Bridget Maloney's Kitchen
Trials with a Chinese.

Well, the ways and trials I had wid that Chinese, Anu Ryan, I couldn't be tellin'. Not a blissed thing cut—I do but he'd be lookin' on wid his eyes cocked up'rd like two pump-handles, an' he widout a speck or snitch o' whiskers on him, and his finger-nails full a yard long. But it's dyin' you'd be to see the missus a-larin' him, and he grinning and wagging his pig-tail (which was pierced out wid some black stooft, the haythen chate) and getting into her ways wonderful quick, I don't deny imitating that sharp, you'd be surprised, and ketchin' and copyin' things the best of us will do n hurried wid work, yet don't want coming to the knowledge of the family—bad luck to him! It's yerrel knows the tin-der feet that's on me since ever I've bin in this country. Well, ovin' to that, I fell into a way of slippin' me shoes off when I'd be setting down to pale the pratties or the likes of that, and, do ye mind! that haythin would do the same thing after me whenever the missus set him to parin apples or tomaterses.
The saints in heaven couldn't have made him believe he cud kape the shoes on him when he'd be paying anything.

Did I have for that? Faix and I didn't. Didn't he get me into trouble wid my missus, the haythin?
You're aware yerself how the boon-dles comin' in from the grocery often contains more than all go in to anything decently. So, for that matter I'de now and then take out a cup o' sugar, or flour, or tay, and wrap it in paper and put it in me bit of a box tucked under the ironing blanket the how it cudden be boddery any one. Well, what shud it be, but this blessed Saturday morn the missus was a spakin' pleasant and respectful wid me in me kitchen when the grocer boy comes in and stand foremost her wid his boondles and she motions like to Ping Wing (which I never would call him by that name nor any other but just haythin,) she motions to him, she does, for to take the boondles and empty out the sugar and what not where they belongs. If you'll believe me, Anu Ryan, what did that blothering Chinese do but take out a cup of sugar, and a handful of tay, and a bit of chase right afore the missus, wrept them into bits of paper, and I spachless wid surprise, and he the next minute up wid the ironing blanket and pulling out me box wid a show of being sly to put them in.
Och, the Lord forgive me, but I clutched it, and the missus saying "O Kitty!" in a way that wud criddle your blood. "He's a haythin nager," says I. "I've found you out," says she. "Fih arrest him," says I. "It's you ought to be arristed," says she. "You won't," says I. "I will," says she—and so it went till she give me such a sass as I cudden take from no lady—and I give her warning and left that instant, and she a pointing to the door.—Scribner's Monthly.

and then delirium tremens soon follows. We have seen a lady jump from the table and scream because a red ant ran across her plate, but she would sip this brandy from the little glass, and extol its flavor.
In Newark cockroaches are used very extensively in the manufacture of delicious wines, which are made there from cidar, poor whiskey, logwood and other abominations.

it shall also be the duty of the said supervisors of election, and they, and each of quisite certificates or returns made, whether said certificates or returns be required under any law of the United States, or any State, sonally inspect and scrutinize, from time to time, and at all times, on the day of election, the manner in which the voting is check-books, whether the same are required and at the closing of the polls for the reception of votes, they are, and each of them is, hereby required to place themselves or himself in such position in relation to the Pleasant Information for Tipplers.

The black ants of Sweden are a formidable race of workers, much larger than any we have here. They make and have with the grains, and as they travel in processions, each with a wheat grain or some other dainty for winter store, they present a formidable array—a curious spectacle for the philosopher.
The sting of these animals is very sharp, and somewhat poisonous.
The best policy to observe is, when meeting a procession of these workers, to turn aside and give them the right of way, for they will grip their grain tightly, and give sting after sting, losing very little time for revenge, and then on to their well ordered, well-stored homes.
The Swedes have learned a way of utilizing these little animals, sting and all. They waylay them on these journeys, catch them by hand in nets and sieves, anyway to get them, and pump they go into the seething brandy distillery, and on then depends the peculiar flavor of Swedish brandy. It is so smooth, so oily, so pungent, has such a delicious flavor; in short, is everthing enchanting; and then they have the loveliest little glasses, that hold a thimble full, so thin, fragile, and beautifully artistic, that they would almost tempt an ascetic to drink and catch the divine afflatus, but it only takes one drink to intoxicate,

The following advertisement appeared in an Irish paper: "Whereas, Patrick Malony has fraudulently taken away several articles of wearing apparel without my knowledge, this is, therefore, to inform him that if he does not forthwith return the same, his name shall be made public."

They have smart children at Martha's Vineyard. A little six-year-old girl, daughter of a Methodist minister, committed a fault, and denied it. Her mother, learning that she was guilty, asked her why she told the untruth, when she replied, with great sang froid: "I should not if I believed as you and father do but I am a Universalist."

Some music teacher once wrote that the "art of playing the violin requires the nicest perception and the most sense of any art in the known world." Upon which an editor comments: "The art of publishing a newspaper, and making it pay, and at the same time making it please everybody, beats addin' higher than a kite."

Hallow! Bob, how are you? Well, who had been in jail for four or some months past, ansvyered: "Very well, thank you; but I have been in trouble, you know." "What trouble?" "You know." "What trouble?" "You know." "A trouble past in duration."

Mexican Outrages.

We have before had occasion to allude to the indignities that our State is suffering from the coalition of the Mexican border people, with the bandits and Indians who, from time to time, cross the line, seize American property, murder American citizens, offend women and children, and return unmolested to their haunts, to find plaintiffs from the Mexican people, for their murders, and a market for what they may have chance to steal from Americans.

A case in point, well authenticated, is at hand; and if occurring elsewhere upon the borders of the United States, would meet with speedy investigation at the hands of a National Commission; but with unrepresentatives in Congress, who declare all reports of our sufferings mythical, and the cry for protection, raised for ulterior purposes, we scarcely expect that aught will be done towards giving us relief from our ills.

About ten days or two weeks ago, a train was attacked at midnight by a band of Indians, and in spite of active exertions of the train master and his assistants, thirty-eight mules of the train were driven off, effectually crippling the train in its onward move, entailing severe loss upon the firm, and as the train was loaded with Government property, causing some inconvenience to the military authorities.

Beyond recollection of the original account of the attack, as given by Hart Mussey, nothing had been heard of the mules up to the twentieth, when a letter was received, setting forth in detail the facts as to the offering of these stolen mules at a town in Mexico, near the border, called Morillo. One Indian (a Kickapoo) and three Mexicans were the parties offering the animals for sale, in open market in that town. The brands were plainly recognizable by the party who writes the letter, and the entire affair conducted in a matter of course style, that plainly shows that these people have become used to trafficking in stolen American property, while we on this side grind our teeth in rage, and bitterly feel the dilemma attached to a non-redress of our wrongs.

We are satisfied a commission sent into this country by the National Government could find hundreds of instances, well authenticated, of this wholesale Mexican-Indian thievery. Along the borders thousands of cattle are yearly stolen from our hard working stock raisers, by a class too lazy by nature to do anything but steal. Afar on the northern boundary of the United States, great importance attaches itself to the question of how far American fishing smacks can venture upon British territory, and a high claims commission will probably deliberate upon the weighty matter. Yet here a foreign nation, winks at outrages perpetrated by its citizens defended by the territorial line, upon our people; and we have no protection. In the name of justice and humanity, of the national honor, or dearer than all else to the heart of an American, how long is this state of affairs to last? Our wrongs must be righted. Our Nation owes us protection from foreign aggression. Will they give it to us?

The aristocracy of Duluth having heard it said that "dog carts" are considered stylish equipages, take the term literally, and the beauty and fashion of the place takes its round of visits in a cart, drawn by a pair of canine steeds.

There is a man doing business in Chicago whose name is G. Nobody.

Unhappy France.

The news that comes to us by telegraph, from the soil of France, is indeed momentous and significant. The mobocracy in France are rampant; blood is being wasted like water, and general anarchy and confusion prevail. Without either head or management the government seems adrift, without a single piece of shelter where its executive dare meet and legislate, and with no settled policy for the future. The intelligent man reading of the French revolution, of the days of Robespierre and Marat, would judge that the horrors of that dark epoch would act as a warning against the enacting of such scenes of terror as they visited that sunny land, spilling the best blood of its best citizens; but France is a nation that seems subject to periodical fits of insanity. The people go wild and their griefs or their misfortunes are drowned only in blood.

Such a state of affairs is particularly lamentable in this the nineteenth century, wherein it is supposed the march of civilization is onward. Much as the civilization of France has been vaunted to the world, the impartial observer cannot but declare that her fame is mythical, her material worth all in the hands of a few specialists and savants, to whom the people bear no sympathetic relation. The masses of the French people are untutored either in the science of government, or the duty and fealty they owe to acknowledged heads of government; neither do they seem to understand the relations of man to man and neighbor to neighbor. Perhaps it has been the ideas of Louis Verhulst, while monopolizing and usurping a power, his, neither by right of birth or popular will, to hold the people in that state of thralldom, where military pageantry and dazzling court splendor attract the butterfly fancies of the mob, as to hush the muttering beneath the surface, of those who hunger and amidst all the glitter and tinsel of royalty feel the pinching want of bread.

Perhaps it was during his reign, where a city put on a garb of magnificence second to none in the world that this national insanity was developing itself in all its horrors, commenced to reassert its dominance over an impulsive people. Rome and its patrician splendors made vivid by the contrast with the plebeian toils and ills, affords us an example of this insanity the sure precursor of a terrible downfall. France has twice experienced it. The seeds of evil sown by Louis XIV. brought forth the disastrous fruit of a French Revolution, and now the volcanic fire of a nation's ills, of hunger unappeased, of wrongs not righted, of oppression not relieved, shows itself in the horrors of mob-violence, wherein the masses set free from trammels of government, run to the wild extreme of license rather than liberty, and the crushing horrors of internal, bloody revolution are upon that nation.

No mortal can look beyond the immediate hour, and say where this is to end. France may have in this unhappy hour a national saviour. She may drift deeper and deeper into the wild vortex of internal violence and emerge only in shattered fragments; be the final result what it may, the influence upon the rest of the world will not be lost. Statesmen will learn to dread aught that seeks to clothe a nation with external show of magnificence and grandeur, while from lack of education, from heedlessness of the people's wants, all is rotten within. The interests of the governed and Governor, must be closely allied, their advancement relative, then the distressing results of dissimilarity and disintegration will be avoided.

And Still Another.

A train of Messrs. Adams, Wickes & Co. destined for Fort Davis, via Fort Clark, was attacked a few days since at Turkey Creek, about 25 miles this side of Fort Clark, just about dusk.

The devils made nothing this time however, for the teamsters showed fight and had all their animals under good control, so Mr. To went off empty handed.

We wonder how much longer there is to be war in our country. War in which our people are the sufferers. And lazy Indians should not make mistaken notions of philanthropy are the gateway.

Let us have at least, equal rights.

The steamer S. exploded several years ago with terrible effect, and burned to the water's edge. Captain S. was blown into the air, alighting near a floating cotton bale, upon which he floated unharmed, but much blackened and muddled. Arriving at last at a village several miles below, to which news of the disaster had preceded him, he was welcomed by the editor of the village paper, with whom he was well acquainted, eager for an item. "I say was the S. blown up?"

"Yes."

"Was Captain S. killed?"

"I am the Captain."

"The thunder you are! How high were you blown?"

"High enough to think of every man thing I ever did in my life before I came down here."

The other started on a run for his office. The paper was about going to press, and not wishing to omit the item of intelligence for the next issue, the editor called, he wrote as follows:

"The steamer S. has burst her boilers, as we learn from Captain S., who says he was up long enough to think of every man thing he ever did in his life before he lit. We suppose he was up about three months."

This Immigration Bureau of Texas can do a vast deal of work with a simple and inexpensive machinery. Give the Superintendent about three clerks or correspondents, two to write German and Scandinavian, and one to write English. Give him means enough to fit up lodging houses for the reception of immigrants at Galveston, Houston, and perhaps other places. Give him the means to publish in English, German, and Scandinavian, the pamphlet of information he is now compiling, and to circulate it abundantly wherever needed. Give him the means to publish a brief but comprehensive official standing advertisement of the advantages of Texas in the leading papers of this country, Germany and elsewhere. With these instrumentalities he will soon bring hundreds of thousands of immigrants to Texas.—Houston Union.

Different Ways of Making Tea.

The Chinaman puts his tea in a cup, pours hot water upon it, and drinks the infusion of the leaves; he never dreams of spoiling its flavor with sugar or cream. The Japanese triturates the leaves before putting them into the pot. In Morocco they put green tea, a little tansy, and a great deal of sugar, into a teapot, and fill up with boiling water. In Bokhara every man carries a small box of tea about him, a certain quantity of which he hands over to the booth keeper he patronizes, who concocts the beverage for him. The Bokharian find it as difficult to pass a tea-booth as our own dram drinker does to go by a gin-palace. His breakfast beverage, is Schitschaj; that is, tea flavored with milk, cream, or mutton fat, in which bread is soaked. During the daytime, sugarless green tea is drunk, with the accompaniment of cakes of flour and mutton-suet. It is considered an inexcusable breach of manners to cool the hot cup of tea with the breath, but the difficulty is overcome by supporting the right elbow in the left hand and giving a circular movement to the cup. How long each kind of tea takes to draw is calculated to the second; and when the can is emptied, it is passed round among the company for each tea drinker to take up as many leaves as can be held between the thumb and finger—the leaves being esteemed an especial delicacy.

When Mr. Bell was travelling in Asiatic Russia, he had to claim the hospitality of the Buratsky Arabs. The mistress of the tent, placing a large kettle on the fire, wiped it carefully with a horse's tail, filled it with water, and threw in some coarse tea and a little salt. When this was near boiling point, she tossed the tea about with a brass ladle until the liquor became very brown, and then it was poured off into another vessel. Cleansing the kettle as before, the woman set it again on the fire, in order to fry a paste of meal and fresh butter. Upon this the tea and some thick cream were then poured, the ladle put into requisition, and, after a time, the whole taken off the fire and set aside to cool. Half-pint wooden mugs were handed round, and the tea ladled into them, a tea forming meat and drink, and satisfying both hunger and thirst. However made, tea is a blessed invention for the weary traveller.

THERE is a place called the Tete Noire near St. Cloud, famous for a restaurant of the first class and for being the resort of remarkable men. Two of the latter—Leon Goylan and Balzac—once dined there, and felt as hungry after their meal as before. "What shall we eat?" asked one. "Let us call up a waiter and ask what they have got," answered the other. The functionary, in curled hair and shiny shoes, appeared on a small corkscrew kind of staircase between the eating room and kitchen, and the parley began, Balzac questioning. "Have you got any leg of mutton?" "Oh, sir, we have given the last since to an Englishman." "Have you got any chicken?" "Fowl very hard, sir in this season!" "Have you got any steaks?" "Never have you got any, after one!" "Have you got any fish?" "Shan't have any, sir, before seven." "Confound him," said Goylan; "I'll make him say plain 'no.' Have you got any sphinx?" "Sphinx, sir? I go and see in the kitchen." Away he went, but came up in a second. "We have not got any left, sir," Balzac's face can be fancied. At first he looked struck dumb with awe and astonishment, then suddenly his cheek were blown out like a full moon, he threw his napkin down and groined with laughter. There stood the waiter, in all the sincerity of conviction, a mute beholder, in curled hair, and ready to swear again that all the sphinx cooked had been eaten up.

A story comes from Connecticut that a man, whose son, being under age, married against his will, took offense thereat and got himself appointed guardian over him. Then, under a law which permits a guardian to sell the property of a minor to an amount not exceeding $300, without advertising it, he obtained permission of a Judge of probate to sell his son's half interest, worth $20,000, in his grandfather's estate, and without the boy's knowledge did sell it to a Sheriff for the paltry sum of $275, and by him it was transferred to the son's mother at the same price. And now the boy, defrauded of his inheritance, proposes to see if the Courts of Connecticut will tolerate the proceeding.

Consumption, Its Cure and its Preventive, By H. Schenck, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which had they calmly adopted

Dr. Joseph H. Schenck's simple Treatment, and availed themselves of his wonderful efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proved that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor. In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is un-failing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing. The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbid action of the liver. Here, then, comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms of Consumption. The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Pelatum. They possess all the blood-purifying, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"Leave no Sting Behind." The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A Supply of Good Blood. The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more distention, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impured and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings, it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was.

Given up as Lost. The second thing is, the patient must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patient must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This is a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to be readily of his own cure was in these modest words: "Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; I confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time.

As soon as that began to subside my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since.

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery added no Doctor, then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and London. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continues to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them; First create appetite. Of maintaining health, hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curer of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, $1.50 a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. E. J. HART & CO. 75, 75 and 77 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans, Wholesale Agents. 1-11 70dtd.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any thing been so widely and so speedily upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and during most of the recent ones it has risen higher and higher in its estimation, as it has become better known, its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to induce forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against coughs, croup, &c., it should be kept on every family, and used as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with the medicine for their use. Although entitled "Cherry Pectoral," it thought it better to give it the name of "Cherry Pectoral," so complete is its effect upon the membranes of the Lungs and Throat, that the most delicate of them will be relieved, without producing such smart, smarting effects, as are given by the "Cherry Pectoral," and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with the medicine for their use. Although entitled "Cherry Pectoral," it thought it better to give it the name of "Cherry Pectoral," so complete is its effect upon the membranes of the Lungs and Throat, that the most delicate of them will be relieved, without producing such smart, smarting effects, as are given by the "Cherry Pectoral," and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with the medicine for their use.

Cherry Pectoral is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses. It is generally as its virtues, however, that we need not publish the commendations of those who, or do more than praise the value that its qualities are fully maintained.

It is a powerful and reliable remedy, and will cure the most obstinate cases of Ague, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.
