How Fame Vanished in Washington.

Mr. H. Ramsdell writes the following concerning Admiral Wilkes: "A few days ago, I happened in at one of the handsome committee rooms of the Capitol, where three or four clerks, a messenger or two, one or two loaters, and perhaps two or three Congressmen, were whiling away a half-hour or so. They were smoking, laughing and storytelling. While a peal of laughter which fol-lowed some joke, was dying out, the door opened, and an old man enter. For sale by door opened, and an old man enter.

His under jaw hung down, and his lips were united some former to company or corporation, to, build a closed. His dress, merely codings. closed. His dress, merely ordinary, inclined to shabbiness. His head was covered with a fatigue cap, navy pattern, with an anusually wide visor or forepiece. No attention was paid to the old gentleman. He approached one of the young men, all removing his man and removing his man answer and removing his man and removing his man answer was given, but no unusual attentions and conditions here in a line information. A polite answer was given, but no unusual attention at the free navigration of said fiver legend what is necessary in order to early into effect the rights and privileges hereby granted; and in ease of any litigation assing from any obstraction, or alleged obstruction, to the free navigation of said fiver, the cause may be tried before the district court of the United States of any State in which any portion of and charaction or bridge touches: Provided, That said bridge shall not be so located or constructed as to invertee to increase in the country in the case, only I happened to know the old man. He is only another of the cases that every day occur to remind us of the mutability of human affairs. See what a change is here. Ten years ago the world was ringing with this man's name. It has shouted from the West Indias, it was thrill-ed the West and the East; it was borne across the Atlantic, taken up in Great Britain and echoed across the channel into France. Returning, it resounded from the Potomac to the Gulf of Mexico, and was sheered by hundreds of thousands. of soldiers who were camped about this city. Songs were sung for him; aodresses were made to him; his picture was for sale at every newspaper stand ; the press teemed with his praise; the Government honor-ed him, the whole country was proud of him; wherever he went he was honored, the boys in the streets took off their hats to him he was the lion everywhere, in the atreets, at the hotel, in society, at church; wherever he went, everybody did homage to him. Now, see the change!—there are now "none so poor to do him reverence."
