Absorption of Ammonia by Charcoat.

The Journal of the Chemical Society (Lon don) gives a very interesting series of ex periments on the absorption of gases by charcoal, as that phenomenen is effected by temperature. The experiments were conducted and reported by John Hunter, M. A., and were performed chiefly with gaseous ammenia and seces nut charcoal. GARDEN SEEDS. The principle established by these experiments is that the absorbent power of charcoal diminishes from 0°C, to 55° by a ratio corresponding to the change of temperature ; but above that temperature the ratio constantly decreases as the beat in ereases. ## SPECIAL NOTICES.

Lusting Loveliness. — Twenty years ago, when paint, pearl powder and snamel, were ruining the complexions and destroying the health of women of fashion, HAGAN'S MAGNOLLA BALM was brought out as a pure botanical cosmetie, guaranteed to restore bloom and beauty to the akin. From that time to the present it has been continually rising in public estimation as the safest and and most unexceptionable preparation of its class. Instead of pre-pueling an artificial, metalic surface, like personous fluids sold under various names peisonous fluids sold under various names as "beautifiers," it keeps the skin as soft as velvet, renders is as smooth and glossy as satin, and imparts to it that delicate, resy tings, which is the bean ideal of comflexional leveliness. This exquisits ichromatic effect is not fransient. By applying the Balm daily it may be prolonged from youth to age. A lady who purchased the first bottle of the article niueteen years ago, writes to say that her complexion years ago, writes to say that her complexion at ferty is "purer, clearer and more brilliant than it has ever been;" and she attributes its beauty selely to the daily use of HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM
