Forty-One Students End Heart Classes

Forty-one South Plains area students took advantage of a cardiac care course offered by Amarillo College in Muleshoe to aid in having trained personnel for the new coronary care unit in a Muleshoe hospital.

This short-term health care course offered under the supervision of Mrs. Anna Lois Crawford, was held for nine weeks. "Two class sessions were held," Mrs. Crawford said. "One in the morning and another in the afternoon."

Patty Joplin, registered nurse, of Amarillo, drove 220 miles daily to teach the class which offered from the School of Continuing Education at Amarillo College.

"Students who were either licensed vocational nurses or registered nurses, were taught basic cardiac monitoring," said Mrs. Crawford. "The students learned arrhythmia patterns, cardiac complications and emergency situations."

Upon completion of the course, which offered jointly with West Texas State University, students received a certificate.

Hornets-Mules Plan Friday Night Swarm

Tomorrow night, Friday, it will be Mule Power versus Hornet Power, and on the Hornets home field at Tulia. Both have 2-0 records for this year, and Coach Don Cumpston issued a cautious word of warning.

"Look at Tulia's record starting out this year. They are big on defense and have not been

New Men's Store Grand Opening This Weekend

Roger and Joyce Albertson plan grand opening ceremonies for their all-new Albertson's Men's store, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, you are invited to register for free gifts which will be given every hour on the hour Saturday to some lucky winner above the age of 16.

Some of the items to be given during the 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. store hours include two suits, a sportcoat, neckties, sport shirts and dress shirts, dress pants, a set of mugs and men's gloves.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertson have been in the clothing business in Muleshoe for the past 21 years, and said they look forward to seeing all their friends, and hope to make new friends at their new store.

scored on this year," he commented. "We can possibly expect a low-scoring game this Friday."

In Tulia's first game, they blanked out Olton, 14-0, with Tulia quarterback Don Burgess scoring and Randall Reeves, halfback, scoring. In their second game with Lubbock Christian High School, Reeves scored twice while holding the LCHS Eagles scoreless and won, 12-0.

Coach Cumpston said one advantage Muleshoe may have is that Tulia plays eight players both ways, and Muleshoe's platooning system may wear Tulia's players down while Muleshoe keeps fresh players on the field.

He spoke highly of Tulia's Trent Finck, an All-State Center who is expected to show up well on the statistics in the game Friday.

"We expect a real competitive game," added the Muleshoe Coach. "Our players are ready to win, and are tired of getting beat. The boys have the desire it takes to excel and they believe in themselves and in each other."

He predicted a couple of minor injuries could slow down the Mules a little for the Friday night game, but said both players are seeing limited practice this week in preparation for

Fred Bara Wins First In Contest

More entries were received in the second week of the annual Muleshoe Merchant's football contest, but a clear-cut first place winner emerged when the contest was graded. A newcomer to the winner's column showed up in first place. Fred Bara, who has entered the contest in the past, came up with a 100 percent correct entry blank. He was off on the tie-breaker scores, but it was a small matter as he correctly predicted all 10 games.

Three persons missed only one game to tie for second and third place wins. But that old bug-aboo, no writing down the tie-breaker scores caused the disqualification of one entry. He may have had either a second or third place win, but we will never know. For second place, Johnnie Estep missed one game, Purdue and Michigan State, and was 14 points away on the tie-breaker. Third place winner L.C. (Shorty) Roddam, also missed one game, but he was 35 points away on the double tie-breaker score. Roddam missed the Tennessee vs California game.

Buy Walkie-Talkie For Police Personnel

City Council members Tuesday morning discussed a proposed flood plan regulation ordinance for the city of Muleshoe, and approved the new ordinance to conform with federal regulations.

Jack Eades, assistant to City Manager Dave Marr, explained the new regulations to council members.

He said, "The Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 requires the purchase of flood insurance on and after March 2, 1974 as a condition of receiving any form of Federal or federally-related financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes with respect to insurable buildings on mobile homes within an identified special flood area."

The Act also requires that on or after July 1, 1975, no such Federal assistance with funding, including mortgage loans from federally-regulated lenders, shall be provided within identified flood zones unless the community in which the area is located is then participating in the program.

He added, "If a community fails to adopt the appropriate flood plan management regulations, the community may be suspended from the program."

Eades added that requirements include: New residential construction or substantial improvements must be located above the flood plain and that the elevation in relation to mean sea level be certified by an engineer, architect or land surveyor.

New non-residential construction or substantial improvement must be above the flood plain or be flood proofed. A floodproofed structure must be certified as such by an engineer or architect.

Mobile homes must meet certain tie-down requirements. These requirements differ from requirements presently set by specifying that the frame be tied down. This is not require by present mobile home ordinance.

Variations may be granted by the Planning Commission if the construction or improvement is located on a lot one-half acre or less in size and contiguous to and surrounded by lots with existing structures constructed below the base flood level.

Subdivisions with 50 or more lots or five acres, whichever is less, must provide elevation data the same as any new residential construction.

Also, the ordinance called for the Planning Commission to hear appeals for variances.

Following lengthy discussion, council members adopted the new ordinance and are considering reinstating the Planning Commission, which had expired.

Approved was the purchase to two new walkie-talkies for the Muleshoe City Police, which would be adding enough new walkie-talkies so each member of the police would have the small radio for instant communication, even when off-duty and either at home or in his personal vehicle.

Additional safety for the citizens of the city was the impetus for the purchase.

The council heard a report on the city tax situation and audit as presented by Creston Favor, CPA. They heard that tax suits will be filed in the near future

U.S. Department of Agriculture officials gave a progress report September 7 in Lubbock on the industry's first field test of cotton classing by instrument. The test was conducted at the Lubbock Cotton Classing Office on about 50,000 bales of 1976 crop cotton from eight gins in Lubbock, Crosby and Garza Counties.

Paul Dickson, head of the Lubbock office, termed the test "successful from an operational standpoint" but "inconclusive as regards the possibility of instruments being used to replace manual classing in the future."

The past year was the first of a scheduled five-year testing period.

Harvin Smith, chief of USDA's Memphis, Tenn. testing section, presented an analysis of the instrument test line results, showing what he called "reasonably good" repeatability of the tests. Ninety percent of the samples retested came within .2 microgram of the original test for micronaire, within 8,000 pounds per square inch when retested for strength, and within 1/32 of an inch on staple.

Percentage-wise, differences in the other measurements recorded — length uniformity, color and trash content — were in the same range.

Test results on different bales from the same 10-bale module were also compared. Typical ranges in these tests were from 3.8 to 4.2 on micronaire, 31.3 to 33.3 thirty-seconds of an inch on staple, and on strength from 81,000 to 89,000 p.s.i.

All samples in the test received double evaluation, one by instrument and one by the cotton classer. Comparisons of the two sets of data, both of which appeared on the producer's green card showed close correlation, Smith said. However, it was noted that instrument measurements in length came out a little shorter than classers call on the low end of the staple range and slightly longer than classers call on the upper end.

Smith emphasized that his analysis covered a relatively small number of samples, related to only one year's experiment, and that future analyses during the five-year test could therefore show entirely different results.

Plans call for continuing the experiment in 1977, drawing cotton from the same eight gins. However any gin is free to withdraw from the test at any time and any gin customer can request that his cotton be excluded from instrument testing.

USDA's Economic Research Service is charged with evaluating effects of the instrument testline on cotton marketing and use. Don Ethridge, in charge of the Lubbock ERS office, reported that the 1976 testing "had little, if any, impact in the cotton marketing system."

This result, Ethridge said, was anticipated because of the relatively small number of bales tested and the unfamiliarity of many people in the marketing chain with the cotton quality measurements generated by the instruments.

The USDA report was given to officials of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., two major textile companies, area cotton cooperatives, interested ginners, producers and others.

Texas Tourism Tops $3.1 Billion In 1976

A record $3.1 billion was spent in Texas during 1976 by 17.2 million auto visitors from out of state, according to data released today by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Coincidentally, a new dimension regarding long-staying visitors to Texas has been developed for the first time by the Department's tourist industry analysts. The new data parallels the travel characteristics of the two distinct types of auto travel parties.

Short-term visitors, those who stayed 29 days or less, amounted to 94 percent of all auto visitors to Texas during 1976. Long-termers who stayed 30 days or more, often called "Winter Texans," totaled less than six percent of last year's auto visitors, but their spending topped $800 million and accounted for 26 percent of all auto traveler expenditures.

The disproportionate impact, according to the highway department, hinged on the extraordinary length of stay by Winter Texans—nearly 85 days in the Lone Star State compared to an average of 6.68 days for their more numerous short-term counterparts.

People are curious. If they were not, there would be little intelligence or progress in the world.

The comparative data cites both similarities and differences between the two types of auto travelers. Short-term auto visitors averaged 2.43 persons per party; long-termers averaged 2.08 persons per party.

Among short-termers, 48 percent cited vacationing as their primary reason for coming to Texas, with nearly that much more combining Texas pleasure trips with business motivations. Pure vacationing attracted 61 percent of the long-termers, and much less emphasis on business considerations.

Short-term travel parties spent at higher rates per day and averaged $331 spending per trip averaged $331 spending per trip. Winter Texan parties, although spending less per day, nevertheless left an average of $1,700 in Texas during their extended stays.

Winter Texans drove an average of 3,133 miles in the state. Short-term auto parties covered an average of 1,106 miles.

The 16.2 million short-term travelers spread throughout the state, visiting the Gulf Coast, North Texas, East Texas and West Texas with near equanimity. Their three favorite destination cities were Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. Not surprisingly, the Lower Rio Grande Valley was the most popular destination for a million-plus Winter Texans. Forty-five percent listed destinations in the four-county Valley region at the southern tip of Texas. Their favorite three cities were Brownsville, McAllen and San Antonio.

A precisely equal proportion of both groups, 24 percent, were counted in the "touring" category—free spirits who rambled through several regions of the state.

Although short-term visitors averaged fewer miles in Texas, they also drove a substantial portion of them, 13 percent, were passing through Texas to other state destinations. Long-term visitors were more partial to Texas, only one percent being bound for other states.

Complete details about both auto and common carrier visitors to Texas are customarily compiled in an annual Texas Visitor Industry report. However, an unprecedented six-month delay in receipt of data from the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board has precluded completion of the overall state report for last year.

When that data is eventually received, information about all modes of travel to Texas during 1976 will be available from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Austin.

Modern education, with all of its frills, has succeeded in merely scratching the surface of the child-training problem.

Alabama, Nebraska To Turn Power On

Alabama-Nebraska...could be the preview of a post-season bowl game. The two powers have only met three times on the football field, Alabama holding a two to one edge. And it's the goal for both teams to return to the top of their respective conferences. Though the Crimson Tide has to do the traveling, home field shouldn't make that much difference. We're picking the Southeast Conference to win this one... Alabama by 9.

Maryland-West Virginia...The champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference tangle with the always dangerous Mountaineers of West Virginia. The Terps won last year, 24-3, but with 37 lettermen returning to Morgantown, the score may be a mite closer. Maryland will win by... just one point... maybe!

The church and its pastor, J.E. Meeks, said they would like to extend a cordial welcome to the people of Muleshoe and the area to be in all the services on Sunday, September 18. The morning worship service begins at 11:00 a.m. and the evening service begins at 7 p.m.

The Biggest Two of the Big Ten (some year it may change - 's'pose by 2001?) appear to be in no trouble. Michigan entertains Duke and Ohio State will probably do anything but entertain any stray Minnesota fan who ventures too close to Columbus. Plain and simple, the Blue Devils and Gophers both have something in common; t-r-o-u-b-l-e! The Wolves are favored by 33 and Ohio State is the choice by 19.

Incidentally, the reason that neither U.C.L.A. nor Houston is listed in our Top 20 is that our ratings were made on Sunday. The two did not play until Monday night.

And both the Bruins and Cougars run right into heavy opposition Saturday. U.C.L.A. tussles with Kansas of the Big Eight and Houston meets national championship-minded Penn State. With only four days rest, they may have problems. Penn State is a slim 7-point favorite to beat Houston while U.C.L.A. will whip Kansas by whip Kansas by seventeen.

Looking elsewhere among the top major teams in the nation, a number of them should breeze to rather easy wins. Oklahoma meets Utah in Norman and the Utes should pose no big hurdle. The Sooners will win by 26 points.

Pacific 8 power Southern California will be 39 points too strong for Oregon State. Texas Tech and Texas A & M are big favorites over New Mexico and V.P.I., the Red Raiders by 20, the Aggies by twenty-six.

Consumer Food News

COLLEGE STATION -- Prunes now in good supply--offer sizes and forms that fit family budget, nutrition and convenience, says Mrs. Gwendolyn Clayatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. The main types are the French prune, which is sweet, and the tart Italian prune, Mrs. Clayatt says.

Prunes come in Extra Large--about 43 to the pound; Large--about 53 to a pound; Medium--about 67 and Small--about 85 to the pound. As a rule, the middle and smaller are the most economical. For stuffed prunes, or for other special uses, larger sizes are usually better.

Prunes are usually packaged in one- or two-pound cartons or in plastic bags. One pound of dried prunes yields four cups cooked prunes with pits, or three cups cooked prunes, pitted.

Tenderized prunes marketed in packages or glass jars are appealing snacks for the youngsters. These prunes will also have that fine sweet flavor without being overly sweet. In addition, prune juice and pureed prunes are available. Pureed prunes (such as baby and junior food) are ready to use in any recipe calling for pureed prunes.

No longer do dried prunes need hours of soaking and stewing. Some are treated with moist heat so they are extra tender and take less cooking time. They are soft enough to eat from the package.

Store prunes tightly covered at room temperature--dry and well-ventilated. Prunes supply iron and are a good source of vitamin A. Also, there is more natural sugar in dried fruit than in fresh.

"RIGHT TO FOOD" IS CONFAB THEME

The "Right to Food" Movement is one of the major issues today and is a source of potential conflict between agricultural producers and religious groups. That's why this issue will be discussed in depth at the upcoming Town and Country Church Conference, Oct. 6-7, at Texas A&M University, says a sociologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Keynote speakers will be Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau, and Arthur Simon, executive director of Bread for the World, Washington, D.C.

One pound of dried fruit yields 8 to 12 servings, advises Marilyn Haggard, food and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

We eat more beef today, while our consumption of other meats has decreased. Because we eat more highly marbled, tender cuts of beef and other "high fat" foods, our intake of saturated fats has increased. Many medical authorities recommend that we lower our total fat intake from the current 40 to 45 percent of calories to 35 percent, with only 10 percent coming from saturated fat. To do this would mean we would have to use leaner cuts of meat and increase poultry and fish consumption.

BOY WASHING YOUR FACE IS A CINCH FOR ASTRONAUTS!

Both Ends
"Why do you call your house a bungalow?"
"Well, if it isn't a bungalow, what is it? The builder made a bungle of it and I still owe for it."

Over the past 100 years, the United States has changed from a rural to an urban society and with this have come significant changes in the foods we eat. Most of us no longer grow or preserve our own fruits and vegetable or raise livestock for meat, milk and eggs. This is no done for us, sometimes thousands of miles from our hometowns. We are a society "on the run," concerned with our appearances and often too busy to be concerned with traditional meal patterns.

Our consumption of milk decreased by 5 percent from 1955 to 1965 and another 7 percent by 1975. The 160 calories in one cup of whole milk carry along with them a good portion of the day's need for calcium. Dairy products, milk, cheese and ice cream, are our best sources of calcium, an essential nutrient for the development and maintenance of bones and teeth. Without including dairy products in the diet daily, it is difficult to obtain the recommended amount of this nutrient.

The type and amount of carbohydrate in our diet has changed considerably over the years. Complex carbohydrates, those found in whole grains, fruits and vegetables, now account for a smaller percentage of total calories. An increase in this food group would not only supply the essential nutrients found predominantly in these foods but would also provide fiber, an essential component of our diet.

ABOUT YOUR HOME

Avoid the last minute rush and make September heating check-up time. Don't wait until a cold snap comes.

September is the ideal month to clear storage areas and attics of unused clutter. Have a garage sale--someone may want these items.

If your youngster walks to school, tuck one of the fold-up small umbrellas in his or her book bag.

To prevent crushed collars on shirts when packing for vacation, place socks in the ring of the collar.

For the knitter who is making her first garment--yarn of the same color number may not be the same shade. Be sure to check the dye-lot number, all the yarn for the garment should be the same dye-lot number.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--During the recent special legislative session lawmakers managed to un-snarl the legal tangle over county participation in a federal flood insurance program.

The legislation was needed after the Attorney General ruled that counties which joined the program after June 30, 1970 had done so without legislative authorization.

That ruling had placed in jeopardy the entry of almost 40 Texas counties into the program and the counties' enactment of federally required restrictions. The restrictions and their enforcement were conditions of qualifying residents for the federal flood insurance program.

Included in the bill is an amendment that gives legislative validation to the original action, provided the affected counties hold public hearings within 60 days of the effective date of the bill and re-enacts the original ordinances.

The main reason for calling the July special legislative session was to deal with the issue of school finance, and the legislature disposed of that item in a business-like manner. The Governor agreed that unless immediate action was taken by the legislature that numerous counties in the State would feel the pinch from the loss of federal flood insurance.

The flood insurance issue was sent to committees of both houses and, in a workmanlike manner, the issue was scrutinized and delivered to the membership for action in a short period of time. The flood insurance bill was a by-product of school finance. Without the looming issue of school finance starting the Legislature in the face, we would not have been in session and if we had not been in session, we would have been unable to deal with the very real flood insurance problem.

I think all of Texas was benefitted by the school finance bill, and being able to resolve the flood insurance dilemma was an added bonus.

VITAMIN E GENERALLY ABUNDANT IN DIETS

Most people need not be concerned about lacking vitamin E in their diets, says a food technologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Vitamin E occurs in many common foods which humans consume in adequate amounts and is accumulated in the body for later use. Although the vitamin has been proven to be of value in treating certain specific medical problems, it is by no means a cure-all. Richest sources of vitamin E are cereal grains, fish, meat, eggs, dairy products and green leafy vegetables.

On Wall Street

By Bob Hill

A price explosion just took place in building materials. It is the result of an announcement by the Commerce Department that U.S. private housing starts had moved up to an adjusted annual rate of 2.1 million in July. Key grade 2X4s no sell for $230 for 1,000 board ft. a jump of almost 20 percent in the past month. Half-inch plywood sheathing has jumped 11 percent to $250 for 1,000 sp. ft.

Both of these prices are all-time highs, and it has Washington worried. The National Association of Home Builders calls the price increases "inexplicable". The head of Housing and Urban Development has called for an investigation into the situation by the Wage & Price Stabilization Council. Her chief concern is that the $700 to $1,000 price hikes in lumber and wood products have added to the cost of new housing in the past year.

Some lumber mills on the West Coast have pulled out of the lumber market entirely, convinced that even higher prices are coming. The demand for plywood is simply outstripping all available supply. Buyers are worried that the level of housing starts will remain high and that lumber will continue scarce and high priced. Wildcat strikes in British Columbia's lumber-plywood mills and the dangers of additional fires in the West haven't helped the situation.

Another housing product has also jumped sharply in price. Particle board, made from lumber-mill shavings and plywood trimmings, has jumped 85 percent in price in the past five months. Even gypsum sheet-rock is booming. Demand for gypsum wallboard is still low in the East and fairly strong in the Central states and Southeast. But in the West gypsum wallboard plants are running at capacity. Wallboard is usually not shipped very far because one-third of its cost is freight. But California builders are happy to get wallboard deliveries up to two months late and will pay almost any extra delivery fees.

Lovegrass Boosted For Dryland Crop

With the prospect of scarce irrigation water looming in the foreseeable future, West Texas farmers are trying to find profitable dryland crops.

Drs. Bill E. Dahl and Russell D. Pettit, professors in the Texas Tech University Range and Wildlife Management Department, are working with just such a crop in the Terry and Yoakum counties area.

That crop is a form of weeping lovegrass. It is potentially valuable because with proper management it can provide both grazing for beef cattle and nutritious hay. With feed costs for beef cattle running as high as 70 percent of the total cost of production, development of lovegrass as a food source would be a boon to the beef cattle industry because of its nutritional value and its low production cost.

Dahl and Pettit are working with three aspects in growing lovegrass, including methods of clearing uncultivated land economically, ways to sow in the loose, sandy soil of West Texas and methods of proper management for best results.

There are three types of weeping lovegrass, the common, commercial variety, ermo and morpa. The latter two, the most palatable for cattle, are being used in the Tech project.

Pettit is working with inexpensive methods of reclaiming land overgrown by sand shinnery oak and seeding it with lovegrass. Such land comprises about 8 million acres in Texas. Normally available only to contractors, research is being done in clearing land with farm-type disc plows and then seeding with lovegrass. That method was relatively successful in 1976, and it will be tried again in '77-'78.

Because of the danger of barring too much of the loose, dry soil in West Texas, Dahl is also working with strip plowing shinnery oak land, which entails plowing the land in strips 40 to 50 feet wide and then seeding. This summer at the Post Montgomery Estate Ranch strips were plowed at required distances, with alternate strips left unplowed to provide wind breaks. The land was then seeded, and later the owner of the ranch provided cattle for obtaining data on the lovegrass planted in the plowed strips.

Next year the alternate strips will be plowed. This method will allow a farmer to begin reconverting uncultivated land immediately without danger of blowing and drifting sand.

Dahl and Pettit have also been involved in determining the best method to sow lovegrass seed without plowing and opening the land to the wind. One method on cultivated land was to scatter the seeds on the top of the ground. A roller was attached immediately behind the seeder to press the seeds into the soil and pack the earth to eliminate air pockets, which dry out the seeds and prevent germination.

The researchers also used a grass drill to seed the land. The drill was used alone and in combination with a roller, rolling both before and after drilling. Dahl said he felt drilling and rolling proved best.

Because lovegrass grows rapidly and just as rapidly loses nutrients, it requires proper and constant management. The two professors have been involved in demonstrating these management techniques at research acreage near Brownfield.

Between 30 and 40 days growth is the optimum time for both grazing and haying lovegrass. After about 45 days, although the grass almost doubles in size and the cattle will eat it, it loses most of its nutritional value and the livestock will not gain weight.

Proper management includes fertilizing, using actual nitrogen at about 30 pounds per acre in April and late June, and rotation of cattle, mowing or mowing-and-baling to prevent the grass from passing optimum growth.

Though the grass requires some time for management, it does have several advantages, the main one being high productivity. It can yield up to 10 times more per acre than native range grass, according to United States Department of Agriculture research. Proper care can ensure this perennial grass' continued growth for 10-15 years. Probably its most practical advantages for West Texas are its adaptiveness to sandy soil and capability to survive without irrigation. For the future the researchers hope to accumulate data on the value of the grass for cattle.

Research in other parts of the country have shown it to be a nutritious and palatable feed for beef cattle, and Dahl is confident that it will be found to be the same in this area.

Con Artists Prey On Older People

One of the most despicable thieves prowling our streets today is the confidence swindler -- a scoundrel who often preys on our elderly citizens. Regardless of the number of warnings issued by police departments, many older Americans are still being bilked out of their life savings by con artists using such swindles as the Bank Examiner Scheme and the Pigeon Drop Swindle.

Recognizing the earmarks of these schemes can help you to avoid falling victim to them. There, then, is how they work.

In the Bank Examiner Scheme, the con artist, posing as a bank officer of a police officer, asks you to withdraw money from your bank account so that he may trap a dishonest teller. After you make the withdrawal, you are to meet the swindler away from the bank and give him the money so he can "compare the serial numbers" and arrest the employee. The money, according to the con man, will be immediately re-deposited to your account. Once you give the money to the phoney officer, he goes back into the bank -- and then out another door with all your money. Of course, he does not work for the bank. He makes his living cheating people.

The Pigeon Drop is usually worked by two or more con women. The first swindler pretends to find a money-filled envelope laying near your feet on the street. The swindler's partner walks up and demands that the finder split the large sum of money three ways. It is suggested that the three of you put up five hundred or a thousand dollars in "good faith" money. You are selected to hold all the money for thirty days. If no one claims the lost money, the three of you will meet again in the same spot and split the find. You, of course, are to hand your "good faith" money over to the other two women. All the money is wrapped and tied. You are given the envelope that was found. It now actually contains cut-up newspapers, the money having been switched by the swindlers during the wrapping. Of course, by the time you become suspicious and look into the package the con artists are long gone with your "good faith" money. You are the pigeon.

A crime resistance technique that I strongly advocate is to make sure that you and every-one that you know, especially senior citizens, are aware of how swindlers work. Always beware of strangers offering secret get-rich-quick propositions -- deals which must be acted upon immediately. Remember, very few people will give you something for nothing.

Farm Product Price Drop Keeps Pressure on Farmers

AUSTIN—Texas farmers, caught in the grip of rising inflation rates and declining farm product prices, were squeezed a little harder last month. Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

Brown said that figures just released from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show that the All Farm Products Index for the survey month ending July 15 decreased one point. The index measures average prices received by farmers for their products.

"Meat animals, poultry and eggs were bringing higher prices on the average," said Brown, "but these small gains were more than offset by lower prices for most crops."

The figures show that crop prices on the average dropped five per cent since mid-June, contributing to a decrease of 21 points on the All Crops Index. Slight increases were recorded for wheat and alfalfa hay, however. Livestock showed an average price increase of five per cent.

Grain sorghum, which remains well below last year's prices, was the hardest hit. Average price per hundred weight (cwt.) dropped 25 cents, from $3.26 to $3.01. Corn was also down, from $2.13 per bushel on June 15 to $1.98 on July 15. Oats suffered a six-cent-per-bushel drop. Wheat prices, which increased slightly, showed a gain of nine cents per bushel. Baled alfalfa hay was also up, from $63 per ton to $65.

Beef cattle, calves, hogs and lambs all registered price increases, with the biggest increase noted in hog prices. Prices received for sheep declined 10 cents per cwt.

A 7.1-cent-per-dozen increase was recorded for eggs, and broilers were up one-and-a-half cents per pound. Turkey prices were up from 34 cents per pound to 36 cents.

"We were encouraged by the increases recorded in some areas," Brown commented, "although these will do little to bring prices near the parity level which farmers should get to allow them a decent return on their investments."

Comptroller Praises Tax On Drinks

Comptroller Bob Bullock said Tuesday that the state tax on mixed drinks has generated over $156 million in revenue for the state, cities and counties since its inception six years ago.

An analysis of the mixed drink gross receipts tax was included in the Comptroller's August monthly financial statement.

The monthly statement also includes a report on a bill pending in the Louisiana Legislature to tax the processing of natural gas gathered from federal lands in the Gulf and a guide to the 1978-79 Texas appropriations act which is effective September 1.

The mixed drink tax analysis shows that $45.1 million of the $156 million in revenues raised by the tax from 1971 through 1976 went to city and county governments for general spending, Bullock said.

Some $23.4 million of the revenue has gone to the 190 Texas counties that have mixed drink establishments within their boundaries. City shares of the revenue for the six-year period totaled $21.7 million.

Mixed drink permittees are taxed at a rate of 10 percent of their gross receipts from mixed drink sales. The Comptroller's Office, on a quarterly basis, remits to the counties the cities 15 percent of the tax collected within their boundaries.

Bullock said his analysis shows that Louisiana would stand to collect $150 million annually from the proposed natural gas processing tax. By comparison, he added, Texas would get less than $5 million from a similar tax because offshore federal gas fields here have been less productive to date than Louisiana's.

The August financial statement reports that state revenues for June totaled $702.8 million, raising the fiscal year-to-date total of $5.5 billion. June expenditures totaled $462.7 million.

State revenues for the first 10 months of fiscal 1977 are 13 percent higher than a year ago, Bullock pointed out, while total expenditures during the same period are 4 percent ahead of the previous fiscal year.

The Comptroller said the state closed its books at the end of June with a $1.7 billion cash balance.

Life shouldn't be all duty and work; there should be a place for recreation and repose, and wise people understand this.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek reacts to the metric system this week, in typical fashion.

Dear editor:
There are three things I have no intention of learning: Russian, Chinese, and the metric system.

It's not that they're too hard. Chinese kids for example learn to speak Chinese. Russian kids learn to speak Russian. But you've got to remember they learn it before they knew any better. I could read and speak the metric system now if somebody had gotten to me early enough.

That's the problem Congress is faced with. Over a year ago Congress decreed that the metric system should be adopted and used in this country. It's like Congress' passing an ethics bill. Members are just too set in their ways to master it. I'll bet there aren't five percent of the members who can tell you off-hand without looking it up how many kilometers there are between Washington and their home town. They couldn't come withing a country mile of doing it.

Somebody has estimated it'll cost millions and millions of dollars just to change all the highway signs in this country over to metric measure, and that doesn't take into account the ones teen-agers tear down when they run out of rural mail boxes.

It's a problem however I'm not going to worry about. When a farmer or rancher isn't getting enough to cover the cost of production, what difference does it make which system he's paid under? Regardless of how many miles or kilometers a car gets on a gallon of gas, you almost have to moonlight these days to own one.

I guess I'm like the woman who said if she saw a centimeter she'd step on it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

To economize one must do without some-thing.

State Ranks No. 1 in U.S. In Sorghum

AUSTIN-Texas farmers helped make the state No. 1 in the nation in sorghum production last year, with a total of 292,900,000 bushels being harvested, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

Brown noted, however, that of the 7,300,000 acres planted in sorghum in Texas, only 5,800,000 were harvested. Harvesting of an excellent crop was underway in southern Texas when heavy rains caused much of the grain to turn black or sprout in the head before harvesting was complete.
Brown stated, in addition, he said, an early freeze on the High Plains damaged
numerous late crops.
An average yield of 50.5
bushels per acre was reported, Brown said.

Veterans Q & A

Q -- I receive VA pension, and am also going to school under the GI Bill. Are my educational benefits considered income for pension purposes?

A -- Yes, but amounts actually spent for educational expenses may be deducted from this. You should report the entire amount, along with any deductible expenses.

Q -- Is the widow of a veteran killed in service entitled to a VA home loan?

A -- An unmarried widow of a veteran who died while on active duty may receive VA home loan benefits on a one-time basis.

Q -- I have lost my original discharge paper. Can the VA help?

A -- Your local VA office can assist you in obtaining a certificate in lieu of the lost document.

Q -- I would like to apply for a loan on my $10,000 five-year level term National Service Life Insurance policy. How much can I receive?

A -- Term insurance has no cash value; consequently there is no loan available.

Juvenile Arthritis Is A School Problem

"The problems of living with arthritis are bad at any age, but, for children, this crippling can be overwhelming," reported Dr.
William A. Riley, member of the Medical Committee, West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis
Foundation.

Dr. Riley said that 250,000 American children are victims of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis (JRA). The disease will prevent some of these children from ever getting to school this September, and those who do get their take of problems of arthritis with them.

"In addition to pain and de-formity of joints, JRA can threaten a child's vision, heart, liver and other organs," said Dr. Riley. "It also can affect emotional development."
Twenty years ago, physicians could do comparatively little for children afflicted with arthritis.
Many became seriously deformed, and often had frequent attacks of swelling and pain in their joints all their lives. Today, with proper medical care to help prevent crippling affects, JRA can be controlled and usually recedes by puberty in 70 percent of its victims.

"The child must be helped to follow a regimen which usually includes medication, rest, and special exercises," said Dr.
Riley. Children whose parents and teachers are supportive while helping them live as normal a life as possible, fare better than those whose parents are either overwhelmed by the disease or minimize its presence.

Dr. Riley noted that parents and teachers interested in further information can send for a free booklet, "Arthritis in Children", available from the West
Texas Chapter of the Arthritis
Foundation at 3701 N. Big Spring, Midland, Texas 79701.

State Ranks No. 1 in U.S. In Sorghum

AUSTIN—Texas farmers helped make the state No. 1 in the nation in sorghum production last year, with a total of 292,900,000 bushels being harvested. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.
Brown noted, however, that in the 7,300,000 acres planted in sorghum in Texas, only 5,800,000 were harvested. Harvesting of an excellent crop was underway in southern Texas when heavy rains caused much of the grain to turn black or sprout in the head before harvesting was complete. Brown stated. In addition, he said, an early freeze on the High Plains damaged numerous late crops.
An average yield of 50.5 bushels per acre was reported, Brown said.

Veterans Q & A

Q - I receive VA pension, and am also going to school under the GI Bill. Are my educational benefits considered income for pension purposes?

A - Yes, but amounts actually spent for educational expenses may be deducted from this. You should report the entire amount, along with any deductible expenses.

Q - Is the widow of a veteran killed in service entitled to a VA home loan?

A - An unmarried widow of a veteran who died while on active duty may receive VA home loan benefits on a one-time basis.

Q - I have lost my original discharge paper. Can the VA help?

A - Your local VA office can assist you in obtaining a certificate in lieu of the lost document.

Q - I would like to apply for a loan on my $10,000 five-year level term National Service Life Insurance policy. How much can I receive?

A - Term insurance has no cash value; consequently there is no loan available.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--The event of the winter of 1973-74--namely petroleum production decline, higher oil prices and the Arab embargo--provided dramatic evidence that the U. S. and other oil consuming countries are vulnerable to interruptions in imports from the major oil exporting nations.

These serious conditions combined with continued federal regulation of oil and gas prices at a level below actual market value put our state resources of oil and gas in a position of being exploited.

We in the U. S. must now address ourselves to a policy of adequate energy supply, but at a higher, though not unreasonable, cost.

We in Texas know that price is a very legitimate concern to the consumer, but we also know that the only real form of consumer protection is adequacy of supply. Adequacy of supply of oil and gas is very unlikely under conditions which force prices below market value. The only results of these artificially low market prices are lack of exploration and thus decline in supply.

As one who has spent his professional life in the area of local and state government, I fully appreciate the importance of energy production and utilization to our state. It is indeed time that the State of Texas consider the danger and high expense of letting our valuable oil and gas reserves dwindle to a dangerously low level.

In the past, Texas has always taken its oil and gas royalties from state lands in monetary units going into the general treasury. Now would be a good time to seriously consider the alternative of taking these royalties in oil rather than money.

What I have proposed for the State of Texas is the establishment of a strategic petroleum reserve, thereby benefitting the state to the extent that we are lengthening our oil and gas supply, insuring Texas against embargo and potentially enhancing the state's wealth as oil and gas becomes increasingly expensive. We might find that it would be a better investment to put oil in the ground than the money in the bank.

During the next few months state energy experts will be analyzing the possibility of developing a Texas Strategic Petroleum Reserve. It may be the insurance the state needs for its future.

FALL LANDSCAPE COLOR

Now is the time to begin observing fall colors in the countryside and to make plans to add colorful and interesting plants to your own home landscape, says a landscape horticulturist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Plants may be selected for their attractive foliage or fruit, interesting seed pods, or unusual bark characteristics. Many such plants are available at nurseries, but some may have to be collected from their native habitat. Collected plants must be pruned back sharply.

LUBBOCK--The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will be allowed to charge for fish stocked in private ponds and lakes in 1978 as a result of Senate bill 286.

Charges for fish will include $2/acre for largemouth bass, $4/acre for channell catfish and $5/acre for sunfish.

"The P&WD has been furnishing fish for private waters since the 1920's without charge to the pond owner but, rising production costs and financial problems in the P&WD have required a fee system to be initiated," said Bill Rutledge, hatchery coordinator.

"According to our studies in lake and pond management, a stocking ratio of 50 fish per acre will be in effect next year," Rutledge continued.

If future studies dictate a higher stocking rate, the P&WD will increase the number of fish per acre.

Bass will be delivered next spring and should be in the one-inch class. Channel catfish in the two-inch class and sunfish in the one-inch class will be delivered next fall.

Last year, the P&WD hatchery trucks logged over 60,000 miles delivering fish across the state. P&WD hatchery budgets cannot stand this expense and the annual fish delivery to all county seats will be eliminated.

Fish applicants will receive a notice for fish pickup at 29 distribution sites across the state. These delivery sites will be determined by computer and a centrally-located point between applicant's ponds will be picked.

The intent of the new legislation will allow the P&WD to retrieve only the cost of production of these fish. If the cost of production drops next year, the cost per acre to the pond owner will also go down.

For landowners with ponds or lakes larger than 75 acres, the P&WD will deliver fish from the hatchery to the lake for 25 cents per mile.

Requests for species of fish other than the largemouth bass, channel catfish and sunfish will not be processed. Commercial fish hatcheries can furnish different species and larger fish to the pond owner.

An application can be secured by writing the P&WD, Hatchery Coordinator, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

Upon completion of the application, a $2 cashier's check or certified check should be sent with the application back to Austin for proper processing by the November 1, 1977 deadline. The $2 application fee is non-refundable and is required for the cost of processing.

Unemployment Insurance Is Increased

A new period of "extended" unemployment insurance benefits has become effective in Texas and other states, following a rise in the national rate of insured unemployment, the Texas Employment Commission says.

Persons who filed an initial claim for jobless pay within one year before August 28, 1977 and who have exhausted their regular benefits, may qualify. Any such individual who wishes to file a claim for extended benefits shall file his claim in the same manner in which he would file a claim for regular benefits. Retroactive claims for extended benefits will be allowed during the first 21 days after the date of this announcement. Extended benefits, which are financed 50-50 by federal funds and state trust funds, can amount to as much as half of regular jobless benefits.
