ONE NAME. Upon the silver shining sand, A maiden wrote, with loving hand, One name—no more.

Then, with a pen of silver, She wrote again deep in her heart, One name—no more.

Soon drowned within the crimson tide The word she bore.

"Yet," said the maid, "through grief and pain, Still will I write on living brain One name—no more."

But wait, and care, and added years, Basted in depths of bitter tears, The sign she bore.

Then cried the maid in wild despair, "Is there no safe place anywhere, By sea or shore, In brain or heart?" The answer came, God keepeth safe thy true-love's name Forevermore.

There is an opening for a sound democratic paper in San Antonio—State Gazette.

There is an opening for all of you some of these days—the bottomless pit. Our devil says so, he ought to know.

Ex Governor Bramlette, of Kentucky, says: "Rather than see the 'new departure' adopted insuring full equality before the law, I would sweep out all schools and leave the children to grow up in darkness."

The Springfield Republican propounds this conundrum: "Is it any wrong for poor people to hear the music of Beethoven—or of Rossini or Verdi for that matter—performed by a band in the open air—than for rich people to hear the same music played on an organ in open air music, we suggest the propriety of getting up a Sunday law against the birds. They are the most hardened desecrators of the Sabbath in this particular line that we know of."

THE mortality in the class which graduated at Harvard College in 1822, has been very remarkable. At the time of its graduation it numbered sixty. Forty had died by May, 1870, leaving only twenty survivors; and of these, five died before the end of March, 1871, leaving only just one-quarter part of the class at the present time.

Never despise humble service; when large ships run aground little boats may pull them off again.

The next best thing to paying a pastor a large salary is to pay him his small one with promptness.

Many are like the farmer who wanted sunshine for his wheat and rain for his grass all at the same time.

God openeth many hearts with gentle plockets, while with others he uses the crowbar of terrible judgement.

A loving heart and a pleasant countenance are commodities which a man should never fail to take home with him.

When our cups run over we let others drink the drops that fall, but not a drop within the rim; and we complacently call this charity.

LOGIC. Make few promises.

Always speak the truth.

Keep good company or none.

Never speak evil of any one.

Live up to your engagements.

Be just before you are generous.

Never play at any game of chance.

Drink no kinds of intoxicating liquors.

Good character is above all things else.

Never borrow if you can possibly help it.

Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.

His Baggage. "That seat is engaged," said a pretty young maid.

"As I entered a carriage one day, To whom?" "A young gentleman," pointing, she said.

"Then where is his baggage, I pray?" Her ruddy lips opened like a red-hot iron spring.

Her face in deep blushes was dyed, As muttering crossly, "You blasted old thing, Why, I am his baggage," she cried.

VERY DARING. (Scene—A volunteer review.) Infuriated commanding officer: "Hi, there, get away you madman—get away from the target! Easy-minded lunatic! Hold on, Gav'ner, I ain't as mad as I look! I was here all day yesterday, and found it much the safest place in the field."

The Chicago Journal says: "When the Democracy get possession of the national finances we shall expect to see the fur fly."

To which the Albany Journal says: "Then you will be disappointed; for it is the rule of the Tammany Ring to carry off the whole hide."

A STRANGER meeting a BIRD in the streets of Boston, a few days since roughly accosted him with, "Here, I want to go to the Tremont House!"

The deliberate reply was, "Well, you can go, if you won't be gone long."

An enterprising farmer, in order to supply the market with fresh eggs, brings his hens along and lets them lay in the pen on the way.

We call the attention of the city police to the fact, that the bridges in the eastern suburbs of the city are sadly out of repair and that it is dangerous to cross them on horseback. We refer to the bridges, that cross the irrigating ditches. The city marshal should attend to such matters.

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening, as Mr. J. S. Floyd of the Quarter masters department in company with his wife was driving by the brightly run in the Alamo plaza opposite the "Alamo", the horse sheered upon a dirt pile and buggy and horse were overturned, throwing the occupants out and Mr. Floyd partly under the buggy. Mrs. Floyd, with a presence of mind most remarkable for a lady, succeeded in recovering herself first, and at once extricated her husband, who was in a position, where he could not help himself.
With the assistance of some persons, who came to their rescue, the horse (who fortunately kept quiet during his overthrow) and buggy were righted, and our friends again resumed their journey, with no other injury than a bruised forehead and nose to the gentleman.

Mr. Floyd and his friends have reason to be grateful, that the accident did not prove more serious.

Wilted Dawn.

Ask the man who complains of "wilted down" in the torrid heat he has done to sustain his system under the extra strain imposed on his vitality. He may tell you that he has tried a variety of cathartics to purify blood and brighten his spirits. Under such treatment, of course, his strength has given way, and his energies have become exhausted. What he requires is a restorative, not a depletant. His blood is thin; his nerves have lost their natural tension, and nature demands be re-energized and reinforced. The means is within the reach of all. For nearly a score of years, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been building up broken constitutions, bracing and strengthening attenuated frames, and affording comfort, ease, and hope to thousands. As a preventive of the epidemics which make such havoc with the health of its inhabitants of new settlements, the famous tonic is certainly without a rival. Perhaps the principal portion of its world wide fame is attributable to its astonishing cures of dyspepsia, and all forms of indigestion. But these are not history of its triumphs. All the types of biliousness yield to its persistent use. It is a regulating medicine of the highest order; and its effect upon the accretions, when irregular, is most salutary.
Impostation of the greatest character is rough to be practiced upon the community by vendors, who recommend under the name of "bitters," very compounds of a dangerous character, which they attempt to substitute for the great national tonic.
Shun all such nostrums, and see that you have genuine Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, properly authenticated by label, name, and stamp, and sold in bottles only.

Some substances have the power of influencing the changes which go forward in the human frame, without themselves taking any integral part to those changes.
Such are the various medicinal substances, and waste, and consequently create the necessity for a more liberal diet; while, on the other hand, alcohol retards change and waste. On this principle, Dr. Fish, in his Bitters has furnished a preparation having among other properties that of governing both the material and the forces of the system; and in this, as in other things, "A penny saved is a penny gained." But it is not only in this negative way that Dr. Fish's remedy works for the building up of the physical man. While it holds back the wasting processes, it goes forward the repairing processes. It promotes the flow of the alimentive juices in the mouth, the stomach, and the liver; and thus enables the system to utilize more food—to make more blood. The surprising assertion that "The blood thereof is the life thereof," is the expression of a physiological fact; and the amount of food which a man can eat with relish, and digest, affords the exact measure and index of the man's strength. And when once Dr. Fish's remedy has given the start to an improvement in this direction, the onward current of nature takes up the work and carries it forward; and thus renders the amelioration permanent.

THE
'HOWE' Sewing Machines
Received the Cross of the Legion of Honor and Gold Medal at the Paris Exposition, in 1867,
And the Gold Medal at Amsterdam Exhibition, in 1869,
And have invariably obtained the Highest Honor at all the great exhibitions; also, received, successively, the highest Premiums at our Texas State Fairs, in 1870 AND 1871.
The "HOWE" is the most durable, simplest, most complete in all its parts, most the shortest, and smallest handle, for the same size thread, than any other Machine which is far less liable to break; it is so perfect in all repects that with ordinary care,
it will last a life time without repair.

THEREFORE SELECT
'Elias Howe'
NEWLY IMPROVED
FAMILY SEWING MACHINE which for simplicity and superiority of mechanism, beauty and excellence of stitch, economy of thread, strength of seam and variety of work is unsurpassed by any other Machine.
It will sew, quilt, gather, hem, fell, cord, knit, bind, and perform every species of sewing plain and ornamental, making a beautiful and perfect stitch, called the 'Howe' Lock Stitch, which is formed by two threads, one upon each side of the material, sewed and locked together in the center, forming an elastic seam, and preserving the same appearance on both sides.
A stitch of this character commands itself as especially appropriate for sewing woolen material, and if suitable thread be used the seam will prove as strong and elastic as the fabric itself.
At the present time no less than 400 Machines are turned out daily, and each and every one is guaranteed perfect, and made of the best material.
We have constantly on hand a full assortment of these celebrated Machines.

Consumption,
Its Cure and its Prevention,
By J. H. Schenck, M. D.
Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of his own and his family's dreadful slumber into which, had they wisely adopted
Dr. Joseph H. Schenck's simple Treatment, and availed themselves of his wonderful efficient medicines, they would not have fallen.
Dr. Schenck has in his own case proved that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.
In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the fact of the invalid it made no representation that it was a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. "The theory of the cure by Dr.
Schenck's medicine is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-evident, self-convincing." The Seaweed Tonic and Madrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition, the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach.
They respond to the morbid action of the liver. Here then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms of Consumption.
The Madrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's subtlest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they "Leave no Stings Behind." The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and morbid deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected.
The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting on his feet.
A Supply of Good Blood.
The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food; Oxygenation is now progressing without its previous impediment. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite acts in.
Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be obeyed. It collects and ripens the imper-fed and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatheries, it prepares them for expectoration, and in 10 to 15 very short days the malady is vanquished, the rotten that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the method or remanence that was.
Given up as Lost.
The second thing in the patient must be a warm-room until they get well. It is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected.
Fresh air and riding out, especially in the section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommended that course lose their patients, for their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patient must keep in good spirits—he determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.
To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr.
Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words: Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then, like a drowning man catching at a straw, I heard of and obtained the preparation which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me.
It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system; they soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time.
As soon as that began to subside my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown to flesh ever since.
"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."
Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continues to see patients at their offices, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Res-pirometer will be charged $5. The Respi-rometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.
The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Madrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses. The three medicines need no other accompaniment than the ample instructions that accompany them; First create appetite. Of returning health, hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the dieting be at once up of good cheer.
Good blood at once follows, the cough loos-ens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.
Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Madrake Pills are a standard preparation while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curer of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.
Price of Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, $1.50 a bottle, or $1.50 a half doz.
Madrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale
