THE LITTLE PEOPLE.

A story place would be this earth,
With there no little people in it;
The song of life would lose its worth,
Were there no children to begin it.
No little forms, like buds to grow,
No little hands on breast and brow,
To keep the thrilling love-words tender.
The sterner souls would grow more stern,
Unfeeling nature's laws would mend,
And men to stone soldiers would be,
And women would be less than women.
Life's song, indeed, would lose its charm,
Were there no babes to begin it;
A dreary place this world would be,
Were there no little people in it.
