WEDDING WELLS
A very effective dressing for the disease is two drachms of chloride of zinc, dissolved in a quart of water. The salt mixed with a favorite application. If all the foregoing should fail, the following will generally establish a cure:—Prepare calamine, half an ounce; verdigris, half an ounce; white vitriol, one drachm; tar, three drachms. Mix. Before the introduction of the dressing, the frog should be inspected, so that the introduction of the remedy may be facilitated, and the disposition to harbor filth and moisture prevented. The whole may be repeated every day. Care should be taken when introducing the tow, to dry it neatly, so that no part hangs out; by which means the dressing will remain on two or three days; but no application simply poured in, without the aid of some other substance, as tow, soft soap, or rag, which retains the agent and guards against moisture, generally answers as well. In bad cases the dressing should be repeated every day, in others every second day or twice a week.

WOMEN'S HAIR
Dr. Benj. Goddard has written a book on the "Diseases of the Hair." He says that a woman's hair may grow to the length of six feet, and that a young lady of England refused a thousand dollars for her "ornamental covering, which was only one inch short of her measurement." Four hundred hairs of average thickness could cover an inch of space. The blonde belle has about one hundred and four thousand filaments to comb and brush, while the red-haired beauty has to be satisfied with eighty-eight thousand; the brown-haired one may have one hundred and nine thousand; the black-haired but one hundred and two thousand. Few ladies consider that they carry some forty or fifty miles of hair on their heads, and the average man has only dress seventy miles of threads of cord every morning. A German experimentalist has proved that a single hair will suspend four ounces when he breaks, stretching under the process of stretching. But the hair thus heavily weighted must be dark brown, for the blond breaks down under two and a half ounces.
