Our Defeat.

The registration lists of 1871 will show, that about 5000 new names have been registered in the fourth Congressional District. Of this number about one thousand are republicans, while the other four thousand are democrats. At least two thousand rebels were allowed to vote by the constitution of 1865, and they may be found, without exception, among the 4000 newly registered. The balance will be found to consist partly of those, who have become of age since the adoption of the constitution, partly of those who could not make up their minds, to cast their votes for Jack Hamilton, including a few immigrants and a small number of renegade republicans.

At the last election the democrats thought that they could annihilate republicanism at one fell blow; they were thoroughly organized, and did not hesitate to make use of the most unworthy weapons to accomplish their purpose, and that is more than can be said of the great bulk of the republican party during the last campaign.

It was immaterial as far as the results of the election was concerned, whether the State administration was good or bad, or what the character was of the republican nominee, the democrats went into the fight intending to win, and they had the necessary number of votes, they understand to perfection how to throw sand into the eyes of the people, and they have succeeded.

There is no doubt but they developed the entire strength of the party, and have voted every man in their ranks.

So far, however, from being discouraged by the result of the election, we are more confident than ever, that the future of this State will be shaped by the republican party.

When we reflect on the difficulties we have had to contend with since 1860, when we remember how every measure of the administration for the protection of life and property met with violent opposition not only from the democracy, but also from many republicans, and when the amount of political capital is taken in consideration which the democracy gained by the persistent howling against taxes and the school law, when we make allowance for the blundering failures of the enabling act, and the occasional mistakes of the administration and the legislature, the result of the last election can hardly be wondered at.

We have gained a thousand votes and under more favorable auspices would have gained many thousand more. Where have these votes come from?

A large proportion of them are the votes of those who were deluded into voting for Hamilton and Hayes in 1860, because they called themselves republicans, another and smaller portion belong to the immigrants, that have come into the country of late, and the rest are young men who have come of full age recently.

This accession is natural and will increase tremendously each succeeding year, while we may safely predict, that the democracy will receive no other reinforcements beyond those who are coming of age. The administration of the State affairs is still in the hands of the republicans, and we have two long years of prospective usefulness before us. By the expiration of that period all difficulties connected with the public school system will have been overcome and the democratic opposition and its causes will be exposed in all its naked deformity, and by that time the rate of taxation will have been lowered, and the people of the United States will have arisen in their majesty, and by the election of a republican president put the party of disorder and retrogression out of its misery.

LATE TELEGRAMS.

[SPECIAL TO THE SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Rumors are heavy of additional frauds.

It is positively announced that should Catorcay persist in exercising functions as Russian Minister after the visit of Prince Alexis, his passport will be handed him. Hundred recruits ordered to San Antonio.

New York, Nov. 4.—The Times says that Bullock of Georgia, states there is no foundation whatever for the wild charges he intends to return to Georgia and demand investigation.

The Tribune says Bullock's letter of resignation is not clear, the whole affair is very hazy.

New York, Nov. 4.—Cotton dull, trending downwards, good ordinary 17½; Texas middling 19½; Gold 11½.

A Startling Revelation!

CHICAGO FIRED BY THE SOCIETY OF NATIONALS—CONFESSION BY A MEMBER.

The following extravagant narrative which we give in an abbreviated form, is taken from the Chicago Times, which paper devotes a column and a half in fine type to its exciting details, and adds: "Though it appears at first to be utterly romantic and improbable, there are many wanting confirmatory circumstances." The original explanation of the origin of the fire has been conclusively disproven. It can be attested by everyone who listened to Train at Farwell Hall on the night of the fire, that he used the language recited below, etc. Little doubt remains that the city was fired in several different places.

The informant, professing to be moved by remorse, does not divulge his name. He states that the society has its headquarters in Paris, and branches in London, Edinburgh, Manchester, Liverpool, Dublin, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Naples, Florence, Vienna, and other cities in Europe, and in New York, Boston, Washington, New Orleans, Baltimore, and Chicago. The society was organized during the political excitement which preceded the election of Louis Napoleon to the Presidency. Its objects was the promotion of a commune, with equality of rights and riches, poor and wealthy, ignorant and learned. The coup d'état, which placed Napoleon on the throne temporarily, defeated its purposes; yet its organization was intact, and the alleged evils of the Emperor's reign caused the attraction to its ranks of all malevolent elements. He proceeds to say that the miserable results of the late war invited them to a trial of their terrible principles, and the gorgeous bloody orgies, and as by the torch of Hecate, the flames of destruction wasted the relics of grandeur and the trophies of national power.

The most horrible record of devastation and woe the century will take down to futurity he charges to this commune. Its final defeat did not extinguish it, and now yet strong in trembling France, its members, whom the whips of the furies must urge on to scatter throughout our own prosperous cities. He states also that in Great Britain have been instigated by them, and more powerful to influence crowds by fiery eloquence added to their body every where, and that they have failed in many attempts to foment strife between employers and laborers, and as a ultima ratio they determined to burn Chicago as the city where rapidly growing wealth was winding the social distinctions in extreme.

The confession includes the name of

as a member, and reminds that he stated in a lecture in Farwell Hall Sunday evening before the fire.

"This is the last public address that will be delivered within these walls. A terrible calamity is impending over the city of Chicago. More I can not, dare not say." He adds that another word would have ended his life, as there were scores of pistols pointed at him.

PETROLEUM MINES

had been laid by plots in secret conclave beyond the reach of mortal observation.

Mines in various streets were simultaneously fired, and in order to cover up their effort to stay the conflagration by explosion of buildings by gunpowder, a train communicating with the magazine, could at any moment destroy it.

The first barrels removed by the powder brigade were those with which the train communicated, and hundreds were saved who would have been killed by explosion.

Many of these mines started into fire, and the water works were undermined. He asserts that the men executed the design, and that the buildings destined by the Society to be spared fell. Concluding, he says that two of the original founders of this fearful fraternity in Chicago found their death in the flames, and he, the narrator, is exposed to hideous death for treachery that other cities are threatened in like manner, and that every circle of society has the sworn members of the Societe Nationale in its midst. The things of India had no parallel power in the number he estimates as belonging to the Commune.

"This is the last public address that will be delivered within these walls. A terrible calamity is impending over the city of Chicago. More I can not, dare not say."

He adds that another word would have ended his life, as there were scores of pistols pointed at him.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

PLAIN and ornamental printing executed with promptness and dispatch, and at low rates, at the EXPRESS office.

THERE will be preaching at the First Presbyterian church, Flores street, this (Sabbath) morning, at 11 o'clock.

REMEMBER that annual celebration of the Alamo Literary Association takes place at the Casino on Saturday, the 8th instant; everybody is invited.

WOOD can now be bought as low as four dollars a half, which is very high, when the prices paid in other cities are taken into consideration.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—Rev. Naismith will preach in Freeman's Hall, on Sabbath day, at half past 10 o'clock A. M. Sabbath school at 9 A. M. All are invited.

For absurd prices and much business in a quiet way there is not a store in town that can come up to that of Mr. A. Albert Wolff on Commerce street.

As an evidence of how suitably things are dealt out in this mundane sphere, it has been remarked, that in proportion as a man is destitute of stamps, he receives little.

We hear the remark on every hand, "What delightful weather we are enjoying," and it is thought probably, that we may have a continuance of the same until near Christmas, as is often the case.

Just as we go to press we are informed that Mr. Conrad Schmidt, an elderly German, who lives on the west side of the San Pedro creek, fell from the roof of his house which he was repairing, and broke his leg.

We observed a gentleman on the streets day before yesterday, that could not make use of his foot, although assisted by his friends, and inferred, that his shoots were tight or his toes corned, but found out our mistake by a remark he made.

ANOTHER ITEM.—A large load of hay was upon the Concourse street bridge day before yesterday and several hours work entailed upon the driver and his assistants. The driver of the team was not in the best of humor when we were picking up this load, but we forgive him.

PENTZBREDER'S MUSEUM is increasing daily in attractiveness, and by the first of December when all its thousands of toys, pictures, statuettes and innumerable other articles calculated to rivet the eye in its socket will be in position, it will be filled daily with admiring adults and exuberant children.

ACCIDENTS, suicides and murders are alarming on the decrease, and if locals were to depend upon these items, we are afraid our paper would look blank indeed. We doubt, if there is another community in Texas of 12,000 people, that are so quiet, orderly and well disposed as the people of San Antonio. —Confound them.

A "SOCABLE" will take place at the Mengen on Tuesday evening, which, we have no doubt, will be a delightful affair, as the gentlemen composing this club understand how to make these delightful reunions agreeable to everybody who attends. We are informed that this is but the opening entertainment of a series which will shorten the long winter evenings in a charming manner.

COMMERCE street shows a never ending string of vehicles of every description, from dewy morn until the shadows of night begin to fall. This gives us a chance to make an approximate of the amount of business and traffic done in San Antonio which amount is astonishing and even ahead of the most liberal calculations. The quantity of persons that came in on Saturday was very noticeable.

We have often heard the question asked, "why do summer roses fade." As far as our San Antonio experiences is concerned they don't fade, as rich and beautiful bouquets are still to be had. Nearly every lot within the corporate limits has its corner devoted to floriculture, and experience has proven, that our climate is adapted to almost any growth of shrub, plant or flower.

AT THE RISK of being thought tedious, we again remind our citizens of the advantages derived from devoting time and attention to the planting of fruit and shade trees. We know of scarcely any branch of farming or gardening that is not improved by having upon its grounds good shade trees. And then around the house, they keep it most delightfully cool, not to mention how much they set off the appearance of the premises. We know of shade trees in this town that five hundred dollars could not buy, so thoroughly are the owners impressed with their utility. Our people should encourage the planting of trees by every means in their power, not only in, but out of the city. The western prairies are now being extensively planted with trees of a hardy nature and vigorous growth, at Government expense.

TRUTH.—The powers of Mrs. Whitcomb's Syrup for children are as positive as the sunlight from heaven, and gentle and soothing as an angel's whisper.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to blow into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever, or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty, use the old and infallible VINEGAR BITTERS. (25-10-71dew).
