Of course the cobler was triumph-autly acquitted. To demand that a mass should be said for the re-pose of this soul, already saved, were indeed "contempt of church,"

BISMARCK'S

At least half of this volume has never been in print. The second "Book" is entirely fresh. It is entitled "Judas Maccabeus," and is the story of the campaign of King Antiochus against the Jows headed by Judas, and the miserable end of the pagan king. It is a strong and fine poem, full of dramatic force. The characterization is clear and one sentority of age, no gravity of character; uncles, aunts, cousins, grandsires, grandams—all fall an easy prey; he conforms to no body, all contorn to him; all caper and make mouths, and babble and dhirrup to him. On the strongest of the low of beauty, of ease, of power, the prond arrogance that fain would Hellenize the world—on the other the religious enthusiasm which was almost innaticism, the loyalty to truth, the faithfulness loyalty to truth, the faithfulness an infant to borrow money in any way, even unto death. Besides these two and providing due punishment for the of-

A new collection of poems by Longfellow is an event in the literary world which deserves to be heralded by more than a mere mention. J. B. Osgood & Co. are to publish, on the 25th of this month,

TO THE STORK a volume entitled "Three Books of Song, by Henry Wadsworth Long-fellow," The first of the three books to THE STORE.

Descend, O Stork! descend Upon our roof to rest; In our ash tree, O my friend, My darling make thy nest.

To thee, O Stork, I complain, O Stork, to thee I impart The thousand sorrows, the pain And sching of my heart.

When thou away didst go,
Away from this tree of ours,
The withering winds did blow,
And dried up all the flowers.

And the green meadow was cold.

O Stork, our garden with snow Was hidden away and lost, And the ross tress that in it grow Were withered by snow and frost.

Let me conclude, as does Mr. Longiellow, with "Santa Teresa's Book Mark." It is a little rhyme of comfort for sad hearts. Are there no sad hearts among your rejoicing

Let nothing disturb thee, Nothing affright thee; All things are passing; God never changeth; Patient endurance Attaineth to all things; Who God possesseth In nothing is wanting; Alone God suffecth, gratifying. But we fear there is a slight misapprehension by the Union as to the true state of the Republican party in the Western portion

All who were ever Republicans are Republicans still - indeed no inconsiderable additions have been made to the number of those who believe in those principles. There has been no quered of any magnitude among ourselves. Had the people been left to act for themselves, free elect to each for the elect to each for themselves, free elect to each for the elect to each for sident to act for influence, the Republicans of neither Bexar, nor any other of the counties of Western Texas would have placed themselves even into the semblance of an attitude of hostility towards the State administration or any one connected with it. The universal idea was, to organize as Republicans, not as devotees to this that or any other man. We were not permitted to do so. It was insisted by the real enemies of the party, the smallest sort of a faction headed by a perambulatory Secretary of State.

Sir Edward Thornton will immediately immediately any other man. We were not per transmit it by telegraph to London, and a Cabinet meeting will be called in London on Menday to consider it, and report to smallest sort of a faction headed by a perambulatory Secretary of State.

An Indiana paper has this scandal: "Owensburg, Green county, shipped one hundred and twenty charges of which the fact of the party, the working man's sure road to competence, and often wealth; free trade condents to competence, and the condents to competence to control of the condents to competence to con coterie, who are noboddies unless congress signame, and support the strong desire manifested here, among all number the Abwaya Chief.—Rechreter Chreshingers even in the face of the Houston Convention. A terrible tale of woman's frailty and an BATCHELOR'S HAIR DVE.

A terrible tale of woman's frallty and an injured husband's revenue comes from Arthurs.

A woman closed from her home shout two weeks ago. Her husband discovered her flight on returning from his work in the evening, and at once took his rife, mounted his horse and started in pursuit. He rode without food and almost without rest for nearly two days, when he overtook the two fugitives. The betrayer of his family fired at him but missed. The avenger in a momant knocked him trom his saddle, disclaining to kill the seducar, but reserving him for a more forrible punishment, and selzing his wife with an iron grasp, despite her prayers for mergy, gave her hase teeth which rise had left behind. His work of vengeanes done, the hasband rode lelsarely away. He has not yet been captured.

The general opinion of Republicans is expressed by ex-Governor Dennison, of Ohio, who says: "My judgment is that the election of Mr. Greeley, as the joint candidate of the Liberal Republicans and Democrate, will be a virtual restoration of the Democratic party to the control of the government, and, in any judgment, such a restoration would be more mischieved as the same. The vast importance of sufficient neurishment is to be obtained out of it. But there is a connectate, will be a virtual restoration of the Democratic party, pure and simple, as in the latter case the people would be more vigilant to detect its wrong designs."

In view of the fact that August Belmont is that the control of the Bemocratic party, pure and simple, as in the latter case the people would be more vigilant to detect its wrong designs."
