Topographical Measurements in the West.
Professor C. Thomas, assistant of Dr. Hayden, United States geologist, has compiled and published a series of tables giving important data with regard to the Rocky Mountain regions and the great plateau of the West. The southern portion of the great American plain, the Llano Estacado, has an average elevation of about 4,000 feet above the sea. The ascent from Preston to the margin of the Staked Plains is about 10 feet to the mile, and from East Smith to the northern margin of the plains the ascent is 6 feet to the mile. From Kansas City to Denver Junction the ascending grade is a little more than 8 feet to the mile. From Omaha to Cheyenne the grade ascends just 10 feet per mile. The ascent from Fort Union at the mouth of the Yellowstone to Fort Benton is only about 2 1/2 feet per mile, while that point west to the base of the mountain, the average ascent reaches 20 feet to the mile. The plateau which lies between the Black Hills and the Wahsatch range of mountains has an elevation of about 6,500 feet above the sea, 1,200 feet above the western border of the plains, and 2,300 feet above the Salt Lake basin.

The Rio Grande, from Ileta to El Paso, has a fall of about 3 feet to the mile, but from Ileta south for some distance its descent is 6 feet per mile. The Canadian, from the mouth of Pajarito Creek, for two hundred miles eastward, descends at the rate of 9 feet per mile. The Arkansas, from the mouth of the Aripaha to Fort Atkinson, has a fall of between 8 and 9 feet to the mile. The descent of the North Platte, from Fort Fetterman to its junction with the South Platte, is 7 feet, and the South Platte, from Denver to its junction, is between 9 and 10 feet per mile. The fall of Snake River from the mouth of Ross's Fork, north, is about 6 feet to the mile. These figures show the practicability of distributing the water of these streams over the plains for the purpose of irrigation.

Of mountains, we have six in these tables whose summits rise above 14,000 feet. These are: Mount Harvard, 14,270; Pike's Peak, 14,216; Gray's Peak, 14,145; Mount Lincoln, 14,123; Mount Yale, 14,087; Long's Peak, 14,055. These measurements furnish data for conclusions, both curious and important, connected with the study of climatology and the adaptation of the "Great American Desert" to agriculture, stock-raising, &c.

"Exit Program."
A sensible article in a recent number of the Louisville Courier-Journal, under the above caption, contains a great deal of wholesome advice to the people of the Southern States, which will be worth millions of dollars to them if they have the good sense to follow it. The substance of the article is, that the hifalutin style which has passed for eloquence for so many years, is about played out, and that the Southerners must in the future turn their attention to finance and give less time to the cultivation of their fancy. The Southern land owner must now cultivate his lands with paid labor. Careful superintendence, economical purchases, industry and foresight are now the conditions of success, and those who persevere in a thriftless, slipshod style of managing their affairs will see the title to their broad acres pass into the hands of strangers. The youth of the South, says our Louisville contemporary, have need to study the cabalistic S, the sign in which men, cities, States and nations must conquer in this cynical and money-getting age. Duelling, poker playing, fox hunting and tournaments will give place to agricultural fairs and industrial exhibitions, and society must be thoroughly reconstructed on the basis of utilitarianism. This is a hard saying, but it is true and timely, and the sooner the South understands and accepts it the better for her. "It is my opinion," said a prominent citizen of Louisville recently, "that the destruction of slavery, by compelling our people to become industrious, frugal and economical, will be of more value to us than all the 'free property we lost by emancipation.'"

The rapid improvement in the methods of agriculture, the development of manufacturing industry in the South, show that Southern people are accepting the situation in the true spirit.

One thing remains to be done. A spirit of toleration must permeate Southern Society. The condemned Yankee, the mad Irishman, and even the much despised carpet-bagger, must have perfect liberty to go where they please in this land, do what they please within the limits of lawful conduct, say what they please about public affairs, and vote for whom they please without molestation. The remaining work of the Republican party is to secure these things to every American citizen, and we believe the people are determined to keep that party in power until these rights are not only guaranteed by party platforms, but practically recognized and enjoyed in every portion of every State and Territory. Following these will come schools and churches, capital and enterprise, to educate the people, build up and improve towns and cities, and do for the South all that they have done for the more favored States of the nation. And it is important for Southern people to understand that these beneficent results will come, not from legislation, but from the silent influence of the individual units of Southern society, who are brought in contact with those who seek homes in the South. Southern men and women must learn to respect others for their individual worth, and so long as a spirit of provincialism stands at the entrance of respectable society and demands that each applicant for admission shall pronounce the shibboleth of the Democratic party, there can be no real progress. A national spirit, strong and pervasive, must supplant sectional prejudice throughout the land, giving every man a fair chance in the race for life, and guaranteeing to him that equality which Mr. Lincoln aptly defined to be "the right of a man to be the equal of every other man if he can."—Cincinnati Gazette.

Mr. Laird Asked to Forked Over Part of the Alabama Award.
(From the Nation, 26th.)
There is a curious little "movement" showing itself in England about the Geneva award, having for its object the untorturing Mr. Laird, the builder of the Alabama. A Conservative member of Parliament suggested two or three weeks ago on the stump that this gentleman should be made to pay a portion at least of "the lump sum," and the idea has proved quite taking, and letters begin to crop out in the newspapers supporting it warmly. One writer in the London Times compliments Mr. Laird on "the ardor of his disinterested sympathy for the gallant struggle" of the South, but takes it for granted that now that his own country has suffered through his exertions, he will be only too anxious to help to pay the bill, and suggests his sending a subscription list with something like $100,000 or $150,000. A good many other people ought in honor, however, to back him up—all those, for instance, who cheered him in the House of Commons when he said he would "sooner have built the Alabama than have made all Bright's speeches." The same correspondent makes one other excellent suggestion, viz: that all shipbuilders should be made personally liable for depreciations committed by vessels built and illegally fitted out in their yards for participation in foreign wars.

This would not only insure caution, but procure for the public early and reliable information of what was going on. If Mr. Laird had been liable for the doings of the Alabama, we may depend upon it neither the American Consul in Liverpool nor Mr. Adams' would have had any difficulty in getting evidence about her.

He would have had all the news from headquarters, whatever its effect on "struggling nationalities," and Mr. Laird would have passed through the crisis as "a business man" simply, and have eschewed all sentimental leanings toward either North or South.

A STEAM WAGON.—There was a steam wagon for common roads exhibited at the Augusta, Ga., fair. The Constitutionist says: "Two large wagons and three carts loaded with bricks were first attached to the steamer. This load she pulled round the grounds with perfect ease, travelling as fast as when unencumbered. As a still further test, two wagons filled with men and boys were added to the already long train, and as before, the steamer started off and went around the grounds apparently without difficulty. These tests demonstrated beyond a doubt that these steamers can be used with great advantage on ordinary roads to haul loads. They are not made for speed, but simply for strength."

THE HORSE DISEASE.
"There is Nothing New Under the Sun."
A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says: "An engraving in a venerable copy of the 'Biblical Princeps,' of 'Dryden's Virgil,' represents the effects of a disease among animals, and in the background a gang of men are seen stoutly dragging home an immense load of hay, while the sick beasts are lying about, dying, if not dead. The well-remembered passage in the poem may interest the public at present:

EXTRACT FROM DRYDEN'S TRANSLATION OF THE GEORGICS—THIRD BOOK.
"The Victor Hares, forgetful of his food,
The Pains renounces, and above the Flood;
He paves the ground, and on his hanging
Ears
A doubtful Sweat in clammy drops appears:
Parch'd in his Hids, and rugged are his Sides;
Such are the Symptoms of the young Disease;
But in Time's process when his rains increase,
He reviv'd his mournful Eyes, he deeply
groans,
With patient sobbings, and with manly
moans,
He leaves for breath; which, from his Joints supplied,
And fetch'd from far, distends his lab'ring
side,
To his rough Palate his dry Tongue succeeds,
And ready Gore he from his Nostrils
bleeds."
"The poet recommends a 'drench
of wine,' given through a horn, for which the New Englander naturally substitutes hard cider."

A colored gentleman went to consult one of the most conscientious lawyers, and after stating his case, said: "Now, Mr. —, I know you're a lawyer, but I wish you would please, sir, just tell me de truth 'bout
dat matter."
Pleasantries.
It is said that the washerwomen
are getting up a wring.
The latest Eastern burglary involved the deportation of a church organ, which had all the requisite stops except a "stop thiet."

"KEEP 'em alive, boy, keep 'em alive!" said an old physician to his young brother practitioner. "Dead men pay no bills."
A GRAVE-DIGGER, walking in the streets of Windsor the other day, chanced to turn and notice two doctors walking behind him. He stopped till they passed and then followed on behind them. "And why is this?" said they. "I know my place in this procession," said he.

The misery of being called upon suddenly to make a speech was got over by a mathematician, who developed himself in this fashion:
"Gentlemen, a morbid desire for originality prevents me from saying, 'This is the proudest hour of my life,' and it does not occur to me to say anything else."

A MAN who snores was described by his friend the other day as follows: "Snores! oh no, I guess not—no name for it! When you wake up in the morning and find that the house you lodge in has been moved half a mile during the night by the respiratory vehemence of a fellow-lodger, you may get some idea of that fellow's performance.
His landlady gets her house moved back by turning his bed around."
