During the Commune, an eminent surgon in Paris, who had no sympathy with it, employed himself in aiding the wounded who were brought to his hospital. His chief assistant was a woman—a Communist—who, day and night, narsed the wounded, and was the most valuable assistant the surgeon had. When the Commune fell, the surgeon was arrested and marched to the drum-head court martial. He supposed he would be shot. As he approached the door of the tribunal he met his late female assistant—coming out be hopeless, as this woman disclined to ack-nowledge his acquaintaines.
