"Without the parents, community, administration and teachers," said Head Coach Pat Risinger at Three Way, "it would be very hard to have an athletic program at the school. Everyone works hard to coordinate the program."

Crazy Days Sale Starts In Local Stores Today

Law Enforcement Week Is Observed

One of the least know, and most maligned figures in any town or city of any size, may be the local law enforcement officers. Once they take the oath of office, and pin on the badge, and strap on the necessary gun, they take on the automatic misnomer of a 'bad guy.'

In Muleshoe, law enforcement officers are much the same as anywhere else. For the most part, they are a dedicated group of men, and women, who take their oaths seriously when they swear they will 'uphold the laws to the best of my ability.' A law enforcement officer does not judging, he merely enforces the laws as they are written, and judgment is up to the judges who are either elected or appointed to their position to see that the enactment of justice is carried out.

This week is National Law Enforcement Week, through Saturday, May 20. In the interest of recognizing the efforts of the officers a committee is presently working on a recognition program for Friday, May 19.

Members of the committee are Bailey County Judge Glen Williams; Muleshoe City Williams; Muleshoe City Manager Dave Marr; Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture Executive Director Tommy Black and The Journal's Cleta Williams.

All officers in the county will be recognized for work done to protect the City of Muleshoe and Bailey County from all types of law violators.

Members of the Bailey County Sheriff's office include Sheriff Dee Clements; field deputies Bud Street, Monty Phipps and James Williams; office deputy Irene Splawn and dispatchers Eva Cruz, Tommie Williams, Ruth Briscoe and Melba Cunningham.

On the city police are Chief Buddy Black, Assistant Chief J.R. Carpenter; patrolmen Wayne Holmes, Forrest Williams, Gary Burkhart, Hal Bynum and Ray Lynk, and police secretary, Euleta Stockard.

Highway Patrolmen in Muleshoe are Larry King and Donnie

Thomas. License and weight officer is Lyndon Huckaby. Driver's license clerk is Gladys Black.

Two Justices of the Peace are in Muleshoe, K.B. Martin and Frank Ellis, and Linda Huckaby is Municipal Judge. Glen Williams is county judge and John Blackwell and Tommy Black are constables.

City Approves Project Cut, More Paving

Meeting in regular session Tuesday morning, the Muleshoe City Council cut Reno Street in the Harvey Addition from the current paving project. They also approved paving of three additional blocks on West Avenue I between South First and West Third Street and between Seventh and Eighth Streets.

Terms were established for members of the City Planning Commission. The terms of Arlene Phelps, Jenny McVicker and Cleta Williams were set at four years; three years for Derrell Oliver and Curtis Walker and two years for Melba King.

Jerry Hicks was appointed as a new member of the Airport Board with a term of two years. Re-appointed to two year term were Sam Damron and Edwin Cox.

Also discussed by council members were recommendations made by the planning commission on junked and/or abandoned vehicles and mobile home regulations.

City Council members voted to join with other cities in an intervention through the Texas Municipal League on a proposed rate increase by Southwestern Public Service Company.

The recent street sealcoat program was discussed and payment approved and a meeting for mayors and city councilmen to be in Galveston was discussed.

Outstanding Buys Offered Shoppers

Regardless how you spell it -- Crazy Days - Krazee Daze - Crazy Daze or Crazee Days, it all means the same thing in Muleshoe this weekend. Be in town Thursday, Friday and Saturday to help Muleshoe merchants be at their 'crazies' as they offer outstanding buys in various merchandise.

Outlandish costumes, crazy buys and unusual merchandise will mark the three day celebration. Don't be left out, come to town and see what you can find.

After several weeks of planning, a special Crazy Days insert by the cooperating merchants, and saturation of area towns with the Thursday issue of the Muleshoe Journal, the sale gets underway today (Thursday).

How about a leading women's fashion store which is offering a 25 percent discount on sports' clothing? Or, potpourri tables of $2 and $5?

Perhaps you are looking for good buys in food or supplies. Try a quart jar of Kraft Miracle Whip for 89 cents or one pound of Maryland coffee for $2.49.

If you are in the market for a new dishwasher, one merchant is offering an outstanding buy on a dishwasher.

And, if western wear is your 'thing' a western store comes out with a number of outstanding buys.

Another store is offering up to $50 off on western boots of well known brands and has Wrangler jeans at $8.99.

Kitchen carpet is being featured by yet another store, with values from $8.95 to $12.95 being offered for only $4.99. Charlie cologne is only one of the well known brands being offered by yet another store, along with clocks, watches and cameras at great savings.

All the stores and merchants are offering special buys in many departments, with a special emphasis on graduation and father's day gifts. This will be an opportunity to make that 'Someone Special' very happy and save a little money in the process, according to cooperating merchants.

Included in the special insert in the paper this week are advertisements by Gibson's, Buddy's Shoes, Something Special, Anthony's, Cobb's.

A delegation from the South Plains Association of Governments will meet with the court to discuss the Manpower program; and commissioners will open bids for the purchase of a new automobile for the Sheriff's department.

White Tail Deer Season Eliminated

LUBBOCK -- The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in a public hearing in Austin April 25 approved several game and fish regulation proposals that will affect sportsmen in the Panhandle and South Plains next fall.

Regulatory changes adopted by the commission included: -- Increased the length of the antelope season from four to nine days in 33 Panhandle area counties to provide additional recreational opportunity but without anticipation of higher harvest, since harvest is controlled by issuance of permits.

-- Closed the white-tailed deer season in 25 counties which have no harvestable populations (estimated at less than 25 animals). These northwest Texas counties are Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb Hale, Cockran, hockley, Lubbock, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Gaines, Dawson, Andrews, and Martin.

-- Established a mule deer season in the Panhandle from the Saturday before Thanksgiving for 16 days; bag limit, two mule deer, not more than one mule deer, unless by permit. This regulation is designed to treat mule and white-tailed deer separately and allow the department to manage both species more closely. The counties affected include Dallam, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall, Childress, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Ochiltree, Crosby, Kent, Knox, Garza, Stone-wall, Haskell, Borden, Scurry, Fisher, and Jones. (archery season Oct. 1-16, one buck only).

-- Establish quail season in the Panhandle, South Texas and Trans-Pecos areas to be the last Saturday in October through the

Snake Disasters Can Be Prevented

The thought of being bitten by a snake strikes fear into many a heart. But misconceptions about snakes cause unnecessary panic and needless injury for many, according to John P. Murphy, Emergency Medical Services coordinator at the Texas Department of Health. "Snakes," says Murphy, "are not particularly aggressive, with the exception of the cottonmouth moccasin. Most will strike a human only when surprised, cornered, or when a serpent occasionally mistakes a human for food."

Texas leads the nation in poisonous snakebite incidents with nearly 1,500 annually, but deaths are rare. The Bureau of Vital Statistics at the Texas Department of Health reports only six deaths for the last five-year report period. No deaths were reported for the last recorded year, the last recorded year, 1976. Casualties nowadays are usually small children or those who get very large doses of venom and no first aid or treatment.

Texas has four main poisonous snakes: the rattlesnake (which accounts for nearly 80 percent of all bites), the copperhead, the cottonmouth or water moccasin, and the coral snake. The first three are pit vipers. That is, they have large, hollow, moveable fangs and hold venom in pits near their eyes. The coral snake has several small, stationary teeth. It bites with a chewing motion and seldom injects large quantities of its venom, which is primarily neurotoxic. The coral snake resembles two non-poisonous snakes: the scarlet king snake and the Mexican milk snake. The red and yellow bands touch on the coral snake. On the other two, the red and yellow bands are separated by black bands. An old Scout saying goes, "Red and yellow kill a fellow; red and black, poison lack."

"First aid and treatment methods are changing as we learn more about snakebites," according to Dr. Raymond T. Moore, Deputy Commissioner at the Texas Department of Health. Formerly, everyone was taught to make incisions near the bite and suction out the poison. We now believe that 20 to 30 percent of all snakebite victims receive no venom. Ten percent of these are bitten by non-poisonous snakes. The others may get no venom because the snake has already exhausted its supply or because it elects not to inject venom. Another 30 percent have venom injected too deeply to be extracted from shallow crosscuts. Untrained persons have inadvertently cut major arteries, nerves, or tendons while cutting and suctioning, thereby doing more permanent damage than the snakebite. Since the cut-and-suction method benefits no more than a third of all victims, few doctors consider the risks worth taking if medical care can be obtained within a few hours of the bite.

What should you do if you're bitten by a poisonous snake? In all cases, medical attention should be received just as soon as possible after making an attempt to identify the snake.

First aid measures should include immobilizing the stricken area to avoid speeding the circulation and the application of a wide constricting band above and below the wound. It should be loose enough to slide a finger under it easily. Cleanse the area thoroughly with water, alcohol, or antiseptic solution, since some poison may be present on the skin. Put an ice pack on the wound to retard the effects of the venom. Use a chemical cold pack or even cold drink cans if that's all you have. Don't spray ethyl chloride on the wound or submerge it in ice water. Check periodically for frostbite.

Keep the victim calm and take the person promptly and safely to medical attention.

The physician will determine if antivenin is needed and may test first to see if the victim is allergic to the antivenin, which is a serum made from horse serum.

Things to avoid in snakebite first aid include coffee, alcohol or other stimulants, which will speed up circulation. And do not cut-and-suction. The application of stale bread, kerosene, or tobacco juice to snakebites is an old wives' tale-forget it.

Prevention is the best approach. If you live in or travel into snake country, be sure you know which snakes are poisonous. Not all poisonous snakes have rattles, but all with rattles are poisonous.

Avoid grown-up or shady areas where snakes seek shelter from the sun. If you must walk in the brush, wear over-the-calf boots with pantlegs outside. Don't put your hand on top of a rock or into a hole where you cannot see; that includes bait buckets for all those fishermen using live bait, too. And don't count on hearing a rattle-few victims do.

Snakes are dangerous, but proper first aid and medical treatment have made deaths rare. Panic and ignorance only waste effort and increase the danger of serious injury.

Take a closer look at the new Hesston 6610 Self-Propelled.

Ask about our extensive Finance Charge Waiver!

Compare the features that add up to brawny new performance and smooth new propulsion.

Big-tonnage windrowing never went faster! Here's why: Smooth, quiet hydrostatic power (1) to drive wheels and header eliminates many mechanical parts and their maintenance. Hydrostatic drive (2) gives infinite control of ground speed while you maintain most efficient cutting speed. This new propulsion system is built to last for years. Sickle drive (3) has self-adjusting, durable ball joints at each end of the sway bar. And a heavy pitman flywheel smooths sickle action even in tough or lodged crops. Conditioner rolls (4) are 81" wide, widest of any auger header. New, heavy-duty 2" cam track (5) actuates pickup reel. And sturdy folding fingers (6) in the center of the auger provide positive feeding.

Check it out. The new 6610 is a big producer so take a close look. See it at your Hesston dealer and send the coupon for a copy of our 1978 Windrower literature.

The 6610 is an operator's dream. Individual motors on each drive wheel make smooth sharp turns a snap. Excellent visibility gives a clear view of both ends of the header. Air conditioning is optional.
