Policy of the Administration
In conclusion, I would say in the name of the Administration to be a thorough collection of every tax payable by the citizen

HE KNEW HIM

Two years ago, while Brick Pomroy was one day in his sanctum, he was visited by a Baptist clergyman, who had just returned from an ocean voyage.

Mary, aged nine years, after reading the many versions of the story of "Mary and her little lamb," appearing in the New York Sun, sends the following to that paper:

And early, time that Mary pulled, Old how that lamb would sing, she hauled that lamb to school one day.

The sacrament service of the Episcopal Church of James the Less, in Philadelphia, last night, attracted a large and distinguished audience.

Such reflections may be wrong but if St. James the Less will put on a hat and let the newspapers air it, how shall they be helped? It looks a little as though the saint had determined to be "the least of things."

Hebrew Bible said every woman shall have her own vine and her own fig tree, and she shall eat the fruit of her vine and the fruit of her fig tree in the days of her old age.

A woman of independent intelligence, the coming to her aid from her friends to prevent a change of principle to control and in some way evade the generation so writes some know if young.

A woman's job is told in Washington at the expense of a well-known Senator, who is mentioned for having been caught in a situation which he had to face.

Syntax—the tax on whiskey. Beecher is accused of being a Swedenborgian without knowing it.

To make a Venetian blind—put out his eyes. The great American bird—the "bird of hand."

A man who stole another man's hat, even when his name was written on it, was left off on the ground that he was collecting autographs.

A young lady in Hartford died, and on the day appointed for her funeral, the body was placed upon the sofa, robed in white, and looking as peaceful as in natural sleep.

The New York fire department has notified the proprietors of the large hotels to place fire escapes upon their buildings.

General Market Report.

REVISED BY J. BRENNEMANN. SATURDAY, FEB. 14.

Business a little reviving, and the arrivals of a few merchants from the country contributed no little to the activity generally prevailing last week.

Wool—We note a "bare market," from English and Northern advices confirm the impression that the course of the staple cannot be the immense contracts for wool blankets for both the Belgians at war in Europe will be hardly, and perhaps improved.

Iron—Is still in good demand, and activity being during the last week. It is expected to continue in large, the price is likely to advance. We quote: Cast iron—$10.00

Corn—The large quantities of corn that arrived during the last week, all was readily sold at from $1.45 to $1.50 per bushel and continues in good demand.

Wheat—Best quality, $2.00 per M. Choice—No new arrivals of any consequence here. Stock continues to decrease. Prices unchanged.

Wool—Rather dull, and the arrivals being few, the stock has not increased since last week. Prices unchanged. A few barrels of very low price sold at $4.75.

Iron—Continues to be in good demand. Prices advancing. We quote: XX $12.50 @ $14.00 XXX $13.50 @ $14.00

NOTICE.

The SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS has received the commission of Official Organ for the counties of Bexar, Wilson and Comal.

Every advertisement and publication in this paper will be published during the term of such legal notice, but no notice will be published for less than one week.

Organize.

The last election, though but a small one, contained in its result in certain localities the seeds of a new and more efficient organization.

While the result did us no serious harm, it shows plainly that the masses of Republicans, who are in principle and in action completely beyond the comprehension of the ideas of party discipline, discipline, its political sense means nothing, exacting or disabating to the party man, it means simply an adherence to the interests of organization, in which district county or municipal heads of the party are supposed to direct such affairs as the holding of caucuses, assist in the selection of candidates, and having selected them, to vote themselves and their every effort to their election.

It is not a long time since we have seen a man, who was in the habit of going to the office of the State Executive Committee of the Republican party, and he was talking to the members of the committee, and he was talking to the members of the committee, and he was talking to the members of the committee.

Millions in West Texas.

The spring of 1871, warmed by the sun of progress and prosperity is bringing into the national enterprise, that we of the west have long looked forward to with anxious eyes, knowing that upon Texas, even as life and action in the human frame depends upon the arteries that convey the life blood from the heart to the limbs of extremity.

The great system of the West, the Pacific and the Atlantic, having its headquarters in California, is but a mere shadow in our affairs, but that this with the national and local affairs, the growth of the iron horse, and the growth of the city, around which the great system of the West is centered.

Mark Twain on Juvenile Delinquents.

We find in the Buffalo Express of the 25th inst. the following paternal obligations of Mark Twain:

"Yes, I've had a good many fights in my time," said old John Parke, tenderly manipulating his discolored nose, "and it's kind of queer, too, for when I was a boy the old man was always telling me better. He was a good man, and hated fighting. When I would come home with my nose bleeding or with my face scratched up, he used to call me out in the woods, and in a sorrowful and discouraged way say: 'So, Johnny, you've had another fight, hey? How many times have I got to tell ye how disgraceful and wicked it is for boys to fight? It was only yesterday that I talked to you in hour about the sin of fighting and here you've been at it again. Who was it with this time? Aigh, Comthly Kelly, hey? Don't you know any better than to fight a boy that weighs twenty pounds more than you do, besides being two years older? Ain't ye got a spark of sense about ye? I can see plainly that you are determined to beget your poor father's heart by your reckless conduct. What will you do? Timothy bit it! Don't the little fool? Didn't ye know enough to keep your finger out of his mouth? Was I wrong to pick his cheek out, boys? Won't ye never learn to quit your young man's mouth with yer fingers? You're bound to disgrace ye with such wretched behavior. You're determined never to be nobody. But you ever hear of Isaac Watts, bit?—sticking his fingers in a boy's mouth to get 'em out, and a fool? I'm plain discouraged with ye. Why didn't ye go for his nose, the way Jonathan Ed. says, and George Washington, and Daniel Webster used to when they was boys?—Comthly, because he had 'em under! That's a pretty story to tell me. It does beat all that you can't learn how Socrates and William Penn used to gouge when they was under, after the hours and hours I've spent in telling you about those great men? It seems to me sometimes as if I should give you up to despair. It's an awful trial to me to have a boy that don't pay any attention to good examples nor to what I say. What! you pulled out three or four handfuls of his hair! He-! Did he squirm any? Now, if you'da give him one or two in the eye—but as I've told ye many a time, fighting is poor business. Won't you, for your father's sake—won't you promise to try and remember that? He-! Johnny how'd it—ahem—which kicked?"

"You loved him! She! Really? Well, now, I hadn't any idea you could kick that Comthly Kelly! I don't believe that John Bunyan, at ten years old, could have done it. Johnny, my boy, you can't think how I hate to have you fighting every day or two. I wouldn't have had him kick you for five, no, not for ten dollars! Now, sonny, go right in and wash up and—ted—see mother to put a rag on yer finger. And, Johnny, don't let the hear of you fighting again!"

"I never see any body no more no fighting as the old man was, but I can't see in never could break me from it."

One of our young acquaintances, not long since, was endeavoring to enjoy an evening in the company of a young lady, fair and charming, upon whom he called, very familiar, a serious obstacle in the way of her stern and not very cordial father, who at length ventured to very plainly intimate that the hour for retiring had arrived. "I think you are a good, my dear sir," rejoined the unabashed young man; "we have been waiting to have you go to bed for over an hour."

A countryman stopped at a telegraphic station, where a young lady was receiving despatches, and, after looking on for a moment, called to his companion, "Say, little one, come and see 'em make paper columns, don't ye know? For he, eh, time?"

The hoteliers know whether Nephthyzar, when he was doomed to eat grass, had any lamps on his brow?—New York Leader.

"Jack, your wife is not so peevish as she used to be." "No, she has left that off and turned expensive."

A CINCINNATI man, who died last week, bequeathed to each of his two daughters, and the rest of his property to his wife, but if otherwise she could not raise the $2 to pay the bequests to the daughters.
