The Promising Democracy.

At present the democratic overplus with promises of the most extravagant and seductive character. Everything that the republican administration has accomplished is consigned to the regions of lies and blunders, and averting that the promising democracy expects to do (if they are allowed to) is pictured in the most brilliant colors, so much so, that if only one-third of the promised blessings are realized we may confidently expect the immediate inauguration of the millennium.

As a matter of course, taxes will be unknown, while the democracy rules the land with its gentle sway; if there should happen to be any necessity for anything of the sort, it will only amount to a few dollars, not worth mentioning. Public schools will be regarded as public nuisances and abated at once, by the State Police. What else have we for such institutions under a democratic state government? They are as useless to the democracy as minnows from Germany, which will likewise subside gone. What need have we of an army of hide-inspectors? The democracy did not need them before, and they too must go by the board with the stock-law.

What difference does it make to the democratic leaders, if the old fashioned shooting and stoning is renewed, they have no cattle to become mining and their lives are not endangered; and what do they care if a few honest men are shot by cattle thieves and desperados? The golden age is democratically upon us; we can almost see the long-haired children of the prairie on their montagnes, tearing through our streets, and into the music of their drunken yell, and the banging away with their pistols at objectionable citizens, it is almost time to re-open the gambling halls and the slave-factories; all that is necessary, is to have an administration that looks with more charity on these human weaknesses than the present one.

What glorious days are coming—for the democracy.

You will be cheap and cattle high, and only the nigger will have to work.

This passive policy seems to be the one most advocated by the majority of the Democratic journals. It is proposed that no Democratic candidate for President be placed in the field, and that the Democracy play possum and wait for something to turn up. This is a virtual acknowledgement that the Democracy is unable to cross swords with Republicanism in open fight. Under these circumstances their whining remonstrance against the onward march of the President's policy reminds us of little anecdotes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had long been quarreling about who should be "boss of the shanty," when Mrs. Jones decided the question with the broom stick and passed her battered husband until he took refuge under the bed out of reach of the formidable weapon.

"Jake!" says Mr. Jones, "come out from under that bed, this instant."

Never imagined the demoralized Jones, "not so long as I have the spirit of a man in me."

TEXAS.

We learn from an undoubted source that the late elections in Texas turned entirely on State issues. The school system proposed was objected to, because it left it to the chief school officer to say, if he chose, that there should be mixed schools. This lost the Republican party many votes. Then the tax proposed—two and a half per cent on all property—was very unpopular. The people of Texas have not been used to taxes, as their public lands have until recently supported the government. It is the opinion of well-informed citizens of Texas that if longer time had been allowed for discussing, and the people could have seen the necessity for this tax, and had had no fears of mixed schools, the Republicans would have carried the State. Neither is it true that the German were influenced by the Carl Schurz movement. It was not talked of at all. They voted, or refused to vote, on account of the State issues above mentioned. They will all vote the Republican ticket in 1872.

The Ku Klux are organized in Texas in great force. They also despise the Republicans of many voices. We give out evidence of their numbers and discipline: In the little county town of Goliad, a colored State policeman shot & killed a negro, & while in self-defense. Within six hours there were five hundred Ku Klux in the village mounted, armed, and officiated. They attacked the police, but without doing much injury, retired. They followed and the effect of a desperate, early daylight attack on the State troops. On their way from the village, passed there, as an innocent colored man who was sitting in his deer with his wife, shooting his pipe, after hard day's work. The murderer heard of the dead.

The Herald is entitled to all the credit for that law and order there is in Texas. But for his nerve and firmness the National Government would be compelled at open point by the strong-hand life and property in Texas. It may have to do this before the election in 1872. —Washington Chronicle.

According to the Herald that "silver lining," which was a sounding joke of that day, during the war, has actually begun to make its appearance in Austin.

The silver linings of the Herald are very apt to be brass mounted.

Mexican News.

About one hundred cavalry, with two howitzers, marched from Matamoros for Mier Saturday evening, to join the brigade of Cortina.

According to the Advertiser, it is reported that Gen. Martínez was wounded in the engagement with Cortina at Aguaque, the latter chief having fallen back on Matamoros.

Lázaro Mestas and Le Méte, refuse to accept Trevino as Governor of Nuevo Leon.

Cortina is said to be marching on Nuevo Leon from San Luis Potosí. It is also reported that General Martínez captured a portion of Cortina's train.

The telegraph between Matamoros and Mier is in working order.

Another summer has been current for over a week in Matamoros. Viscaino, one of the congressional representatives of Tamaulipas, and Meade, Pas and Martínez, are reported to have been summarily shot for conspiracy against the Juarez government of Mexico.

Of the butchery of the City of Mexico, we are still without details. Telegraphic communication with Monterrey remains interrupted. There is no traceable foundation to the rumors current.

Chilean-Piso.

It seems that the rash for this home-spun is not confined to Texas editors and printers, but that the editors of New York have acquired a very decided taste for it.

The committee appointed to investigate the printing department of the city government of New York, report that for the three years of 1870, 1871 and 1872, $6,762,808.49 were paid to 50 papers, the larger dailies receiving in the following proportions:

News $300,000.00

Star and Evening Star $27,000.00

Democrat and Chronicle $12,000.00

Telegraph $10,000.00

World $4,000.00

Commercial Advertiser $2,500.00

Sun $2,000.00

Herald $1,500.00

Times $1,000.00

Tribune $2,500.00

Mail $1,000.00

Post $1,000.00

Standard $1,000.00

Courier des Etats-Unis $1,000.00

Journal of Commerce $1,000.00

The cost for stationery for the same year was something over $20,000.00, making a total of $6,950,301.77 for printing and stationery for a population not exceeding that of State of Texas. These enormous expenditures, if not well recompensed, were made under Democratic rule, the same to which the people of Texas are inclined to return.

In addition to the above, the New York Printing Company, composed of the Tammany ring, received for the same time upwards of $2,000,000 for printing alone, making a grand aggregate of over $7,000,000 for printing and stationery in three years—more than enough to run the entire State government of Texas for the same period, including defense of frontier, school system as at present organized, printing salaries of State officers, and two sessions of the Legislature per year.

Verily, Democracy is only another name for lying and robbery.—Journal.

A citizen of Chicago gives the following graphic summary of the country of himself and family from the famous :

"Being the owner of a house and carriage and which I used to go to and from my business, when I became satisfied that my house would soon be enveloped, I brought my horse and carriage before the house and placed my wife and children in it. There was then no room for me, so I mounted the back of the animal and sat on a postillion. While driving through the snows and smoke which enveloped us on all hands, came across a gentleman who had his wife in a buggy, and was between the hills holding it himself. I shouted to him to let his carriage sit behind me, which he did, and so then let his wife sit behind his wife, then drove forward as fast as I could, for flames were raging around us. After proceeding a short distance another gentleman was found standing beside the street with a carriage, waiting for a horse, which was not likely to come. I directed him to fasten his carriage on behind me, which he did, and so then let his wife sit behind his wife, then drove forward as fast as I could, for flames were raging around us. After proceeding a short distance another gentleman was found standing beside the street with a carriage, waiting for a horse, which was not likely to come. I directed him to fasten his carriage on behind me, which he did, and so then let his wife sit behind his wife, then drove forward as fast as I could, for flames were raging around us. The mud-holes on Soledad street are the subject of constant ridicule. Enquiries are made for the fish, for fishing-tackles for catching mud-holes, and judging from the smell there might be one there, sure enough. For the information of a number of Republicans' exchanges, who are busily posted in Texas offices, or, who are very dubious of favoring the Germans at the expense of the Governor, we state that Mr. Daguerre did not refuse the certificate of election, but had never tendered him; but on the contrary, Governor Davis informed Mr. Daguerre of his defeat by a majority of 4,000 votes, and we have seen the letter ourselves, to that effect.

THE rude winds are about to wreak their vengeance upon the freshness of our forest-growth and the prairie-sweeping of the rich green sward, and in a few days, mere or less, the trees will be swaying their leafless branches in solitudes over the rough robbery of old Babel, while the dry harsh grass will probably tell of the fate of Spring and summer. The bright flowers are pretty well played now, but in a few days they will hide their beauties and charms for four or five months, until gentle spring comes again.

How like life! To-day's adversity rends and chills the human heart, but we have to wait whether we like it or not, for the spring time of prosperity; and with many people it does not get pleasant until late in the season.

The "devil" says there will be a mother-in-night, otherwise we would have waited with the above.

The Railroad Question.

During the first week in December, an election will take place in this city for the purpose of ascertaining if it is the wish of the people to take stock in the Indians road to the amount of $500,000 in county bonds, payable in thirty years at 8 per cent. interest, on condition that the road be completed to this place by the first of October, 1873. When we advocated the donation to the Columbus road the advantages of railroad communication with the outside world have been exhaustively presented to the public through our columns.

The Indians road has, however, the peculiar advantage that Indians will always be the sea port of Western Texas, to, and from which, our imports and exports must pass.

We have no confidence whatever in Morgan, and it is prudent for everybody that deals with him to be on the watch for dark ways and evil tricks; but the truth is, nevertheless, that the future of San Antonio depends in a great measure on the speedy completion of the Indians road.

It is true that we have subscribed the Columbus road, and have received the promise, that this road shall be completed within two years; but in all probability the money will not be demanded, as the company failed to begin work at the expected time, and we have other good reasons for believing that the road will not be built.

We are therefore thrown upon the Indians road, and we believe it to be our duty to do all in our power to promote its speedy completion in this city.

We have, however, no desire to anticipate the wish of the people, and we offer our column to all those who have any views to express on this subject, either for or against.

IT is said that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever, or a disease of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get rid and remove the source of the difficulty, use the old and infallible blood purifier, Dr. WAGNER'S CALIFORNIA VIEGUE BITTERS. (50-10-7124W).
