PICNICS up the country generally end HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

Pickics up the country generally end with what is known as the Dolly Yarden March—the young indigs standing in a row and the young men passing along a kissing each good dight, while the band plays 'Pyt me in my little hed.' We are going to the very next plonic that takes place as Saterday night was very creditable; and attracted a large and isahionable audience, who, indiging from the applause so liberally accorded, were well pleased with the entertainment offered them. By special request the troupe will prolong their stay a short time.

The music discoursed by Professor Eberhar's band hast Sunday evening on the Main Plaza stäracted a large attendance. The performance was very creditable, and Mr. Eberhart deserves the thanks of the community for this gratuitous service so willingly rendered by him and his associates.
