walton is Chairman, and Throckmorton, Mavrick and Josselyn are members; how was the contest between Republicans, in this view of the case? And now by the vote itself, of the 75,000 votes cast, were they all Republicans; were not nearly half of them Conservatives? Were not all those who "cast their votes for Hamilton Conservatives? It was a well defined contest, between Democrats and Republicans, with a large per cent of either side remaining in reserve and not voting "for reasons best known to themselves." The fact of Hamilton's bargain and sale is a matter of history, well established, and proven by the acknowledgement of at least one party to the contract.

We have thus far traced "the situation," as viewed by the Republican, now let us notice briefly their attack upon General Reynolds.

General Reynolds is charged with being a friend of Gen. Hamilton, with being opposed to the Loyal League, with condemning abolition, with censuring Gen. Davis and his friends, with endorsing Hamilton at Washington, and recommending Hamilton men for Federal positions, with making overtures to Hamilton looking to a seat in the U. S. Senate, and falling in the latter case with changing front entirely and maintaining the opposite to all his former course. There is nothing in all these charges except the latter in regard to the aspirations of the General worthy of notice, for even admitting them all the General was excusable in standing upon loyal ground when Hamilton and his friends left for the camp of the enemy; and it is the more honorable in him to have finally amended the wrong he had done the true friends of loyalty and reconstruction in Texas by whatever means he could, when he discovered the true situation of things, on his return to Texas last Spring.

In regard to Gen. Reynolds' political aspirations, it is the key to all the Hamilton troubles; the truth is, that Gen. Reynolds was approached by the Hamilton men, and an attempt made to draw him into a bargain with the Hamilton party. The U. S. Senatorship was the bait, but Gen. Reynolds did not bite, and keeping silent he was wrongfully assailed by the Express in particular, as it was given out that Gen. Reynolds was fishing for the office, while the truth is, Haynes & Co. were fishing for Reynolds. And if "representing him" were given to the public, it might disclose something of this attempt on the part of the "coalition," to trap the Military Commander in the same net with the entire Democratic party and a portion of the Republicans. Kinsey of the Houston Times, openly announced in our streets, that unless Hamilton succeeded in making the bargain with Reynolds, his election was doubtful. We are now established that General Reynolds is entirely innocent of all political maneuvering and that he has aimed to do his duty with great impartiality and in the spirit of an honest soldier under orders.

It is apparent from the attack of the Republican that Haynes & Co. fear, since the people have so signally rebuked them, that it may be deemed but gratitude to offer, Gen. Reynolds the compliment of the U. S. Senatorship, and this would cut off the hopes of the "big fish" now in training for the Senatorial contest.

We have never, like the Republican, expended fulsome praise upon General Reynolds; we have treated him simply as the agent of the government, we have ever held him up to the public in the light of strict responsibility for the success or failure of Reconstruction, and feel in the attitude to speak a word in his defense; we believe him to be an honest, pure man, and while we believe it to be no wish or desire of the General to represent Texas in Congress, should the opposition and abuse of the Republican have the effect of creating public sentiment in his favor, Texas would be honored in the choice. Because they failed to trap Reynolds into a bargain for the Senatorship. The idea of his being a candidate has followed them, as remorse does a guilty soul.

Ballot Box Corruption in Lamar County.

There is wide-spread indignation here produced by the belief that the ballot box was tampered with at the late election. The facts are these: The President of the Board of Registration was a young man by the name of Geo. Armstrong. His father was a successful candidate for Representative. His brother-in-law was a successful candidate for Sheriff. His benefactor, DeWitt was a successful candidate for District Clerk. His enemy, and the enemy of his father, and the said DeWitt, was an unsuccessful candidate for the Senate; although he got nearly triple the white votes in an adjoining county, which the successful aspirant for that office received. And while M. L. Armstrong got but 33 votes in said Lamar county for Representative, he received 573 votes in Lamar. But in Fannin county he had no son to carry home the ballot box.

Strange as it may appear the said George Armstrong had the immodesty and indiscretion to carry the ballot box home with him every night, contrary to the repeated advice and protestations of his friends and many of the candidates.

His home was at the domicile of his brother-in-law, where his father, a grass widower, and DeWitt sojourned during the election business.

George is indebted to DeWitt for his place on the Board of Registrars and his father is under obligations to him for his position as County Clerk of this county. George has, also, the promise of a deputy district clerkship.

The tickets were not numbered and a prolific opportunity was thus offered to the corrupt to further their nefarious designs.

At the close of the election upon Friday night, a hundred to one would have been readily wagered, that M. L. Armstrong did not get a hundred votes in the county, the same odds would have been given to DeWitt or any of his friends.

Vigorous plans are on foot to induce the Commanding General to set this election aside and order a new one.

The men elected were not voted for by the freedmen nor white Republicans. They were cordially hated by them. They were not supported by Democrats, because they had no confidence in their hypocophany; because they had since pure aspirants for these offices of their own persuasion.

There was some KuKluxing prior to the electing to prevent freedmen from going to the polls. It was not without its effect. About 25 or 30 colored men were intimidated and deceived into voting the rebel ticket. Considerable bullying and swearing at the polls by the pluguglies; but this is obsolete in the fraud imbroglio.

Yours,
RENAN.

IRISH POTATOES.—A wagon load of Irish potatoes from the Collette arrived in the city on Thursday and sold readily at $2.50 specie per bushel. The farmer tells us this is part of his second crop this year; this second crop was planted the last of August and first part of September; it is abundant and number one.

BEEF AND BUTCHERS.—A great improvement is being made in arrangement of the meat market, by clearing out the partitions and cleansing and repairing the interior of the building. The next step is an ordinance defining the kind of benches and blocks to be used and the manner of cleaning the same, which is contemplated in the new ordinance. The filthy benches used to chop up meat on, must be cleared out and we feel sure the butchers themselves will appreciate thorough cleansing regulations, once they are put in operation. The idea has been thrown out that in consequence of the higher rent placed upon the stalls, beef would be dearer; this is not so, for will it be so as long as beef cattle sell for a little more than the value of the hide and tallow.

Facts for the Ladies.
I have used my Wheeler & Wilson over fifteen years. It has done the sewing for two families, and numerous benevolent purposes, without the cost of repairs. I had no personal instructions, but simply followed the printed directions.

What It Is Not And What It Is.—These truths are self-evident. PHALON'S VITALIA OR SALVATION FOR THE HAIR is neither sticky like molasses, nor muddy like a gutter puddle. It is on the contrary a genial fluid, clear, limpid, aromatic, harmless, and will restore to gray hair, whiskers, beards and mustaches, their original color as certainly as a machine melts the snow.
Where there is likely to be a Contest.

While the coalition have been howling over the counties of Milam and Navarro, evidence has been piling up mountain high to prove that in one Congressional District, the most outrageous frauds have been committed in behalf of the coalition, and resulting in the announcement that Conner, the negro Captain carpet-bagger democrat, is elected to Congress from that District. Had there been a fair election in the 2nd Congressional District, not only would the Republican candidate have been declared elected, but the entire District saved from the local rule of the Ku Klux.

Conner's seat is likely to be contested before Congress, and the facts of the election in that section properly disclosed; and when that disclosure is made, it will show that in several of the most populous counties of the State, fraud and violence ruled the hour.

As the case unfolds, the investigation will take in other districts, and while it may involve time and a postponement of reconstruction, it will result in the vindication of the rights of the loyal people of Texas.

In view of the result of the recent election, an unscrupulous clergyman in Mississippi, Rev. John Sample, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, has recommended to the people of that State that they observe Thursday, January 14, as a day of fasting and prayer to God to relieve them from the hand of the oppressor, that their "afflictions may be removed or rendered tolerable."

A NEW DISCOVERY!
PHALON'S
"VITALIA;"
Salvation for the Hair.

For Restoring to Gray Hair its Original Color.
PHALON'S "VITALIA" differs utterly from all the "dyes," "colorers," and "restorers" (?) in use. It acts on a totally different principle. It is limpid, fragrant, and perfectly innocuous precipitates no muddy or flaccid matter, requires no shampooing, and communicates no stain to the skin or the linen. No paper curtain is necessary to conceal its turkish appearance, for the simple reason that it is not turkish. It is, to all intents and purposes, a new discovery in Toilet Chemistry.

Phalon's "VITALIA" is warranted to effect a change in the color of the hair within 10 days after the first application, the directions being carefully observed.

IT IS AS CLEAR AS WATER AND HAS NO SEDIMENT.
Price, One Dollar per Box, CONTAINING TWO BOTTLES.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
If your Druggist has not "Vitalia" on hand, write enclosing $1.00, and we will forward it immediately.

PLANTATION BITTERS

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.
Wherever it is introduced it becomes a standard article—a medicinal staple. It is to-day the best and purest tonic, and the most popular medicine in the civilized world—be sure and get the genuine. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Country Stores.
