Protect Yourself -- Against Crime

By Wayne Holmes
Crime Prevention Officer
Muleshoe Police Department

Have you recently moved into a new home or apartment? If so, did you replace the existing locks or have the old one serviced and rekeyed? A lock is like anything else, it needs maintenance. Do you open your door to anyone? Have you ever let anyone come into your home to make an emergency call? You may let in a robber, rapist or other criminal. The safest thing you can do is to offer to make the call for the person, refuse admittance. Many criminals now operate in disguise of magazine salesmen, gas men, plumbers, survey consultants and others. Never give answers to people who claim to be conducting a survey. If it is a criminal, they can expertly extract information from you before you realize it. Require gas men, plumbers, tax people, and others to show identification.

Police Report

Three persons were charged with vandalism and two with burglary to lead the arrest list by local law enforcement officers during the past week. Also arrests were logged for two drunk, one assault and one transporting illegal liquor. Fires reported included a grass fire at Protein Processors and a grass fire at Bailey County Memorial Park.

thing else. What are some forms of passive resistance? You might fake fainting, you might appeal rationally to the attacker, you might fake giving in until the right moment to run or resist occurs. Another method is called active resistance, this is using any weapon at hand, which might be a rat-tail comb, nailfile, hairspray, kicking or biting. This method can often be the most fatal to you. First you must get the weapon you are going to use, next you must use it against a person who will most often be bigger, stronger and has a weapon himself in hand. The last method is self defense such as Karate or Judo. The problem here is it takes years of practice to become proficient in martial arts and more practice to stay efficient. Even the most experienced Black Belt in Karate will avoid a fight if another way out exists.

It is your life and property and it is your responsibility to protect yourself. You have been given a few suggestions, but there is more you can do to avoid an unpleasant, possibly painful experience. For more information and assistance, contact your police or sheriff department's crime prevention officer.

Volunteer Fireman Pension Proposed

State senators Don Adams of Jasper and John Traeger of Seguin today sponsored Texas' first complete and actuarially sound pension plan for volunteer fire fighters.

"We feel it's high time the State acted on behalf of volunteer fire fighters for their years of unselfish service to its rural communities," said Senator Adams.

"This is the most far-reaching pension plan in existence," noted Senator Traeger. "It will be a model for others in the future because it combines centralized collection with local controls."

The plan increases benefits, reduces the level of member contributions, and meets all requirements of the Employee Retirement Security Act of 1974 (the new Federal Pension Reform Act).

"It represents the best concepts in money management, combined with actuarially sound planning," said Senator Adams. "We save money by using statewide services for collections, but the disbursement and implementation of the pension fund are in the hands of the local organizations."

"Our pension plan is sound now. It has been taken apart by actuaries. It will be sound in the future," said Senator Traeger.

"It will not face the problems of pension plans like those in the City of New York because it is not a giveaway," said Senator Adams.

Features of the Adams-Traeger bill include:

- * The plan is optional. If a unit elects to join the system, its employer (governmental unit under whose jurisdiction the unit falls) makes a monthly contribution of at least $12 per fire fighter. "The fire fighter makes no monetary contribution," said Senator Adams.

- * The State contributes an amount necessary to keep the system actuarially sound, up to 1/2 the employer contributions that year. (The Legislative Budget Board estimates this cost to be $220,904 each year for the next five years.)

The bill was finally passed out of the Senate unanimously on a voice vote.

Actual benefits for fire fighters include:

- * A monthly retirement benefit of three times the employer's average monthly contribution or a minimum of $36 per month.

- * For each year over 15 years of fire fighting service and participation in the system, the retirement benefit is increased by seven percent, compounded annually.

- * Retirement age is 55.

- * A disabled fire fighter receives a monthly disability benefit of three times the employer's last contribution.

- * A fire fighter disabled in the performance of his fire fighting duties is guaranteed at least $250 per month.

- * If a fire fighter dies before retirement, his beneficiaries receive a lump sum which equals the sum contributed to the fund on his behalf or the sum that would be contributed for him at the end of 15 years service, whichever is greater.

- * Beneficiaries of a fire fighter who dies in the performance of his duties are guaranteed at least $5,000.

- * Alternatively, the spouse of a fire fighter who dies while drawing his retirement benefits, continues to receive 1/3 of those retirement benefits.

- * The active fire fighter's spouse and dependents receive a monthly benefit equal to 1/3 of the disability benefit the fire fighter might have received, had he lived.

- * So long as the spouse and one or more dependents both survive, the dependents receive an additional 1/3 of the disability benefit.

- * The present pension system is so bad that fewer than 7,000 of the state's 35,000 volunteer fire fighters have chosen to belong to it," said Senator Adams.

- * For less than what the state spent in 1974 just to bail the old system out, our legislation will provide a solid future in pensions for volunteer fire fighters," said Senator Traeger.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek examines some statistics this week, more or less.

Dear editor:

How to interpret statistics is an art a lot of people haven't mastered, and the best way for a scientist for example to get his name in the paper is to announce that his experiments show that something we've all been consuming for years is harmful to rats in his laboratory, although it doesn't seem to bother rats on the outside; they keep right on multiplying and thriving on our leftovers.

What brought this to mind were some statistics I read on the use of hand guns in crime. According to the figures, only 16 percent of guns confiscated by the police when they apprehended criminals were the cheap "Saturday Night Specials", the rest were expensive models, like Colt and Smith & Wesson.

This, an analysis by experts concluded, proves that banning the manufacture and sale of Saturday Night Specials would have rather small effect in curbing crime.

The expert who figures that out may not be able to see the facts for the statistics. He may not understand the American way of crime. He may not know you have to crawl before you can walk.

I mean, starting out in crime may be like starting out in business. Most of the time, unless your father owns the plant or, in the case of crime, runs the gang, you have to start on a shoestring.

Sure, it's nice, in the case of business, to start out as a vice president of the company, and, in crime, with a brand new Smith & Wesson revolver, but the ordinary American youngster has no such headstart.

Therefore, if you've chosen crime as your profession, about the best you can manage at the start is a cheap Saturday Night

Special, and then gradually work your way up to the better pistols. Oh, you can start with a butcher knife, but you've got to be mighty ambitious to try it.

Now as everybody knows, about two-thirds of the criminals practicing their profession these days have already been convicted a time or two and are out on bond, or parole, or were declared rehabilitated and released from prison. Gary Gilmore was out on parole.

So to go further into those statistics showing only 16 percent of the crimes were committed with cheap guns, those experts ought to find out how many first crimes were pulled off with them. As a man advances in his professions and accumulates capital, naturally he acquires better and better equipment.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Foster Homes Sought For Family - Sharing

The State Department of Public Welfare is looking for foster homes for low-income aged, blind, or disabled adults whose homes are no longer safe, or who, for one reason or another, have no homes.

"When aged or disabled adults are no longer able to live in their own homes, they are faced with the choice of living with friends or relatives or moving into an institution," according to Carol White, welfare department social service worker at Littlefield.

"Unfortunately, the choice is not always there. In the absence of friends or family, many are sent unnecessarily to institutions, such as mental institutions or nursing homes."

"However, the welfare department is trying to give those individuals another choice with the foster home program," Miss White continued. "This is for ambulatory people who need shelter and some help with activities of daily living."

"We are seeking warm hearted people who have room in their homes for one to three aged or disabled persons who are not related to them. The foster family must be willing to help provide opportunities for social, recreational and religious activities as appropriate, as well as room and board. It is, really, a family-sharing program which would enrich the lives of all concerned."

Cost of the care is shared by the individual and the welfare department. Payment to the foster family is $220 per person per month.

Carol White asked persons interested in learning more about providing this service to contact her at 311 West Fourth Street, or to call at 385-4416 Littlefield.

"Specials" Best Economy Measure

Canned and frozen vegetables can "rescue" budget-conscious consumers from increased prices on some fresh items, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, suggests.

She advises checking grocery markets for "specials" as the best economy measure.

"Lettuce seems to be the most economical fresh-vegetable item -- and onions, potatoes (white and sweet), squash, rutabagas and turnips are among the better vegetable values," she said.

In the moderate-price range, quality vegetables include carrots, broccoli, spinach, mustard and collards, she added.

Fresh fruits in greatest abundance at top quality are grapefruit, oranges and winter pears. Bananas and avocados have

"At meat counters, beef is in good supply with consumer-favorable prices. Now is the time to buy beef for generous use in today's meals -- and to store in the freezer for future use," Mrs. Clyatt noted.

Most featured beef items are chuck roasts and steaks and ground beef -- along with round, sirloin and T-bone steaks.

Acrylic Bathtubs Require Special Care

COLLEGE STATION -- Acrylic bathtubs and shower units require special care, Glenda Moore, a housing and home furnishings specialist, says. They are usually reinforced with fiberglass to provide a thick, super strong, smooth surface which will give years of durable service, added this specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Using abrasive or solvent base cleaners will mar the surface. Instead, use powdered detergent dry on a damp cloth to provide adequate, mild abrasive action to clean the unit.

"Foreign materials, such as plaster, glue, or paint can be removed by scraping with a sharpened soft wood stick. Metal scrapers, wire brushes, or other metal tools should not be used on an acrylic unit."

She said that light scratches and dulled areas may be removed by rubbing an automotive type body cleaning compound on the surface. Follow this cleaning with a light application of liquid wax, used for home appliances.

"The acrylic compounds used in bathtubs are combustible, slow-burning plastic. Extreme heat is harmful to the surface, and burning cigarettes cause permanent marks."

"For everyday cleaning, use a soft cloth and any liquid detergent. The smooth contour lines of molded bathtub-shower units make necessary daily care a breeze."

Life Of South Africans Studied By UMU

South Africa was the study which was presented to the United Methodist Women when they met Tuesday, March 8, in the Methodist Church.

This was the first of several studies which are being presented by the UMW of the Earth Methodist Church. Mrs. Norman Sulser of Earth began the study with placing those with different color eyes in groups according to their color. Those with blue eyes were served coffee by those with brown eyes, and those with green eyes were told to serve their own.

This was demonstration symbolic to the situation in Africa - the whites are supreme, the colored second in supremacy and the blacks are treated as slaves.

Mrs. Sulser stated that the people of America are involved at many levels in what is happening in Africa. Identifying and exploring those issues will not be comfortable, nor will easy answers emerge. But unless the people of America face the issues seriously, dishonesty is being played with faith and humanity.

So long as any person is oppressed, those who know the liberation of Jesus Christ cannot rest. If the people cannot identify what the dilemmas are in their nations.

Mrs. Ed Dawson gave statistics on the education and the role of women in the churches in South Africa. Mrs. W.P. Holland of Earth also participated in the program.

Members attending from Muleshoe were Mrs. Robert Hooten, Mrs. J.A. Nickles, Mrs. Oscar Allison, Mrs. Lewis Wayne Shafer, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Mrs. J.E. McVicker, Mrs. Sam Fox, Mrs. Ted Allen and Mrs. Carter Williams.

The next study will be at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, March 15, in the parlor of the First Methodist Church.

Commuter Course Offered In March

Registration is open for a complete credit and non-credit real estate principles course to be offered in three weekends at Amarillo College March 19.

"Those enrolled can earn 45 clock hours (continuing education units, CEUs) or three semester hours of credit," said Clair Mayes, supervisor of Adult Vocational Education at AC.

Those enrolled for semester-hour credit must complete regular AC entrance requirements at the registrar's office located in the Washington Street Administration Building. Those taking the class for clock-hour credit will enroll in the registrar's office with no prerequisites. Students may enroll at the first class session, also.

The fee is the same for all students regardless of credit or non-credit enrollment. Resident cost is $31.50; non-resident, $37.50; and out-of-state, $64.50. To each of these costs will be added $14.65 to cover the price of the textbook -- Modern Real Estate Practice in Texas by Morse and Taylor.

The class, which will meet eight hours each day March 19, 20, 26, 27, April 2 and 3, will be team-taught by Regi Spiers of Panhandle Savings and Loan, John Jenkins of Jenkins Realtors and Dan Trew, assistant professor of mid-management at Amarillo College.

Those enrolled will meet on the third floor mall area of the Technology and Business Occupations Buildings, Washington Street Campus.

"VA benefits are available for those taking the semester-hour class," said Mayes.

"The course will acquaint the student," said Mayes, "with the fundamental principles involved in the ownership and transfer of real property. The course also helps to prepare the student to take the Texas Real Estate Salesman's License examination and provides three semester hours or 45 clock hours of the required formal training necessary before license application or license renewal," said Mayes.

The course will cover such subjects as property rights, ownership, financing, property evaluation, among others.

Those desiring more information may telephone Mayes or Trew at AC.

MRS. SAM FOX

Mrs. Sam Fox March Artist Of The Month

Mrs. Sam (Veree) Fox has been chosen 'Artist of the Month' by the Muleshoe Art Association. She first starting painting 12 years ago, studying with Dr. Emilio Caballero of West Texas State University. Dr. Caballero was conducting a workshop in Muleshoe and Mrs. Fox worked mostly with acrylics and watercolor. After not painting for several years, she recently started working with oils taking instructions from Mrs. Elizabeth Black. "I prefer painting flowers," commented Mrs. Fox, "but, I will paint anything." She is presently attempting to capture West Texas, especially the area around Muleshoe, in an effort to capture the brilliant sky, landmarks and historical facets of the West Texas heritage.

"Free Photo" Offers Not Always "Free"

"Get a free photo of your child" may turn out to mean anything but "free", Claudia Kerbel, a consumer information specialist, says. These advertisements sometimes back up real bargains -- but Ms. Kerbel advised consumers to investigate before signing up. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Generally, bargain photographers offer a decent picture at a reasonable price. However, one of the biggest drawbacks is having little recourse if you are dissatisfied with the photos. If you want a variety of props, different settings and privacy, go to a professional," she said. Don't be pressured into buying more pictures for friends and relatives. One scheme is for the photographer to print pictures of varying sizes and make them available -- just in case you want more than the special offer, she said. "Be sure to read the fine print. The free photo may be good only with a purchase of $50. When accepting a photo offer, be sure to inquire if there are purchase requirements. "It will take probably three to five weeks to get the photos. Be sure to ask what form of notification to expect -- mail or phone -- and try to get the delivery date in writing. "Often consumers are required to pay for the special offer picture at the time of the sitting, but it's wise to hold off paying for additional pictures until you receive them." Also, beware of long term picture packages. These contracts can run for 10 or 20 years, promising a family portrait or child's photo each year. Often these companies go out of business leaving the consumer with only a few pictures. Check with the Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce if you have any doubts about the reputations of a photographer, she cautioned. "If you do sign a contract from a traveling salesman who comes to your home, remember that you have three days to cancel your order," she said.

Cut Food Cost, Still Assure Nutritional Health

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan
With this chicken and spaghetti dinner we would suggest a tossed salad and hard rolls.

Spaghetti with Chicken

- 1 (3 lb.) chicken, disjointed
- 1/2 c butter
- 1 t salt
- 1/2 c chopped celery leaves
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 c boiling water
- 1 lb. mushrooms, sliced
- 3 T flour
- heavy cream
- 2/3 c grated Romano cheese
- 1 lb. spaghetti, cooked
- 1/4 c dry Sherry (optional)

Brown chicken in 3 table-spoons butter. Add salt, celery, onions and water. Cover, simmer until chicken is tender, about 50 minutes. Cool, bone and cube meat. Strain and reserve broth. Sauté mushrooms in 2 table-spoons butter in saucepan, add flour and blend. Add enough cream to chicken broth to make 3 cups of liquid. Bring to a boil and add all at once to butter-flour mixture, stirring vigorously with whisk. Stir in cheese and add chicken and mushrooms. Stir in Sherry and heat but do not boil. Serve over hot spaghetti. Serves 6.

Businesses succeed when someone attends to the small details that the average boss is "too busy" to fool with.

Consumers can cut food costs -- and still eat nutritionally -- by following several guidelines, Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist, says. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. -- Plan food shopping to make fewer trips to the grocery store and shop at fewer stores. This lowers fuel cost for driving the car -- cutting down on food costs. -- Buy some of the less expensive foods and cook some foods from scratch. Foods to be cooked from scratch often are less expensive than convenience foods. -- Cut down on snack foods. -- Plan meals that include some of the unsaturated fats. Cut down on total calories if overweight, and eat foods that carry adequate amounts of needed nutrients. -- Eat a dark green or deep yellow vegetable at least every other day. -- Check the day's total intake of food to see that foods from the basic four food groups are included -- even when some of the meals are eaten away from home. "The basic four include: two cups of milk for adults or the calcium equivalent in dairy products, two servings of meat or meat alternates, four servings of fruits and vegetables including one rich in Vitamin C and one rich in Vitamin A, and four servings of bread. -- Check with the doctor before going on a weight reduction regimen. -- Learn basic nutrition knowledge needed to choose a nutritionally adequate diet. "Attend continuing education classes or some other group under the leadership of a dietitian, nutritionist or home economist. Adequate nutrition not only is an aid to keeping healthy but can help prevent disease and costly medical bills. -- Grow fruits and vegetables at home if there's time and space. Fresh fruits and vegetables can add zest to family meals, possibly save some money and develop into a new hobby. -- Use sound food safety practices when handling food -- from the store to the table. Food-borne illness causes discomfort, loss of money and sometimes loss of life. -- Use a variety of foods from the meat group in family meals -- beef, pork, lamb, poultry, fish -- and don't forget meat alternates such as beans, peas, lentils and nuts. They not only add variety to meals, but help save money, too. -- Plan to cook a whole meal in the oven in order to cut down on fuel cost. -- Preparing some meals in a slow cooker helps lower fuel cost. -- Use nutrient labeling on foods to make buying choices.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa, I have a sister who has one child whom she loves very much, but she is so possessive and so eager for him to be perfect in every respect that I think she is doing him harm. If I ask him a question she doesn't give me time to think about what he should answer--she answers the question by telling him what to say. This goes on all of the time. Don't you think this is bad? Won't the child always rely on someone else to think things out for him, even as he grows older? Auntie--Pa.

to answer for him, but a parent is really depriving a child of becoming self reliant and sure of himself by doing this. What if his answer is not so good? That is the way children learn. A small child goes around touching things--that is one way of learning. It is not being mischievous but is his way of learning about things in the world by touch. By letting him answer questions in his own way he is exercising his mind. If he needs or asks for help that is the time for the parent to come to his aid. Louisa

Shocking Immigration Changes

The majority of Americans, descended from the peoples of Europe, whose early settlers founded the nation and gave it its culture and form of government, have been played for absolute fools in the matter of immigration.

Present federal policy is changing the racial composition of the United States faster than anyone imagined possible a decade ago. Discrimination or racial prejudice is not the question. The question is whether the majority of Americans want their country transformed into an Asian-Latin nation. That transformation is taking place because of an idealistic immigration law passed by Congress in the sixties—allowing immigration to the United States on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Until then the nations which had given America its founding population were allowed emigrants on a quota basis—the percentage allowed corresponded to the percentage of that country's descendants in America. Other nations, which had played no part in the founding of this country, were not equally considered.

Naturally, since the United States was the world's richest country with the best paying jobs attracting potential emigrants everywhere, a clamor went up from the undeveloped countries and Latin countries (which are always over-populated) for greater numbers of emigres.

Congress, responding to the lobbying and one-world pressure from special interests, recklessly passed a new immigration law, allowing everyone equal access. The result is that Asians and those from other undeveloped countries are flooding application forms.

English, Irish, Germans, Scandinavians, Dutchmen, Frenchmen, Italians, etc., now face a most difficult task in gaining entrance to this country. Asians, who will always apply in vast numbers are now arriving in this country on a four-to-one basis.

Idealists question whether anything's wrong with that. What's wrong is that history shows no Asian or Latin nation has ever sustained a stable democracy for any period of time. It is, therefore, a reckless gamble, to change the racial majority in this country, and it's also unfair to the nationals of countries which sent the settlers and laws and civilization to found this nation. In addition, it's in everyone's interest, those of all countries, for the United States to remain a strong democracy and as yet only peoples derived from Europe have shown a talent for this governmental art.

If some immigration law changes were desirable a decade ago, and they were, quota limits should have been updated to conform to current population and liberalized but limited immigration from Asia should have been added as a separate category.

What has been done in theory discriminates against none but in effect has changed our immigration pattern completely and discriminated against Europeans. We are now taking in Asians in large numbers, Latins are flooding in illegally over the Mexican border, and residents of European countries who want to come to America are turned back because there is a vast list of Asians who are already ahead of them on the waiting list—and always will be. It's almost too idiotic to believe, but it's true.

WASHINGTON NEWS REPORT

Congress On Defense—The Army—The Infantry—Close Air Support—WASHINGTON, D.C.—

Congress—the two armed services committees—is now trying to determine whether U.S. ground troops will have adequate support from the air in a future emergency, and also whether NATO forces have good odds against Warsaw Pact powers in a conventional war.

U.S. troops are now dependent on the Army's helicopters for much air support but that concept is suspect and the Pentagon is said to be recommending heavy cuts in the Army's AAH (advanced attack helicopter) program.

The fear is that helicopters are overly vulnerable.

The Air Force has in recent years procured a special close air support aircraft, the A-10. But critics contend this is a large, vulnerable, slow target and will be easily shot out of the skies. It has survived thus far, despite doubts in the U.S. and Europe.

If the AAH and A-10 aren't what advocates had hoped, where is the U.S. ground soldier to get the close support in the air which has invariably in recent years saved the American soldier's bacon when the going got tough?

It will come from jets, perhaps, though ordinance delivery from the air isn't accurate beyond speeds of 400 knots, and jets are not at their best at slow speeds, either for air fighting or acceleration.

How can all those potential enemy tanks be stopped if the U.S. doesn't have—in any new crisis—the air superiority it has enjoyed ever since World War II?

The answer may be hand-held missiles, anti-tank missiles, the newer weapons, such as laser-guided missiles and television or smart bombs. The Russians however, are ahead of the U.S. in this field—if not in technology in having equipped their forces with quantities of such weapons and vehicles.

In short, Congress is looking at a land-war picture that isn't encouraging. This country is short on tanks, close air support is suspect and there are not yet enough sophisticated anti-tank weapons on hand.

The picture has improved a bit in recent years in the aerial combat sphere, with the F-15 and F-16 especially holding promise (if the F-15's missiles are capable of high altitude accuracy) and the Navy's F-14 and F-18 carrying high hopes. But on the ground there's concern about U.S. capabilities.

There's small revenge in words, but words may be greatly revenged. —Benjamin Franklin.

SECEDE TRY

CHILMARK, MASS.—Residents of pastoral Martha's Vineyard island, angered by the prospect of losing their only delegate to the state legislature, are attempting to secede from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

CAIRO--Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has hailed President Carter's decision to cancel the sale of concussion bombs to Israel as "a positive and creative step."

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--Sometime in the near future a time capsule is due to be sealed which will contain the thoughts and predictions of many state officials.

Governor Briscoe asked me to include some of my ideas about Texas in the next 100 years. I chose to speculate on what Texas government must do to survive.

It is my prediction that if the state government of Texas is to survive from 1977 to 2077 then it, along with other state governments, must show sufficient courage and the strong will needed to use the constitutional powers at its command and work to preserve individual freedoms and rights.

State government will not survive the next 100 years unless it chooses nothing less than increased excellence and effectiveness.

If this does not happen, then state government at best will become but an administrative shell of an all-encompassing federal government. The end result might be the obliteration of state government.

Texas government must remain democratic, open and an accessible tool of the people's collective will. It is state government that provides a close relationship of citizen to government. We must not let that relationship fall into disrepair. We must hold to that premise for all of our tomorrows.

The decisions that are made in the 1970s will long affect the people of this state, perhaps even 100 years in the future. Two life-giving areas where the right decisions must be made are in the fields of energy and water.

If proper action is not taken in the immediate future then the quality of life in the future could be adversely affected. State government must take a role in both of these areas.

Future generations must not be preoccupied with survival rather than progress, but that will be the dreary theme of the future unless energy and water are both available in ample quantities.

Government, both federal and state, must refrain from attempting to be all things to all people. I hope future generations of Texans will not live in a nightmare world of robot people controlled by the all-powerful central government.

Ever since the first Texan looked out over his land, this country has been one of individual initiative and personal freedom. Long may that continue for the next 100 years, just as it has for all our history.

In the next 100 years it is my prediction that there will be many leaders come to the forefront to guide Texas to the position as number 1 superstar state of the nation.

Gifford-Hill's 360. Good to the last drop.

Whether first or last, that little drop of water is more important than you think.

Gifford-Hill came up with a fine, mist-like drop that penetrates the soil quickly.

In fact, the 360's entire sprinkler spacing and water pattern concept was computer designed to provide efficient distribution and a smaller drop that could virtually eliminate compaction, puddling and runoff.

But all that wasn't enough. They went ahead and built in more automation, more control and more plain old durability than you can find in any other system.

All things considered, Gifford-Hill's 360 Pivotal Sprinkler System is the most sophisticated system available today.

Beware! Veteran Students

Veterans going to school under the GI Bill could wind up in debt to the federal government if they drop courses or receive non-punitive grades under certain circumstances, Jack Coker, VA Regional Office Director, said today.

Coker explained that a recent Congressional amendment to the GI Bill requires the agency to retroactively cancel assistance payments for a course dropped without a grade. This applies also in cases when a course is completed but the grade assigned is, in effect, ignored by the school for graduation purposes.

The new regulations do not apply when the situation was caused by circumstances beyond the student's control, Coker said.

He described the new regulation as a major change in GI Bill benefit payments policy.

The new law provides that VA may not pay educational benefits for any part of a course which is not used in computing graduation requirements, Coker explained.

This means, he said, that many students will find themselves overpaid under the GI Bill for courses from which they withdraw and for courses in which the assigned grade is not used in computing the requirements for graduation.

Payments for such a course must be stopped as of the first day of the school term, or December 1, 1976, whichever date is later, he said.

For example, if a student withdraws from a course on April 1, under the conditions outlined, VA payments will, in effect, be terminated retroactively to the beginning of the term.

In the past, GI Bill payments would have been continued up to the date of withdrawal but the new law prohibits this.

National Nutrition Time Is Designated

March is National Nutrition Month, a good time to remember that food to meet the physical needs of the individual is essential to good health. According to the Texas Department of Health Resources, dietary counselling is becoming recognized as a basic part of many kinds of health care.

Dietary counselling is the process of giving individualized professional guidance to help people to adjust their daily food consumption to meet their health needs. It's up to the patient to make wise food selections, which means that he must understand his own nutritional requirements and follow the advice of the dietary counsellor.

According to Dr. Helen Campbell, director of the special nutrition project of the Department of Health Resources, dietary counselling is often a component of the individual health plan, developed by a physician, for people with chronic illnesses and health-endangering conditions such as obesity. Frequently, the physician includes a professional, registered dietitian in the health care team.

The counselling may involve such factors as the patient's present food habits and eating practices. A variety of socioeconomic factors, including ethnic and religious beliefs, must be considered to ensure that the dietary plan will be acceptable to the individual. The plan is developed, in writing, in consultation with the patient and is explained fully by the counsellor; in many cases, the patient's entire family is involved, since many people find it impractical to prepare special meals for one member of the family. Of course, the entire counselling process is supervised by the physician to make sure that the dietary plan satisfies the health objectives that have been set with the patient.

This approach places important responsibilities on each person involved in the health care process. The physician guides and directs the entire process, and must recognize the contribution that dietary counselling can make to the overall treatment plan. The registered dietitian must develop a dietary plan that satisfies the patient's health needs, and determined by the physician, while at the same time satisfying the tastes and habits of the patient. In most cases, a nurse provides follow-up supervision to ensure that the patient follows the plan that has been prescribed and reports on progress or difficulties to the physician and the nutritionist.

Panhandle Women Will Be Honored

Nominations to honor outstanding women of the Panhandle should be submitted to the West Texas State University Women's Program Committee by midnight, March 21, announced Dr. Enid Bates, director of programs for women.

Hosting the second annual luncheon for the Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards, the WTSU committee will recognize women who have distinguished themselves by outstanding business, professional or volunteer service.

"We sincerely hope clubs and organizations will help us by nominating any deserving women, 18 years of age or above and a resident of one of the top 32 counties of the Texas Panhandle," said Dr. Bates.

A new restriction this year is that designations are limited to clubs or organizations with one nominee per organization.

In order to make the judges' work easier, Dr. Bates requests that information be submitted on an official nomination form. Forms may be obtained from the WT Women's Office or by writing Dr. Bates at Box 185, WT Station, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Organizations may nominate women from the following counties: Armstrong, Bailey, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Donley, Floyd, Gray, Hale, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lamb, Lipscomb, Moore, Motley, Ochiltree, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Sherman, Swisher and Wheeler.

Dr. Bates adds that nominees do not have to be graduates of WTSU.

Awards recognizing the roles women have played in the development of the Texas Panhandle will be presented at the April 23 luncheon.

Deadline for the committee to receive nominations for this tribute is Monday, March 21.

team, of course, is the patient. The patient, or health care consumer, must become more aware of nutrition as a cornerstone of positive health, and must realize the importance of dietary counselling in helping to develop and maintain sound nutritional habits. It is also the patient's responsibility to implement the health care plan. Nutritionally, this means providing, preparing, and eating the foods prescribed in the plan. It's also important for the patient to be able to get in touch with one of the professional team member whenever a question or problem arises.

According to Dr. Campbell, sound dietary counselling relies on seeking the answers to several basic questions:

1. Does the patient understand the condition for which the special nutritional plan is being prescribed?
2. Does the patient understand why certain foods are stressed, limited, or omitted?
3. Does, or can, the patient make substitutions in the plan to fit individual tastes and food preferences?
4. Is there a relationship between the foods in the plan and any medication prescribed by the physician? If so, does the patient understand that relationship?

5. Are there any dietary requirements which might be mutually exclusive or conflicting? If so, can the patient manage to satisfy all of the requirements?

Medical scientists and nutritionists realize today that an individual's food consumption must satisfy a number of needs, including psychological and aesthetic gratification. It's not simply a matter of determining a narrow, rigid list of foods that are "good for a person". Many different foods can be selected to serve the same nutritional purposes. That's why the team approach to dietary counselling is so important: a skilled, experienced dietitian, following the specifications set out by the physician, and working with the patient, can develop a plan that everyone can live with -- in good health.

Private Applicator Training Slated

Cochran County producers will have an opportunity to complete a training program leading to certification as private applicators at a program scheduled for Monday, March 21, 7:30 p.m., at the County Activity Building in Morton according to Roy Jones, County Extension Agent.

The Private Applicator Certification Training Program, one of the optional means of qualifying for certification as a private applicator of restricted-use pesticides, includes a discussion of laws, labels and labeling, pesticide safety, mixing and calibration and pests and pest damage identification. The program prepared by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service includes a review of certain questions relating to the information presented. The program will require approximately three hours. Those attending and seeking certification as private applicators will have an opportunity to complete a Request for Private Applicator Certification which will be forwarded to the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) for issuance of certification.

As an alternative to participation in a training program, an individual may qualify for certification as a private applicator by submitting a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture following a review of self-study materials. The self-study materials may be obtained at the county Extension office.

'The Hiding Place' Coming To Muleshoe

Its cast topped by Julie Harris, Eileen Heckart and Arthur O'Connell and with a screen discovery Jeannette Clift in a key role, World Wide Pictures' "The Hiding Place" bows here March 31 at the Wallace Theatre in Muleshoe.

Filed at a cost approximating $1.7 million, the picture is the most ambitious to come from the studio of World Wide Pictures, an adjunct of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Regarded by many critics as America's foremost living actress, Miss Harris has four times won the New York stage performers' most coveted recognition, the Tony Award. Miss Heckart is an Academy Award winner, and O'Connell twice has been nominated for an Oscar.

"The Hiding Place" is based on the Corrie ten Boom best-seller of the same title and relates her World War II experiences as a Dutch Christian leading an underground force intent upon saving Jews from capture by the invading Nazi forces in Holland. She is portrayed by Miss Clift. Corrie's sister Betsie, the physically weaker of the two sisters by the stronger one spiritually, is played by Miss Harris; Miss Heckart portrays a prison trustee serving as a nurse in the Germany death camp, Ravensbrück, who befriends the sisters. O'Connell is cast as the ten Boom's father.

The story was before the cameras for more than four months, with the first month's shooting confined to Haarlem, Holland (outside of Amsterdam) where the ten Booms lived.

The balance of the story was filmed in England, with the company first working in a London studio before moving to Linfield, 50 miles distant.

The latter location was at Hobbs Barracks which during World War II served as a headquarters for the Royal Women's Army Corps. This facility was vastly altered to represent Ravensbrück, a Nazi death camp where thousands of women were to die before the Hitlerian holocaust came to an end.

The screenplay, an adaptation by Allan Sloane and Lawrence Holben, was directed by James F. Collier who has emerged as Hollywood's top director in the area of religion-oriented films.

'Mission' 77: Stamp Out Screwworms' Gets Underway

A massive statewide voluntary campaign by livestock producers and other leaders -- known as "Mission '77: Stamp Out Screwworms" -- was launched during a special conference called by Gov. Dolph Briscoe here on February 24.

More than 1,600 livestock owners, county Screwworm Subcommittee members, agribusiness leaders and county Extension agents participated in the conference.

"Livestock owners and leaders have urged that we need to take advantage of a rare combination of factors which can make the campaign against screwworms successful this year," Briscoe said in the keynote address.

These factors, the governor continued, include a cold winter that will reduce the number of screwworm flies this spring, a new strain of sterile flies which has been developed and is showing significant improvement over earlier flies, and the new screwworm plant in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, which will double the sterile fly production capacity.

William F. Brown, World Wide Pictures' president, and Frank R. Jacobson are the executive producer and producer, respectively.

was discussed by Dr. Ruben Fernandez Villalobos, sub-director of the National Institute of Insemination in Mexico.

The current challenge was discussed by Dr. Daniel C. Pannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Dr. M.E. Meadows of the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Program at Mission; Dr. H.O. Sibley, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission; and T.A. Kincaid, president of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation.

Reagan Brown, special assistant to the governor, moderated the program. After a "dutch treat" lunch, a reception was held at the Governor's Mansion for conference participants.

Friena Cowboy Also Ocularist

When Joe Bill Jones is not out buying cattle with his Dad, he is the only man in West Texas and one of a very few in the state making custom fitted artificial eyes.

"My father is a cattle buyer and I lived on a farm outside of Friena, Texas all my life until I went off to college and became an Ocularist."

An Ocularist is trained to fit and fabricate artificial eyes, and Joe Bill Jones, 25, spends approximately two and one half days fitting and making each of his patient's prosthesis (artificial body part).

"I use the Modified Impression Method of fitting artificial eyes," Jones said. "I take an impression of the eye socket, from which I make a wax pattern. The wax pattern is smoothed down and the iris-cornea piece is added."

"I work with the wax pattern until it is shaped to match the companion eye and lids. I then make another mold from the finished wax pattern. When the mold is completed, it is opened and the wax pattern removed. The iris-cornea piece is then removed from the wax pattern and placed into the mold. Then, white acrylic is packed into the mold and cured for forty minutes. Curing is a process which hardens the plastic."

The acrylic eye is now ready to be painted. Jones spends approximately eighth hours painting the eye. He uses the primary colors - yellow, red, blue, manipulated with black and white, mixing the necessary color to match the patient's natural eye.

"I work toward painting the artificial eye exactly like its mate. I intentionally put in a little difference only to make the eye look more natural, since everyone's eyes are a little different."

Jones uses red commercial embroidery floss for the veins. Each strand is separately applied and varnished. All of the eye parts are put back into the mold and allowed to cure for an hour and forty minutes. "I pumice and polish the eye, then hope for the best," Jones said.

The Modified Impression Method Ocularists use to fit artificial eyes is a great improvement psychologically and aesthetically over stock eyes. Stock eyes are prostheses some opticians pick from a drawer to match as closely as possible to the patient's real eye, making it difficult to maintain anything resembling natural color or position.

Jones is unique because he is only one of the few in Texas utilizing the Iowa Implant, which provides 70 percent total eye movement. It utilizes the muscles to move the prosthesis with the companion eye by attaching the eye muscles over the implant grooves. More common to Texas is the Spherical Ball Implant which allows only about 45 percent movement.

"The Iowa Implant is a quasi-integrated buried muscle cone implant which is surgically connected to eye muscle. It has four rounded mounds on the front surface of the implant, which "key" into corresponding depressions in the back of the plastic prosthesis to support the prosthesis against gravitational pull and pressure from the upper lid. The lids, predominantly the upper, hold the prosthesis against the mounds.

While persons of all age groups benefit, several of the advantages are especially notable in elderly persons in whom lack of tissue tonus (muscle strength) is more common. When such person with the new implant are fitted with prostheses based upon correctly taken impressions, the prostheses are supported to fit all spaces well. This results in healthier sockets, requiring little attention from the patients or their physicians.

Jones studied concentrated arts at the University of Houston and Clinics Department of Ophthalmology. At the University of Iowa he had thorough, specialized training in preoperative and postoperative anatomy of the eye and orbit dealing in the field of ophthalmic prosthetics and implants. Certain knowledge of optics, ophthalmic devices, and especially cosmetic optics was also attained during this training. A complete understanding and utilization of these principles must be realized by the oculist to render the ultimate illusion.

Jones holds an Associate of Arts Degree from Tarrant County Junior College. "I thought I would be an optician, but I was also interested in art, so I decided to put my two interests together and become an Ocularist." Jones is currently at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine in Lubbock where he has been since September, 1976.

Longhorn Comeback Possibility As Producers Reconsider Breed

AUSTIN--The Texas Longhorn, long a major symbol of the birth of the nation's cattle industry, may well be making a comeback among cattle breeders.

Breeders from Texas to Canada, from Minnesota to California, are re-examining the unique qualities of the Longhorn breed in order to incorporate them into modern breeding programs," according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Some ten million head of Longhorns made the long journey up Texas cattle trails to northern and eastern markets in the 25 years following the Civil War alone.

But by the turn of the century, the combination of barbed wire fences and imported breeds began to spell doom for the breed's dominance. Within a few years, Longhorns were nearer extinction than the American buffalo.

Interest in the breed has never died out altogether, and since 1964, the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America (TLBAA) has been telling the Longhorn story nationwide.

"The uncertain economics of modern-day cattle production have fostered a second look at Longhorn genetic characteristics," Commissioner White explained.

According to TLBAA executive secretary Manual Gustamente, Jr., Longhorns have fewer calving problems, produce well under marginal conditions, live longer than other breeds, contribute vigor, and utilize their hardy characteristics well in crossbreeding.

From a low of less than 1,500 true Longhorns known to exist in the U.S. in 1964, breeders have been steadily increasing registered herds, with an eye toward once again making the famed animal an integral part of the nation's cattle industry.

Jimmy Carter, President, on creating jobs:

"To force more money, faster, into the system would risk poor administration."
