Carl Prezel's Sayings.
 Der young man vot did said der worldt owed him some lins, vas lately turned der door out on akound he's laudly vas unvilling to took on her shoulder plade der indebtedness of der worldt.
 Atain and Eley got into der garden of Eten in der abring dimes, but got shanked out in der Fall.
 A hole in der shoekin vas not tin—it vas an accident of a day.
 To have dot mendes looks yoad der same like bromeditated poverty sure.
 Any mans vot vood brint on gals lins somting, und then publish dot to der worldt, vas a slunk without a muzzie.
 France vas cryin all der vbitte on akound she got Tears py her head.
 A man-chicken doud cood liss der vils.

 "Hans, doud you tink dot leddie bill vas radder sheep?"
 "Vell, you know besser like me; you runs him up, and it?" Dhey did said dot absence makes der heart vant you to come pack-soon. Yab, dot vas so. It yoad makes it grow fonder—of an odder fellor.
 Dots a good eal beser vhen sometimes vood pool out some led ders

The Scott's Bride.
 To the museum of the Public Library of Kentucky there came yesterday an instrument of torture which reflects as much disgrace on mankind as the rack, the wheel, or any of those terrible machines which cruelly invented for its victims.
 It was a brank, or scold's bride of the kind used years ago in England and Scotland for the punishment of females who were adjudged to have made too free use of the tongue. It was dug from the ground in Tennessee, where, beneath the walls of an uninhabited building, it had lain time out of mind. It bears the rust of years, and no doubt came to this country with the earliest settlers. Possibly some lord of creation, who had a scolding wife in the old world, brought with him to the new his vixen and instrument of controlling her.
 It consists of an iron band to pass under the chin, and over the top part of the head, with a sharp, chisel-shaped projection, extending two inches inwardly, to be inserted into the mouth. It was held in its place by another iron band extending round the back part of the head, fastened with a padlock. When the instrument was thus put on the scold, her tongue had to recede to the back part of her mouth, and there remain quiet or be cut to pieces by a sharp edge of the iron put there for that purpose. To scold, or even to talk in this fashion, was impossible, and the woman thus bridled had to keep silence.
 When Blackstone wrote his commentaries it was the law of England that the scolding woman was a nuisance, and she could be indicted and punished by what was known as the ducking stool. This was a kind of chair to which the scold was fastened, and in which she was then plunged into the water as often as it was thought her offenses deserved.
 Dr. Platt, who wrote a history of Staffordshire, grew eloquent in his description of the brand, and in giving it preference over the ducking-stool. He said the duckingstool might give the woman a cold and thus injure her health, and in addition thereto she could not use her tongue during the intervals between one ducking and another. The brand was given to none of these objections, in the learned doctor's opinion, but was just the thing for the work to be done.

Remarkable Cotton.
 The Augusta Chronicle has this:
 "Dr. T. L. Anderson, of Washington, Ga., exhibited at our recent fair some very remarkable cotton, which took a premium, and certificate of merit. It was planted on the 15th of May, and by the 20th of October it was all open and picked. The staple is long and silky and stronger and fuller than any cotton brought to this market, and sold for a cent and an eighth over any other cotton—our merchants, without any exception, speaking of it in the highest terms. The limbs of this cotton, not averaging more than three inches long, and having less foliage than other varieties, with the fact of its rapid maturing, make it peculiarly adapted to rich bottom land, where it may be planted in three feet rows and ten inches apart in the drill, without danger of the bolls rotting or being caught by the frost. The bolls are larger, seventy-two of them weighing a full pound, and they grow out from the stalk, and short branches, two, three and four at a place, more like chestnut burrs than any cotton we ever saw before; and it has from four to ten locks of cotton to the boll. A single stalk of this cotton was discovered five years ago, and from this stalk, by carefully selecting the seed, the staple and yield has steady-ly improved, and it is now confidently believed that this cotton will yield fifty per cent more than any cotton planted in Georgia. There being but little foliage, the bolls large and growing in clusters, and the limits short, enables a hand to pick nearly twice as much as of ordinary cotton."

 clest Gazette.)
 Miss Nellie's Debut at the White House.

The Debut of Miss Nellie Grant. who will make her first appearance in society this winter, will add somewhat of brilliancy to the entertainments at the White House, for, in what station, or where in society does not the introduction of a pretty young lady do as much? There is always a charm and freshness about the first "season" which no after experiences afford. Then, a young lady in the White House will be such a novelty. I believe there never has been one installed there in the position Miss Nellie will occupy. Miss Harriet Lane, the niece of Mr. Buchanan, was its mistress, and did the honors for her uncle, but no one of the Presidents has had a charming young daughter to add grace and beauty to a circle always incomplete without it. Miss Nellie Grant occupies a very prominent, and no doubt an enviable position, socially, and public attention will be often directed to her—there will be no end to the flattery bestowed, or the protestations of devotion and affection showered upon her; her dress will be reviewed by the Jenkinses of the press with painful minuteness. Already have bulletins appeared in the papers in regard to dresses purchased by her in Paris, describing them as the chief feature of North's establishment, glass silks and laces, sprays of jessamine and lilacs of the valley —such dresses we are told as the royal princess of England has worn on similar occasions. Prediction of sensations and orations to the President's daughter are daily made, and speculations freely indulged in regarding the prospects of the destiny she will of course be expected to fulfill. In the meantime her course will be watched with interest by other than the Jenkinses, by those who have a desire to have her do credit to herself, and make the best use of her possibilities and opportunities. The young lady in question is said to be a very lovely character, possessing a quality for which her father is so remarkable-rare common sense. If this be true, the future may hold for her, so favored by fortune, blessings for herself, and benedictions for the world.

THE OTHER DAY a pleasant looking gentleman, of foreign appearance and accent of speech, entered a tobaccoist's shop in one of the market towns of South Durham, says the London Grocer, and requested that he might be supplied with a good cigar. The article having been furnished him, he proceeded to apply it to his nose with the air of a connoisseur, and then to proceed that its flavor was most peculiar, not in any offensive way. The tobacconist declared that the cigar was an excellent one, and that he stoutly maintained that it was not, and that he was so convinced of the fact that he at once determined to try what the cigar was really made of. Taking a pocket knife from his pocket he began to cut the "weed" in two, and had no sooner commenced to do so than a quantity of feathers dropped from the cigar. The more he cut the faster the feathers flew, until the whole cigar had been whittled away, and the shop looked more like an uphol-sterer's than a tobacconist's. Having given this ocular and practical proof that he had not remarked the peculiar flavor of the cigar without reason, the foreign gentleman took his departure, leaving the shopkeeper utterly bewildered, and the possessor of a quantity of feathers —enough to stuff an ordinary cushion. The customer was a conjurer.

THE HORSE EPIDEMIC.—We made a thorough tour of all the livery stables this forenoon, and found that nearly all the horses and mules were more or less affected with the disease.
 At the stables of the City Railroad Company we found only about seven or eight of the mules, out of about seventy head, that were not affected. They have, in consequence, been compelled to discontinue the running of the street cars for the next few days.
 We learn from J. C. Ogil, Superintendent of Streets, that out of about twenty-four teams at work on the corporation car six are in an appearance this morning.

 faithful Executive, who will do his whole duty "without fear or favor."
 The Gov. News of the 3d has the following:
 ed with the disease.
 At the stables of the City Railroad Com-
 of the mules, out of about seventy head,
 consequence, been compelled to discon-
 the next few days
