EDWARD STEVES,

ALAMO PLAZA,

1-2-71.) SAN ANTONIO.

A LADY in Richmond, Va., thus discusses a la Hamlet, the question of female suffrage:

To vote, or not to vote, that's the question:
Whether 'tis nobler to forgo the suffrage
And bear the arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or to take arms against our sex's troubles,
And, by opposing, end them? To live—to wed—

No more, and by a marriage say we end
The heartache, only to nurse the little ill.
Women are heir to—'tis a consummation
Not for Joseph, if the Court herself doth know;

And that she doth is most inubaltable,
To vote—to act—to act, perchance a farce;
aye,
There's the rub; for by this act what rights
may come,
When we have shuffled off our crinoline?
This makes me pause; this, too, is the respect.

That makes calamity of woman's suffrage:
For who would bear the kicks and cuffs of
men,
The oppressor's fist, our lords continually,
Assault and battery, and the law's delay;
The insolence of bunniers, and the spurns
That patient women from loafers take.
When, to avoid it, she could stay at home
And use her bodkin? Who would make beer,

Or groan or sweat under mechanic's life,
But for the pleasures of emancipation—
The rich Golconda, from whose gaping
jaws

The flesh pots yawn in tantalizing plenty?
But there's the afterclap! This puzzles
the will
And makes us rather bear the ills we have,
Than fly to the horrid inexplicable.
Thus cowardice makes babies of us all;
And thus our petted suffrage resolutions
Are sickled o'er with the pale east of fear.
And enterprise of glorious ballot stuffing
Must fade, alas, because our suffering sex
Dare not imbibe the soul inspiring eye
To give us vim and action.

Positively the Last

The Worcester Evening Gazette thus disposes of "Mary's Lamb":
"Mary had a little lamb,
We've heard it o'er and o'er,
Until that little lamb became
A perfect little bore.

So I propose there shall be dug
A grave both deep and wide,
In which that lamb and all its bards
Be buried side by side.

The Josh Billings Papers--The Fox.

Of all the beasts who roam the hilltops, or climb the plains, there is none who make so few blunders
and so many good hits as the fox.

His shrewdness is more than a match for the lion's strength, his logick is more than a match for the malice of the wolf, and his politeness and diffidence makes him the top and gentleman of the forest.

The fox is a literary cuss, he has been the hero of history, fable and song, from the furt dawn of oral or written knowledge. He was a genius long before the ackedimick honors flourished; he was a poet, skol-lar and sage before the days of Homer and Herodotus, and now, in our times, he is the Ben Butler of diplomacy and the Brigham Young of matrimony.

The fox is purely a game bird.
It costs on an average fifty dollars to catch him, and when he is caught he ain't worth more than ten shillings. He follows no regular bizness for sustenance, but lives on the chances and on his wit.

He is a fleshy minded sinner, and his blandness is too much for the quaintness of the goose, the melancholy reserve of the turkey, or the pompous rhetoric of the rooster. They all kneel to the logick of his tongue, and find themselves at rest in his stummuk.

He luv's lam and green peas, but will discount the peas rather than lose his dinner, and will go a mile and a half out of his way to be polite to a duck or a gozlin.

But the most lively trait in the fox is his cunningness; he always pettyfogs his own case, and wins a great deal oftener than he loses.

Foxes are not like men, krittors
or habit; they never do a thing twice with the same figures, and often alter their mind before they do a thing once. This is the effect of too much genius.

There is this difference between genius and common sense in a fox.
Common sense is governed by circumstances, and circumstances is governed by genius.

The fox has no more honesty, but he has got a great supply of politikal honesty. If another fox in his parish wants a phat goose he will work hard and git the goose for him, and then clean the meat all oph from the outskirts of the goose for pettyfogg the case, and give him the bones and tell his politikal friend, with a smile in the left corner of his eye, that "everything is lovely and the goose hangs high."

Foxes have learnt this piety from watching the men git geese for each other, and if animals don't want their piety tew git sour, they must keep away from the men week days.

The fox is congenial in his temper; he is no hermit he can't git mad at society because they don't flatter him, and pitch hedlong in solitude, and chaw rates, and drown
out his stummuk trying to drink
a spring dri, and think he is virtuous because there ain't no chickens
in his neighborhood to steal.

The fox is too much of a pollyti-cian to invest his religion in eny sich indigenous trash. He knows that society hez claims on him and are indebted tew him for some goose, and expekts tew be for several more. This is a noble trait in the fox, and shows that he ain't a child
ov ingratitude.

Foxes cum ov the ground, but whether they are made ov dirt I kaint sware with much certainty.
They cum out of the ground through the instrumentality ov a hole, but whether the hole begins at the surface and runs into the mountain or whether it begins in the mountain and to the surface, don't make a kussed bit of difference.

But philosophers have argued about this hole bizness for years, Sum ov them say it runs in, and
sum ov them be darned if it duz;
and right here we can see the amazing difference between the logik ov
the philosophers and the logik ov
the fox. While they stand fiteing at the mouth ov the hole, the fox is stealing their ducks and goslings.

If enny boddy feels az tho' they had enny reasonable doubts about the genius ov a fox, let them look at one in his innocence, claimed to a post.

Let him notis the small vertikle
head, the little uneasy eye, the pert
ear, alwus on end, the smurkiu countenance, the lean and little body, the anxious spirit leaking out at every pore, royal marks ov the cunning rogue.

Foxes are like cunning men—
they hev but few brains, and but a small place tew keep them in, but,
what few they have got are like angle worms in hot water—full ov anxiety and misery.

Cunning is a branding iron; the letters on it are small, but alwus redhot, and they read thus—Look out for the fox.

Mr. J. H. GAMBLE, of the Western Union-Telegraph Company, advertised this morning for a "nurseryman" to attend to a rancho which he has on the Alameda side of the San Francisco Bay. Soon after he came down this morning,
a negro, who was irreverently described by one of the company's employees as "Tall as Bunker Hill monument and black as hell's smokestack," poked his head into the door and inquired for "de boss."

Mr. Gamble was pointed out, and he accosted him with, "Well, boss,
I hear you wants to hire a nuss!"
"Hire a nuss?" replied Mr. Gamble thoughtfully. "Oh, I see! I want to hire a nurseryman to take charge of a nursery." "Well, boss, dat's de same ting of course. A pnsion who takes cars of a nursery must be a nuss; dat stands to reason!" The other occupants of the office burst into a hearty laugh, and the astonished colored citizen slammed the door behind him and walked off
muttering something.—Tribune's California Correspondent.

A SAUCY WIFE.—The worthy wife of one of the worthy bishops
of the Episcopal Church, was accompanying the Episcopal lord on one of the tours in the Northwest.
The bishop is prospecting for a place
to "plant the seed of the church,"
spending a Sabbath in a village where the Episcopal service had never been recited before. To aid the bishop in "the service," and to impress the wondering villagers
with the beauty thereof, the wife, seated in the midst of the congregation, responded in a clear, strong voice, just when and where a devout church woman and bishop's wife should, to the amazement of many, and the indignation of at
least one of the village matrons,
who said to their neighbors as they
left the church door:

"Did ever anybody see such a
saucy woman as that preacher's
wife shoudt, to the amazement of
many, and the indignation of at
least one of the village matrons,
left the church door:

"Did ever anybody see such a
saucy woman as that preacher's
wife shoudt, to the amazement of
many, and the indignation of at
least one of the village matrons,
left the church door:

ALWAYS BEAUTIFUL.—At a festival party of old and young, the question was asked, which season of life is most happy? After being freely discussed by the guests, it was referred for answer to the host,

upon whom was the burden of fourscore years. He asked if they had noticed a grove of trees before the dwelling, and said — "When the spring comes, and in the soft air the birds are breaking on the trees, and covered with blossoms, I think, how beautiful is spring! And when summer comes and covers the trees
with its heavy foliage, and singing birds are all among the branches, I think, how beautiful is summer!
When autumn loads them with golden fruit, how beautiful is autumn!
And when it is sore winter, and there is neither foliage nor fruit, then I look up, and through the leafless branches as I could never until now, I see stars shine
through."

A LITTLE negro boy at the South had just been equipped with a new suit of clothes—the first he ever had on in his life, you may be sure.
Next morning he appeared with one leg of his trousers ripped up from shoe to waistband. On being asked how it happened, he answered:
"Pleaze, ma'am, I wanted to hear it hop."

HOLMES gives the following splendid type of innocence: "One of my friends had a little marble statuette of Cupid in the parlor of his country-house—bow, arrow, wings, and all, complete. A visitor indigenous to the region, looking pensively at the figure, asked the lady of the house if that was a statuee of her deceased infant!"

Policy of the Administration.

In conclusion, I would sum up the policy of the Administration to be a thorough enforcement of every law, a faithful collection of every tax provided for, economy in the disbursement of the same, a prompt payment of every debt of the nation, a reduction of the taxes, as rapidly as the requirements of the country will admit, the reduction of taxation and tariff to be so arranged as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest number, honest and fair dealing with all other people, to the end that war, with all its blighting consequences, may be avoided, but without surrendering any right or obligation due to us, a reform in the treatment of Indians and in the whole civil service of the country, and finally in securing a pure, untrammelled ballot, where EVERY MAN entitled to cast a vote may do so just once at each election, without fear of molestation or proscription on account of his POLITICAL FAITH, NATIVITY OR COLOR.

U. S. GRANT.

A Possible Solution of the Servant-Girl Question.

It is impossible to foresee the effect of the present disasters on the population of France. The French peasants have never been emigrants. They have been driven away in masses by religious persecution, as in the time of the Huguenots. But as a race, they are fond of La Belle France, and are loath to leave it. Whether the distresses now in store for them will have the effect that the famine had on the home-loving dwellers of Ireland, can only be shown by the event. But it is by no means unlikely that thousands of them will seek the earliest opportunity to escape, nominally from the oppression of German rule, but really from the absolute destitution to which the war has condemned them. A stolid, uneducated French peasant, so long as he has his comfortable home and his daily bread and wine, is quite insensible to the sentimental considerations which would influence a people more accustomed to an active interest in public affairs. But when deprived of the means of subsistence by the total destruction of the stock and appurtenances of his little farm, it will accord with his nature to ascribe his misfortunes to whatever rulers he may be living under, and he will reconcile himself to emigration as a means of escape. It is, therefore, reasonable to suppose that within a short time there will be a flood of immigration into this country (almost the only one open to them), equal to those we have had from Germany and from Ireland. If this immigration takes place, it will make a valuable addition to our working population. The French are not particularly good farmers, but they are trained to habits of obedience, and have been able to live only by dint of the most persevering toil, so that there is every reason to suppose that they will make excellent farm hands, and they will be more likely to seek employment at wages, than to follow the example of the more enterprising Germans, and establish farms for themselves. While we have much to hope for ourselves from the influx of this new population, the prospect for our wives is much brighter; for the difference between Bridget O'Riley from the bogs of Connaught, and Jeannette Belpre from the meadows of Lorraine, is immense, and they will have a chance to supply their kitchens with tidy, active, cheerful, well-dressed and more than semi-civilized girls, whose cooking alone will be a national blessing. We are far from undervaluing the service that has been rendered to this country by the Irish, both men and women, but they have been here long enough to have both the ambition and the ability for something better than unquestioning service at wages; and it will be less a hardship to them than a blessing to us when the French come to relieve them entirely of a duty for which they have grown too good—in their own estimation at least, and in ours too bad.—Hearth and Home.

A FARMER residing in Erie County, N. Y., sold a pair of steers to an Indian named John Smoke, living on the Indian Reservation near Buffalo, who was to pay for them if they suited. After waiting what he thought was time enough, he went to Smoke, and said: "Now, John, it's time those steers were paid for; you must either pay me now, return them, or take an infernal licking." The Indian, with characteristic stolidity of countenance, replied, after thinking a moment: "Ye-e-s, I guess that's the best way to settle it."

An Un-Pleasant-um.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial gives the following: The other day Gen. Pleasantum, a delicate, sensitive little gentleman was dressing for dinner. He had divested himself of every garment except the one spoken of by Hood in that melancholy song called "The Song of the Shirt." He was sailing about under bare poles, when he heard a knock at the door; and supposing it to be his man—who ought to have been there, but was not—he sang out, "Come in." To his utter consternation, that constitutional female known as Mrs. Woodhull, with a peaked hat and a man's overcoat, terminating in unmistakable cynoline, stalked in. As she did not immediately stalk out, but stood looking at the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in the abstract, the last named gentleman hiding behind an arm-chair, stammered out, "Excuse me, madam."

"I want to see you on business, Gen. Pleasantum."

"Well, madam, won't you be so good as to come to my office? I am not in a condition to see any one on business just now, and I beg of you to desist and come to the Bureau."

"I don't care anything about your condition, General Pleasantum; but it is a matter of some importance that I wish to see you upon, and this is as good an opportunity as any."

"My God, madam," exclaimed the agonized Commissioner, shifting his financial person from one leg to the other, "won't you permit me to dress for dinner?"

"I have no objection to your dressing for dinner, but what I want to know is, what are you going to do about this Vanderbilt case? That Vanderbilt case is a great outrage, sir, and I can see that somebody is going to be swindled out of a half a million of dollars," and here followed a statement of the Vanderbilt case, that occupied just twenty minutes by the clock, and was very forcible and emphatic. At the end of it, when the strong-minded constitutional Woodhull paused for breath, the Commissioner said:

"I don't want anything about the Vanderbilt case, madam. I have not heard anything but what you have told me. I have had no time. I don't want to be rude; but I wish you would go away and let me dress."

At this moment a knock was heard at the door, and Pleasantum yelled louder than ever he gave command to a battalion, "come in." The door opened and the substantial figure and handsome face of our Commodore Alden appeared upon the entrance. So soon as he did the Commissioner chattered from the rear of the arm-chair to the back of a sofa, and Alden thinking that he was intruding, beat a hasty retreat. But the Commissioner was not to be forsaken; and he ran to the door, jerked it open, seized Commodore Alden, and brought him back, when the cool and courageous Woodhull rose in a majestic manner, and wished them a good day.

OFFICIAL LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the Third Session of the Forty-First Congress.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 12.]

AN ACT to divide the State of Virginia into two judicial districts.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the counties of Albemarle, Alleghany, Amherst, Appomattox, Arlington, Bath, Bedford, Bland, Botetown, Buchanan, Buckingham, Campbell, Carroll, Charlottesville, Clarke, Craig, Cumberland, Floyd, Franklin, Frederick, Fincastle, Giles, Grayson, Green, Halifax, Henry, Highland, Lee, Madison, Montgomery, Nelson, Patrick, Page, Pulaski, Pittsylvania, Rappahannock, Roanoke, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Russell, Scott, Smyth, Shenandoah, Tazewell, Washington, Wise, Wythe, and Warren, of the State of Virginia, shall hereafter constitute a new judicial district of the United States, and be called the western district of Virginia; and the circuit and district courts of the United States for said western district of Virginia shall be held at Lynchburg, Danville, Abingdon, and Harrisonburg, within said district.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That a term of the circuit and district court of the United States for said western district shall be held at Danville, on the first Monday of March and September; at Lynchburg, on the second Monday of March and September; at Abingdon, on the third Monday of March and September; and at Harrisonburg, on the Wednesday after the fourth Monday of March and September, in each year.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the district of Virginia shall hereafter consist of the counties of said State not named in this act, and shall be called the eastern district of Virginia; and circuit and district courts of the United States shall be held in said eastern district, as follows: At the city of Richmond, on the first Monday of April and October, and at the city of Alexandria on the first Monday of January and on the first Monday of July, and at Norfolk on the first Monday of May, and on the first Monday of November, in each year.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the said circuit court for either of said districts may, in its discretion, order special terms, and order a grand jury, or both, to attend the said, by an order to be entered on record twenty days before the day at which said special term shall be ordered to convene; and said courts respectively at such special terms shall have all the powers that they have at a regular term appointed by law. Provided, however, That no special term of said circuit court for either district shall be appointed except by and with the concurrence and consent of the circuit judge.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That all suits and other proceedings, of whatsoever name or nature, now pending in the circuit or district court of the United States for the district of Virginia, shall be tried and disposed of in the circuit and district courts, respectively, for said eastern district, as the same would have been if this act had not been passed, and for that purpose jurisdiction is reserved to the said courts in the said eastern district; and the clerk of the circuit and district courts of the present district of Virginia shall retain the records and files of the said circuit and district courts, at the city of Richmond, and do and perform all the duties appertaining to the said offices, respectively, within the eastern district, except as is hereinafter provided; and all process returnable to or proceedings noticed for any term of the present circuit or district court shall be deemed to be returnable to the next term of said courts, respectively in the said eastern district, as fixed by this act.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That upon application of any party to any suit or proceeding now pending in the present circuit or district courts of the United States, for the present district of Virginia, which should have been commenced in the proper court for the western district if this act had been in force at the time of the commencement thereof, the proper court shall order that the same be removed for further proceedings to the proper court for said western district; and thereupon the clerk shall transmit certified copies of all the papers and of all orders made therein to the clerk of the court to which such suit or proceeding shall be removed, and all further proceedings shall be had in such court, to which the same shall be removed as if the said suit or proceeding had originally been commenced there.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the passage of this act shall not have the effect to destroy or impair the lien of any judgment or decree, rendered by the circuit or district court of the United States for the present district of Virginia, prior to this act taking effect; and final process on any judgment or decree entered in the circuit or district court of the United States for the district of Virginia, or which shall have entered thereinto after the taking effect, and all other process for the enforcement of any order of said courts respectively, in any cause or proceeding now pending therein, except causes or proceedings removed as herein provided, shall be issued from and made returnable to the proper court for the eastern district of Virginia; and may be directed to and executed by the marshal of the United States for the said eastern district in any part of the State of Virginia.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed a district judge for said western district of Virginia, who shall receive an annual salary of three thousand five hundred dollars; and there shall also be appointed a marshal and district attorney of the United States for said western district of Virginia, who shall respectively receive such fees and compensation, and exercise such powers and perform such duties as are fixed and enjoined by law.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That the circuit and district judges shall appoint four clerks, each of whom shall be clerks both of the circuit and district courts for said western district, one of whom shall reside and keep his office at Lynchburg, another shall reside and keep his office at Abingdon, another shall reside and keep his office at Danville, and the fourth shall reside and keep his office at Harrisonburg, who shall receive the fees and compensation for services performed by them, respectively, now fixed by law.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That either of the clerks of the circuit and district courts for said western district is hereby authorized under the direction of the district to make a transcript from any of the records, files, or papers of the district and circuit courts of the United States remaining in the office of the clerks in said eastern district, of all matters and proceedings which relate to or concern liens upon or titles to real estate situated in said western district; and for that purpose shall have access to said records in the office of the said clerks in said eastern district; and such transcripts, when so made by either of said clerks, shall be certified to be true and correct by the clerk making the same, and the same when so made and certified shall be evidence in all courts and places equally with said originals.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That this act shall not affect the completion of the census of the State of Virginia for the year eighteen hundred and seventy; and nothing herein shall affect existing laws or existing officers except as herein modified and provided.

Approved, February 3, 1871.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth.

Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of foaling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

A. SIEMERING.
San Antonio, March 10th, 1871.

A Daniel come to Judgment.

The San Antonio Herald of the 10th, in the face of a verdict of twelve fair minded, honest men, wants Benavides acquitted of the charge of murder. We expected as much. Murderers, thugs and assassins make up that paper's support, consequently it is always found on the side of violators of law, order and decency. Its efforts to induce a thinking public, or an intelligent jury to think as it does, are futile, however. We greatly fear, that with the vigorous action now being taken throughout the State, against law breakers, that the Herald is losing its tenure upon the affections of the lawless and desperado element, who find that even its incendiary counsels fall upon ears deaf to the old time war cry of "blood and outrage." We hail the era of security and protection for all, with delight. The Herald weeps, wails and gnashes its teeth over the new order of things. Let it weep.

The San Antonio Gas Company.

We believe the time has come when the above named company, with a liberal charter, giving them exclusive rights for this section for the next thirty years, should show their appreciation of the charter they hold by attempting to do something in the way of furnishing our community with light.

With a smaller population and less public spirit and enterprise, the gas company managed to keep its stock fully at par, just before the war; and though by the last named calamity they lost considerable in a pecuniary sense, we believe the value of the charter, and the amount and value of effects and appurtenances left, will warrant the gas company in essaying to again build up an enterprise that is bound in the very nature of existing circumstances to meet with large public patronage.

Our streets need lighting, and we feel assured that our enterprising city council will meet the company half way, upon the showing of a proper public spirit. That is, we believe, they will light our streets and pay a proper remuneration to the gas company, if the latter put in working order their present works. Our hotels, bar rooms, and public halls, and the larger portion of stores and private residences will all pay tribute to the company, and feel relieved of the terrors that now accompany the use of explosive and dangerous oils. If the works proved remunerative before the war, they are bound to prove equally so now that we have an increase of population and of buildings, and a more general demand for light.

The gas company owes to the State and the community some return for the granting of so liberal a charter. We trust they will appreciate the situation and take steps to throw a little more light upon this progressive section of Texas.

Schools.

Spring and pleasant weather are with us, but the spring and opening of beautiful weather find our State still unprovided with schools, where those, upon whom depend in a measure the future of the State, can secure that knowledge essential to the future welfare of our people. Idle boys and girls in every county, bespeak the necessity of a wholesome, vigorous school law, and yet still our Legislature waits, and the golden moments of youth are being wasted by a hundred thousand children, for want of school and proper facilities for making use of leisure hours.

Now if our State, pecuniarily, was suffering we could excuse this delay, but there is no State in the Union that has a more liberal endowment of its schools than the State of Texas. In some localities, we notice a commendable spirit among the people, of erecting school houses, (rude perhaps, but useful) by private subscription, but the instances are rare, and the greater mass of youthful minds in our State are neglected for and running to waste.

What is the trouble? We fail to perceive. The Journal tells us that Messrs. Schute and Pettit have both introduced bills, but there are crudities and extravagancies in them that need pruning. Even so, we fail to understand why in a matter of such importance, the changes cannot be made speedily, in fact at once. There are dozens of excellent State systems working in our sister States of the Union, and any of them can be adopted to suit our wants. We need schools worse than any of them, save the State of North Carolina, where the population of far heels are still displaying their ignorance by making war upon Negroes and Republicans. It is a plank in the Republican platform, to provide schools for all the children in the country, thus ensuring our advancement to general intellectual development, and a digression from the paths of ignorance that have hitherto bisected portions of the country, keeping the people in that state in which they become prey to the sophistries of Democratic or Monarchical white pillars.

Upon the Republican party of Texas a responsibility rests, that cannot be shirked off. The learned and intelligent men of other States look to them to provide a school system to meet the demands of the age we live in. The Immigrant turns longing eyes upon our rich fields, pastures and undeveloped resources, but avert them when he finds within our State none of the bulwarks of a nation or States safety, good public schools. Our Legislature should see to it at once that a change is made. Give us a school system, practical and comprehensive in its workings, and there are good and true men in every county, in every village and hamlet, who will be only glad to assist in putting the system in force.

Schools all over our country will spring up as if by magic, and in ten years the State will fully have reaped the harvest of her provident and watchful care, in the rapid advancement and progress of the people to an educated and refined standpoint.

"For the many years the city has been under the yoke of this weak old man, who is raised by Jim Newcomb and carpet-baggers, we are alone indebted for the absence of those improvements, that the wealth, population, and prosperous business of the city, justly entitle us to."—S. A. Herald.

The "rulings of Jim Newcomb," as the Herald is pleased to term the benighted action of our Hon. Secretary of State, have paid off a burdensome debt of over twenty-eight thousand dollars.

The rulings of the same person have just released our city from paying fifty thousand dollars and accumulated interest in the railroad bond and coupon cases.

The "rulings of Jim Newcomb" have given us improvements upon our public schools, given us the finest streets of any town in Texas; provided us with a substantial iron foot bridge upon St. Mary's street; furnished another for Paseo street, crossing, worth two of the structures such as spans the Main street crossing, and have done us other benefits incalculable.

The "rulings of Jim Newcomb" have made our city prosperous; redeemed it from bankruptcy; placed an efficient administration in place of a plundering and rebellious set of dead beats, and what more can a people ask? We advise the Herald dog to "go home."

Texas Correspondence.

In a late number of a Pittsburg paper we find the following interesting letter in regard to our State, and our more immediate locality—San Antonio. If we mistake not, it is from the pen of one of San Antonio's best friends and well wishers, General James A. Ekin, who, amidst all the multifarious duties of his position of responsibility as Chief Quartermaster of the Department, finds time to pay tribute to the beauties and improvement of both our State and city. A man of influence, his judgment of our place, and his happy descriptions will do much towards turning attention to the "Queen City of Texas," while our people will feel that in the General they have a warm friend, interested in their welfare and the advancement of the place, and one who unites all the finer social qualities and true gentlemanly refinement with rare experience, careful judgment, and a thorough understanding of how to conduct his office, in both the interests of the National Government and the people of our State.

Immigration Pouring in from the North—Advantages for Health, Wealth and Comfort—San Pedro Springs as a Watering Place.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Feb. 7, 1871.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—Thomas Hughes, in his address at Cooper Institute, recently said: "The noblest work that man can do just now, is the subduing and developing of this magnificent continent of yours." No doubt this was the honest sentiment of an intelligent foreigner, of large and comprehensive views,—who yet had but seen a small part of our continent. What would he have said if he had gone over to Texas, a land flowing with milk and honey, large enough to put England in its vast pocket, and so full of all that man needs for comfort and luxury and health, that it has been well called, in view of these things, and its lovely climate, the Land of Jordan. Most people far away in the North, still associate in their minds a lawless set of savage men to be remembered every where, when they hear Texas mentioned, and would almost shudder at the thought of going there to live.

But things have changed of late years, and criminals no longer seek an asylum, as formerly, within its borders. A man is as sure of arrest here as he would be in going from Justice to Chicago. And one cause of this transformation, is mainly the necessity of military occupation, from the changed relations growing out of the late war, and the need of protection both to freedmen and to emigrants desiring to settle and cultivate the immense tracts of land, to be had for a mere song. Thousands are pouring into the State from the Northern States, from Germany, and from Georgia and Carolina.

The people tell us that they are indebted for much of their prosperity, to the efforts of the Commander of the District, (and those who associate with him) who seems to have acted not merely as the head, but as a citizen also of sagacious foresight, interested in turning the resources of the State to immediate profitable advantage.

They said, "General, our country is full of cattle and sheep, how can we get them out, and in return, get the money we so much need, to live and improve our farms?"

The General wrote to the War Department for instructions, to General Sherman, that he proposed employing a regiment of Cavalry for the purpose of protecting such parties as might desire an escort across the country in sending droves of cattle into Kansas and Nebraska. The reply was, "do as you think best." The wild Indians coming from the plains, have interfered with the transit of herds into the North, and especially on the route leading to the Pacific Railroad, from two points of which "Abel" on the Kansas Pacific, and "Schuyler" on the Union Pacific, are shipped to St. Louis and Chicago, train after train of live cattle and dressed beef, to supply the large demands at the East.

We could fill a large letter with this subject of feeding the millions at the north from this inexhaustible source, but the reader wants to know, in as brief a manner as possible, what are the reasons to induce people to seek new homes so far from friends and previously formed associations.

Old army officers who have served in different parts of the country, especially speak in the highest terms of San Antonio, and no wonder, in view of the climate so nearly resembling Italy, and to be reached without the perils of a sea voyage. In speaking of the San Antonio river in my last, I purposely omitted mention of another stream, which irrigates a portion of the town, (until visiting it) called the "San Pedro." This takes its rise in a clear crystal spring welling out of a solid rock, about a mile or so from the town, in a westerly direction. Its temperature at all times is quite warm, where it gushes out and forms a large basin, into which the proprietor is propagating trout and other fish in abundance. The spring is a favorite resort of our German population, who have their festive celebrations in grounds fitted up for music, refreshments, etc. In the rear of the spring the grounds rise gradually to quite a height, and all over the hill is covered with evergreens,—and so romantic a spot was thought to be a good place where a hotel could be erected, having several cottages scattered around for families, thus forming a desirable

WATERING PLACE.

For invalids and others, who would like to enjoy the winters without snow, and drink in health with the waters flowing from the rock of St. Peter. Indeed all the places were fixed upon for a speedy erection of the hotel, &c., but the gentleman who was to carry it out died on his way either from the East. There is money to it, to whomsoever has the capital and enterprise to secure this object at once.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "To every three squares of residences in Louisville there is a cur, and each dog is expected to get his pound of flesh from the leg of the L. C., he generally makes it off somebody who passes at night. There is no reason why dogs should not flourish in Louisville, but it's discouraging to letter carriers."

The wife of a citizen of Buffalo objects to his keeping the memories of her five predecessors green, by wearing five bands of crape on his hat.

TRUSTVILLE has heard Kellogg, and likens her notes to the "smooth unctuous trickling of the oleaginous commodity from an hundred-barrel well."

Deity.

We have never read anything more beautiful than the following from the pen of George D. Prentice:

"There is but a breath of air and a beat of the heart betwixt this world and the next. And in the brief interval of painful and awful suspense, while we feel that death is present with us,—that we are powerless, and he all powerful,—and the faint pulsation here is but the prelude of endless life hereafter, we feel in the midst of the stunning calamity about to befall us, that the earth has no compensating good to mitigate the severity of our loss. But there is no grief without some beneficial provision to soften its intensity. When the good and lovely die, the memory of their good deeds, like the moonbeams on the stormy sea, light up our darkened hearts, and lends to the surrounding gloom a beauty so sad, so sweet, that we would not, if we could, dispel the darkness that environs it."

REMARKS ON KISSING.—H. W. B. thus speaks of his hero and heroine in "Norwood": "It was evening twilight. They sat alone in the porch. A few late blossoms of the Chinese honey suckle shed a free perfume through the air. There were no loquacious, no katydid, nor gurgling crickets, and yet some soft sounds I certainly heard! Not birds surely! I think it must have been the plash of one honey-suckle blown against another. Yet there is no wind to move them. I hear it again! listen! It is like the falling of a drop of dew into the silver lake from some birchen leaf! No, that is rude. It is as if two dreams floating in the night had clashed; or like the joining of two prayers of love on their way upward; or—may it was a kiss—pure, sacred, holy! It is the soul's symbol, when words fail it. It is the heart's sigh, or interjection, when it has a feeling for which there is no expression!"

The question as to the propriety of parting the hair in the middle, save in cases where the person is a woman, has been agitated in the press ever since Grant removed Motley for that offense. The Chicago Tribune thinks there is a man now and then who has sterling qualities, who is liable to separate his hair in that way, and that as we become more cosmopolitan, the thing will be tolerated, even by plain, sensible people. This venerable authority then closes its editorial remarks: "We are not by any means positive that a popular vote would not result in the calling home from appointments abroad of all persons who part their hair in the middle. Then, if forgotten, we would not be surprised to find them on the opposite side, should insist that they would receive no ambassador there would have to be a compromise made, viz: To send none but bald-headed men abroad."

At a recent valedictory address to the ladies of a female institute in a certain city, the lady principal thus addressed her pupils: "Affectionate pupils! With many of you this is our final meeting in the relative position of pupil and teacher, and we must part to meet no more. That this reflection 'alters' from my mind to my heart, with saddening influences I need scarce assure you; but hope in a voice 'sweet as the wild strains of the Aeolian harp,' whispers in dulcet accents 'we may meet again.' In youth the impressions of sorrow are fleeting and evanescent as the vapory sail, that momentarily overshadows the inciferous orb of even, vanishes and leaves her disc unclouded in its lustre; so may it be with you. May the gloom of this moment, like the elementary prototype, be but the precursor of reappearing radiance undimmed by the transitory shadow."

A FINE girl cannot be described. To tell the color of her eyes and hair diminishes the conception of her. To relate the elements of her dress is to weaken her by analysis. As she is, all life and flesh, and noble raiment wrapping her round, and every rustle of her robe the appropriate music of movements, what is like it? At a ball, she is enabled by the consciousness of her beauty and that all men feel it, forgetting for the time that money or power is its superior; and as for goodness, it is always supposed to be the truly fine girl. When she glides the eyes and the better thoughts of men follow. She is always most beautiful with her father, and suffers much disparagement when with any young man. The young man, somehow, appears to be fading in. The young man is an interloper. Young men, go away from that fine girl!—(G. A. Townsend.)

Old Capt. — of Stonington, relates the following remarkable incident that occurred while on the passage from New York some years ago. He observed, one summer afternoon, a heavy cloud arise from the land, and to his great surprise, approach the vessel. Suddenly it broke near him, and millions of mosquitoes covered the vessel to the depth of several inches, while part of the flock went through the mainmast, leaving nothing but the bolt ropes hanging to the spars. Conservative evidence to his astonishing tale was found in the person of a "down East skipper," who heard the story, and who, on comparing dates with the narrator, declared that two days afterward, he was boarded by a part of the same flock, and they all wore canvas breeches.

The planters, manufacturers, and mechanics of Mississippi have lately held a State Convention in Jackson. The convention condemned the policy of "farming out" shares; urged the production of more cotton and meat; recommended the organization of county agricultural societies; and favored the division of large tracts of land into small farms, and the sale of the same upon favorable terms to the colored people. The convention also declared itself to be earnestly in favor of the education of all classes of the people, the introduction of labor-saving implements and machinery, the increase of immigration, and the encouragement of manufactures.

The New Orleans papers have a great deal to say about the slowness of the horse cars on the different routes in that city. One of them breaks out as follows: "About a year ago, the St. Charles street Railroad Company lost a mule by decrepitude and old age. Since that time all their cars have been going to the funeral."

The Danbury, (Conn.) News thinks it is the duty of the Governor, if the drought lasts, "to issue a proclamation disbanding all temperance organizations," on the plea that all unnecessary use of water should be stopped.

MUSIC.—Falsetto singing is not punishable with imprisonment. But it is very near the same as uttering forged notes.

DR. SCHENCK advises Consumptives to go to Florida in Winter.

Having for the last thirty-five years devoted my whole time and attention to the study of lung diseases and consumption, I feel that I understand fully the course that ought to be pursued to restore a tolerably bad case of diseased lungs to healthy soundness. The first and most important step for the patient to avoid taking cold, and for this purpose all places in this continent for the best of all winter in Florida, well down in the State, where the temperature is regular, and not subjected to such variations as in more Northern latitudes. Palatka is a point I can recommend. A good hotel is kept there by Peterman. Last winter I saw several persons there whose lungs had been badly diseased, but who, under the healing influence of the climate and my medicines, were getting well.

One hundred miles further down the river is a point which I would prefer to Palatka, the temperature is more even and the air dry and bracing. Merlonville and Enterprise are located there. I should give a decided preference to Mellenville. It is two miles from river or lake, and it seems almost impossible to take cold there. The tables in Florida might be better, and patients complain at times but that is a good sign, as it indicates a return of appetite, and when this is the case they generally increase in flesh, and then the lungs must heal.

Jacksonville, Hibernal, Green Cove, and many other places in various parts of Florida, can be safely recommended to consumptives in winter. My reasons for saying so are that patients are less liable to take cold there than where there is a less even temperature, and it is not necessary to say that where a consumptive person exposes himself to frequent colds he is certain to die shortly. Therefore my advice is, go well down into the State out of the reach of prevailing east winds and fogs. Jacksonville, or almost any other of the localities I have named, will benefit those who are troubled with a torpid liver, a disordered stomach, diseased bowels, sore throat or cough, but for those whose lungs are diseased a more southern is correctly recommended.

For fifteen years prior to 1863, I was professionally in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia every week, where I saw and examined an average of one hundred patients a week. A practicing and extensive embracing every possible phase of lung disease, has enabled me to understand the disease fully, and hence, my caution in regard to taking cold. A person may take vast quantities of "Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sawweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills," and yet die if he does not avoid taking cold.

In Florida, nearly all are using Schenck's Medicine, especially Schenck's Mandrake Pills, for the climate is more likely to produce bilious habits than more northern latitudes. It is a well established fact that natives of Florida rarely die of consumption, especially of the southern part. On the other hand, in New England, one third, at least, of the population die of this terrible disease. In the Middle States it does not prevail so largely, still there are many thousands of cases there. What vast percentage of life would be saved if consumptives were as easily alarmed in regard to taking fresh cold as they are about scarlet fever, small pox, &c. But they are not. They take what they term a little cold, which they are credulous enough to believe will wear off in a few days. They pay no attention to it, and hence it lays the foundation for another and another still, until the lungs are diseased beyond all hope for cure.

My advice to persons whose lungs are affected even slightly is, to lay in a stock of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Schenck's Sawweed Tonic, and Schenck's Mandrake Pills, and go to Florida. I recommend these particular medicines because I am thoroughly acquainted with their action. I know that where they are used in strict accordance with my directions, they will do the work that is required. This accomplished, nature will do the rest. The physician who prescribes for cold, cough or night sweats, and then advises the patient to walk or ride out every day, will be sure to have a corpse on his hands before long.

My plan is to give my three medicines, in accordance with the printed directions, except in some cases where a freer Mandrake Pills necessary. My object is to give tone to the stomach—to get up a good appetite. It is always a good sign when a patient begins to grow hungry. I have hopes of such. With a relish for food and the gratification of that relish, some good blood, and with it more flesh, which is generally followed by a healing of the lungs. Then the cough lessens and abates, the creeping chills and clammy night-sweats no longer prostrate and annoy, and the patient gets well, provided he avoids taking cold.

Now there are many consumptives who have not the means to go to Florida. The question may be asked, is there no hope for such? Certainly there is. My advice in such a case, and ever has been, to stay in a warm room during the winter, with a temperature of about seventy degrees, which should be kept regularly at that point, by means of a thermometer. Let such a patient take his exercise within the limits of the room by walking up and down as much as his strength will permit, in order to keep up a healthy circulation of the blood. I have cured thousands by this system, and can do so again. Consumption is as easily cured as any other disease if it is taken in time, and the proper kind of treatment is pursued. The fact stands undisputed on record that Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Mandrake Pills and Sawweed Tonic, have cured very many of what seemed to be hopeless cases of consumption. Go where you will, you will be almost certain to find some poor consumptive who has been rescued from the very jaws of death by their use.

So far as the Mandrake Pills are concerned, everybody should keep a supply of them on hand. They act on liver better than cologne, and leave some of its excellent effects behind. In fact they are excellent in all cases where a purgative medicine is required. If you have partaken too freely of fruit and diarrhoea ensues, a dose of the Mandrakes will cure you. If you are subject to sick headache, take a dose of Mandrakes and they will relieve you in two hours. If you would obviate the effect of a change of water, or the too free indulgence in fruit, take one of the Mandrakes every night or every other night, and you may then drink water and eat watermelons, pears, apples, plums, peaches or corn, without the risk of being made sick by them. They will prove to those who live in damp situations against chills and fevers. Try them. They are perfectly harmless. They can do you good only.

I have abandoned my professional visits to Boston and New York, but continue to see patients at my office, No. 15 N. SIXTH Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged five dollars. The Respirometer decides the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not. But I desire it distinctly understood that the value of my medicines depends entirely upon their being taken strictly according to directions. In conclusion, I will say that when persons take my medicines and their systems are brought into a healthy condition thereby, they are not so liable to take cold, yet no one with diseased lungs should bear a sudden change of atmosphere without the liability of greater or less irritation of the bronchial tubes, &c. Full directions in all languages are given by my medicines, so explicit and clear that any one can use them without consulting me, and can be bought from any druggist. J. H. SCHENCK, M. D., No. 15 N. SIXTH Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 1-11-74.

Office, Corner of Seventh and D Streets, WASHINGTON, D. C.

We prosecute cases in the Court of Claims and before the several Departments: For Cotton, Turpentine, Tobacco, &c., seized in the States lately in rebellion by U. S. Treasury Agents, or by the U. S. Army. For supplies taken or purchased by officers of the U. S. Army. For rent or use of property, or property destroyed. For horses lost, killed, or which died in the Military Service.

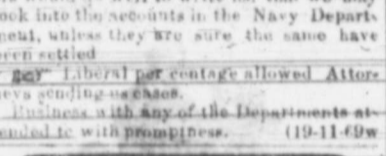

Claims against Mexico or the United States before the United States and Mexican Commission. The Adjustment of Claims before the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Soldiers who were prisoners of War and discharged without bounty, on their release, are respectfully requested to send us a statement of their case. Persons obtained in the shortest time possible. We have great facilities for procuring Patents. We make preliminary examinations at the Patent Office to see whether the invention has been anticipated, and give information for $5.

All necessary drawings and papers prepared. Charges for obtaining patents reasonable. Real Estate Bought, Sold, Rented, or traded for other property. There is a large amount of Prize Money undistributed, which is due to Sailors, now deceased, who served in the United States Navy. The friends of deceased Sailors would do well to write me that we may look into the accounts in the Navy Department, unless they are sure the same have been settled.

Special Federal per centage allowed Attorneys practicing in the Departments attended to with promptness. (19-11-69)
