FOR PRESIDENT,

Ulysses S. Grant,

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

Henry Wilson,

OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Grant and Wilson Marchionate Meeting at Austin.

At the request of the members of the County Republican Executive Committee, a meeting of the State of Texas is called at Austin on Friday, July 4, to ratify and endorse the nomination of Grant and Wilson for President and Vice-President of the United States.

Committee of arrangements, reception etc., will be announced on an early day.

Distinguished orators from various portions of the State will be present to address the meeting.

Provision will be made for the entertainment of friends at a distance.

To Independence Day:

When we had the happiness of being yet a boy, the Fourth of July was looked forward to as the day of all the days in the year. True, the significance of the celebration was not to us then emblematic of theories of government, or any other profound deductions.

We saw costly parades, and the gathering of multitudes, heard the music of brass-bands and the thunder of cannon, were indulged for that one day in a liberal use of fire-crackers and other gun-powder devices, were awakened in ecstasy at day-light by the explosion of big guns, and went to bed late at night, too tired to sleep soundly, but dreaming of wonderful fireworks—the whole world given over to the mad dance of prismatic rays. Later in life came the glad thrill of love for a country free, and great, with a future so glorious and grand for the imagination to reach, and that grand shrinking of the heart which is akin to that felt by the young man when he feels himself for the first time the accepted lover of a pure and radiant maiden.

We were fortunate in being taught to love the whole country, and not any State or section of it. It was all ours from the great lakes to the Gulf, and from sea to sea. We have never lost the inspiration of those first teachings. As a citizen of the republic we could never break the narrow vision perpetually resting upon artificial state lines. All hints that way seemed, and seems to us now, as ominous as the flickerings of an ill-omened fire. We are still unconvinced over the respective values of the rooms in their palatial mansion. The partitions are too convenient and comfort—not for purposes of estrangement. The occupants are free to interchange—and there is no partiality shown in the furniture and fittings. The doors are always open, and the hospitalities boundlessly free. Such was our free country as it appeared to us years ago—such it appears to us now underneath the same old flag—the emblem of peace, generosity, strength and good government.

To-day, the principles established by our forefathers are still in evidence throughout the world. All the nations of Europe have yielded in some degree to the benevolent spirit, all mankind is freer than it was sixty-six years ago, there is every year an advance, and nowhere will to-day be celebrated with more spirit and enthusiasm, or with greater effect, than by the throngs of American citizens who shall be sold in foreign lands, with reverent and loving hearts, the flag of liberty and progress. Shall we be backward in hailing the day? Are we so dimmed with political rancor and sectional hate that we have no common offering to lay upon the altar of our country? If there be a single man or woman in our midst who cannot with pride this glorious name, or she, do unworthy of the heritage which has been handed down to us improved—as the good steward improved his talents.

Grant or Greeley.

The Democracy of this section of the State, as well as the disaffected Republicans, have accepted the concession that the Presidential race which is upon us lies between the two men whose names are above given. No doubt the people, the slaves are correct. The actions of the Democratic State Conventions already held, are sufficiently numerous and emphatic to show that Mr. Greeley will either be the nominee of the Southern Convention, or that no nomination will be made by that organization. Judging from our northern exchanges, and we have more than we can wade through critically, the Democracy of the south is hopelessly divided; while the numbers drawn from the Republican party by the Greeley movement are too small to affect the general vote. In the south, it must be confessed there is a greater number for Greeley, among the Democratic ranks. The policy is "anything to beat Grant," and nothing else. There are not in this State 5000 Republicans who will vote for Greeley. There are at least 20,000 Democratic voters who will not vote for him. The colored vote will go solid for Grant; the white Republicans will go the same way, and there are 10,000 more of them than voted at the last Congressional election. There are not more than 15,000 voters who will vote for Greeley who were not allowed to vote under the laws existing at the last election. If we can have a fair election, a full vote without intimidation, this State will give Grant about 22,000 majority. In the election of State officers, and Congressmen, we will be badly whipped unless we can take the management of the party out of the hands of the Austin clique. If Newcomb and Davis continue to enforce their control over local organizations, and to disregard the popular feeling as they have hitherto done, they will drive from the support of their Congressional candidates at least 30,000 voters. This will effect the Presidential vote; but not so much as is imagined by the sanguine Greeleyites.

Provision will be made for the entertainment of friends at a distance.

The German voters of the State are sadly demoralized; but they are coming around all right. They are men who in the end put principle before men—and they cannot fail to see the trick of the men who controlled the Cincinnati Convention. All things considered, we see no reason for doubting that this State may be counted good for Grant and republicanism.

Motion from Horace Greeley.

Grant and his policy deserve the very highest credit.—Horace Greeley.

The people of the United States know General Grant—have known him all along since Donelson and Vicksburg; they do not know his blunders, and do not care to know them.—Horace Greeley.

While accepting the right of every Republican to his unframed choice of a candidate for the next President, I venture to suggest that General Grant will be far better qualified for that momentous trust in 1872, than he was in 1865.—Horace Greeley.

"We are led by him who first taught our armies to conquer in the West, and subsequently in the East. Richmond would not come to us until we sent Grant after it, and then it had to go. He has never yet been defeated and never will be." He will be great and successful on the field of politics as on that of arms.—Horace Greeley.

"A Democratic national triumph means a restoration to power of those who derailed their seats in Congress and their places under the last Democratic President to plunge the country into the Red sea of secession and rebellion. Though you paint in such thick, to this complexion you must come at last. The brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element at the South, with its Northern allies and sympathizers.—Horace Greeley.

You General Grant has failed to gratify some eager aspirations, and has thereby disappointed many others; but you are still strong and determined over the respective values of the rooms in their palatial mansion. The partitions are too convenient and comfort—not for purposes of estrangement. The occupants are free to interchange—and there is no partiality shown in the furniture and fittings. The doors are always open, and the hospitalities boundlessly free. Such was our free country as it appeared to us years ago—such it appears to us now underneath the same old flag—the emblem of peace, generosity, strength and good government.

To-day, the principles established by our forefathers are still in evidence throughout the world. All the nations of Europe have yielded in some degree to the benevolent spirit, all mankind is freer than it was sixty-six years ago, there is every year an advance, and nowhere will to-day be celebrated with more spirit and enthusiasm, or with greater effect, than by the throngs of American citizens who shall be sold in foreign lands, with reverent and loving hearts, the flag of liberty and progress. If there be a single man or woman in our midst who cannot with pride this glorious name, or she, do unworthy of the heritage which has been handed down to us improved—as the good steward improved his talents.

Grant or Greeley.

The members of the General Conference.

Our special dispatch gives as photo-gravure of the principal dignitaries in the court of the new Emperor of Japan, with a description of the scenes of their interview. Thus we learn that Count Sogabe is a tall, stout man, with a round shaped face, a bald head and a frank expression of countenance. He is the president of the court, and we meet ourselves to a feeling of satisfaction that he does not belong to the thin, sharp visaged persons class of beings who are always sour and dissatisfied. We have no doubt that he led the hearty laugh which, we are told, reached the bones of those who were waiting anxiously outside soon after the court had assembled. Policy of the Administration.

In conclusion, I would sum up the policy of the Administration to be a thorough reorganization of every law, a radical change in the administration of the same, a prompt payment of every debt of the nation, a vigorous prosecution of the war against the Indians, and a rapid and safe removal of all those who have been revolutionized through an initial triumph of Reform which surpasses the most sanguine anticipations of any man. The inauguration came in its great conflict as destined (like our own recent convulsion) to evolve from strife, disaster, and seeming chaos, a fair and glorious future for the toiling masses of the Old World.

In our own country, a war upon corruption and baseness in office has been inaugurated, in which the honest and upright men of our State have been revolutionized through an initial triumph of Reform which surpasses the most sanguine anticipations of any man. The inauguration came in its great conflict as destined (like our own recent convulsion) to evolve from strife, disaster, and seeming chaos, a fair and glorious future for the toiling masses of the Old World.

Newspaper Laws.

We would call the special attention of Postmasters and publishers to the following extracts of the newspaper laws:

1. A Postmaster is required to give no account by letter or otherwise (unless he answers to a law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reason for its not being taken; and a neglect to do so makes the Postmaster responsible to the publisher for the paper.

2. Any person who takes a paper from the Postoffice, whether directed to him or not, or leaves it there, or has it delivered to him, or to any other person, for the pay of the same, shall be liable to a fine of $100.

3. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearages and the publisher may continue to send it until the payment is made.

4. If the subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is liable to a fine of $100.

5. The law provides, upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

6. The courts have decided that refusing to receive papers and periodicals from the Postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncollected, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
