THE beautiful poem, by the penman of "The Olden Time," "The American-Flag," has, we are informed, been printed. It is, we think, worthy of the place of honor in the pocket of every citizen. [This beautiful poem, by the penman of "The Olden Time," "The American-Flag," has, we are informed, been printed. It is, we think, worthy of the place of honor in the pocket of every citizen.]

Horace Greeley at a wedding. (Extract from New York letter to Harper's Farmer.) An "literary" wedding occurred in St. Ann's (Catholic) church, the other day, at 11 o'clock. The groom was Mr. J. B. Hazard, a leading editorial writer on the N.Y. Tribune, and the bride, Miss Har- grove. The occasion was honored with the presence of quite a Tribune delegation, including Horace Greeley, William Field, Wm. F. Shanks, the city editor, and John Hay who acted as one of the ushers. Mr. Greeley had on a full suit of black, a dress coat and black velvet vest. He had his piping hands encased in white kid gloves, with the fingers of the left hand introduced, and who, in- teresting nervous from fear of having the Presidential nominee fall asleep in her arms. After it was all over—and the Catholic service long— he shook hands with every body in the manner of office-seekers. He then, in a very friendly manner, appeared in black coat and vest, and lavender pantaloons. He is a tall, handsome young fellow, and most engaging in his manner, frank, un- affected and sympathetic. Mr. Greeley will probably promote him to the full editorship of the Tribune, or make him his Secretary of State when he becomes president. Wm. F. Shanks, the city editor, is also well known as a brilliant magazineist. John Hay has three distin- guishing features—first, a most in- teresting and authoritative "Little Branches," and of having made a hundred thousand dollars in Erie stocks within a year.

Recent improvements in the processes for preserving meat are excellent applications of the tendency to being careless and haz- ardous operations under the con- trol of exact methods. Nothing is so similar to the theory of selling wool, and nothing more irreg- ular and uncertain in its results. The outer portion of the meat is generally overdone, while the soft- ness in the interior is withered by the same antiseptic action. The salting, where that is practiced, is liable to equal irregularity. M. Martin de Ligne brings the whole thing under strict rules of quality, and with certain and uniform re- sults. By his process the pieces of meat are first weighed, and it is determined beforehand just how much salt each piece must have. Each pound is laid in scales, while the other part is placed a weight equal to the pound, and the portion which it has to receive. A flexible rubber tube terminates in a narrow pipe, which is used to penetrate to the interior of the meat. The salt, in close contact, and the saline matter forced into the cellular tissues of the meat under a pressure equal to a column of water sixteen feet high. The mass of the meat is then com- pressed in the press. The greater amount of brine, as indicated by the number, the workman closes the tap. The interior being thus fully saturated, exterior pres- sure is made to receive the brine re- sulting in a tube of brine for a suitable time afterward. They are then carried to the smoking cham- ber, which is kept at a steady tem- perature, and a given amount of smoke is introduced by the uniform combustion of a weighted quantity of oak wood in a fire-room below. The temperature is kept at three- tenths of the boiling point, and the heavy brine left behind the result is a steady, successful, scientific method. [The process is a most interesting one, and it is well worth the attention of every one who is interested in the art of curing meat.]

By A. SIEMERING & CO., Publishers. Official Journal of the United States. SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1872.

The above is taken from the Boston Patriot of the 18th instant. It is one of the most delicious bits of satire we have read since we tried to translate Jernsdahl and Hoge...

Somebody connected with the Union office must be a "jokist" with either the broadest spread of confidence, or the thinnest skin and sharpest eye-twitch that ever made a complete fool of a pompous carpet-bagger from Nova Scotia...

The Fourth District is agitated in its "confidence." "He rose in his seat" - did this Carroll. What a rare was there my countrymen! It is not everybody who can rise in the seat. It is a difficult place to rise in. But Carroll did it and did it "magnanimously."

There is no virtue in the world like magnanimity. "Strike but hear me" - says the magnanimous Carol.

There is plainly a Miltonic grandeur in the magnanimity shown by this "lay" of a carpet bagger, so well known in this community, that language-fighters in the effort to do him and the clique who assisted him to "rise in seat" fall just.

While we are penning over the problem of the decline of our own ocean shipping we are gratified at the increase of our internal trade. Our lake tonnage, which in 1850 amounted to $34,620, and in 1859 to $61,506, has risen to over 700,000.

contemptible to shed political tears. We mean by this, that the cemetery is not the place to manufacture political capital...

It has been stated, this and again, by writers in the Southern States, that black and white legs are better adapted to the climate...
