A correspondent of the New York Times has detected Charles Reade, the novelist, in an und miable plagiariem. In one of the early chapters of his new serial, "The Wandering Hair," be has a description of 5-1-73dtf. a card party, which is little more than a press transposition of Swift's "Journal of Medern Lady." Many of the most characteristic phrases of the poem are retained without alteration, while the incidente differ very little in the two narratives:

Any hard steel tool will out glass with great facility when freely wet with campher disselved in turpentine. A drill bow may be used, or even the hand alone. A hole bered may be easily entarged by a round file. The ragged edges of glass ressels may also be easily smoothed thus with a fiat file. General debility, and the despende by which it is invariably accompanied, are often regarded as the symptoms of linearable physical decay. Of persons thus aftracted great attention in Europe as well flicted it is often said that their constitutions are undermined; that they have nothing left to full back upon; that they are hopeless cases. This, in at least sight tostances out of ten, is a false conclusion may be propped and strongthened; and in many st-onlied hopeless same there are reserver of vitality and latest vigor in the system that only require stimulating and spite of developing to retider them equal to the work of repair. The best and surest stimulant and invigorant that can be given as a remedy for decay of the vital powers, Stemach Bitters.
