REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.
CHANGER OF TIME ORDERED.

The Convention of the Texan party of Texas is hereby called to assemble in the city of Houston on the second Tuesday of May, 1872, for the purpose of sending Delegates to the Philadelphia National Convention, for the thorough reorganization of the party, and the transmission of such other measures as may prove expedient to the body.

The heads of representation in the same as for members of the legislature under the present circumstances, have expressed their pleasure that this will be done.

J. F. TRACY,
Chairman of State
Delegation Committee.

Department County Convention

The Chairman of the different County Delegations, Ex-Confederate Committee of the 20th Senatorial District, the names of the counties comprising which it is not deemed necessary to name, but which comprise nearly all of the western counties of Western Texas, are requested to call County Conventions as early a day as may be possible, in their respective counties, for the purpose of sending delegates to the Republican State Convention which will assemble at Houston on the 2d Tuesday of May, 1872.

It is desired that the whole people claiming to be Republicans in principle should be represented in this Convention, and that delegates shall be chosen who represent the majority, and the real interests of the majority, of the people in this portion of Texas, without distinction of race or color. The work to be performed at Houston is of the utmost importance; and it is hoped that harmony, coupled with energetic purpose may characterize every County Convention, and that men of superior intelligence, integrity and influence will be selected. AD. ZOELLER, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the 20th Senatorial District of Texas.

The Mexican Slave Strike.

Several months ago a petition signed by a very large number of persons, chiefly owners of property on the West side of the San Joaquin, was presented to the former City Council, asking for a survey, with the view of ascertaining whether or not an irrigating ditch sufficiently elevated to keep the whole section with water, was practicable. The Council did not feel liberty to disregard a petition signed so unanimously by the largest tax-payers of the city; and, moreover, it felt that the enhanced value of the lands which might possibly be made irrigable would, in a few years, more than pay the cost of the ditch.

These and other reasons which were discussed by the council in the presence of a large number of citizens interested in the matter, resulted in every member of the board, and by a unanimous vote a resolution authorizing and directing the survey to be made was passed. The City Council of San Joaquin, with the survey, estimated the sum entirely feasible, the estimated cost being about $40,000, and the number of acres made irrigable over 200,000. The friends of the improvement, more elated with the prospect of being able to make their lands as productive as any others in the city, but the council, owing to the nature of the survey, did not pass it without a desire to act with haste, and so the petition to the immediate director of the ditch was referred to the committee on improvements. These in the new board round it, and it passed into the care of the committee without having been acted upon by the old one. The improvements would have been, for the new committee to consider, but as soon as the latter as soon as practicable, and report to the council for its action; but a majority of the present council are disposed to lay claim to the attitude of the Philadelphia Convention, and the tone of the press of the Union, will justify the present administration in taking prompt and bold action.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says of the President: "He thinks that there could be no greater disservice to the honest people than the establishment of a government in the United States. He feels that it would be a triumph of the administration, and would go far towards carrying out those theories of the American people, which he will never be able to realize."

Professor Morse is still very low. A Matamoros special says that immigrants are afraid of the Revolution, and that as long as the country is in a state of civil war, they will be justified in going to war under the Monroe doctrine, and that the attitude of the Philadelphia Convention, and the tone of the press of the Union, will justify the present administration in taking prompt and bold action.

The idea has long been familiar to our politics. San Houston, of Texas, when in the Senate, was the champion of the people, and a great statesman. His son, President Buchanan, was against him, his experience with Mexico when Secretary of State during the Mexican war, being the only measure that might lead to war. If his proteges were disposed to it, it is thought that Senator Schurz would support it, as this kind towards the Mexicans.

The difficulty about a protectorate would be a legal one. If the Mexicans had the right to self-government, they would be entitled to protection, to the Legitimate, to intervention. But there is a question, and we ascertain that Jeffer and his Congress would consent to the idea, and his Congress would consent to it.
