REPEALED STATE CONVENTION. CHAIRS OF THE CHAIRS. A Delegate Convention of the Republican party...

The Herald of Sunday morning begins an editorial headed "The Reform Republican Convention," with the following: "The telegraph informs us that on the sixth ballot, A. C. ..."

There is not a single dispatch published in the Herald of that day—in fact it received none. It did not derive its information from the telegraph, but from the Express alone.

Now, gentlemen of the Herald, do you call this honest or respectable journalism? Did you sit comfortably in your pews on Sunday after willfully breaking the two shortest commandments in the decalogue?

Our readers must have been considerably surprised at the virulent spirit exhibited in the address which precedes the Cincinnati resolutions, as it appears in our Sunday dispatches.

What a straight our little Secretary of State is to get an organ. We learn by a private letter from Austin, that he is trying to make arrangements with Parson Loomer to get a weekly paper printed in his Lone Star Newspaper office at that place, and that Loomer's name is to appear at the head as editor.
