THE LAW OF DEATH.
BY JOHN HAY.

Thou art a Killyan. Fairer she
In all the land of Savatthi.
She had one child, as sweet and gay
And dear to her as the light of day.
She was young, and he so fair,
The same bright eyes and the same dark hair.
To see them by the blossomy way
They seemed two children at their play.

There came a death dart from the sky,
Killyan's darling die.
The glimmering shade his eyes is pale.
Out of his chest the red blood fades;
His warm heart feels the icy chill,
The round limbs shudder and are still.
And yet Killyan held his fast
Long after life's last pulse was past.
As if her kiss could restore
The smile gone out for evermore.

But when she saw her child was dead
She scattered ashes on her head.
And sat the small corpse, pale and sweet,
And rushing wildly through the street,
She sobbed till at Buddha's feet.

"Master! all-helpful! help me now!
Here at thy feet I humbly bow!
Have mercy, Buddha! help me now!"
She groveled on the marble floor,
And kissed the dead child's ear and o'er.
And suddenly upon the air
There fell the answer to her prayer.
"Bring me to night a Lotus tied
With thread from a house where none has died."

She rose, and laughed with thankful joy,
Sure that the god would save the boy.
She found a Lotus by the stream:
She plucked it from its woody dream.
And then from door to door she fared;
To ask what house by death was spared.
Her heart grew cold to see the eyes
Of all dilate with slow surprise.
"Killyan, thou hast lost thy head:
Nothing can save the child's dead.
There stands a lot by the Ganges' side
A house where none hath ever died."
Thus through the long and weary day,
From every door she bore away
Within her heart, and on her arm,
A heavier load, a deeper harm.
By gates of gold and ivory,
By walled huts of poverty,
The same refrain heard poor Killyan,
The living are few—the dead are many.

The evening came, so still and fleet,
And hark! she heard the sacred feet
She fell, and prayed the god again,
She sobbed and beat her bursting breast:
"Ah! thou hast mocked me! Mightiest!
Lo! I have wandered far and wide—
There stands no house where none hath
And Buddha answered, in a tone
Soft as a flute at twilight blown,
But grand as heaven and strong as death:
To him who heaves with care of faith:
"Child, thou art answer'd! Mourn not!
Bow, and accept the common lot."

Killyan heard with reverence meet,
And laid her child at Buddha's feet.

Two Men Cook Their Lunch
by the Same Old Chicago Fire.

[Inter-Ocean of Friday.]

It is a year, six months and nine days since the fire of October 9, 1871, and yet strange to relate, two gentlemen claim that the champagne blaze of creation has not subsided yet. While a party of gentlemen were passing the ruins of the Catholic Brothers' School, on Van Buren street, east of Clark, their attention was attracted by the escape of smoke, and, out of curiosity, they instituted an investigation. After making an excavation, a small pile of glowing coal was reached, and, when the air came in contact with it, a vigorous flame burst forth. The discoverers resolved upon making the fact memorable, and accordingly, obtaining some potatoes, roasted them by the fire, ate a lunch, then lit some cigars at the blaze, covered the coals over with brick, and then departed. The gentlemen who roach for the above are Mr. J. S. Hewson, carpenter and builder, Van Buren street, and Mr. J. B. Bailey.

Mount Shasta.

In the northern part of California, unfrequented by the ubiquitous tourist, and as yet scarcely touched by the pen of the versatile Bohemian, lies a region, which, in its grandeur and variety of its mountain scenery, is suggestive of the marvelous glacial districts of the Alps. Mont Blanc, the Jungfrau and the Matterhorn were all unconsciously suggested to me as I caught a full view of the rugged snowy peaks of Shasta, standing like a sentinel at the gate of the rich Sacramento valley. Differing radically from the Yosemite in the character of its landscapes, it has everything to gain and little to lose by the comparison. Around its base, magnificently watered and wooded, lies one of the finest hunting and pasture grounds of the Continent; while rising up to a height of 14,443 feet is one of the most remarkable regions of volcanic denudation now in existence. The brilliant hues of the trees near the base made a sort of wild mosaic of the forest before us, the colors changing successively to a somber gray, a dull earthy hue, and a deep white as the eye sought the top, at which it seemed to me that I should never grow weary of gazing. But a nudge and a word from the driver assured us that the great lumbering stage on which we were seated was approaching "Shasta." This is a station on the California and Oregon branch of the Central Pacific Railway. It has an elevation of 3,500 feet above the sea level, and in our point of departure for the mountain, Shasta provides horses, blankets, provisions, and a guide—the last not the least essential; for it is over 18 miles to that coveted summit, and half of that must be traversed on foot, along tortuous and rugged paths. Many a time before I was done the ascent, I thought of Goethe's words:—"Heights charm us; the steps that lead to them do not."

The ride towards the top of the mountain is very beautiful, especially in the late evenings of the year. The leaves of the aspen, willow, mountain mahogany and balm of Gilead have lost their vivid green, so remarkable earlier in the summer, and it has been succeeded by a rich delicate orange, a blended green and yellow, or an apple-red. These exquisite hues, mingled with the heather green of the cedar, the bright green of the cedar, and the green-tinted white of the Teaching the Austrians to Take Greens in Theirs.

The warm weather has had its effect on one branch of Americanism on exhibition here. A month ago the impression was very general that the American bars would do a very poor business on account of the high cost of their drinks, as well as from the fact that a half gallon of beer could be had for the cost of one of their fancy glasses. They were then occasionally drunk as a matter of curiosity, and several Germans could be occasionally seen at one of their tables with a solitary cobbler or cocktail, each taking an occasional suck through the straw, and discussing its merits. It was a mere testing process—each, according to German custom, paying his share of the expense. Yesterday, however, they were thronged with visitors, and the colored waiters, who are kept objects of curiosity, were kept busy filling their orders. These waiters are a sharp set of fellows, most of them from New York, and are of all shades, from the coal black to the yellow pine. The former tell many amusing stories of their experiences, and they seem to enjoy the inspection that they are constantly subjected to. They have picked up a little German, but are each provided with a price list, which they hand to the customer, and he points out the article he desires. The following is a list of the plain American drinks that our German friends are beginning to learn to like, which are served up, smothered in crushed ice, at 30, 50, 60 and 80 kreutzers, or at 25, 30 and 40 cents in American currency, under the title of "American mixed drinks":

Apple Jack and cocktail-Jersey, brandy and soda (English), brandy champagne, brandy crusta, brandy fix, brandy julep, brandy punch, brandy sangaree, brandy sting, brandy smash, brandy sour, brandy toddy, Baltimore egg-nogg, Boehm & Wick's favorite claret cup, claret cobbler, claret punch, claret sangaree, catwaba cobbler, catwaba punch, champagne punch, champagne cocktail, egg slip, eye opener, French cocktail, gin cocktail, gin julep, gin crusta, gin punch, gin sling, gin smash, gin sour, gin toddy, hook cobbler, John Collins (English), Indian wigwag punch, Jamaica rum punch, Jamaica rum sour, Knickerbocker, lemonade (plain), lemonade (with a stick), lemonade (fancy), milk punch, Metropolitan punch

(U. S. X.), pousee cate (New York style), pousee cate (New Orleans), pectoral (Cuban), port wine sangaree, pine apple punch, port wine flip, port wine, phlegm cutter, sherry and bitters (plain), sherry and egg, sherry cobbler, Shanghai Saratoga, soda cocktail, St. Croix fix, St. Croix sour, St. Croix punch, whisky julep and old Kentucky whisky sling, whisky smash, whisky sour.

The champagne punches and cobbler are a florin and a half each, or seventy-five cents in our money. The plain drinks, which are equally as numerous, range from twenty to forty cents each, and forty kreutzers and upwards. Fifteen per cent. of all their receipts, however, is to go to the Exposition fund. The American restaurants, of which there are two very large ones, have become the favorite resort of the English, and are doing a prosperous business. As the Exposition will continue until the 1st of November, more than 4 months longer, and as everybody must eat and drink on the grounds, the value of these privileges have not been over-estimated by those who were scrambling for them.

A German Convention.

A call appears in the Staats Zeitung of this city for a convention of German citizens to meet in Austin on the 7th of August next. The call is signed by leading Germans in Galveston, Austin, Brenham, Houston, and San Antonio, and is coincided in by Germans in other portions of the State. The object of the convention is not to build up any separate organization or party, or to favor any particular political party. It is simply to unite the united action of the Germans throughout the State, and to raise them up to the importance of the political issues of the day.

The Germans form one of the most intelligent and industrious portions of our population, and they are all taxpayers. They are interested in the legislation of the State, in some particulars more so, actively than other classes of our citizens. They are opposed to laws that interfere with their religious views, or their freedom to drink and eat what suits them. They are strongly in favor of public free schools and the enforcement of the laws. They favor liberal provision for the encouragement of immigration. They are an economical people and are alarmed at the reckless expenditure of three hundred thousand dollars as the cost of a Legislature composed of 120 men during four month's session.

This convention is for the purpose of considering the political situation of the German Texans, and we have confidence in the wisdom of its conclusions. It will be composed of intelligent and good citizens, inspired with the best interests of the people and the State.—Journal.

silver firs, give an attractive variety and a beautiful contrast of colors rarely seen elsewhere. The aspen leaves especially, tinted with golden and orange, and sensitive to the slightest breath of wind, seem like myriads of gaudy butterflies fluttering in the sunlight. The limbs of the aspen are smooth and glistening and of a delicate grayish white, beautifully complementing the dark, laminated bark of the surrounding coniferous giants;—one suggesting feminine beauty, grace and timidity; the other, masculine strength, and the settled firmness of feature which comes of exposure to wind and weather.—Thomas Magee, in Scribner's for August.

RESULTS OF THE PRESIDENT'S INDIAN PEACE POLICY.

From our own Correspondent. Washington, Saturday, July 19, 1873.

The opponents of the President's Indian peace policy will derive no encouragement from the report of the Agent of "the Indians of the Central Superintendency, under the care of Friends." Shortly after the inauguration of the peace policy the Society of Friends in the United States, at the request of the President, appointed a superintendent and several sub-agents over what was designated the "Central Superintendency." The general agent of the Executive Committee of Friends on Indian Affairs, who is located at Lawrence, Kansas, has made a report which covers the period of President Grant's first official term. That report has recently been published. It includes the condensed statistics for the years 1868 and 1872, of the Kickapoo, Kaw, Osage, Quapaw, Peoria, Ottawa, Wyandott, Seneca, Sac and Fox, Abenque Shawnee, Chickewar and Munsee, Cheyenne, Arapahoe, Wichita, Keechie, Cadodon, Ionia, Kiowa, and Comanche.

The report represents that each successive year, of the four covered by it, shows an increasing ratio of improvement. It also represents that with many of the Indians the means of industrial improvement came into their hands too recently for them to have more than begun farming operations, that most of the schools have been in existence too short a time for their legitimate results to be yet manifest, and that several of these tribes have, since 1868, moved to new homes in the Indian Territory, and have, therefore, had to contend with all the retarding influences connected with the opening of farms, building houses, &c., in a wild and remote region. Yet, in spite of these drawbacks, their aggregate crop for 1872 is about sevenfold greater than that of 1868, and the number of cattle and hogs owned by them about tenfold greater. In view of these facts, the agent predicts that "should the same policy be pursued for the next ten years, the improvement will be still more decided." - N. Y. Times.

The tabular statement which we have omitted gives the increase in population, in scholastic attendance, No. of acres cultivated, No. of bushels of corn, potatoes, &c., raised. No. of cattle, hogs, and horses in possession of the Indians. According to this tabular statement there is a marked improvement in the worldly and possibly spiritual condition of the Indians.

The impression intended to be conveyed is that the Quaker policy is a success and should be continued. This idea is a delusion, and a snare, and an excellent illustration of the old saying that "facts and figures are the two greatest liars out of jail." Of all the tribes enumerated there are only four that are hostile Indians, viz, the Arapahoe, Cheyenne, Kiowa and Comanches. The rest are nearly all trans-Mississippi Indians who have been cultivating the soil and the arts of peace long before the Quakers had anything to do with them. The people of this section of the Union do not regard any policy a success which encourages the savages in murdering and robbing peaceable tax-paying citizens, no matter how great the moral improvement of the peaceful Indians may have been.

We have no more interest in the missionary efforts of the Quakers among the Indians than we have in the success of similar enterprises in reaching the Pacific Islands.

ers with "moral pocket handkerchiefs and flannel veskets." The increase in the number of Quakers does not compensate for the murdered white children on the frontier, their flourishing farms do not console us for our desolated homesteads, and the increase in their stock does not near come up to the decrease of the stock of Texans. While the Times is complimenting the Indians some of the very tribes mentioned are now murdering and robbing in Texas. We are glad to see peaceful citizens prosper, not excepting the domesticated Indians, but are we not "men and brethren?" Is no aggressive policy to be pursued toward the murdering savages who raid through Texas back and forward from the Reservation?

Unless the Central Government adopts the plan of Governor Davis and puts the hostile Indians on foot without arms, on the Reservation, the reasonable people of the whole country will be very likely to regard the Quaker policy as very far from a success.

Such is fame. WHEN the people of the Northern portions of the United States realize that their rights are equally in danger of being crushed out, we may hope for a reform in the central government.—Herald.

The blisful ignorance of those Yankees is one of the misfortunes which result from free schools. As soon as the poor whites down South learn how to read and write, they will have no occasion to brag on their superior intelligence.

WHICHEVER man our Great Father is sure to prosper in the fight.—Herald. That's what Jeff said to Lee one evening during one of the latter days of the late and episode in our country's history.

WHEN you elect another Legislature I hope the people will see that capable as well as honest men are sent to Austin. Texas has had enough of reputation sympathizers to last for half a century.—Herald.

Several of the leading Democratic papers of Texas congratulated the people that the last Legislature was made up of the "CREAM OF THE DEMOCRACY." "If the salt has lost its savor wherewith shall ye be salted?" Salt River, &c!

HONESTY without common sense is of no practical use.—Herald.

The above is used in speaking of the 13th Legislature. There is a great deal of that kind of honesty in the market at 8 dollars a day.

We call the attention of the Mercury to the fact that the Herald of the 29th had an editorial, and was therefore much more readable than usual. Why does not Mercury have pity on its readers and do likewise?

COUNTY COURT.—The regular term of the County Court met yesterday, Justice Kloke presiding. All the five Justices present. When the Court adjourns we shall publish a summary of the proceedings.—Herald.

Would not that be a summary proceeding against the public?

Now, if we discuss the time-honored name, the Radical would immediately appropriate it, and use it to deceive the people.—Statesman.

It would be the best one they could possibly select for that purpose. The Democracy has tried very hard to assume an alibi, but it is too well known. Do not part with this time honored name.

In the June number of the American Naturalist, Dr. Elliott Counts notices two species of sparrows not hitherto known as inhabitants of this country: the Rufous-winged sparrow and the black-throated sparrow. The first is a homely little bird with a bright bay spot on the end of the wing, and suggests a common field sparrow with the wings of a bay-winged bunting; the second is a pretty and somewhat jaunty-looking bird, with a jet-black throat and a face set off with white stripes. It is frequent in Mexico and Arizona. The Rufous-winged sparrow builds its nest in a small mesquite or sage bush, generally not more than four feet from the ground. The black-throated builds in the same general way, but prefers high ground. Its usual note is sib, sib, sib and a twitter, suggestive of the sound of a coin spinning on the table. In the same paper Dr. Counts describes the Western whippoorwill as much smaller than the Eastern bird and somewhat differently colored. Its note is shorter by a syllable, and sounds like a whip-poor, with accent on the first, and prolongation of the second term. It lays two creamy-white eggs, wholly unmarked, in a depression on the bare ground, generally at the foot of a sheltering bush.

STREAKING of a visit to one of the Paris hospitals a writer says: "As we passed into the hall we heard groans, evidently of a child in great pain. The door leading to the sick ward was ajar, and as we approached we heard the voice of a man talking earnestly with a little sufferer. There was something very affecting in the imploring tones of the child's voice and the tender and sympathizing replies of the physician, and it seemed to us no breach of etiquette to witness through the crack of the half-open door the scene that was passing within. On a narrow pallet near the window lay a fine boy, nine or ten years old, dying of cancer developing itself between the eyes and behind the ears. It had not shown itself externally, but had destroyed the sight and was attended by extraordinary suffering. By his side sat a stately white-haired man, holding with one hand the two of the little patient, while with the other he earnestly smoothed his hair. The child told the story of his pain, 'ah, je souffre fort!' to which the old man listened patiently, promising to devise some relief. Then he rose to go, but first bent over the boy, and with tears dropping from his eyes kissed his forehead longly as a mother. The white-haired man was the world-renowned Melaton—Melaton, lately summoned to attend the fallen emperor."

A New Portrait of Francis Joseph.

His Majesty Francis Joseph is by no means a handsome or graceful man. Although of good height, he has a puny and effeminate appearance, and has the general aspect of a man who might, by sheer accident, bestride a saddle gracefully, however, and when mounted and arrayed in soldierly trappings, make a very respectable appearance. He evidently thinks that good-looking youths find a more presentable looking body of men than the thousands of colonels, majors, captains and lieutenants, who are strutting through the show-bazaars at all hours of the day and night, in their bright and elegant uniforms. They are all of good size, and faultless in form and carriage, and walk along in the apparent conviction that they are objects of admiration. These men are seldom so indiscreet as to marry, unless they should be proposed for by some youthful beauty with a large dowry, but spend their days in adorning and their nights in exercising all manner of lascivious designs against female virtue.

The whole sex, whether married or single, are preyed upon, and the wife or daughter of their bosom friends is neither shielded, nor protected from their wiles. They are so bold and unblushing in their lustful pursuits that a lady, without male company, carrying any personal attractions, would be accosted twenty times in passing a few squares along the Ringstrasse. This practice has been so long in vogue that it creates none of that indignation that it would in an American community, and even the ladies no longer take offense at it. When thus accosted a virtuous lady will exclaim: "You are mistaken, sir," but feel no more aggrieved than if she had been asked the merest and most innocent question. When it is taken into consideration that these youthful and mid-die-aged Adonis, glittering with tinsel and brass buttons, number several thousand, and that they are all elegant specimens of humanity, with all the aims and graces and seductive wiles of the professed libertine, and that they are known to be always on the war path for new victims, the present state of morals in Vienna is not at all surprising. An instance, showing the boldness of these officers, occurred a few weeks since, at respectable dinner. A court-martial was promised, but in a few days they were transferred to one of the provinces. They were afterwards tried, and it is reported were acquitted. Besides, there are thirty battalions of their comrades who emulate their officers, and are ambitious to excel them in the number of their triumphs.

"Have a drink of civil damages" is the latest style of invitation known to those who drink intoxicating beverages.

Two thirds of men's generosity is what spills over the cup. When they fill it full for themselves, they say: You may have the drippings.—Becker.

A Cincinnati man is said to be training himself for his approaching marriage by passing several hours every day in a boiler shop.

Can anybody tell why when Eve was formed from one of Adam's ribs, a hired girl wasn't made at the same time to wait on her?

The mind does not know what diet it can feed on until it has been brought to the starvation point.—Holmes.

Fame is an undertaker that pays but little attention to the living, but bestirns the dead, furnishes out their funerals, and follows them to the grave.

LOCAL AFFAIRS

ALEX. B. SWERT, Notary Public, Express Office. When does the City Council propose to elect a regular City Physician?

Wood is worth three dollars, which is a burning shame. There was a tremendous shower night before last, which will make the grass grow, if it does nothing else.

MARRIAGE is a public spirited man, at least he furnishes the public with good spirits. Galled in a most seductive manner. Call on him and if after investigating the matter throughly it shall appear otherwise we shall say simply "Lord August, thou hast" had "Scott's Marmion."

We understand that a German comic paper titled the CAYORS will shortly make its appearance, and its comments on our City Council and other public men are of a most side-splitting tendency. The only trouble is that these officials have made themselves so ridiculous already that it is very difficult to make them appear more so.

JOHN SMITH announces himself a candidate for the office of Hild Inspector, Sheriff, District Clerk, Life Insurance Agent, Post Office or any other office, that will pay, subject to the approval of the Conventions of both parties. His friends have induced him to consent to allow his name to be used in the coming campaign.

RECORDS COURT. In the case of Baker for violating a city ordinance in neglecting to furnish a house within the fire limits with a proper roof, a verdict of guilty was rendered by the jury. His counsel proposes to apply for a new trial this morning on the ground of improper interference with the jury.

The other cases were not of sufficient importance to report. There is another department of our City Government which has been generally conceded to be efficient, viz the police. We find that this is a mistake and unless it is remedied very promptly it will become our duty to demonstrate to our citizens that there is a very important screw loose somewhere.

We advise that Committee, which is investigating that case of black mailing not make any such white-washing report as is indicated they will make in the official organ. There is besides a feud among the members of the police which is simple disgraceful. Within the last few days affidavits of drunkenness and inefficiency have been made by police officers against each other. Black mailing, drunkenness, and incapacity are serious defects in the conduct of a City.

The Express is the only paper on which the public can rely for the facts in reference to any alleged misconduct of public officers, and we shall as soon as we can ascertain the truth about the matter give an impartial statement of facts that are fast becoming a public scandal.

Two Advertisements. Miss Isippi and Miss Guri, are disgraced. A good deal by the usage in their mouths. In order that all other Misses may avoid the like blunders, they are advised to use the famous SOZODONT, which will prevent and obviate all such blunders.

After a hard day's work no matter whether it has been manual or brain work, there is nothing so refreshing to body and mind as the enjoyment of pleasant society. Our friend Mr. Karber struck the nail right on the head when he established, and opened his garden. This pleasant retreat is finely illuminated every night and while the breeze makes the stay there cool and comfortable, the foliage over your head makes you forget that you are in the midst of our rather dusty City.

Mr. Karber only keeps the best of liquors, wine, cigars and beers known in the market and his kind attention to his guests is well known.

A GREAT HOWL is raised semi-occasionally at the EXPRESS for denouncing such public enemies as recreant members of the Legislature, and incapable, or worse, public officers, but we believe a discriminating public will endorse us in the course we have seen fit to pursue. When the press is muzzled by bribery or flattery it will not be long before our whole system of the management of public affairs will so to speak "go to the dogs."

All our citizens regardless of party are convinced of the hopeless inefficiency of the present City Council and it is feared that before they can be induced to resign, the City will be bankrupt, in fact it is nearly so at present.
